Among the most important alterations is that referring to the sections dealing with out-of-bounds and the lost and unplayable ball. After May 1, "if a ball be lost (except in water or casual water) or be deemed by the player to be unplayable, the player shall play his next stroke as nearly as possible at the spot from which the ball which is lost or unplayable was played, adding a penalty stroke to the score for the hole. If the stroke was played from the teeing-ground, a ball may be teed; in all other cases a ball shall be dropped."

The penalty for a ball out of bounds is to be the same as in the case of a lost or unplayable ball, but "the penalty stroke may be remitted by a local rule." The rule further states that "a player may stand out of bounds to play a ball lying within bounds."

CAR STRIKE IN PETROGRAD.

Rail Walk-out Threatened Over the Shortage of Food.

RIGA, Letvia, May 19.—A tramway strike has broken out in Petrograd and a railway strike is threatened, the Reval newspapers declare, because of the reported inability of the Bolshevik government to fulfill the promise of increased food rations made at the time of the Kronstadt revolt.

One report says that for the last week only one-eighth of a pound of bread has been doled out daily to the population.

OBITUARY

MRS. GEORGE TURNER.

After an illness of several months the death occurred at 6.30 yesterday of Mary Solomon, wife of the late George Turner of Roseneath, at the family residence, 457 Gilmour street. Mrs. Turner was 80 years old and the last member of one of the oldest families of Roseneath. Her grandfather was the first settler in that district and the family is widely known in that section. Following her husband's death 19 years ago she lived in Peterborough for over 15 years and has made a wide circle of friends. She is survived by four sons, M. A. and Leslie, of Peterborough; Walter and G. T. of California. Four daughters survive, Ida, Eva and Hattie at home, and Mrs. F. B., Elliott, of Yellow Grass, Saskatchewan. Mrs. Turner was a lifelong member of the Methodist church.
The funeral will be private, tomorrow at 1 p.m., burial in Roseneath.

SUPPER AND BED FOR THE CRITICS

PARIS, May 18 (Associated Press).—Dramatic critics were offered midnight supper and beds at the Theatre Montaigne recently, so they might, at their ease, write their criticisms in time for the morning papers, and avoid the inconvenience of early morning rising. Most of the 44 beds installed in the theatre were occupied.
This hospitality was in competition with that of another manager who hurriedly improvised a ball, with dances by popular actresses, in the foyer, when the star of the evening fainted and was unable to continue the "first night" performance. By the time the ball was well started, the manager had brought in supper for a theatre full of people, and the party brought more publicity than the successful production would have done.

HEIRESS HELD PRISONER FOR MONEY, CHARGE

SAID TO BE WORTH $60,000,000, YOUNG WOMAN'S SANITY IS NOW QUESTIONED.

FEARED HER MARRIAGE

NEW YORK, May 19.—The appointment of a committee yesterday to pass on the sanity of Miss Anna Wright, a daughter of the Countess Leta del Sera of Florence, Italy, revealed facts concerning the wealth and mental condition of the young woman who was described last August in cable dispatches from Italy as a "young American heiress, said to be worth $60,000,000, held a prisoner in an upper apartment of the Villa Braglotti, sometimes bound with thongs and never allowed to receive visitors even from her household, nor permitted to stir from her locked and grateful abode."
The dispatches to American newspapers stated that the Italian press had published reports that mobs had stormed the villaa nd were ready to rush the house of the Count del Sera and carry off the young woman when a Government official appeased them by obtaining permission from the family for a deputation to visit the young woman and inspect her quarters. The Italian newspapers stated that the Countess, who was Mrs. Ebon Wright and is about 60 years old, had brought about her daughter's insanity by her marriage to the Count Emilio del Sera, 93 years old, in London in 1913. It was stated that to persons who passed underneath the iron-barred windows of the room where the young woman was "imprisoned" she asserted that "the real reason for five years' captivity was the determination of her mother and stepfather that her fortune should not elude them by a contemplated marriage. The young woman was said to have pleaded to be permitted to rejoin her sister, Mrs. Pyne, in New York.
The del Sera and Miss Wright left Italy so quietly that nothing was known of it and Count del Sera and Miss Wright's mother are now at the Ritz-Carlton. The case was taken into the Supreme Court by the Countess on an application for the appointment of a committee of the person and property of her daughter on the ground that she is incurably insane.
The Countess said that for some time Miss Wright has been in the Blythewood Sanitarium at Greenwich, Conn. Her only other relative is her sister, Mrs. Leta C. Pyne, of 36 East Thirty-sixth street, wife of Grafton H. Pyne of Post & Flagg. James D. Pell, broker is her uncle.
The countess del Sera said that before her daughter went to the sanitarium she lived at 10 West Sixty-Third street. She has property worth $215,000, her mother said, and in addition has an income of $12,000 a year.
Justice Tierney appointed John R. Halsey, Dr. William D. Goodall and Arthur Lewis a commission in lunacy to conduct the hearing as to Miss Wright's condition

DRAINING EAST HUNTER STREET MAKES PROBLEM

CREEK IS NATURAL DRAIN FOR EAST CITY, SAYS ENGINEER, AND LAYING PIPES DIFFICULT TO BE INVESTIGATED

Following some discussion on how best to drain Hunter street east if it is paved the Board of Works last night asked City Engineer Parsons to report on a drainage scheme for this street that will be adequate for the present and the future. It was explained by Mr. Parsons that the creek running through East City and emptying into the river below Calcutt's brewery was the natural drain for East City and at present carried away the surface water However, if the road is paved, now is the time to decide if the creek is still to be utilized or a system of water drainage evolved. The difficulty with putting in a permanent drainage system is the depth that the pipes would have to be laid to go under the cross streets and the running of the drain into the river. Some years ago it was thought it would be possible to run the creek down Douro street but the cost, — $13,000 or $14,000 — prohibited changing the course, said Mr. Parsons.

Permanent Outlet

"What I want to know is whether you want me to use the old creek or to put drains down the street to the river? What I want to find out is if we can get the use of that outlet in perpetuity and then we will have a permanent outlet. The creek is the logical drain for East City", said the city engineer. If the creek was used to carry off the surface water he pointed out that it could be covered over and building could be edected over it and the creek converted into a drain which would not by any means be unsightly. In view of the difficulties in draining into the river Mr. Parsons favoured utilizing the creek.

Ald. Turner spoke in favour of laying drains now before the paving as a far-sighted policy and dwelt on the infinite difficulties if such drains had to be put down after the paving was done. Ald. Hay stoutly maintained that the creek would solve the drainage problem as satisfactory when the road was paved as it does now and Mr. Parsons admitted that so far as the road way went this was true. Ald. Whitehouse wanted to leave the matter in abeyance til other problems in connection with paving were settled Ald. Hay strongly objected to any change being made in the advertisement as directed by resolution of Council on May 12th. Finally on motion of Ald. Turner, seconded by Ald. Morrison the matter was left to the city engineer to report on.

Call for Tenders

Tenders for paving the streets decided upon by the council will be called for by the city engineer. The formal motion passed last night by the board was "that the city engineer be directed to advertise for tenders for paving all the streets of which intention to paye has been given and tenders be received by the chairman and accepted up till June 15. Ald. Turner was the mover and Ald. Hamilton, the seconder of this motion necessary for tenders to be advertised for following the announced intention of the city to pave several streets. Five types of pavements are mentioned in the specifications. The Board of Works first thought that tenders could be closed on June 3, but Ald. Hamilton's advice "that they were trying to rush the thing", impressed itself to such an extent upon the aldermen that extension of the time to June 15 was made.

Ald. Whitehouse had no trouble getting a quorum last night. There was Mayor McIntyre and six aldermen:—Hay, Crowe, Turner, Phelan, Morrison, and Hamilton at the meeting.

ST. LUKE'S CHURCH HELD A RECEPTION AND PRESENTATION

About 100 members of the congregation of St. Luke's church gathered to the parish hall last evening for the discussion of busIness and for the special purpose of presenting Mr. E. A. Peck, in recognition of his long and faithful service in the work of the church, with a solid gold watch and chain, accompanied by an address, beautifully inscribed by Mr. T. Q. Quartermaine and framed by the Roy Studio. Mr. Peck, who has been active in all sorts of church work, as Sunday school superintendent, lay reader, church warden and envelope secretary for the long term of 33 years, was taken quite by surprise, but expressed his appreciation in fitting words. A handsome bouquet of roses was also presented to Mrs. Peck, to commemorate her untiring activity when physically able. The address was read by Mr. R. B. Rogers and presentation made by Mr. Frank Adams, while a committee composed of Messrs. R. H. Parsons, J. J. Turner, R. B. Rogers, T. H. Adams and H. A. Perry had charge of the whole affair. An impromptu musical programme was given at the close of business proceedings, with Rev. Mr. Bousfield in the chair.

OTTAWA, May 20.—(Canadian Press).—Officials here have no knowledge that legislation will be brought down this session to cover possible loop holes thrugh which the Liberty League might be able to declare the referendum vote of April invalid. PLAY PRESENTED BY CONSERVATORY

SPRIGHTLY DANCES AND TUNEFUL MELODY—THE ARTISTS.

"The Little Traveller," as presented at the Conservatory of Music Hall last evening, was one of the most interesting and original productions of its class ever presented here.

It was both written and directed by Miss May Urquhart, of the Conservatory of Music staff, and its success scored a distinct tribute to ability, both as to its arrangement and productions. It provided an opportunity of bringing into the limelight considerable local talent, and gives promise of greater things to come.

It was replete with graceful and sprightly dances, tuneful and appealing music and a wealth of varicolored costumes. And the audience which completely filled the hall, never had a chance to lose interest throughout the entire performance.

Space will not permit an extended reference to those who contributed prominently to the evening's success.

Miss Eva Outram played the part of "Mother," and Miss Alma Stintchombe played the part of "The Rag Doll" very cleverly.

Miss Roberta Lewis was the "Working Fairy," and her dancing in the second half of the performance was encored reneatedly.

Miss Ullaine Judd, four-year-old dancing pupil of Miss Urquhart, was so dainty and fragile, and performed with such grace and charm, that she completely captivated the audience.

"The Lily and the Rose," by Margaret Walker and Marjory Lang, was delightful.

Miss Greta LeBarr took the part of the "Japanese Sandman," and sang with excellent voice.

Miss Hazel Davidson, as "Queen of the Gipsies," gave a performance which demonstrated her well-known ability at its best.

The several groups of National Esquimos, Dutch, Canadians and the Brigands Bold were much applauded, and the Hawaiian Group, consisting of Miss Geraldine Glover, Miss G. Gerhard, Miss Betty McDonald and Miss Grace Allen was a study in harmony and beauty.

Mr. Kenneth Green gave an excellent number on the flute.

Miss H. Morrison gave "A Scotch Sermon" in a very realistic manner.

Miss Grace Evans, in a scene from "Way Down East," and Miss Margaret Herridge in "Petang," showed a decided dramatic talent.

Miss J. McGill, in "Lasca," and Miss Irene Breckenridge, in "Ojistah Indian," gave two numbers which greatly added to an already very enjoyable programme.

PETERBOROUGH DRUGGISTS ATTEND CONVENTION.

Peterborough druggists deserted their shops yesterday and represented this city at the convention of the retail druggists of this district covering the counties of Victoria, Peterborough, Ontario, Durham and Northumberland, held in Port Hope yesterday in the Town Hall. About fifty pharmacists were present at the convention, which is an annual event. Business of importance to the retail trade formed most of the discussion at the convention. The convention was a successful one, the Examiner was informed by J. P. Bond, of the Bond Drug Co., to-day.

WILL SUPPORT DEEPENING OF ST. LAWRENCE

CHAMBER OF COMMERCE PROMISES THIS FOLLOWING MAJOR LEWIS' ADDRESS LAST NIGHT. EXPLAINS THE PROJECT

A most interesting and instructive address was delivered last evening at the regular meeting of the Chamber of Commerce, by Major Alex. C. Lewis, M. P. P., North East Toronto, Secretary-Treasurer, Canadian Deep Waterways and Power Association, on "Transportation and Power, as Affected by the Proposed Deepening of the St. Lawrence River."

The association which Major Lewis represents is an organization of all interested municipalities in Canada, working in conjunction with the Great Lakes-St. Lawrence Tide-Water Association, representative of all interested United States municipalities and organizations.

The speaker explained that this was particularly a national problem, necessitated by the need of cheaper transportation from Ontario and the Middle West, and increased demand for power.

In comparing the different costs of transportation, he remarked that to haul one ton one mile by horse vehicle it would cost 23c. In England, where they have better road systems, the steam truck could haul one ton one mile for 5c. On the Canadian railways, pre war rate, 8 mills; average canal rate 3c; on the Soo Canal, 2-3 mill; ocean carrier, 2 mills; and the Great Lakes, 1 mill per mile tons.

With the canalizing of the St.Lawrence for the 46 miles, and allowing for transportation of grain from the Great Lakes to the Liverpool market it had been calculated that a saving of 5c on each bushel could be made. Of the bilion dollars' worth of total imports to Canada last year, $801,000,000 was from the United States, brought in by rail transportation, and $262,000,000, by water. Of this $260,000,000, $159,000,000 was for Ontario and the Middle West, which could be transported by water.

On investigation it has been found that $360,000,000 of importations from the United States comes from the Eastern States, and a considerable amount of this could be transported by water via the coast from New York, and through the St. Lawrence to the destination.

In giving specific instances of the difference in the rates between rail and water transportation, the speaker referred to the importation of crockery fom Euope, and stated that by ocean carrier from Liverpool to Montreal, the charge was $4.80 per ton, covering a distance of 2700 miles whereas by rail the transportation rate for 1400 miles was $33 per ton. Also that British Columbia fir could be shipped to Montreal via the Panama Canal $15 cheaper per thousand feet board measure, than by rail across Canada.

In referring to the importation of bituminous coal from the United States, he stated that last year the total imports amounted o 13,000,000, 10,000,000 of which were for Ontario, which actually meant the spending of $86,000,000 in the United States for coal which could be secured from the United States, provided that water transportation could be used.

Details of the Soo Canal, St. Clair River, Detroit River, and the Welland Canal were given, and showed that 90 per cent. of the present world's ocean carriers could navigate these waterways through the Great Lakes. For the development of these channels some $10,000,00 has already been spent which would prove to be of considerable loss in compensation for the outlay if the St. Lawrence River was not developed to allow the passage of ocean carriers.

Various estimates have been made in the cost of the canalizing of the St. Lawrence for the 46 miles, and the speaker said that it would compensate Canada and cover the interest and the sinking charges on the investment in 40 years, if the total cost of the development was $400,000,000.

The international power development b ythe project would be 225,000,000 of horse power, which would allow 50 per cent for Canada, and from the Canadian section of the development alone 2,000,000 horse power could be developed.

A thoroughly capable engineer had estimated that the cost of development per h.p. would be $80, as compared with the present Chippewa development at $115 per h.p. The maximum charges for delivered power through Eastern Ontario and Quebec would be $13 per h.p.

A considerable amount of opposition has been made to the proposal, but in almost every case the objections could be answered by referring to the Manchester Ship Canal from Manchester to River Mersey in England, a distance of 36 miles, which showed that Liverpool at the head of the Mersey increased its trade rather than decreased it by the water connection from the Irish Sea to Manchester, and that the largest of ocean carriers could navigate the locks quite easily.

Major Lewis concluded his address by requesting the support of the Chamber to the activities of the Association in developing this project which would be of benefit to the whole of the North American continent, and particularly Canada.

A hearty vote of thanks was tendered to the speaker for his able address, and the assurance was given that all support possible would be rendered to the Association in its great project.

A SEPARATIST MOVE FEARED

EMPIRE UNITY, WITH INDEPENDENCE OF DOMINIONS, NECESSARY, SAYS MRS. M'DONALD. UNREST A MENACE

The Local Council of Women met yesterday afternoon in the Green Room of the Y.W.C.A., with Mrs. A. Stevenson in the chair. Nominations were made by the meeting for the different committees, which will be voted on at the annual convention of the National Council, which takes place in Calgary in June. Mrs. W. R. Morris was chosen by the local Council as their nominee for convenor of the National Recreation Committee. Reports were heard from Mrs. Jos. Mills, convenor of the Committee on Employment, showing very unsatisfactory sanitary conditions in some of the local offices and stores where women are employment; from Miss B. Walton, on her work in connection with the furtherance of good "Movies," and from Mrs. W. R. Morris, who attended the meeting of the Social Service Convention here recently.

Some discussion arose over the question of the enforcement of the curfew law in Peterborough, and a committee, composed of Mrs. S. T. Medd, Mrs. A. Stevenson and Mrs. E. V. Frederick, was appointed to investigate conditions, and report at the next general meeting.

Read a Paper.

Mrs. Adrian McDonald read a splendid and very interesting paper on "The New British Commonwealth," reviewing, in its many stages, the growth of the present system of responsible government in the Dominion of Canada, and the causes directly resulting from Canada's participation in the Great War, of the present feeling of greater privileges and responsibilities accruing to us as a nation. "The Dominions have now put off their swaddling clothes," said the speaker, referring to the era of unrest in India, Egypt, Ireland, Australia, South Africa, and our own Dominion. "Nationality was the cry of the leaders at the Peace Conference," with the result that the whole of Europe had been broken up into separate states, each with its own violent national pride and desire for expansion. This is where the danger lies in the present unrestful feeling which is pervading Canada as well as the rest of the world, the danger of separatist tendencies becoming so marked as to constitute a menace to the progress and advancement of our great Dominion. The whole problem, therefore, is to work out some scheme, whereby the different parts of the Empire may be independent and still retain their Imperial unity, and the suggestion has been made of a conference of Premiers or their representatives with no powers save those of discussion, who might exchange ideas on questions of national policy which might be submitted to their several countries for decision. Lord Milner was quoted as saying that the only basis of Empire is a political partnership, that nothing can be done along this line by Great Britain, but that the impulse must come from the colonies themselves.

Mrs. McDonald was tendered a hearty vote of thanks for her excellent and enlightening address on an unusual subject from a feminine speaker.

ARE TO STUDY SEWAGE PLANT AT WOODSTOCK

DEPUTATION GOING THERE MAY 24 TO ATTEND OPENING OF NEW SEWAGE DISPOSAL PLANT. PAVING PLANS DELAYED

A deputation to be appointed by Mayor McIntyre will attend the opening of the sewage disposal plant at Woodstock on May 24. An invitation was received from Woodstock and considered by the Board of Works last night and it was decided to send a deputation. A request from the Parks Committee for oil for Victoria Park was received by the Board and referred to city Engineer Parsons. The City Engineer was instructed by the Board of Works to make the necessary repairs to the retaining wall on the east side of Park street north of Simcoe, where it is said to be broken and a landslide is threatened in front of W. C. Ackerman's.

The city engineer advised the Board of Works that it would take another week to prepare a report on the paving of Hunter street east and it will therefore be another week at least before the city can announce its intention to pave. When tenders are called for paving the streets decided upon by the council, Hunter street east, will not be in the list. Ald. Hay criticized the delay at the meeting last night and when the City Engineer said he would report on it next. Ald Hay said he might as well next year. He spoke of the need of paving this street. Ald. Hamilton spoke against paving it and the Chairman, Ald Whitehouse, and Ald. Turner took the stand that the other work should not be held up on account of the East City stretch.

"The Tobacco of Quality"

WHEN YOU WAKE UP DRINK GLASS OF HOT WATER

Wash yourself on the inside before breakfast like you do on the outside. This is vastly more important because the skin pores do not absorb impurities in the blood, causing illness, while the bowel pores do.

For every ounce of food taken into the stomach nearly an ounce of waste material must be carried out of the body. If this waste is not eliminated day by day it quickly ferments and generates poisons,gases and toxins, which are absorbed or sucked into the blood stream, through the lymph ducts which suck only nourishment.

A splendid health measure is to drink before breakfast each day, a glass of hot water with a teaspoonful of limestone phosphate in it, which is a harmless way to wash these poisons from the stomach, liver, kidneys, and bowels; thus cleansing, sweetening and freshening the alimentary canal before eating more food.

A quarter pound of limestone phosphate costs but very little at the drug store but is sufficient to make anyone an enthusiast on inside bathing.

PRESENTATION TO MR. AND MRS. MOORE

QUAKER OATS STAFF HONOUR LONG SERVICE MEMBER.

Mr. and Mrs. Ira D. Moore were guests at a supper given in their honor at Hooper's last evening, by the members of the Quaker Oats Fellowship Association and Mill Foremen. Mr. Moore, who has been associated with the Quaker Oats Company for the past eighteen years, is severing his connection with the Company to enter into partnership with the W. Scott Co. Coal and Cold Storage, East City, and his fellow employees gathered to wish him success in his new undertaking and to try to express to him their regret at his leaving the "Quaker Family."

The gathering last evening was an eloquent tribute to Mr. Moore, being representative from the junior office boy to the executive heads in the office, and with every foreman present.

The toastmaster for the evening was Mr. George A. Macdonald. The toast list was short. After the toast to "The King" had been honored, to Mr. J. E. Sullivan fell the duty of proposing the toast of the evening, "Our Guests." Mr. Sullivan was a happy choice as he had been with the company since Mr. Moore joined the staff, and his fesume of the personnel of the original staff, starting with the first clerk when the sod was turned in 1901 ,for the election of the old plant, was interesting to all the resent staff and stirred up pleasant recollections among the few "originals."

Coupled with this toast was a presentation to Mr. Moore of a gold watch and to Mrs. Moore a bouquet of roses, a remembrance from Mr. Moore's fellow employees with the Quaker Oats Company. Miss Amy Jamieson was called upon to make the presentation.

Mr. Moore, in reply, neatly thanked his friends for their kindness and assured them of his everlasting good will and that it had not been without due consideration that his decision had been made to take up other work. While he was leaving the Quaker Oats Company, he could not but be interested in its future and the future of those connected with it, who he felt, were truly his friends.

The only other toast was that to "The Ladies," proposed by Mr. E. V. Eldridge, and responded to on behalf of the ladies by Mr. L. H. Ingram.

Mr. W. E. Perdue spoke, representing the foremen, referring to the splendid spirit of co-operation always in evidence between the office and mill.

Mr. George Lynch contributed to the pleasure of the evening with some of his humorous monologues, rendered in his inimitable style.

Mr. E. V. Morphet also kindly assisted with a solo. The accompanist for the evening was Mr. Alex. Seager.

INTERPELLATE BRIAND GOV'T

WANT U.S. HELP

PARIS, May 20. — (Canadian Press).—The Government of Premier Briand was interpellated in the Chamber of Deputies, yesterday on its stand with regard to Germany. Three deputies spoke and still others are down for speeches which will carry the discussion over until Saturday when Premier Briand will reply and ask vote of confidence from the chamber.

The three speakers yesterday were Audre Tardieu, Centrist, M. B. Baudrey, D'Asson, Royalist and M. Margaine, Radical, all of them attacked M. Briand for his failure to occupy the Ruhr region of Germany and to take stern measures for obtaining guarantees from Germany. They charged M. Briand with forsaking the French view point on pressure from Lloyd George..

M. Margaine made a passionate appeal to M. Briand to call upon the United States to aid in solving European problems.

OBITUARY

MRS. ALFRED SHERWIN

(Contributed)

Very suddenly and without warning the death of Mrs. Alfred Sherwin occurred at her residence in Roseneath on Monday, May 9th at 2 p.m. Up until Monday morning she had been in her usual state of good health. But shortly after noon she passed out of this life after having given birth to a baby boy, which was still born .

The funeral, which took place Wednesday afternoon, was conducted by Rev. H. A. Burch, B. A., pastor of the Methodist Church, at the home of the deceased. It was largely attended while there is a wide connection of the family, which meant a large company of mourners Mrs. Sherwin was beloved by all who knew her and the whole community for miles around gathered at the home to pay their last respects to her memory and to extend their sympathy to the bereaved husband and family, who are heart broken and prostrate at their sudden and great loss.

Very tenderly was the casket, containing all that was mortal of Mrs. Sherwin and her babe, carried to its last resting place in Centenarey burying ground by Messrs. C. Thackeray, T. Sandercock, E. Linton, Ed. George, Robt. Campbell and H. Mouncey.

Mrs. Sherwin was forty-seven years af age. She is survived by her husband and fourteen children, three of whom are residing in Western Canada and were unable to reach home in time for the funeral. Mrs. Sherwin was a native of Alnwick Township and with the exception of a couple of years spent in Peterboro has lived here all her life. She was married to Alfred Sherwin thirty-one years ago. Only last fall Mr. Sherwin purchased the property of Mr. G. Montgomery in Roseneath, and moved to the village leaving the farm in charge of his two sons, Austin and Clarence, while two of the older girls were keeping house for them.

CONLEY BROTHERS OFF TO KINGSTON

TORONTO, May 20. (Canadian Press.)—"You deceived us all. If I had known the truth, Patsy Lewis, as you called him would never have entered our home," Mrs. Conley told her son, Arthur Conley, when she saw him at the jail yesterday, before he left for Kingston to commence serving his 15 year term. Mrs. Conley told her son that he ought to be ashamed of himself for his action in returning to crime when he had a wife and infant child. She also taxed him with concealing from her the fact that, Roy Hotrum, going under the name of Patsy Lewis, had been with him at Kingston previously. Arthur Conley's wife and his three months' old baby, were also at the jail to see him before he left. The party also saw Jack Conley, who will serve a twenty years' sentence. Efforts may be made to have the younger Conley's sentence reduced.

SUSTAIN GOVT. BY 20 IN VOTE ON THE BUDGET

AFTER ALL-NIGHT SESSION VOTE AT 5.30 THIS MORNING WAS 103 TO 83 AGAINST FIELDING AMENDMENT.

15 HOUR SITTING

OTTAWA, May 20. — (Canadian Press).—The Government was sustained by a majority of twenty in the vote on the Fielding amendment to the budget. At 5.30 this morning the vote was taken, and stood 83 for the amendment and 103 against. The main motion subsequently carried on the same division. The vote did not come until nearly fifteen hours of sitting, and daylight was streaking through the windows of the Commons Chamber as the division bells sounded. The announcement of the figures was greeted with loud and prolonged cheering by the Government members.

Premier Meighen made an unqualified denial of a newspaper despatch reporting Hon. Peter Veniot, Minister of Public Works in New Brunswick, as asserting that he had been invited to enter the Dominion Cabinet by a prominent Conservative, who had in his possession letters from the Prime Minister and another member of the Dominion Government. Mr. Meighen denied the authorship of the letter referred to, declaring, "All I need to say is that no such proposition was made by me or by any one on my behalf, directly, indirectly, definitely, indefinitely, or otherwise. No such letter as Mr. Veniot refers to was ever written." What would be the next step in the matter the Premier did not profess to know.

The debate on the budget had been carried on practically entirely from the Opposition benches all afternoon and evening. Donald Sutherland (South Oxford) resumed in the afternoon, and was followed by Hon. Mackenzie King. The only Government speaker during the night hours was F. L. Lalor (Hamilton).

THE POLE RUNS AMUCK.

Instead of breaking out in so many troublesome directions, the Pole should mind his own fences and build up the country that has been given him outright before he runs amuck over Europe. The Allies have sent an ultimatum to Berlin. They might very properly send another to their Warsaw protege, which, being given an inch, seems to desire to seretch itself infinitely. —Louisville Courier-Journal.

MANY PROTEST BUDGET TAXES

SALES TAX AND DOUBLE DUTY ON LIQUORS SUBJECT OF CONSIDERABLE OBJECTION.

OTTAWA, May 20.—Protests of various kinds are being made against the operation of the new Budget and these will be voiced and considered in the committee stage of the bill as soon as the present debate ends.

There is strong objection to the double duty on liquor and it is understood that the Provincial Governments, handling that trade are parties to it. By the Budget the profit will largely be absorbed by the Federal Exchequer. Objections are also urged against the sales tax, on the ground that in its present form it permits of wholesalers offering to absorb the tax as a discount and thus cultivate unfair competition.

There is not much chance of a change being made in the provisions of the Budget wereby, for purposes of customs valuation, a fifty per cent limit is fixed to te depreciation of foreign currency.

Protesting delegates of Toronto and Montreal importers of German goods which waited upon Sir Henry Drayton yesterday got a courteous hearing, but no promise was made.

The argument resolves itself mainly in the contention that while the German mark has decreased to about two cents in Canadian money instead of the par value of 24 cents, ther e has been an increased production cost in Germany which compensates the other way and operates against any unfair competition with Canadian manufactures. In the Fordney bill in the States the depreciation was limited to 66 per cent. but this provision was finally struck out.

THE WEATHER

A number of different people have asked me when the last killing frost usually comes in the spring, presumably desiring to set out their tomatoes and other tender plants, but having a wholesome dread of a late appearance of Jack Frost. Last spring, the last frost was on May 15th; in 1919, it was on May 6th; and in 1918, it was May 11th. These dates are not the last appearance of the so-called white or hoar frost which does but little damage, but the last occasion on which the temperature sank below the freezing point, when serious damage may be done to any tender vegetation that may be exposed.—W.P.

WHERE DO THEY COME FROM?

One feature that has impressed many people in connection with the sensational Hotrum-Conley-McFadden hold up and robbery episodes in Toronto is that this band of young criminals seem to have had little difficulty in securing weapons, with which they pursued their unlawful operations. The gang appear to have always been well armed with revolvers in spite of the regulations passed some time ago and intended to prevent crooks from securing weapons. It might have led to interesting as well as useful information if an effort had been made to find out where all these revolvers came from. Evidently the man who wants to secure a firearm for an unlawful purpose has little trouble in obtaining possession of a revolver, the regulation providing, as was pointed out when they were introduced, a nuisance to the honest citizens and an utter failure so far as keeping guns out of the hands of crooks is concerned.

TIGHTEN THE FENCES.

Statements by new arrivals from the Motherland that intending immigrants have simply to say they are farm labourers in order to evade the regulations and secure admission into Canada should receive the immediate attention of the immigration authorities. The unemployment crisis in Canadian cities is bad enough now; an influx of industrial workers who pose as farmers long enough to get into Canada and then flock to the cities will aggravate the crisis and cause grave trouble next winter. If the regulations are being evaded, as apparently they are, then the barriers must be made more secure. There is room for thousands of men who want to go on the land in the wewstern provinces, but under present conditions there is no room in Canadian cities for industrial workers and many of them will only be a charge upon the community in the next few months if there is not an immediate commercial revival And that does not seem likely.

A BETTER PLAN.

The special committee of the House of Commons, appointed to study the bill introduced by the Hon. E. K. Spinney, proposing to take away from the Civil Service Commission the right to make certain appointments, has decided to jettison the measure. In its place they will recommend an amendment authorizing the Civil Service Commission to exempt from the operation of the Act any grade or class of employee, if the Commission believes that such exemption is in the public interest, or if the application of the Act is impracticable. The change will not please those politicians who wanted to return to the spoils system, but the majority of people will find the amendment much more satisfactory than the Spinney Bill. They prefer to have the Civil Service Commission make all the appointments that are possible and they also want that body to be the judges as to what appointments the Commission thinks cannot be satisfactorily handled by them. The members of the Commission are in a position to decide such exemptions much better than are the members of the House.

THE RED CROSS.

The address given by Dr. J. W. Robertson, C.M.G., before the Canadian Public Health Association, was a convincing argument on behalf of the Red Cross Society's campaign for a healthful Canada, and should furnish a strong incentive for all public-spirited citizens to ally themselves with the Red Cross and assist in the great effort that is being inaugurated. Dr. Robertson declares that the people of Canada are heading downward in physical health. We Canadians are wont to think of ourselves as superior beings from a physical standpoint, and it is rather disconcerting to hear from such an authority as Dr. Robertson that seventy-five per cent. of the children of to-day are suffering from some minor ailment. The Red Cross hopes to set the feet of Canadians firmly upon the pathway to health. It is a magnificent ideal that the society has adopted, and having shown by its work in the great war what it could accomplish, there is no reason to fear that its peace time endeavour will fall short. Dr. Robertson expects that three-quarters of a million Canadians will join the Red Cross Society. It is to be hoped that his estimate is well founded, for with a membership on that scale, a great deal can be expected. Peterborough must do its share in this splendid national enterprise.

RAILWAY WAGE REDUCTIONS

The Railway Labor Wage Board in the United States has announced a forthcoming reduction in the wages of unskilled labor on the United States railways. Last year, it ordered increases averaging 20 per cent., and costing the railways $600,000,000 a year. The extent of the reduction is not yet known but it is likely to approximate last year's increases. While this will have no direct effect in Canada, the fact that Canadian railway wages have for years been based on the United States standard — going up each time almost simultaneously—makes the decision important, in view of the impending discussion of a reduction of wage expense on the Canadian railways.

Considerable propaganda respecting the case of the railways and the railroad men for and against wage reduction is circulating in Canada. One long statement sent out a few days ago was based on statistics of wages for the year ending June 30, 1919. As that is almost two years ago, and large increases occurred in 1920, the whole basis of the statement is vitiated. The National Railways management gave to the Minister of Railways in April a statement of average monthly wages for the various classes of employees in 1916 and 1921, and this statement is in Hansard as an appendix It shows that engineers on some runs of the old Canadian Northern advanced from $196 to $369; from $218 to $495; from $152 to $432; from $174 to $395; that conductors advanced from $135 to $210; from $143 to $304; that repair shop machinists, without overtime, went from $92.50 to $163.20; carmen from $60 to $94 in 1916 to $152.80 to $172 in 1921; agents from $66-$175 to $135-$288; checkers from $60 to $127.50, etc.

The method of compiling wages for the train crews is complicated, but it is clear that the average increase for the stationary workers has been about 100 per cent. flat, and for some engineers considerably more. Some engineers earn about $5000 a year. The overtime schedule is much changed. The effect of the increases is better guaged by the aggregate outlays for them by the railways, and show the exceptional character of the advance. It is apparently easy to pick out individual cases in which the increases have not apparently been at all notable, but there are other cases where the increase put the worker well up into the super-tax class.

These wage schedules will be the subject of conferences between the Canadian railway managements shortly. The reduction across the line by order of the Railway Labor Board is apparently only partial, but many of the railways have been making cuts on their own initiative, and if Canada is not to be badly handicapped in the serious time ahead of us, economically, we must have as cheap transportation as the United States. Our railways have far less traffic per mile, and the Canadian producer cannot afford to pay for any extravagances in the management of our lines.—Mail and Empire.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

It is announced that Parliament will prorogue next week. This means much important business will be rushed through with scant consideration. It was ever thus.

Peterborough people are beginning to wish for a Rain-maker Hatfield to operate on the local streets.

A Montreal prisoner charged with stealing hats, purloined the derby of his counsel from the police court. There seems to be an explanation due from the lawyer.

"Three minutes' talk costs Gananoque $16.75," says a newspaper heading. But a local man only said one word the other day and it cost him $200 and costs. The word was "Guilty."

SAGE AND SULPHER DARKENS GRAY HAR

It's Grandmother's Recipe to Restore Colour, Gloss and Attractiveness.

Almost everyone knows that Sage Tea and Sulphur, properly compounded, brings back the natural colour and lustre to the hair when faded, streaked or gray. Years ago the only way to get this mixture was to make it at home, which is mussy and troublesome. Nowadays by asking at any drug store for "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound," you will get a large bottle of this famous old recipe, improved by the addition of other ingredients at a small cost.

Don't stay gray! Try it! No one can possibly tell that you darkened your hair, as it does it so naturally and evenly. You dampen a sponge or soft brush with it and draw this through your hair, taking one small strand at a time; by morning the gray hair disappears, and after another application or two, your hair becomes beautifully dark, glossy, and attractive.

COULDN'T EXPLAIN IT.

"Do you know why I am like a mule?" he asked her when he got home.

"No," she replied, promptly. "I unanimous in their decision to obknow you are, but I don't know why you are."

THIN PEOPLE NEED BITRO-PHOSPHATE

All that most weak nervous, thin, mentally-depressed people need is ten grains of pure organic phosphate with each meal for a few weeks.

It is natural food for nerve and brain cells and is known to such reliable pharmacist as McDermid & Jury as Bitro-Phosphate. Because of its power to help create healthy flesh and strengthen weak nerves, much of it is being sold to people who are lacking in vitality.

CAUTION: Although Bitro-Phosphate is an excellent aid in relieving weak, nervous condition, its use is not advised unless increased weight is desired.

NEVER READ SHAKESPEARE.

A certain inspector of schools was paying a visit to a remote north-country school.

The squire of the village afterwards invited him to dinner with a number of other guests.

During the repast the host said to the inspector: "By the way, did you have any amusing experiences in the course of your duties to-day?"

His guest replied: "Yes, I was taking a class of small boys in the subject of general knowledge.

"I have a gruff manner, but, I hope, a kindly heart. I asked somewhat abruptly, 'Who wrote Hamlet?'

"There was a long pause. Then a small boy held up a trembling hand and stammered out: "Please, sir, I didn't.'"

After the ladies had retired the squire moved his seat so as to sit next the inspector and said:

"About that story—I suppose the little beggar really did write it — didn't he?"—Pearson's.

LOVE!

By KATHERINE MOORE

New Magazines.

Chapter 35.

I turned over my thoughts and tried to think of every possible way to please Leonard —to divert his interest into safer channels.

I always tried to have a number of the latest copies of the popular magazines on the living room table. Leonard's present state of nerves needed something light and interesting to read. I had noticed that he seldom read a book these days.

One morning when I was down doing my marketing I suddenly had a happy thought. I went into a newspaper and magazine shop and looked eagerly over the current numbers of the magazines, and finally found just what I was looking for. I selected a nice fresh copy, paid for it and took it home.

That night after dinner I anxiously waited results.

Leonard finished reading the evening paper and let it slip from his hand to the floor. He drummed idly with his fingers on the arms of his chair. I was watching him slyly from behind the pages of a book. "Hello — "Field! and Stream' Where'd this come from?" he asked with a sudden burst of interest in his voice as he leaned over and picked up the magazine from the table.

"I happened to see it down town this morning," I answered casually. Thought you might like it," I added a little warmly.

Leonard settled down comfortably in his chair and stretched his long legs out in front of him. He smoked a while, finished one cigar —lit another, and read on contentedly.

I did not read much in my book that night. I was too busy watching the expression of genuine satisfaction on Leonard's face.

Once he put the magazine down across his knees and looked over at me.

"There's a splendid article in here on dry fly fishing," he told me. "Did you notice it?"

"No, I want to read it though," I answered enthusiastically. "I'll look at it tomorrow."

"Do you know it's two years since I've done any fishing?" he mused retrospectively. "Wonder how it would feel to get a three or four pound brook trout on your line once more?" A smile spread happily across his tired countenance and he sat staring into space for a few minutes.

Then he picked up the magazine again, crossed his legs and buried his gaze once more in its alluring pages.

After all, being a successful wife required an awful amount of forethought and subterfuge, I reflected. Buit it was worth it. I was feeling just a tiny bit happy.

The next night when Leonard came home I met him at the door. I varied my attack. Sometimes I would make a point of being out when he came home. If it were possible I wanted him to miss me a little. Then again I would be on hand to greet him.

He placed the evening papers and a magazine on the hall table and stepped over to the closet to hang up his hat.

I glanced at the name at the top of the magazine and my heart nearly stopped beating. It was the May issue of "Outing." I tried not to put any unusual feeling in my voice, as I picked up the magazine, but my hand shook a little.

"See you have a copy of 'Outing'," I said, turning over the pages. "I read the article on fly fishing in the other. This any good?"

Leonard came back and stood looking over my shoulder. His nearness was a little trying to my sensitive nerves.

"Turn over a page—There," he directed me, "that's got some good points for automobile camping trips. I was thinking we might try a week-end fishing trip sometime when we get the car."

To-morrow—I Learn of Mr. Darwood's Death.

OFFICIAL REPORT FARM CONDITIONS

The following is a summary of reports made by the Agricultural Representatives to the Ontario Department of Agriculture:

Fall wheat has been making growth, and is now showing a very fair top.

Clover has picked up recently, and also presents an encouraging appearance.

Spring grains were rushed in during the fine weather lately prevailing, and in most counties the work is practically over. The newly sown crops are looking particularly well on tiled fields.

Some more early corn and potatoes were got in during the week, and land is now being prepared for roots.

In Essex some early tomatoes have been set out already.

Elgin states that less tobacco than usual will be grown this year.

Leeds says that more land than usual will be given to millet and buckwheat.

Orchards are in unusually full bloom, generally speaking. Apples particularly are promising. Lincoln, however, reports that peach leaf-curl is beginning to show on some trees. Norfolk states that black currants and gooseberries have been injured 85 per cent. by frost.

Lennox and Addington states that more farmers are going into strawberry growing this year as a side line for supplementing the low prices now prevailing for ordinary farm produce.

Cattle have been doing well on pasture, although Haldimand states that a number of farmers are selling stockers and feeders rather than keep them over. Simcoe reports that one co-operative shipper sent out six carloads of fat cattle last week.

Huron reports that two carloads of cattle, two of horses and one of hogs were shipped from Clinton on Saturday. The Huron Representative also says: "I attended a sale yesterday and saw cows bring from $90 to $95, which a year ago would have brought $150 and $175."

Milk production is increasing in quantity, but there has been a considerable drop in prices and in the value of milk products. Frontenac says that milk is selling in that county for $2 a cwt. Recent sales of cheese were made at from 15c to 17½c a lb., while Frontenac reports that 14c was boarded with no sales. Creamery butter has been realizing only 35c and below at various points during the week.

Hogs have been selling at from $9 to $10.50 a cwt. Three carloads were shipped from Napanee during the week.

While little pigs have been disposed of in Brant at $16 a pair, Lennox and Addington quotes sales at $12 a pair.

During the week hay has been selling all the way from $11 to $2[illegible] a ton.

Farm labor is easier to procure than for many years, owing to lack of employment in other lines of work. Frontenac claims that the general quality of the labor offering is also much improved.

DARLING BABY BRIGHTENS HOME

Children's Laughter a Pleasing Sound

Altoona, Pa.—"I am writing to tell you what Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has done for me. We had six children die almost at birth. From one hour to nineteen days is all they have lived. Before my next one was born I took a dozen bottles of your Vegetable Compound, and I can say that it is the greatest medicine on earth, for this baby is now four months old, and a healthier baby you would not want. I am sending you a picture of her. Everybody says 'That is a very healthy looking baby.' You have my consent to show these few lines to anybody."—Mrs. C. W. BENZ, 131 3rd Avenue, Altoona, Pa.

Mrs. Janssen's experience of interest to childless wives.

Milliston, Wis.—"I want to give you a word of praise for your wonderful medicine. We are fond of children, and for a considerable time after we were married I feared I would not have any. I began taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and it strengthened me so I now have a nice, strong, healthy baby girl. I suffered very little at childbirth, and I give all the credit to your medicine, and shall always recommend it highly."—Mrs. H. H. JANSSEN, Milliston, Wis.

Mrs. Held of Marinette Wis., adds her testimonial for Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. She says:

Marinette, Wis.—"I was in a nervous condition and very irregular. My doctor advised an operation. My husband brought me one of your booklets and asked me to try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. It overcame my weakness so that I now have a healthy baby girl after having been married nine years. I am glad to recommend your medicine, and you may use my letter as a testimonial."—Mrs. H. B. HELD, 330 Jefferson St., Marinette, Wis.

There are many, many such homes that were once childless, and are now blessed with healthy, happy children because Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has restored the mother to a strong and healthy condition, as it acts as a natural restorative for ailments as indicated by backache, irregularities, displacements, weakness and nervousness.

Women everywhere should remember that most of the commoner ailments of women are not the surgical ones—they are not caused by serious displacements or growths, although the symptoms may be the same, and that is why so many apparently serious ailments readily yield to Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, as it acts as a natural restorative. It can be taken with perfect safety and often prevents serious troubles.

Therefore if you know of any woman who is suffering and has been unable to secure relief and is regretfully looking forward to a childless old age, ask her to try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, as it has brought health and happiness into so many homes once darkened by illness and despair.

Lydia E. Pinkham's Private Text-Book upon "Ailments Peculiar to Women" will be sent to you free upon request. Write to The Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co., Lynn, Massachusetts. This book contains valuable information.

BOY SMOTHTRED IN SAND PIT BY NEGRO LADS HE FED

Six-Year-Old Youngster Gave Cookies to Pair Who Killed Him.

CHICAGO, May 19.—Six-year-old George Schuka, of Gary, Ind., was killed to-day by two young negroes, who suffocated him in a sand pile near the store of his father, John Schuka, at Gary.

The body was found by the parents and friends who had joined in a search. It was buried beneath several feet of sand at the bottom of the pit. The negroes had fled.

According to evidence patched together by the police, the negroes accosted the boy, who was playing in the sand pit, and said:

"Run over to your father's store and bring us back some cookies and candy."

"Please give me some cookies and candy, father," he said.

"What do you want so many for?" the father asked as his son insisted on a large bag full.

"I've got some friends over in the sand pit, and they want some, too," the small boy answered.

The father wrapped up a large bag of dainties and gave them to his son. When the boy returned one of the negroes is believed to have tossed a cookie into the bottom of the sand pit. The boy ran to the brink and looked down. It is supposed one of the negroes shoved George into the pit and kicked the edge so that sand rained down on the small figure in the hole.

The father became alarmed at the absence of his son and enlisted the aid of several patrons in finding him. They soon dug his body from the sand pit.

AUTO CRASHES 70 FEET TO RAVINE; TWO ARE KILLED

CAR AND OCCUPANTS NOT DISCOVERED UNTIL 6 THIS MORNING.

BRANTFORD, May 20 (Canadian George Bygrave and Harland Harper were killed and Herbert Bygraves, nephew of the first-named, was badly injured, when their automobile jumped a bridge on the Cockshutt Road, near Burtche's Corners, some time after eight o'clock last night.

Not until daylight enabled passers-by to see them lying in a ravine at six o'clock this morning, was the accident known, and not until then was Herbert Bygraves removed to a hospital suffering severely from his injuries and all-night exposure.

The party went out to bring in Mr. Bygrave's mother, who has been seriously ill.

The two were instantly killed.

This is the Way Millburn's Laxa-Liver Pills Work.

You will never use any of the old griping, nauseating, sickening, purging pills, containing as they do calomel and other drastic mineral ingredients, once you use Milburn's Laxa-Liver, a pill that is purely vegetable.

Owing to the great care used in procuring the highest grade of drugs from which they are manufactured, they are as near perfect as it is possible to get a laxative remedy.

They work gently and effectively, without a gripe or pain.

If you are troubled with constipation, biliousness; driven to distraction with sick headaches, if your tongue is coated, your breath bad, your complexion muddy, your eyes yellow, have floating specks before the eyes, jaundice, itching, bleeding, or protruding piles, stir up your sluggish liver with a few doses of Milburn's Laxa-Liver Pills.

Mrs. Roy Mackie, Orillia, Ont., writes: "I desire to express my thanks for the relief I have had by using Milburn's Laxa-Liver Pills. I had been suffering for some time from constipation and bad headaches. I tried all sorts of cures, which did me no good, until I was advised to try your pills. I got great relief after taking only a few doses."

PARTIAL SYSTEM OF LOCAL OPTION TO EXIST.

VICTORIA, B.C., May 20.—(Canadian Press).—Government control of the sale of liquor will become effective in British Columbia on June 15, it was officially announced by the Provincial Liquor Board yesterday. A new Federal tax is about $1.65 a bottle, and the Board plans to absorb at least one-half of this charge. It is planned that there shall be one liquor store at least in every electoral riding, but should the people of any riding show that they do not desire a store, the Board will not force one on them. To that extent there will exist the system of local option.

PREMIER BRIAND NOT A FRENCH RESIDENT.

PARIS May 19.—Aristide Briand, Premier of France, strangely enough was not counted in this year's census as a resident of France. He happened to be in London on important business the day the count was taken. This omission, however, and a great many others, was corrected before the final figures were given out.

CROPS INJURED BY LATE FROSTS

BLACK BEAR SHOT NEAR APSLEY —NEWS OF DISTRICT.

APSLEY, May 20.—Snow and ice in the middle of May. The cold snap that visited this district the beginning of the week was a decided contrast to the summer weather that has prevailed for the last few weeks. On Monday and Tuesday mornings there was ice on standing water nearly a quarter of an inch in thickness, while snow flurries fell on Monday morning. The foliage of the maples and beeches are to-day wilted and withered, ferns blackened, and apple and strawberry blossoms destroyed. The abnormal growth of the first half of the month has received a severe check

Dominion Day.

Dominion Day will be fully commemorated in Apsley this year. St. George's church will, as last year, hold their annual picnic on that day, one feature of the programme being the mile race for the championship of Chandos and Anstruther townships, won last year by Mr. Vernal Windsor. The Methodist church is also holding a picnic and bazaar, so that there will be ample attractions to draw a large crowd.

A New Fence.

A new fence has been erected on the grounds of the school at Apsley, and has considerably improved its appearance. It is expected that the much needed improvements to the interior of the school will shortly be made.

Factory Opens.

The cheese factory started operations to-day and when arrangements have been completed for drawing the milk routes it is expected to run at full capacity, at least it is hoped so.

Motor Truck Delivery.

The motor truck for the Bancroft branch of the Belleville creamery delivered a large consignment of creamery cans in the village last week.

Gold Strike.

It is reported that a rich gold find has been made not many miles from Apsley by a prospector who has been tapping the district for two or three weeks. Nearly every farm around Apsley has its "mine" in a more or less developed state, and the news of the strike has re-awakened interest in the almost forgotten claims.

A Black Bear.

Mr. Elijah McKay shot a fine black bear while ploughing a field near his home yesterday.

Personal Mention.

The Rev. A. W. Mackenzie and daughter, with Mr. and Mrs. Lampman, visited Loon Lake on Saturday last.

Miss Lily Wilson, who has been ill with ptomaine poisoning, was able to resume her duties at the school on Monday.

A baby daughter was born to Mr and Mrs. Dave Weisse on Sunday week.

HUNTER STREET BRIDGE OPENING.

Construction Work Will Soon Be Completed.

The official opening of the Hunter street bridge will probably take place next month and to-day Inspector Fred Christie said that he expected the formal opening would be possible in June. The last of the construction work is being finished now. The Quaker Oats platform is finished except for the hand rails and part of the floor. The sidewalk on the south side is completed and the fine weather has made possible the quick pouring of the north walk. The cement light standards are practically ready for mounting the lights and next week the five 600 candlepower lights that will be a-top each standard will be mounted said Mr. Christie to-day. The standards are being polished and their appearance has been considerably enhanced.

Wooden Steps

Wooden steps leading down to the gravel pit, affording ingress to the ball park have been constructed east of the old driveway into the park in compliance with the council's request. The steps are about six feet wide and afford temporary relief to the thousands of fans who attend the ball games till some definite plan is arrived at by the council for a permanent and beautiful entrance to Riverside Park.

REDS FOMENTING STRIFE IN IATLY

POLICE UNCOVER RADICAL PROPAG/N A IN RAID.

MILAN, May 20.—Strong suspicion is beginning to take suostantial form that the recent communist disorders and anarchist outrages in Italy are being executed by combined orders from Moscow and German Spartacist leaders. Italy has not been obliged to declare a state of siege, as Germany did at Eisleben and Hamburg, ordinary police repression sufficing, but the meddlesome subterranean agitation is nevertheless causing apprehension and annoyance.

Strange facts are being revealed by rigorous police search in northern and southern Italy. The hunger strike of Malatesta, the noted anarchist imprisoned in Milan, is now supposed to have been suggested from Moscow as a means of impressing the anarchists and creating consequent ment of the anarchist's hungerer strike was followed immediately by strikes at Genoa, Liverno, Ancona, Trieste, Spezia and the Carrara marble quarries, though these were repressed at once by the government. At Trieste, a Fascisti, revolver in hand, compelled the striking sailors to get aboard their ships and in half an hour the steamers sailed. Strikes were followed by bomb outrages at Pegli, on the Riviera, Milan, Genoa and in Romagna, all showing a combined anarchist movement. A clew appears at Genoa, where five bomb-throwers were arrested. All had revolvers and hundreds of cartridges and banknotes bulging in their nockets, also cards showing their affiliation with Russian Bolsheviki and German Spartacist associations.

As if to confirm suspicion of German intervention, the word "Spartacus" appeared daubed on walls and houses in many cities in Italy. This mysterious word, apearing as if by magic and to the astonishment of the Italian laborers—who are completely ignorant as to its meaning—has become a puzzle to the police, who are trying to trace it.

Police Raid Health Resort.

Italian Riviera hotels at Nervi and Pegli have been chosen for the headquarters of the Russian Bolshevists. The police were recently informed that Russians staying at several of these hotels for the alleged purpose of climatic cures were receiving a number of shady visitors. Money seemed to be plentiful, also gold coins which are now seldom seen, and it was found that occasional journeys to Genoa were made for the purpose of selling jewels and entertaining visitors in out-of-the-way restaurants.

On a given morning the police effected a general raid, and more than 100 of these hotel visitors were arrested and all hotel luggage thoroughly searched. A lot of documents were seized, including correspondence with Italian and German Communist leaders. There are so many papers that it will take days to examine them properly, but even surface examination revealed the fact that a nest of hot propagandists had been discovered. The climatic cure ended in jail for many, and it is now ascertained that five of these Russians are the actual leaders of the whole Bolshevist propaganda in Italy. The police are reserved, but it is understood that these discoveries will lead to the arrest of more Bolshevists in other towns, especially Rome. Some Russian refugees in a Nervi hotel recognized in a would-be consumptive visitor one of the most cruel members of the Odessa revolutionary committee, one who had actually taken pleasure in acting as executor of death sentences passed by the ommittee.

BRUSSELS, May 20.—(Canadian Press). — An "amphibious boat," which is intended to obviate difficulties in Congo navigation entailed by the rapids, underwent a very successful trial here recently in the presence of the King of the Belgians.

It consists of two boats joined together by shafts. When rapids are reached the craft will hitch onto an overhead rail above them and will "shoot" the rapids suspended in the air, afterward taking the water again and proceeding as usual.

ENHANCED VALUE OF THE MUSKRAT

PRICE OF ITS SKIN HAS BEEN MUCH INCREASED.

(By Hamilton M. Laing, in the Toronto Globe.)

During the fall of 1919 and the spring of 1920 one of the chief topics of the north was muskrats—or "rats", as they are spoken of about the fur posts. Almost every one was interested directly or indirectly in the humble little fur-bearer of the marshes. The interest, however, was more of a pecuniary than a biological nature, for rat-skins at this time command high prices. No trapper of the old days ever could have dreamed of a rat skin bringing in such a price as from four to six dollars, yet such prices at this time rule. Small fortunes are made in rats. The animal that formerly was almost beneath the notice of the trapper became the means of a grubstake and a bank account. In the memory of the present writer rat-skins were quoted at ten cents. Thus these fabulous new prices took every trapper to the marshes in quest of the animal that of all the fur-bearers is most numerous and easily secured. There was a veritable drive on the marshes during the late fall before the freeze-up and another drive at the breaking of the ice the following spring. It was called the rat drive—the big rat hunt. As a consequence the poor muskrat had a sorry time of it. In the fall of 1920 his tribe was but a scanty remnant in his old haunts of abundance.

Builds Like the Beaver.

One of the most extensive ratting grounds was the wide, flat delta of the Athabaska, where several hundred square miles of marshes intersected by deeper channels give the animal exactly the habitat he likes best. He is a creature of the deeper marshes where the bulrushes and tules give him his food and house-building material. His brown houses, more or less conical in shape, rising above the water from two to three feet, are the commonest of sights on the delta. Like the beaver, the muskrat builds himself a house; in fact both animals are alike in many respects. The rat may live in a hole in the bank, but he prefers a house in the open. This is built chiefly of grass, rushes, reeds and other marsh vegetation, all well packed with masses of finer material. A number of rats usually take part in the building, and a large house in the winter is always a community affair and well peopled. The house has no apparent entrance, the doors being under water, and close to the mud. There usually are several doors and the compartment is arranged so that the occupants can come up from below and sit above the level of the water.

It is a wet and soggy house. The rat's coat is never dry—and never very wet. He depends on the thickness of the house-walls, the latent warmth of the water below and the animal heat of the occupants to keep the house from freezing solid. An exceedingly hard winter that freezes his marsh to the bottom and closes his runways in the mud leading to his food supply in the rush clumps means hard times and perhaps dire straits. Trappers maintain that the southern wall of the house is thinner than the northern anud if this is so, it shows a touch of the keen wit of his big sagacious cousin, the beaver. The rat does not store food in his house. Usually near the house are some feeding stations These may be small hollow mounds where he can come up with his mouthful of food and gnaw it without being forced to drag it off to the house. His chief food winter or summer is the roots and under water tender parts of aquatic vegetation, but especially of the bulrushes and tules.

Uses Tail While Swimming

In many respects the rat is only a miniature beaver. Both have coats that resist the water, small, nimble front members, large, powerful webbed hind feet, and large, strong chisel-teeth, and both use their tails while swimming. But both are naked and flat, the beaver's tail is paddle blaed shape and is carried horizontally, while that of the rat is long and slender and swims, the rat wiggles his tail from side to side in a serpentine motion, and often when lying at rest on the water the tip of his rudder is raised comically just above the surface. Neither animal uses his front legs to any extent while swimming; the hind feet and legs are the motors that drive the body forward. When the beaver dives in alarm he spanks the water with his broad tail; the startled rat, though unable to beat the water as the other does, in some manner gives something of the same effect and goes under with a resounding splash.

On the marshes of La Riviere Coupe, near Fort Chipewyan, during the summer of 1920 we found musk rats fairly numerous; it was a spot that evidently had not been trapped in the spring hunt. We saw something here of the family life during the month of June and July. On July 2 there were young, scarcely half-grown rats to be found swimming on the marshes, and on this same date we found an old mother rat with a new-born family in the nest.

In these deep marshes there were a number of rock islands with willow clumps standing in the shallower water, and most of the nests were piled in the willows or heaped upon the rocks where some crack or crevice gave an underwater entrance. Usually when we approached a nest by canoe—tht is, during daytime—no occupants were apparent, but a poke of the paddle caused a commotion within a gurgling belaw. Soon a rat-head or two would appear off 20 or 30 feet, then another and another. The rat has some curiosity, little fear and a great deal of stupidity in his make-up and by sitting still at the nest it was found that they came very close.

Animal Wit

The nest of young mentioned above was interesting, and the mother showed a trace of wit rather unexpected in so dull a creature As we approached the nest, suddenly a heaving of the heaped material was apparent, and out of the disturbance a big rat appeared, ran down to the water and dived. This was evidently the mother. She had been lying in the warm sun with a light coverlet over herself —doubtless making amends thus for the long, cold winter. But there was something mysterious about this, and a careful search in the top of the big nest revealed some rat strategy. In a small chamber completely hidden away from her sunning bed, lay seven naked little baby rats. They were dark-skinned little chaps, but a few days old, and able only to wiggle a trifle and squeak hoarsely and faintly. But the most curious thing was that they were entirely cut off from both the interior of the house and the outside. They were simply buried in the top, where they were warmed by the sun. Doubtless each time that madam left them she sealed them up thus in their moist bedding. No hawk or owl could swoop upon them here; no mink could get them until he first dug them out.

Less than a month later than this large families of young were noted about the houses. The trappers say that two and sometimes three families are raised in a season. It is quite possible that while madam is nursing a second family she demands a house to herself and that the earlier young are sent off to fare for themselves, but it is certain that at the approach of autumn they all unite again and work harmoniously upon the building of the winter stronghold.

As to natural foes there seems not a long list. Doubtless, the large hawk, the eagle and horned owl all pick up some rats—especially the young—and the fox perhaps is capable of making a meal now and then when rat exposes himself at a shore-house; also the mink is said to be a savage rat-killer. But it would seem that man is really his chief foe. Trapping in the house in the autumn—the trap may be visited two or three times daily and soon makes a clean sweep of the entire household—shooting after the break up in spring, spearing through the wall-house are all methods that soon tend to clear the animal from the marshes. However, he is in no danger of leaving the marshes for good—recent fur quotations have tended to this matter.

WAGES REDUCED.

LONDON, April 25.—(Associated Press, by Mail).—More than 350,000 workers in Great Britain suffered reductions in wages last month, amounting to £60,000 a week, and 110,000 received increases amounting to about £2,000 a week. This is shown by the Ministry of Labor.

Retail prices fell eight points in that month, the Ministry says, the reduction being due chiefly to fall in the prices of food, although clothing prices also went down to some extent.

RICHARD HALL & SON LIMITED

DEPUTATION SAW SEWAGE SYSTEMS OF STANDARD TYPE

MAYOR M'INTYRE AND ALD. WHITEHOUSE VISITED BRAMPTON AND TORONTO.

Mayor McIntyre and Alderman Whitehouse returned on Wednesday night from a two-days' visit to Brampton and Toronto, where they inspected Imhoff and activated sludge systems of sewage disposal. On Tuesday they were accompanied by City Engineer Parsons, and as a deputation they brought back the highest praise for Brampton and its Mayor and Council.

"We were most courteously and hospitably received," said Ald. Whitehouse. "Brampton is a town of 5,000 people, and from all appearances it is one of the most progressive communities in this country. All its streets are paved right out to the limits of the town. They have cement, asphalt, bitulithic and plain macadam with a tarvia coating. They have just completed the installation of an ultra-modern drifting and filtration plant, and their activated sludge sewage disposal plant is a model, although its capacity is only 250,000 gallons a day. Peterborough's disposal plant will be built to take care of six million gallons a day. Brampton's City Engineer is Professor Treadgold, of Toronto University. He remained with us all day and explained everything in detail. It was one of the most profitable trips from the city's standpoint that I have ever been on. Incidentally, however, I was greatly impressed with the progressiveness of Brampton and its people. Their streets, schools and various departments seemed to be extremely well developed. For example, they have just bought a motor-driven fire apparatus similar to ours. Imagine all these things for a town of five thousand. There are towns around here just as big, but the very antithesis in soundness and vitality and all the signs that indicate progressiveness. The members of the Council couldn't do enough for us. Ald. H. G. Mulliss, who is one of the directors of a company that owns sixty acres of greenhouses, all under glass, was particularly kind to us. Mayor McIntyre and myself each received a box of roses from Ald. Mulliss this morning."

Referring to their investigations in Toronto, Ald. Whitehouse stated that Chief Engineer Powell deputed Mr. Niven, the engineer in charge of all the sewage disposal plants in Toronto, to explain their operations. At Ashbridge's Bay they visited the vast Imhoff tank, which is of the same system as that which City Engineer Parsons has recommended for Peterborough. Mr. Parsons has recognized the advantages of the activated sludge method, but realizes that it is still in the experimental stage. Until it is fully developed he would not advocate its adoption for Peterborough's requirements.

Mayor McIntyre and Ald. Whitehouse observed several types of sewage disposal in Toronto, and Mr. Niven volunteered the advice that for a city of forty or fifty thousand an Imhoff disposal plant would be preferable at present. Should the objectionable features of the activated sludge type be overcome at any time it would be comparatively easy to convert the Imhoff plant into the activated sludge form.

WITOS PLEADS FOR SILESIAN POLES

CLAIMS POPULATION POLISH IN REFUTING LLOYD GEORGE'S ST TEMENT.

WARSAW, May 20. — (Canadian Press).—Premier Witos, speaking in the Diet yesterday, declared the speeches of the British Prime Minister on the Silesian situation have caused the Polish people much sorrow. He displayed German text books to refute the statement of Lloyd George that the population of Upper Silesia was German, declaring they admitted the population to be of Polish race and language. The Premier said Poland would respect the Treaty of Versailles, but asked that the part of Upper Silesia bordering Poland be joined to her in accordance with the desire of the people of that region. By revolting, M. Witos declared the Poles of Upper Silesia did not intend to face the Allies with accomplished facts, but were prompted by despair and the fear of being put under German domination in opposition to their will.

TEA TAX

The new Budget having imposed a sales tax of 1½ per cent. on tea, the onus is placed upon the Salada Tea Company of charging this on their invoices to the grocers, and after collection to pay it to the Inland Revenue Department. This is the only tax the consumer of Salada need pay to the grocer.

There is a further tax of 2½ per cent. on importations of tea which the Salada Tea Company are paying themselves, and this is not being passed along to the grocers or the consumers.

Twenty Transparent Models Underpriced

Many of these are imported models and the remainder come from leading Canadian makers. All are transparent—of mohair or maline. "Why are you reducing them?" you ask. The answer is, "They are dark in color." They are summery in every other respect. Maybe you prefer a dark colored Hat anyway—some people do.

They Are Dress Hats and Smartly Trimmed

All were regularly priced at $19.50, or thereabouts. On Saturday we are going to sell them for - - - - - - - - - -

Ready-to-Wear Hats, $4.98

We are making a clearance of many models and have not hesitated to mark them away down. Many of them are sailors with rolling or straight brims, and the most of them have white facings. A good variety of shapes and colors.

LOCAL HORSES ON EASTERN CIRCUIT

FOUR ON THE WAY TO PICTON AND TWO TO CAMPBELLFORD.

Four Peterborough horses will be entered in the Picton races on Tuesday, and two at Campbellford. The string that left to-day for Picton was composed of Eddie Jones's "Hazel H"; "Lloyd George," owned by H. Gilgour; "Lena Rivers," owned by L. Ferguson, of Best's Station, and Fred. Jones's "Gale Fast." These horses may be away for a month. From Picton, on May 24, they go to Belleville, where they will remain until June 3, and from there they will be moved to Napanee. This eastern circuit has aroused a great deal of interest among horsemen, and the races will be fast.

These are the first races of the season, in preparation for which the local horses have been working out since spring-weather permitted track work.

FINANCIAL AND MARKETS

WALL STREET

NEW YORK, May 20.—(Canadian Press).—Price tendencies in the early period of to-day's stock market were distinctly reactionary. Declines of one to three points accompanied the moderate offering of Crucible Steel, National Enameling, Shell Transport, Willis-Overland preferred, American Linseed and Chesapeake and Ohio. The Directors of the latter company met to-day for action on the dividend. A few issues especially United States Steel preferred, American Smelting, Anaconda Copper and Industrial Alcohol were firm to strong. Alcohol gaining 1-1-4 points on the declaratoion of the regular dividend.

Losses became more extensive during the morning, although offerings were relatively small. Tobaccos Mexican Petroleum, and International paper were almost the only issues to overcome the general depression. Tidewater oil fell seven points and American Linseed increased its loss to four points on news of a passing dividend. Crucible Steel was singled out for short selling forfeiting over four points. Steel foundries, Baldwin Locomotive; Studebaker, General Asphalt, Virginia Carolina Chemical and Brooklyn Union Gas declined a half to almost four points. Northern Pacific, Texas and Pacific, Illinois Central and St. Louis and San Francisco comprised the heavier Rails losing one to almost two points. Call money opened and renewed into next week at seven per cent.

FOREIGN EXCHANGE

NEW YORK, May 20.—(Canadian Press).—Sterling Exchange steady, demand $3.99 3-4; Canadian Dollars 10 5-8 per cent discount.

CHICAGO GRAIN

CHICAGO, May 20. —(Canadian Press).—New upturns in the price of wheat resulted to-day from the south west and the west. Bears contended that the damage had already been discounted, but this new failed to make much impression. Opening quotations which ran from 1 to 1-4 higher were followed by further decided gains. Corn hardened a little with wheat, although Liberal offerings from the country were reported. After opening unchanged to 1-4 cents higher, the market rose slightly all around.

Oats were governed by the action of other cereals, starting unchanged to 1-2 cents, higher, and later hardening a bit more. Higher quotations on hogs helped to lift provisions.

MONTREAL.

MONTREAL, May 20.—(Canadian Press).—The feature of the market's close was a drop of 2¼ points in Riordon, which closed for the morning at 153-4. Abitibi was down a half point at 36½. Laurentide did not change, nor did National Breweries. Wayagamack went down a quarter point before the closing.

STEALS LAWYER'S HAT.

MONTREAL, May 19.—Charged with stealing hats, a prisoner was found to have stolen his lawyer's Derby after he had appeared for him in the Police Court yesterday morning. He pleaded force of habit.

GERMAN BOYCOTT URGED ON FRENCH AND BRITISH GOODS

Scheme Is Advocated as a "Patriotic Duty"; Teuton Exporters Are Advised to Insist Upon Prepayment.

NEW YORK, May 19.—Much uncertainty is reported to exist in German trade circles as to the lines on which business with firms in the Allied countries should be conducted. According to advices from Berlin reaching England, German commercial organizations are overwhelmed with inquiries.

The attitude of the organizations and Chambers of Commerce, it is stated, may be summarized as follows: On the one hand exporters are warned to exercise great caution in closing deals and to insist upon cash prepayment on all orders from Allied countries. On the other hand importers are urged to make it a patriotic duty to boycott British and French goods. Most of the leading German banks are said to be refusing to purchase checks on London and Paris, but are willing to present such checks for collection at the owners' risk.

"How long this state of affairs will last it is hard to say," says one report from Berlin, "but it would appear that measures have already been taken with a view to adapting present foreign trade rules and regulations to the change in the situation."

At a recent meeting of the Federal Economic Council a resolution was passed urging the Ministry of Economics to take the necessary steps to protect German trade and industries. The resolution calls for increased vigilance regarding the import of luxury articles and the export of raw materials and goods urgently needed in Germany. It also recommends the reduction or abolition of the export levy, the extension of the export free list and the compensation of firms which have suffered losses in current business contracts with firms in Allied countries through the sanctions put into force.

The tenor of this resolution is declared to be identical with the views expressed by the Federal Minister of Economics, Dr. Scholz, in an address to the Economic Council. In the course of his speech Dr. Scholz intimated that an outlet for German products might be found in the Eastern market and that the Government would render active support in that direction.

AIRWAY FROM BERLIN VIA RIGA TO MOSCOW

LONDON, April 25 (by mail, Associated Press).—Almost daily extension of passenger and mail service by air is rapidly making Europe a network of aerial transportation lines.

Negotiations ae now nearing completion for an airway from Berlin via Riga to Moscow, and when this air service is completed it will be possible to travel by air from London to Moscow, a distance of nearly 2,000 miles.

Berlin already is connected with London by the Dutch service through Amsterdam. This Dutch branch also has inaugurated service between Paris and Amsterdam.

The existing London-Paris service connects at Paris with the airway to Warsaw, which goes by way of Strassbourg and Prague.

The Franco-Roumanian Air Service Company, which is responsible for this airway, has obtained concessions from the Austrian and the Roumanian Governments, and hopes shortly to open an airway that will connect London, through Paris, with Constantinolpe.

TRANSPORT RACE HORSES IN MOTOR VEHICLE BOXES

LONDON, May 19. — There is little fear that the Epsom meeting venue or programme will be altered and the usual arrangements for the race are being proceeded. Apaently the only restriction which the government is now imposing on racing is that no railway facilities are being offered the public. Road transport however is meeting the demands, and the conveying of the horses by motor vehicle boxes is proving successful. The race for the Manchester Cup will be run on Friday next.

WHEN YOU WALK, HOW DO YOU WALK?

A MAN NEVER TAKES A WOMAN'S ARM WHEN WALKING IN THE STREET SAVE WHEN SHE IS TOO OLD OR FEEBLE TO WALK UNAIDED.

The well-bred man remembers, when walking with a woman and the sidewalk is narrow, that if other pedestrians approach them, he should step behind his companion while they are passing.

But if escorting a woman in woods or through an overhung country he goes ahead of his companion in order to clear the path for her.

When walking with a woman a man invariably asks whether he may relieve her of any parcels she may be carrying, but if she declines his offer he should not be insistent. A man may have to possess a good deal of discrimination in these days to differentiate between some of the large hand bags that women carry and a small bit of luggage. However, he should always ask to carry the latter while he would, of course, not ask to carry her hand bag.

A man never takes a woman's arm when walking in the street save when she is too old or feeble to walk unaided or when the way is so slippery as to be hazardous. It is regarded as decidedly provincial or second rate to do this.

When walking with a woman a man never stops to speak to an acquaintance whom he chances to meet unless the woman takes the lead in so doing.

If a man happens to meet a woman acquaintance, even though he is well acquainted with her, he would not think of stopping to talk with her in the street, but if there was something which they wished to discuss he might ask whether he might walk with her for a little way. He would show the same consideration to his mother or sister in this regard.

If a man overtakes a woman going in the same direction that he is he would never think of accompanying her without asking permission and unless he knew her well enough to be quite sure that she would not have the slightest objection, he would not ask for this.

A man does not invariably take the curb side of the sidewalk when accompanying a woman. He does if the road is muddy and therefore that side is less desirable. In city streets he usually takes the side that makes it impossible for him to meet pedestrian traffic coming in the other way. That is, he would walk at her left where traffic keeps to the right, as it does in American cities.

GAVE THE NUMBER OF GANGSTERS' CAR

REAL ESTATE MAN TELLS HOW HE PUT POLICE ON GUNMEN'S TRAIL.

TORONTO, May 20.—A young Toronto real estate broker, well known in the Lakeview Golf Club, formerly a musical director in a local college, who is known to the press and the police, and whose identity is withheld for important reasons, was the man who took the license number of the automobile on Britain stret on the evening of March 7th., in which the convicted Hotrum-McFadden-Conleys, gangsters and gun-men, operated. Through this man's thoughtfulness in passing the license number to the police, and the quick and commendable act of Police Constable William Pogue, in catching the automobile some minutes later at Broadview and Danforth avenues, the finish has been placed upon a most violent gang of desperate men.

Constable William Pogue is to be recommended for recognition to the police commissioners by Chief Dickson.

Seemed Like Fate.

"It seemed to be fate," the man who secured the car number, told the reporter, "that those men were to be caught. I had arrived on Britain street with a client about 5.10, stopped on the south side of the road, and noticed this automobile standing about seventy-five yards up the street. I had sold automobiles previously, and wondered if it belonged to another client along the street farther. Then I noticed two men race from the lane and jump into the automobile. I walked back to our automobile, told my client not to go, and watched. Everything seemed to be fate. I saw the flash of a gun, and the automobile rushed away. I got the number of the automobile, and as the policeman who chased them around the corner arrived I gave it to him. We then took Davis in our car around to his store. He seemed to think hold-up men met their Waterloo when they visited his store. I told him he ought to feel thankful for not having been shot."

This gentleman, after an exciting piece of work, then casually remarked that he had dropped into obscurity.

The Last Enterprise.

The downfall of these four men occurred when Jack and Arthur Conley attempted to rob Ammon Davis in his jewelry store on Queen street east, at five o'clock on the afternoon of March 7th. The Conleys assaulted Davis, a man who had had dealing with thugs and gunmen on a previous occasion, and although bleeding from two blows on the head, Davis pursued the Conleys south on Stone-cutters lane just west of Sherbourne street, running south from Queen, to Britain street. Walter Hulse's automobile, in which they had driven to the scene of the attempted hold-up, was standing on Britain street, door open, and engine running for a quick get-away. The Conleys jumped into the high-powered automobile and sped west on Britain street at a good speed. The real estate broker was sitting in his automobile on the south side of the street, facing east, and had casually noticed Hulse's car standing on the opposite side of the street with the engine running. As the engine raced away west, he took the license number and jotted it down on a piece of paper. Police Constable Montgomery, who had been directing traffic at Queen and Sherbourne raced down the lane, and Hulse had got his car away and out of sight.

The broker handed over the number which was given to all constables as they telephoned in to the headquarters' switchboard.

Constable Pogue was reporting from the box at Broadview and Danforth about 5.50 was given the number of Hulse's automobile, locked his box, turned around to face the road, and saw the automobile moving east on Danforth. He doubled toward it, jumped on the running board, ordered the two men who were in it to stop. Hulse, and a garage assistant, who was driving him home, were in the auto.

Late that night Hulse, under police questioning, confessed, and the gang were quietly rounded up during the early hours of Tuesday morning.

KUROPATKIN, ACCORDING TO RETURNED DOCTOR, DIED IN ABJECT SQUALOR.

REVAL, Esthonia, May 19—(Canadian Press.)—Prince Kuropatkin, the famous Russian author and revolutionary, whose death occurred in Moscow, February 8, died in miserable circumstances, says Dr. Morris Zucker, of Brooklyn, who recently was set free from Russian prisons.

The Brooklyn man declares that the Prince's last days were spent in abject squalor and throughout his illness he lacked the comforts that would have made his sick-bed somewhat endurable. After his death the Bolsheviki arranged an impressive funeral over his body.

And like His own fair flowers,
Look up in sunshine with a smile,
And gently bend in showers."

RADIO STATIONS HAVE SAVED MANY MARINERS

New England Sea-Farers Eulogize Stations Work.

BOSTON, May 19.—(Associated Press).—Radio compass stations, maintained by the United States Navy at more than 100 places along the Atlantic, Pacific and Great Lakes coasts as aids to mariners in foggy weather, have robbed the sea of many of its victims, says New England sea-faring men.

Last year, with but 29 stations in operation, the naval men informed the captains of 15,374 fog-shrouded vessels of their location and thus enabled them to lay their courses to their ports of destination. An average time of four to six minutes was required to make the calculations upon which this information was based.

How a wireless station on shore can tell the master of a vessel lost in the fog just where the vessel is seems something like a miracle to a landsman, but it is simple enough to the operators of the system. It works this way: The radio operator in a compass station on shore picks out of the air the letters "Q. T. E." flashed from a vessel lying perhaps 100 miles or more off shore. In the International Code these letters mean, "What is my true bearing?" and these queries are coming to the shore station with such increasing frequency as to testify to the dependance which ship masters are placing on this modern aid to navigation.

Once the signal is heard the radio operator adjusts his radio compass to meet the direction whence it comes. This compass is merely a rectangular coil of wire mounted on a vertical plane and fixed to turn so as to face in any direction. It acts like a mechanical ear and from it the operator can tell clearly the direction whence the lost vessel's call came. That means that he can tell in what direction the vessel lies from him.

Other stations along the shore also act in the same way and these report to a central station and compare notes.

The distance of the ship from the shore can be told approximately by the wireless operators by the strength of her signals.

If the ship lies east from one station and south from another, the point where these lines cross is the ship's location. Once this is done the wireless operators on shore have only to tell the ship's master his position in terms of latitude and longtitude.

As an illustration of the method by which the directional plan operates to assist vessels, officers in the Navy Communication Service here advanced the case of a steamer south of Cape Sable in the North Atlantic, heading for Boston, which had not had the aid of sights for several days because of storm or fog. Dead reckoning would give the skipper an approximate position for temporary purposes, but through his wireless operator, he could send out a call for his bearings from shore.

Within a few minutes, the station at Otter Cliffs, Me., would report a true bearing of 128 degrees; Portland, Me., 102 degrees; Appledore, N. H., 92 degrees, from which the skipper can calculate readily that he was 40 miles north and east of the position that he had erroneously approximated by dead reckoning.

Moving south for several hours, still in a fog, the ship could get another set of bearings for confirmation of its position from a southerly group of stations that more immediately protect the approaches to this port. The angles of their bearings in relation to the vessel would be more acute, and with the possibility of error from the finely drawn lines, an additional long range bearing would be advisable, this being supplied from a northerly station to act as a check.

There are six footmen in attendance at the main entrance to Buckingham Palace throughout the day until 7 o'clock, when the number is reduced to four.

WESTERN ONTARIO FARMERS ARE HIT WHEN PRICES DROP

EMERGENCY TARIFF IS BLAMED FOR ACCELERATING THE TOBOGGAN.

LONDON, Ont., May 20.—Falling prices, accelerated by the American emergency tariff, threaten to ruin farmers of Western Ontario in dairying, according to members of the farmers' club east of London who received cheques from the Canadian Milk Products Company paying them at rate of one dollar and twenty-five cents a hundredweight or only three cents a quart.

A few months ago the farmers were paid as high as $3.20 a hundred weight for milk, delivered in London. Gradual reductions occurred during the spring and latterly a rate of $2.20 has been paid by local distributors. But the distributors reached an agreement with their producers under which $1.80 is fixed as a new charge. That means four and a half cents a quart. Local consumers have been buying pint tickets at 17 for one dollar. To-day they get nineteen tickets, or in other words, pay a fraction over ten cents a quart.

Menwhile the farmers east of the city in the Nilestown and Belmont districts have been warned that the $1.25 rate paid this week will drop to about $1.20 next week, and there is no assurance that the rate will not go lower.

"Why don't you bring your milk to the city and sell it at $1.80?" a producer was asked.

"The distributors won't buy from us. They say they have a surplus."

"Why pay $1.80 for milk when farmers are anxious to sell in the city at $1.20?" The reporter asked a distributor. The rush of milk is like the rush of spring paper hanging at this time of year," he answered. "We must stand by our producers or they won't stand by us when we need their milk in the autumn and winter."

Farmers in the London district are glad to sell new laid eggs at 22 cents. Creamery butter has fallen to the 30 cents a pound level, and Oxford cheese board at its last session offered chese at 14 cents, and received bids at ten cents.

AN OFFICER OF LAW ARRESTED AT COBOURG

PROVINCIAL CONSTABLE ANDREWS CHARGED WITH BURGLARY AND FOR KEEPING LIQUOR OTHER THAN IN HIS OWN RESIDENCE.

Chief Constable Ruse, of Cobourg, caused quite a sensation in the eastern town Wednesday afternoon when he arrested Provincial Constable Andrews on two serious charges. The first charge is for having liquor in a place other than his own residence, and the second charge is that he did enter the residence of R. G. Gray and steal therefrom a quantity of liquor. According to the information received, Andrews has been carrying on quite a bootlegging business with liquor he had stolen from a private residence. Some weeks ago ten cases of sherry wine, seven cases of gin, one bottle of brandy and three bottles of Canadian Club whisky were stolen from the residence of Mr. R. G. Gray, one of Cobourg's summer visitors from Detroit. Chief Ruse has been working on the case ever since, and located the sherry and part of the gin in Port Hope. One of the Port Hope customers volunteered the information that the goods were purchased from Constable Andrews and willingly turned over the several cases to Constable Ruse and License Inspector Gooderich.

The case came up before Police Magistrate Floyd, of Cobourg, and the prisoner was remanded until Wednesday. Bail was fixed at three thousand dollars but Andrews was unable to secure any boudsmen.

Andrews was a frequent visitor to Port Hope, and just the other day reported to the Guide the theft of ten cases of liquor from a Port Hope residence. He refused, however, to divulge the name of the loser and it is the opinion of the police here that it was a manufactured story.—Port Hope Guide.

ACIDS IN STOMACH CAUSE INDIGESTION

Medical authorities state that nearly nine-tenths of the cases of stomach trouble, indigestion, sourness, burning, gas, bloating, nausea, etc., are due to an excess of hydrochloric acid in the stomach and not as some believe to a lack of digestive juices. The delicate stomach lining is irritated, dgestion is delayed and food sours, causing the disagreeable symptoms which every stomach sufferer knows so well.

Artificial digestents are not needed in such cases and may do real harm. Try laying aside all digestive aids and instead get from any druggist a few ounces of Bisurated Magnesia and take a teaspoonful in a quarter glass of water right after eating. This sweetens the stomach, prevents the formation of excess acid and there is no sourness, gas or pain. Bisurated Magnesia (in powder or tablet form—never liquid or milk) is harmless to the stomach, inexpensive to take and is the most efficient form of magnesia for stomach purposes. It is used by thousands of people who enjoy their meals with no more fear of indigestion.

TROLLEYLESS CAR MAY PROVE PUBLIC BOON.

Districts Served by G.T.R. Branch Lines May Benefit From Yesterday's Test.

People in Ontario served by the Grand Trunk branch lines can take heart as a result of the test made between Toronto and Belleville with a trolleyless motor car equipped with Edison storage batteries. The test and the beginning of a regular service by a self-propelled car on the twelve miles of steam line between Trenton and Belleville indicate that the Canadian National Railways are seriously considering giving a fast and frequent service on most of the G. T. R. and C. N. R. branch lines by using trolleyless electric cars with which they hope to wipe out the large deficits that the lines now show.

Up to the present Trenton, with 5,000 population, and Belleville, with 11,000 population, have had but seven trains passing over the twelve miles that separate the two places. Hereafter they will have eighteen, for the eleven trips to be made by the self-propelled car will be in addition to and not a substitute for the present steam service, which is entirely given by through trains. The cars will make more stops and are expected to create new business.

The operation of the electric car does not constitute electrification. That term applies to the stringing of wires, placing of trolley poles, etc., which costs about $50,000 per mile, and which the storage car makes unnecessary. But the self-propelled car costs $46,000, including the $10,000 duty paid by the people's own line to the Dominion Government, and when traffic has increased to a certain point the number of costly storage cars becomes so great that it would be cheaper to "electrify" the line. The purpose of the storage car is to build up traffic to that point. The storage car proposition, therefore, is not a substitute for the hydro radial scheme which will take care of very heavy traffic.

A Big Improvement.

From observations made by officials of the Canadian National Railways, who took in the initial trip, it appears likely that the Dominion-owned railways will put down two additional tracks between Niagara and Toronto and electrify all the traffic originating at points between.

The hope of wiping out deficits on the numerous non-paying branch lines in Ontario and other parts of Canada lies in the fact that the trolleyless car costs but 35 cents per mile per car line, while the average for a locomotive and car is $1 per mile. The figures is each case include depreciation, interest and brotherhood wages. The storage car also lends itself to the operation of a local service at many points on the main lines.

In the trial trip, the trolleyless car left the Don station, of the C.N.R. at 11 o'clock, and reached Trenton, 116 miles away, in three hours and twenty minutes. At times the speed exceeded 40 miles an hour. The run from Trenton to Belleville took 25 minutes, and the return to Trenton, five minutes longer. The car will run 140 miles without charging. It takes five or six hours to fully charge the car. No stops for charging took place on the run to Trenton, but a little more "juice" was taken on at that point.

A Strange Animal.

In the two towns visited and through the countryside much interest was shown in the strange "animal" charging down the steam line. At Trenton, Mayor Curtiss was on hand to welcome the visitors, and at Belleville, Mayor Hanna did the honors. The visitors were headed by W. R. Devenish, the C.N.R. general superintendent at Toronto; W. J. Whitesides, the C.N.R. publicity agent, looked after the comfort of the trippers, particularly of the newspapermen, and E. B. Walker, the chief electrical engineer, explained technical points.

About eight years ago a similar test was made with a gas-electric car, which was used for some months on a 60-mile run to Picton. But the high operating cost, which was about twice the cost of the storage battery car, and the necessity of having skilled mechanics, prevented its general adoption.

It is estimated that on short branch lines the use of the trolleyless car would save from $5,000 a year up as against the cost of a locomotive and car.

NEVER SAW EQUAL, STATES GOODWIN

TORONTO MAN SAYS ALL HIS TROUBLES ARE GONE AND HE FEELS FINE SINCE TAKING TANLAC.

"Tanlac has done me so much good that I'm just telling everybody what a wonderful medicine it is," said James Goodwin, well-known employee of the Canadian Pacific Railroad, residing at 174 Silverthorn Ave., Toronto.

"I began going down hill in health something like two years ago. My back ached so bad at times I could hardly bend over and straighten up, and I was far below my normal weight. My stomach was out of order and I could sacrcely eat enough to keep me going. I had terrible headaches, suffered from constipation, and felt tired all the time. Mornings I could hardly drag myself out of bed and off to work, and frequently I just had to stay in bed for two or three days at a time.

"Well, Tanlac is far ahead of any medicine I ever saw or heard of, for it's simply done me a world of good. It braced me up from the start, giving me a good appetite and building me back to normal weight. I'm not troubled with indigestion any more and, in fact, all my troubles are gone. I have unbounded faith in Tanlac."

BASEBALL

The Peterborough Central League Club will practise at Riverside Park on Saturday afternoon after the City League game and also on Monday night at 6 o'clock. As these will be the last practices before the League opening on Tuesday evening, every player is expected out.

Oulette, a Fenelon Falls boy, is slated to do the twirling for the Lindsay Central League team this year.

Peterborough never had so many ball teams as this season. With the Central Ontario League team, four teams in the Mercantile League, three in the City League series, four in the City League juvenile series, four in the Senior Church League, four in the Junior Church League, and four in the Juvenile Church League, there are twenty-four teams in organized Leagues. And this does not include the Senior and Junior series of the Public School Leagues, which would bring the total to over thirty teams. Averaging twelve men to a team, and that is a low estimate, over 360 local players are participating in regularly organized leagues. No wonder it is a hard task trying to get lacrosse revived.

No man is doing more for baseball in Peterborough than Alex. Kay, whose umpiring adds snap and distinction to the game. Mr. Kay's services are freely given to all the organizations and as he umpires a Junior School League game with the same strict regard for the rules as he does a Central Ontario League game, the youngsters are rapidly picking up the fine points of baseball. Only a man whose heart is in the game would be willing to make the sacrifice of time and energy that Mr. Kay makes on behalf of baseball and the fans and players of Peterborough are under an obligation to him that only those who are on the inside circle perhaps appreciate. Mr. Kay, Jake Solomon and Ward Patterson have been the big three who put Peterborough on the baseball map. And the result of their missionary work is seen in the wonderful progress that the game is making in the city.

AT THE THEATERS

AT THE ALLEN.

Merit pervades the whole atmosphere of Allan Dwan's production of "The Scoffer," which opened an engagement at the Allen Theatre yesterday, and which may well be listed as one of the very best photo-dramas of the current season. Seldom has such a story been told so masterfully and rarely have incidents held an audience so enthralled. An intensive drama, it opens the eyes to some of life's foibles, yet in no sense is it guilty of moralizing.

While the play in itself is unusual in its power to command undivided attention, artistic acting on the part of no less than ten brilliant photo-players is an oustanding feature worthy of praise. Mary Thurman, James Kirkwood and Noah Beery, share the first honours, each of these well known artists drawing character studies which are memorable. Rhea Mitchell, Philo McCullough, Ward Crane, Eugenie Besserer and Bernard Durning also display rare knowledge of dramatic proportions in enacting the roles intrusted to them.

AT THE CAPITOL.

Wee Sandy McPherson is at the Capitol, the funniest, tiniest, cleverest little juvenile comedian that has visited Peterborough in some time. Dressed in the kilts for his first Harry Lauder impersonation, he brought down the house last night with his cunning imitation of the great entertainer. Complete from the feather in his bonnet to the famous Lauder cane, he saig "Roamin' in the Gloamin'" in the broadest Scotch, with all the self-possession of a veteran actor and the fresh enthusiasm of the child performer. A sailor song, with a corncob pipe completing his sailor outfit, was followed by a song and dance in femnine attitre, the red curls and swaying hoops of his checked gingham gown bobbing merrily to the rakish little dance. A jaunty little "shimmy' was his answer to the outursts of prolonged applause which greeted one of the best child performers ever seen here.

The Pathe Review is particularly good this week, with colored pictures of scenes in many lands, the comedy of the fat Birdie and her husband and the adventures of the escaped menagrie in the prison are funny in the extreme, and Roscoe (Fatty) Arbuckle has done some of the best work of his career in "The Life of the Party." Laughter rippled through the house at every turn and twist of the fat hero's adventures in the fields of love and politics. The troubles and trials of Algernon Leary, portrayed by Mr. Arbuckle in connection with his private stock of tonic and his bony stenographer, his absolute and complete surrender to the charms of his lady love, his appearance as a small but very fat boy at a party, and subsequent wanderings through a cold and unsympathetic night clad in such scant and mirth-provoking attire, his final turning of the tables on his malignant opponents, are full of humorous incidnts. The whole programme at the Capitol for to-night and to-morrow is one of exceptional interest and worthy of a second or third visit.

AT THE REGENT.

PEARL WHITE PLAY SCORES BIG SUCCESS.

The first thought of the spectator after seeing Pearl White in "The Mountain Woman" last night at the Regent Theatre would naturally have been to rush home and warn the rest of the family not to miss this picture. It is doubtful if Miss White has played in anything more enjoyable from the standpoint of the audienice than this story of the Kentucky hills, as originally told by Charles Neville Buck in his novel, "A Pagan of the Hills."

The picture is replete with acting of the finest type. There is spirited action aplenty, and interesting incidents which are added as a sort of good measure to the gripping plot. The sub-titles, written in the droll dialect of the mountaineers, are not the least factor in the entertainment value of this William Fox production.

Miss White plays "Alexander" McGivens, whose father reared her as if she were a boy, and whose wild beauty set men's hearts aflame and brought sneers from the women because she dressed in boyish garb. Her attitude toward suitors was always "Hands Off."

The felling of giant trees, shooting the rapids on log rafts, a sensational hotel fire and a grain elevator's destruction by marauders are among the sensational scenes of the picture. Pearl White is Pearl White—and what further personal description is necessary to her hundreds of thousands of admirers?

HOCKEY PLAYER NOW PILOTS A FREIGHTER.

In a list of the officers of the Great Lakes Transportation Company freighters, sailing on the great lakes, out of Midland, is included the name of Captain C. E. Scott, of the Steamer "Glenlivet." Captain Scott is an old hockey player, and has been on more than one occasion in competition with Peterboro teams. His friends here will be glad to learn that he has risen to be captain of one of the boats out of Midland.

THE AFTERMATH.

SPORT COMMENT

LONDON, May 19.—There is little fear that the Epsom Meeting venue or programme will be altered and the usual arrangements for the race are being proceeded with. Apparently the only restriction which the Government is now imposing on racing is that no railway facilities are being afforded the public or trainers. Road transport, however, is meeting demands, and the conveying of horses by motor vehicle boxes is proving successful. The race for the Manchester Cup will be run to-morrow (Friday).

Latest betting on the Derby follows: Craig-En-Eran 85-20, Leighton 9-2, Alan Breck 13-2, Humorist 9-1, Lemonora 110-9, Highlander 25-1, Bucka Sahib 23-1, Golden Dale 40-1, The Bohemian 40-1, Roman Fiddle 40-1, Polemarch 50-1, Gransly 66-1, Trash 66-1.

Roy Moore will likely be favourite in his bout with Carl Tremaine in Toronto to-night, owing to the great showing Moore made against Ted Joyce in a bout at Toronto last winter. Joyce was given such a trouncing by Moore that he has not been able to box since, although he is training at Hugh Shannon's gymnasium in Buffalo, and expects to get some action before many weeks. The Hamilton delegation will be behind Tremaine to a man, and any money that Toronto fans have to wager on Moore will soon be gobbled up. The fact that Toronto is on daylight-saving time will benefit Hamilton people taking in the bout, as the bouts will be over in plenty of time for them to catch the last train home.

The Dyment stable has about given up hope of being able to start Herendsey in the King's Plate next Saturday. Folks up Barrie way figured that the colt had the Plate at his mercy, and some winter betting was done as much better odds than they expected to get on Plate Day. Herendsey wintered exceptionally well, and before leaving the farm at Barrie for Woodbine this spring was credited with stepping a mile in 1.44.

The change from the warm stables on the Dyment farm to the cold stalls at Woodbine caused the colt to develop a cold, and he has coughed so much of late that he will hardly face the barrier. Many of the horses at Toronto have been affected in a similar manner, some of the animals which came up from Baltimore being victims of the epidemic.

And the Dyment people are not alone in their hard luck. Comes word from Woodbine to the effect that Royal Visitor, one of the chief hopes of the Giddings stable, has developed a fever, and may not be able to start. Early in the spring it looked as though the horses which wintered in Canada would get an early start, but the cool weather of late has proved a great handicap to them.

MERCANTILE CHAMPIONS HIT AND FIELD TO VICTORY OVER BARRIES'

CRESSMAN'S CLOUT BALL HARD AND ACCEPT DIFFICULT FIELD-CHANCES.

Cressman's 1920 champions of the Mercantile Baseball League, reinforced by a Saturday night crew, gave Barrie's a 12 to 1 trouncing in a league game at Riverside Park last evening. The champs earned one run, the remainder were gifts. Barrie's gave a weird exhibition and allowed practically everything to go through. Cressman's put up a performance that sparkled with gilt-edge plays in which Sage, Head and Hunter were prominent.

Once started on the toboggan, Barrie's made an honest effort to rid themselves of everything. It was hard on the hundred odd fans, but they took it good-naturedly. The splendid work by the Big Store crowd more than made up for the errors of ommission and commission of the other fellows.

Bartley fanned ten, and contributed a three-base clout. He had the fur-trimmers in hand at all stages of the game, and turned them back in the third when there were three on and only one out. Sage at third made a great catch of Henry's foul fly in the third, getting the ball with one hand as he tripped and fell. Head in middle field came in for Fredenberg's fly in the fifth, and grabbed it as he went down in a heap. He also hit safely three times. Hunter went far back for Kelly's fly in the seventh and doubled Nicholls at second. Bergoine besides working well behind the bat, hit the ball hard, and in the seventh wiped out the profits from the game by dropping a new Spalding in the river.

Quigley scored the lone tally for Barrie's when, after drawing a pass and taking second on a wild pitch, he went home on a double by Nicholls.

GOOD GROUNDS AT NICHOLLS OVAL.

All Kinds of Sport Being Played There.

Last summer's attendance at Nicholls Oval for football and other games was supposed to be a record-breaker, but this year the athletic organizations and the sport-loving public seem to be more enthusiastic than ever about the games and the splendid facilities provided at the Oval, and crowds gather every night between 6 and 7 to witness the football now being played. Tennis players also, are very numerous this year, and six or seven courts are kept busy constantly. The caretaker, who is as popular as ever, has his hands full keeping the big lawn in shape, with its insatiable demands for rolling and cutting.

MUSKOKA LAKES.

This most famous of Canadian resort districts is reached through Muskoka Wharf Station (112 miles north of Toronto) or through Bala Park or Lake Joseph Stations. To these points run the through Muskoka trains. Connecting with these trains are steamboats which serve all the resorts on the three lovely lakes, Muskoka, Rosseau and Joseph. The Muskoka region's popularity is an enduring one and its charms are never forgotten by the visitor. When you enter the district, you are amazed at the extent of the lakes, which appear so small on the map. Then the multitude of islands and the diversified shore-line cause you to wonder how the captains of the lake steamboats pilot their vessels so swiftly and safely through the maze. Against the steep wooded lands nestle pretty cottages, hotels and summer villas and these charming summer homes harmonize with their surroundings of blue waters and leafy woods. A handsome illustrated descriptive publication has been issued and may be had for the asking. Apply to any Grand Trunk Ticket Agent or C. E. Horning, D. P.A., Toronto, Ont.

There were quite a large number of couples entered in the rounds, and the prize, a golf ball, was won by Miss Mamie Rogers. Already an invitation has been received from Oshawa for June and it is hoped that Lindsay players will be here some time in the early part of the summer.

ULSTER, ON EVE OF ELECTIONS, IS SWARMING WITH ARMED MEN

BELFAST, May 21.— (Canadian Press.)—Ulster, on the eve of the elections, the first to be held under the system of proportional representation, is like a regional war. Armoured cars are here, there and everywhere, lorry loads of police and military with rifles ready for action come and go and the military is guarding the headquarters of all Royalist activities. But up to the present there have been no more than the usual clashes between the rival factions which have occurred in Ulster elections for a generation, and nothing beyond this is anticipated by those in the best position to judge. However, the authorities are taking no chances. Forces are being kept ready so they can be rushed to the scene of possible disturbances, and if necessary prevent faction fights from developing into something more serious. For election day, May 24, further precautions are beig taken, such as the closing of all licensed premises. There will be freedom of movements for motor cars having permits, a privilege which was curtailed during the last election.

Meighen Repeals His Statement; Says That Veniot Was Suggested

UNNAMED CORRESPONDENT IN ST. JOHN PROPOSED TAKING NEW BRUNSWICK MINISTER INTO FEDERAL CABINET, BUT EVIDENTLY NO AUTHORIZATION WAS GIVEN.

LETTERS GIVEN TO THE HOUSE BY PREMIER

OTTAWA, May 21. (Canadian Press.) Some light is thrown upon the great Veniot mystery by correspondence given to the House of Commons by Premier Meighen last night.

It will be remembered that Hon. T. A. Crerar on Tuesday last alleged that the Prime Minister or one of his colleagues in the Cabinet had sought to induce "the Catholic Minister of Public Works in New Brunswick" to enter the Dominion Government.

This Mr. Meighen flatly denied. Hon. Peter J. Veniot, the New Brunswick minister in question, in a newspaper interview asserted that he had been approached by a prominent New Brunswick Conservative. Mr. Meighen repeated his assertion that neither he nor any one acting upon his authority had approached Mr. Veniot. Yesterday he gave to the House letters which had been received by Sir Robert Borden and Hon. R. W. Wigmore, Minister of Customs and himself, from a correspondent in St. John, N. B., whose name the Premier preferred to keep secret, because his letters were not intended for publication, but he was prepared to disclose them to a member of the Opposition. The writer of these letters—evidently a member of the Conservative party—proposed the inclusion of Mr. Veniot in the Dominion Cabinet; firstly, because it would strengthen the Federal administration, and, secondly, because it would weaken the Liberal Government of New Brunswick, and pave the way for its defeat and its succession by a coalition government composed of Conservatives and farmers and headed by Hon. J. M. Baxter.

His first letter to Premier Meighen was written on November 29th, 1920. Sir Robert Borden apparently did not proceed with the subject.

Mr. Meighen also evidently wrote nothing that could be construed as authorizing his correspondent to enter into negotiations with Mr. Veniot.

STINGING REBUKE FOR FISH PIRATE

GAME WARDEN COFFEE OF OSHAWA IMPOSES $20 FINE.

"The county of Peterborough has far more than its share of fish pirates, game hogs and the destroyers of game," said J. W. Coffey, of Ottawa, one of the provincial game wardens, in imposing a fine of $20, with $5.20 costs, this morning, on a Harvey townshi man who pleaded guilty to the charge of having maskilonge in his possession during the closed season. "There are many men of your type who seem to think that the game laws are not to be upheld. If they were all allowed to do as you are doing the time would soon come when children wouldn't know what a maskilonge looks like. You are of the same class who shoot ducks in the spring and fawns in the fall. You fit into the class of game hogs. There are many men who consider themselves good citizens, but who are actually mighty poor citizens when it comes to observing the Game and Fisheries Act. You are one of those who would shoot the last deer. People of Peterborough and other sections of this district are asking when the government is going to establish a fish hatchery here. Do you think the government intends to establish a fish hatchery for fish pirates like you. If I had my way you wouldn't be at large. You are preventing good citizens from obtaining what they are entitled to."

PETERBORO GIFT TO THE GRENFELL MISSION BIG ONE

BALE OF GOODS, TO BE SHIPPED NEXT WEEK, EXHIBITED.

The bale of goods destined for the Grenfell Mission in Labrador, which was exhibited yesterday at the home of Mrs. James Wood, on Monaghan Road, was a surprise to all who viewed it. The work of the ladies of the Mission committee, assisted by the Thursday Club and the different feminine organizations of various Peterborough churches, no time or trouble was spared by the makers in the construction of this bale. Not only useful but decorative, every article showed the touch of willing and thoughtful hands, from the pretty comforters of pink and white patches with blue knots, made from the left-over pieces, to the dainty wool edgeing on little feminine petticoats, and the jaunty ball tassels and string belt of a little girl's pretty blue dress. Everything bought or donated was utilized, down to the smallest patch. Clothing for men, women and children, dresses, trousers, underwear for large and small, masculine and feminine, knitted sweaters and pretty, fleecy woollen jackets, warm scarfs and chest protectors, touques, socks, mittens, shoes, hats, coats, one an immense, warm garment of curly black fur, even a quantity of staple groceries, to to the forming of this wonderful testimonial to the kind hearts and willing fingers of so many of the women of Peterborough.

Shipped Next Week.
The goods which will be shipped some time next week go to the Harrington Hosital in the Canadian Labrador, one of the chain of hospitals of the Grenfell Mission Fund, to be distributed at that point to any who cannot afford to buy clothing for themselves or their families.

Tea was served to visitors during the afternoon, with Mrs. J. Walsh in charge, while Mrs. T. D. Mulholland and Mrs. J. C. Smith poured tea, assisted by Mrs. Gerald Wood, Mrs. N. D. Seaton and Mrs. A. Macdonald.

EUROPE WAITS NEXT MEETING OF PREMIERS

SILESIAN OFFENSIVES POSTPONED PENDING A LLOYD GEORGE-BRIAND CONFERENCE

NOT BEFORE TUESDAY

LONDON, May 21.— (Canadian Press.)—Lloyd George has gone to Hythe, near Dover, where he will spend the week end with Sir Philip Sasson. The suggestion was made here yesterday that it was possible he would meet Premier Briand while at Hythe, but dispatches from Paris indicated that there was no disposition on the part of the French Premier to discuss the Silesian situation with Lloyd George before Tuesday at the earliest. It is expected that the debate on the Silesian and reparations questions will be concluded in the French chamber by Tuesday and that Premier Briand will be given a vote of confidence.

Advices from Silesia would appear to indicate that neither the Poles nor Germans are taking the offensive pending the meeting of the French and British Premiers. The proposed meeting of the Supreme Allied Council for the purpose of discussing Silesia appeared today to have been ushed indefinitely into the future.

SPRING PLANTS ON LOCAL MARKET

TOMATOES SELLING AT 20 CENTS A BOX

The fronts of the fruit and flower shops of the city are piled high with boxes of plants, and some of the stores are practically barricaded with the arrangement of rectangular shallow boxes containing tomatoes, asters, and numerous other varieties of flora. Tomatoes where the Examiner enquired were 20 cents a box, and there were about fifteen plants to a box, although there were one or two that by mistake contained sixteen. Cabbage, nicely started, were 20 cents, and cauliflower were 25 cents. Pale green celery plants cost a quarter a box, and black seed onions, the delicate pointed shoots so close together that there was scarcely any earth between the plants, were also priced at 25 cents. The plants are all selling very well dealers say.

MANY ARE GOING TO CAMPBELLFORD

EXHIBITION BOARD HAVE BIG FIELD DAY OF GAMES AND RACES.

Some of the directors of the Peterboro Exhibition are arranging to attend Tuesday's holiday event in Campbelford where the Seymour Agricultural Society are putting on a field day of sports and amusements in an endeavour to secure money enough to make much needed improvements and repairs to their Fair grounds. The Campbellford Board have been preparing for this event since early spring, and everything indicates that they will have a big crowd. From Peterboro and surrounding district the roads are in first class condition for motoring, and the run is a comparatively short one. Peterboro's Fair directors have been through the experience against which President Alex. Hume, of Seymour township, and his associates, are struggling, and that fellow feeling of sympathy will likely move many of them to make the south east trip on Victoria Day.

WAR MEDALS FOR MRS. ANDREW WILSON

On Wednesday last Mr. and Mrs. Andrew Wilson, of Young's Point, received two medals which would have been awarded to their son, Pte. R. V. Wilson, No. 195501, 52nd Battalion, had he lived, for distinguished bravery on the battlefields of France.

Pte Wilson, who went to England with the 93rd Battalion, met his death in a brave effort to rescue his Lieutenant from the Germans.

The medals, gold and silver, were sent, one from the British Government and one from the Canadian Government, in recognition of a brave young life sacrificed in the fight for freedom.

Drayton Announces He Will Withdraw Tax on Oatmeal, Rolled Oats

LOCAL MEMBER, HOWEVER, STILL OPPOSING TAXING OF ALL FOODS WHEN HOUSE ADJOURNED—COMMITTEE WORK ON BUDGET RESOLUTIONS BEGINS IN ATMOSPHERE OF LASSITUDE

GIFT FROM THE MOTHER OF PARLIAMENTS

(Special to The Examiner.)

OTTAWA, May 21.—G. N. Gordon, M.P. for West Peterborough, was successful in his fight against the taxation of food, when Sir Henry Drayton, Minister of Finance, late last night in the House of Commons, in answer to Mr. Gordon, announced that he would amend his proposed Act so that oatmeal and rolled oats, whether in package or bulk, would not be taxed.

Mr. Gordon was still opposing the tax on all foods when the House adjourned.

COMMITTEE WORK BEGINS.

OTTAWA, May 21 (Canadian Press).—With the Budget debate out of the way, the Commons settled down yesterday afternoon to committee work on the Budget resolutions. The members discussed tobacco culture, liquor taxation, and the stamping of foreign-manufactured goods with the name of the country of origin.

There was rather an air of lassitude over the whole day's events, however, as the members had practically all been in their seats when the vote was taken on the Fielding Budget amendment after five o'clock yesterday morning, and consequently were feeling tired last evening.

PRESENTATION OF SPEAKER'S CHAIR.

The day's proceedings opened with the presentation of the new Speaker's chair by the Right Hon. W. J. Lowther, former Speaker of the British House of Commons, and the exchange of felicitations between Mr. Lowther, the Governor-General, and Mr. Rhodes, Speaker of the Commons.

It is said that Hammond married several young women at Newport News while he was stationed there in the Beach Naval Reserve, and others at Bath Beach and South Philadelphia. Attorney Julian V. Carabba, 115 Broadway, Manhattan, who appeared for Hammond when the papers were served, said that his client came from a good family at Bath Beach. Hammond's only explanation the lawyer said, was that he was having a lot of fun.

CITY TO APPEAL THE ASSESSMENT OF WILSON FARM

An appeal has been entered by the city on the assessment of the Wilson farm, now owned by the city and where the proposed sewage disposal plant will be located, by Otonabee Township at $12,000. The silver basket of red and pale mauve tulips with white lilacs, a very lovely color combination, and tall lighted silver candelabra. Mrs. B. Gardiner, Mrs. R. H. Turner and Miss Florence Cameron were in charge, assisted by the Misses A. Meyers, H. Mulholland and B. Mather. The report of the Nominating committee, read by Miss E. Morrow, who moved its adoption, which was seconded by Miss Ina Allen, gave the following names for the Board of Management for the ensuing year: Hon. Pres., Mrs. W. Roger. Members—Mrs. W. D. Scott, Miss M. Dickson, Mrs. Walsh, Mrs. H. W. Cressman, Mrs. Jas. Wood, Miss E. Morrow, Mrs. W. H. Hill, Mrs Robt. Neill, Mrs. B. Gardiner, Mrs. V. Eastwood, Mrs. R. H. Turner, Mrs. T. D. Cruikshank, Mrs. Adam Hall, Miss F. Cameron, Mrs. H. R. H. Kenner, Mrs. Greer, Mrs. Geo. Macdonald, Mrs. Harvey, Mrs. W. R. Widdiss, Mrs. Ingall, Miss Walton, Miss McVannell, Mrs. D. Drummond, Mrs. Cormack, Mrs. R. M. Waddell, Mrs. G. Langley, Mrs. N. D. Buchanan, Mrs. Edgar Worth, Mrs. J. F. Chapman, Mrs. Thos. Brown.

General Secretary's Report.

The report of the general secretary, Miss Charlotte H. Layton, opened with the sentence: "It seems to me the keynote of all successful Y. W.C.A. work and of all community service is expressed in the words of Paul, the Apostle: "We were workers together with God. We are working together, and with God, the God who through all the darkness and discouragement of centuries past, has still been guilding us up through the deeps to Him."

The spirit of co-operation, which is growing steadily in all branches of the Association's work, from the seniors down to the smallest tots, is responsible for a great deal of the good work of the past year. During the year, 200 girls and women joined the gymnasium classes, over 300 have made use of the swimming pool, over 100 were at the summer camp, and the total club enrolment is 269, of which 145 are seniors and 124 juniors. The aggregate attendance at Y.W.C.A. social functions throughout the year was about 1,700, and at exhibitions, entertainments, etc., about 1,000. The spirit of religious feeling was manifested in the attendance at the services during the week of prayer, and during Passion Week. A Missionary Campaign by the girls last May resulted in the sum of $188 being realized for the foreign work of the Y.W.C.A. The programme of the C.G.I.T. work, recently started here, has had a very encouraging beginning, under the supervision of the Educational committee, classes in basketry, dressmaking, English, French and arithmetic were well attended, camp this year was bigger and better than ever, with 108 in attendance during the season, and was financially a real success.

A magazine article entitled "Our Undeveloped Wealth" was referred to by the speaker, who advanced the opinion that the undeveloped wealth of our country is in the girlhood of the nation, not in our mines and forests and fields, for in them is the undeveloped wealth of leadership, of enduring courage and of faith, which cannot be developed by the girls alone, nor by the Association, nor the Board, but can only be realized by a working of all units together with God.

Assistant Secretary's Report.

Miss Leta Brownscombe, the assistant secretary, reported the work of the two Saturday afternoon clubs, the Sunshine and the Every Bright, as being about the same as last year. During the year 124 little lives were brought into touch with the great organizatzion. One outstanding point is the great increase in membership, this year showing the largest membership yet of these two classes. Miss Florence Scott and Miss Jessie Cressman were leaders of the Ever Bright Club, and the love of the children towards them has been shown in many ways. Last October at the Fall Rally the Sunshine Club put up a demonstration business meeting, a re-union was held in the form of a Paper Chase around Jackson Park, and on the 30th of October, both clubs had a dress-up Hallowe'en party.

On Dec. 11th, 30 girls were initiated into the Sunshine Club as Canadian Girls in Training, on the 1st of January, Miss R. Montgomery volunteered to teach the girls cooking; in February, the two clubs united to give a Valentine party to which their mothers and friends were invited, and Christmas, Easter and Thanksgiving were occasions for little parties under the direction of the clubs.

This year, the co-operation of some of the older "Y" girls has been obtained, by occasionally having volunteers take the gym work or go on hikes with them, and this assistance will be required with the swimming pool also.

Superintendent's Report.

The report of Mrs. F. Morrison, the superintendent of the Y.W.C.A. Home, gave a review of the methods used to prevent the girls who come to the city as strangers and seek the protection of the Home, to feel lonesome and discouraged. During the year 242 girls lived for shorter long periods in the house, and accommodation was provided for 325 transients. Board and room now ranges from $5.25 to $6.75 per week, and transients pay $1.50 per day for room and baord or $8.00 per week. While financial results are not the prime object aimed at, the home department for last year came out on the right side of the sheet. Very little illness has been experienced and

LOCAL SOCIAL SERVICE COUNCIL MEETING ENTHUSIASTIC —PROPOSE JUVENILE COURT

NEW OFFICERS ELECTED

A meeting of the Social Service Council of Peterborough took place last evening in the Y.M.C.A., at which some important business was transacted. Although the attendance was not as large as anticipated, every member present showed marked enthusiasm in the furtherance of the good work. Mr. J. J. Hartley, the president, occupied the chair during the initial stages of the proceedings, and the Rev. Gilbert Agar, B.A., of Toronto, general secretary for Ontario, who became so popular with many in connection with the recent convention here, was present, and addressed the meeting, asking first for the opinion of those present on the conditions in Peterborough, which would warrant the work being continued here or entered into more fully than at present. Rev. Mr. Malott, Rev. Mr. Ross, Mr. G. W. Powell, Mrs. W. R. Morris, Rev. Mr. Young, Dr. Blagrave, Mrs. E. V. Frederick, who were among those present, expressed themselves as being heartily in sympathy with the work of the Council, and particularly emphasizing the advisability of the establishment of a Juvenile Court in Peterborough.

Officers Elected.

Election of officers for the coming year resulted as follows (Mr. J. J. Hartley and Mr. A. B. Cunningham both declining to hold office again): President, Rev. F. E. Malott; 1st Vice-President, Mrs. W. R. Morris; 2nd Vice-President, Dr. E. V. Frederick; Secretary, Mr. J. Edgar; Treasurer, Mr. Frank Adams.

Mr. Pogue moved a hearty vote of thanks to Mr. Hartley for his faithful work in the interests of the society, which was seconded by the entire meeting with one voice, and Mr. Malott took the chair.

The New President.

Rev. Mr. Agar, after a warm tribute to Bishop Sweeney, the past president, spoke in glowing terms of the new president, Rev. Dr. Pidgeon, of Toronto, whom he termed "a giant in will, intellect, spiritual and moral power." He spoke of the appointment at a meeting held in Toronto yesterday afternoon of the Rev. Peter Bryce as a Child Welfare secretary for the Provincial Council, and of the appointment of Mr. Alex. McLaren as field secretary. Both of these new officials gave splendid addresses at the recent Social Service Convention here. Mr. Agar recommended an objective for the local branch as $1,000, taking as a neucleus the $400 received in cash and promises at the recent public meetings. He also recommended the organization of a committee on good citizenship, one on publicity, and one on Child Welfare work.

Pool-Rooms.

A letter was read by Mr. A. B. Cunningham from the Minsterial Association, in which the association called the attention of the council to the increase in the number of pool-rooms on George Street, and pledged the suport of the association in lessening this evil.

Some discussion arose here over the advisability of trying to secure the services of a policewoman to deal with delinquent girls, a suggestion which met with the hearty approval of many of those present.

A committee, composed of Mrs. E. V. Frederick and Dr. Blagrave, who were given power to add one to their number, was named to investigate conditions requiring the attention of a Social Service Council, and report on the needs of Petersborough in this respect at the next meeting of the executive.

cause of their New York State connections. But the cities of Hamilton, London, Brantford and Windsor and all of a dozen others in Western Ontario, with the exception of Kitchener, prefer to stay on standard time, with the result that they are running their clocks one hour behind those of the Provincial Capital.

The city of Winnipeg having decided to stay with standard time, is now two hours behind Toronto, Montreal and Ottawa. Regina, which is normally one hour behind Winnipeg, is just now on a par with her sister prairie city, having adopted daylight saving time. Calgary and Edmonton, still on standard time, are now three hours behind the big eastern cities.

Saskatoon has apparently been watching which way the cat jumps, so to speak, and will on June 1st take a vote on whether or not to adopt daylight saving this summer or the balance of it.

Going over the Rockies one would naturally expect to find some agreement among the city hall clocks of the Pacific Coast. On the contrary

ATTACK PROMPTED BY DEMENTED ONE

SO THINKS FORMER PALMERSTON PASTOR, WHO RECALLS TROUBLE WITH MISS LEE.

BEAMSVILLE, Ont., May 21.—(Canadian Press.) — To Rev. Mr. Shepperson, who was the Methodist minister in Palmerston three years ago, at the time of the quarrel which led to Miss Edna Lee's dismissal as organist, the dastardly attack against her seems to be the work of some person with a demented mind.

Although it was the choir trouble stirred up a fractional feud in the Methodist church that caused Mr. Sheperson to leave his charge a year after his installation as pastor at Palmerston, still, he says, he bears no ill will against Miss Lee. "I was not dismissed," he says. "I had to leave because my health would not stand constant quarrelling. Palmerston is noted for its church quarrels."

"It was wrong to say as the reports do, that I dismissed Miss Lee. As pastor I was simply head of the board. I prayed one night till eleven thirty with them not to take such action but to retain her at least for the year she had been hired," he said.

It was his opinion that Miss Lee was a fine person and her dismissal was no reflection on her character.

LICENSE PLATE FOR AUTOMOBILES

The usual stereotyped reply from Government departments, assuring careful consideration, was not received by the secretary of the Automobile Association from Hon. F. C. Biggs when the suggestion of permanent number plates with interchangeable date sections for each year was made. A letter received from the Minister of Public Highways this morning manifested great interest in the suggestion, and it does not seem probable that the idea will be stored away in some dusty drawer or fyle. License plates of the suggested type are in use in British Columbia, and have been very popular.

HOTRUM HANGS ON AUGUST 3

CONDEMNED TO DIE WITH M'FADDEN FOR SLAYING OF SABINE.

TORONTO, May 21.—Roy Hotrum was yesterday afternoon sentenced by Justice Kelly to be hanged on Wednesday, August 3, the same date set for the execution of Wm. McFadden, for the murder of Leonard Sabine.

The sentencing occupied but a few minutes. The prisoner was brought in between two constables shortly before 2.45, and at 2.50 was escorted out under death sentence.

"Have you anything to say before I pass sentence?" asked the Judge as the prisoner stood up. The youth said nothing, and his counsel, W. K. Murphy, addressing the court, said: "There is nothing I can say as to the sentence Your Honor may pass, but I would ask that you set such a date that this man may have proper time to prepare for the carrying out of that sentence, and also to permit that a stated case may be prepared on certain points of evidence for which I expect to make application to you."

"I Am Not Guilty."

The waiting prisoner, standing in the hushed and expectant court, showed remarkable self-control, though the strain was visible in his fixed look and still-held features.

Addressing the Judge, he said: "If you are passing on me for being there, I'm guilty. If for the shooting of Mr. Sabine, I am innocent."

The words were distinct and said without a tremor of voice.

SOLDIERS' MEMORIAL AT KEENE WILL BE UNVEILED TUESDAY

ARRANGEMENTS COMPLETE FOR THE CLOSING CHAPTER OF OTONABEE TOWNSHIP'S SPLENDID PATRIOTIC RECORD—CHILDREN'S PICNIC IN THE MORNING.

BALL GAME AT 5 P.M.

The unveiling and dedication of the monmument erected to memory of the men of Otonabee township who gave their lives in the great war will take place at Keene on Tuesday afternoon, May 24, at 2 o'clock. Reeve Fred A. Eason will preside at the unveiling ceremonies and the addresses for the occasion will be delivered by the following gentlemen: Rev. W. H. Andrews, Toronto, Rev. Peter McGuire, Peterborough, Rev. F. W. Anderson, Port Hope, Col. T. J. Johnston, Otonabee, and Prof. Reynolds, president of the Ontario Agricultural College, Guelph.

The committee in charge of the arrangements for the unveiling extend a very special invitation to the relatives and other friends of the men in whose honor the memorial has been erected to occupy the seats that will be provided for them. And it is also desired that if possible they meet the committee at the town hall at 1.30 o'clock on Tuesday afternoon.

The Closing Chapter.

The unveiling of the soldiers' memorial at Keene will form the closing chapter of Otonabee's splendid war record. Its contributions of men and money and supplies of all kinds were made in a high sense of patriotic duty, and the community's appreciation of and fidelity to the men who did not return, find affectionate expression in the tribute which will be paid on Victoria Day and perpetuated in the handsome monument erected in the public square at Keene, the township's municipal centre.

Other Holiday Events.

The 24th of May will be otherwise celebrated by the people of Otonabee this year. In the morning the children and teachers of all the schools in the township will hold their first annual picnic at the Agricultural grounds, Keene. At 11 a. m. they will meet in the town hall for practice, and will then have their lunches which will be provided by their families. In the afternoon they will take a prominent part in the unveiling of the soldiers' monument.

Baseball Game.

The holiday will be concluded with a ball game between the Zion and Keen teams, both from Otonabee township. This is the first scheduled match of the East Peterborough League and judging by last year's results and the interest already shown in the present season's prospects, this should prove a big attraction. It is expected, of course, that the people of Otonabee will make Tuesday a general holiday, especially assisting at the unveiling ceremonies, and it is altogether likely there will be a large attendance of people from the city and the neighbouring township of this and adjoining counties.

WHITE ROBIN IN SMITH TOWNSHIP

Honors for a new discovery in the realm of ornithology must be given to C. J. Hancock, well-known farmer on the second line of Smith Township. Mr. Hancock has, since the middle of March, had a white robin on his farm. The bird came in March with the other robins, mated and settled down for the summer in a tree near the house, and in its habits is the same as any other robin red-breast. It is white all over except for its breast, which bears the red family seal. Music just as sweet as any robin ever produced emanates from the white robin and the bird lives in complete harmony with the rest of the colony, the numbers of which are estimated at 200. The large number of robins on the farm is due to the trees surrounding the house, Mr. Hancock stated to-day. Sceptics have come from all over the country to see the bird, said Mr. Hancock, and all have gone away from the farm, convinced that it is a legitimate white robin.

CITIES RUN TO ANY OLD TIME

CRAZY-QUILT OF TIME AREAS PRODUCED BY LOCAL OPTION APPLIED TO DAYLIGHT SAVING.

TORONTO, May 21.—(Canadian Press).—Analysis of Canada's much-muddled civic time systems reveals many peculiar situations. The local option method as applied to daylight saving has produced, through a sort of patchwork process, a veritable crazy quilt of time areas. The result discloses some method in the madness of that irate citizen who vehemently declared that the Federal Government should make it a criminal offence for any city council to interfere with "God's time" by the introduction of daylight saving ordinances.

The Quebec Legislature having taken the time bull by the horns and made daylight saving a Provincial measure, there is in that province general uniformity of time, so far as the big cities are concerned. The cities of Halifax and Sydney, Nova Scotia, are also on daylight saving time, and St. John and Fredericton, N.B., will adopt it to-day. Apparently, in Quebec and the Maritimes the daylight savers hold the majority of the cities. When it is noon in Montreal it is 1 p.m. in the Maritime cities. There is the same difference in time under the standard system.

Ontario Has Two Minds.

It is the popular province of Ontario where the discrepancies are most awkward provincially. Kingston and Ottawa have put their clocks ahead one hour; Peterborough and other eastern Ontario cities have not. Toronto also has daylight saving in conformity with Montreal and New York, so have St. Catharines and Niagara Falls, Ont., because of their New York State connections. But the cities of Hamilton, London, Brantford and Windsor and all of a dozen others in Western Ontario, with the exception of Kitchener, prefer to stay on standard time, with the result that they are running their clocks one hour behind those of the Provincial Capital.

The city of Winnipeg having decided to stay with standard time, is now two hours behind Toronto, Montreal and Ottawa. Regina, which is normally one hour behind Winnipeg, is just now on a par with her sister prairie city, having adopted daylight saving time. Calgary and Edmonton, still on standard time, are now three hours behind the big eastern cities.

Saskatoon has apparently been watching which way the cat jumps, so to speak, and will on June 1st take a vote on whether or not to adopt daylight saving this summer, or the balance of it.

Going over the Rockies one would naturally expect to find some agreement among the city hall clocks at the Pacific Coast. On the contrary, it is 8 a.m. in Vancouver when it is 9 a.m. in Victoria, despite the fact that Victoria is a few miles nearer the setting sun. The latter city has adopted daylight saving.

Vancouver time is four hours behind that of Toronto, Montreal, and Ottawa, instead of three hours, as under the standard system.

The transcontinental railways which are the most inconvenienced by the variations in time are running on standard or sun time, throughout Canada. Time-tables have been altered in many instances, however, to meet the situation in districts which have adopted daylight saving.

RAIL WORKERS OPPOSE CUTS

PREPARE TO CARRY CASE TO COURTS AND FIGHT A STIFF LEGAL BATTLE IN U.S.

WASHINGTON, May 21.—Soon after word reached here that the Railway Labor Board at Chicago would announce, on June 1, wage reductions applying to all cases submitted to it prior to April 18, representatives of the 1,000,000 unskilled workers affected began to lay plans to meet the emergency.

As a result of conferences it was practically decided to ask for a review of the decisions of the Labor Board by the courts if the Board's awards are not, in the opinion of the leaders, justified by the evidence submitted. An order would be sought, restraining the railroads from making the wage reductions effective, until the appeal had been adjudged by the courts. This might involve months of delay as the workers are said to be prepared to carry their fight to the Supreme Court if necessary.

No action will be taken until the Labor Board renders its judgment. If this is not satisfactory to the labor men, application will be made, probably to a Federal district court, for a review. W. Jett Lauck and other leaders and their counsel say that there is precedent for such an appeal to the courts.

Mr. Lauck was in touch with Bert M. Jewell, president of the Employees' Department of the American Department of the American Federation of Labor, who is in Chicago. Representatives of the workers also consulted counsel.

The leaders contend that the evidence, presented to the Labor Board, does not warrant wage reductions, and that it can be shown that much of the data, submitted by the executives in asking reductions, was based on a false premise.

Much of the trouble in weaning the baby is developed by the use of a cheap and unsanitary nipple. The NOBILITY nipple is sterilized and is sanitary, transparent and non-collapsible. 20 YEARS OLD, HAD 11 WIVES

ROMANTIC WAR-TIME CAREER OF NAVAL APPRENTICE COMES TO A SUDDEN HALT.

WHITE PLAINS, N.Y., May 21.—The romantic war-time career of Harold Hammond, a 20-year old naval apprentice, who it is alleged has already married eleven girls, was halted yesterday when Supreme Court Justice Martin J. Keough of New Rochelle granted an annulment to one and a divorce to another of his young wives. Hammond is now serving a sentence in the Portsmouth naval prison for bigamy.

The divorce action was brought by Mrs. Elizabeth Marie Hammond of 283 West Eighty-seventh street, Manhattan, who said she was married to the young sailor on Oct. 15, 1917. She named Loretta F. Hammond, of Hollands, L.I., who married Hammond on May 16, 1919, at Hoboken, N.J., and later sued for annulment. The two wives testified against each other.

The evidence in the suit of Elizabeth Hammond shows that the sailor lived at 110 Greenwich avenue, Manhattan; at Midland Beach; in Fortieth street, Manhattan, and in Thirty-first street, Manhattan, and in each place with a different young woman. Attached to the papers of Elizabeth Hammond is a photograph of Hammond in uniform of a United States regular recruit. "My husband, Harold Hammond," is inscribed on the back.

Loretta F. Hammond in her testimony said that she married Hammond at Hoboken, N.J., on May 16, 1919, when he was in the navy. They They had one child, Robert Hammond, who will remain with his mother. She had Hammond arrested for bigamy at Rockaway Beach and he pleaded guilty in the Domestic Relations Court in New Jersey and was turned over to the naval authorities.

It is said that Hammond married several young women at Newport News while he was stationed there in the Beach Naval Reserve, and others at Bath Beach and South Philadelphia. Attorney Julian V. Carabba, 115 Broadway, Manhattan, who appeared for Hammond when the papers were served, said that his client came from a good family at Bath Beach. Hammond's only explanation the lawyer said, was that he was having a lot of fun.

A CHANCE FOR SERVICE.

It is of general interest to know that the special fruit committee of the Ontario Legislature is not only going to deal with the export of Ontario fruit and the development of the British market but will also pay attention to local market conditions. There is the greatest need of an inquiry into this latter question for in recent years the Ontario fruit crop has not been handled to the benefit of either producer or consumer—vast quantities of fruit were allowed to go to waste last year while the people of the province were paying record prices. There was a scarcity of boxes, not enough cars, a lack of workers and an unbusiness-like combination of conditions that led to high prices and waste. If the special committee, as a result of their investigation, can hit upon a more systematic handling of the fruit crop that will give the producer a fair profit, the consumer a fair price, and eliminate the annual spectacle of tons of fruit being allowed to rot for want of labour and boxes and cars, they will have amply justified their appointment. To the average citizen the improvement of the local market conditions is of far more importance than the study of the export trade ,although it is recognized of course that feature means much to the province.

THAT $500,000 BONFIRE.

An inquiry is being held as a result of the fire which destroyed half a million dollars' worth of military stores in Toronto the other day. An explanation is undoubtedly due to the people of this country, who have to foot the bills, as to who was responsible for the storing of such vast quantities of valuable military supplies in what was little more than a wooden shed. The expenditure of Canada upon her militia is high enough now without making possible a half million dollar bonfire to add to the cost of keeping up the country's army. There is not a business firm in the Dominion that would be foolish enough to store $500,000 worth of materials in a wooden structure liable to be set on fire by a spark from a locomotive or in half a dozen different ways. Why in the name of common sense can not the business of the country be conducted on business lines? Or has the government grown hardened to extravagance as a result of the abnoraml conditions of the war years and so looks upon a half million dollar loss as a mere trifle?

CANADA'S MERCHANT SHIPS

Canada embarked upon the building of merchant ships during the war when the raids of German submarines on the Allied shipping made it inevitable that the menace should be met by a general shipbuilding campaign. There is no possible criticism of the action of the Canadian Government in entering upon such an enterprise under the conditions with which the Allies were faced. Less justifiable, perhaps, was the decision of the Govrnment to continue the building programme when the war was over and when it was realised that the ships would cost far more than they could be sold for when completed, but on the ground that it provided employment during the demobilisation period even this policy was not seriously assailed. In the operations of Canada's national merchant vessels, however, there seems to be legitimate cause for complaint. For instance, the inquiry that is being made has already developed the fact that the Canadian Government has been bonusing privately-owned vessels which are in competition with Canada's own ships. That seems a queer way of making the most out of the national mercantile marine. There seems to be need of a closer inquiry into this matter for helping a rival to compete with you in your own particular field is about as unbusinesslike a policy as could be imagined.

STREET "LIGHTING."

Citizens in various parts of the city are complaining about inadequately illuminated streets, and it must be admitted that the complaints on the whole are justified. Peterborough has not kept pace with other cities in the matter of street lighting. A few incandescent lamps strung haphazardly along a street, and furnishing a sickly illumination, can only by courtesy be called a lighting system, and in this respect we are miles behind centres of our own size. The present may not be an opportune time for discussing improvements in this line, but nevertheless Peterborough cannot be allowed to drop back to the status of a small town, which is exactly where she is drifting, so far as her street lighting is concerned. No real effort has been made in years to improve the conditions in the outlying streets. We did manage to get an improved system in operation in the business section, and then after getting the lamps in place the Council grew alarmed at the expenditure, and took half of the lights down again. Perhaps it was just as well they decided to do so, for the superfluous lamps were used in other thoroughfares, and are doing their bit to banish the gloom But the general system is obsolete, antiquated, and useless, and in the name of efficiency will soon have to be scrapped. It has been suggested that householders help to relieve the situation by leaving their porch lights burning. This might be a feasible plan were it not that there are daughters of marriageable age in many homes, and naturally there are times when the illumination of the street must be a secondary consideration. On the whole the porch light suggestion is not to be relied upon.

HOPE IN THE COAL STRIKE

Many factors are operating in Britain to-day that conduce towards a settlement of the coal strike, which began on April the first. The resolute action of the police in ferretting out the holes and hiding places of the Communists and letting the full light of day fall on their activities has discouraged the radicals who were playing with the gunpowder of revolution. The shortage of funds in the Miners' treasury and the consequent reduction of strike pay has been also a contributory factor, while the mine owners have adopted a far more reasonable attitude towards the strikers.

Yet while all these influences have been effective in bringing the dispute nearer to a settlement, the radical change of attitude of the miners themselves since the failure of the Triple Alliance to co-operate in a general strike has been the determining cause of the better outlook. Two weks ago the Government made their final offer to the miners, and it was summarily rejected after less than two hours' discussion. The reason given by the men's leaders in refusing to accept the profferred terms was that the owners "did not concede the fundamental principle for which we stand.'

What that "fundamentl principle" was is not a matter of dispute. Until two weeks ago the miners stood by their original demand for the organization of the coal industry on a national instead of a district basis. Their reply, however, proved a boomerang; for no sooner was it made public than there was whisperings in many coal centres that what the majority of the men cared about was, not the national principle, but the wag standard, and that if they got a fair offer they would go back to work. In Yorkshire and Nottinghom the men went even further and protested against the pooling system which their Federation had adopted.

While peace will be welcomed by the whole nation, there must some time be a balancing of accounts and a day of settlement. For three weeks after the calling of the strike there was t alk of nationalization and standing by the basic principles for which the leaders had called out the men. Then, after millions of idle hours, after incalculable damage had been done to industry, after passions had been aroused and idleness encouraged ,the men switch the full span of the arc and the prospect opens of a settlement on the basis of a wage standard. Such settlemen could have been reached more quickly, more dispassionately and infinitely more economically by conciliation.

LOVE!

By KATHERINE MOORE

I Learn of Mr. Darwood's Death.

Chapter 56

A few night after I had been successful in stimulating Leonard's interests once more in his old joy of fishing, he telephoned about dinner time that he would be late and not to wait for him.

I could tell by his voice, which sounded terribly agitated, that something had happened. My heart sank within me. Must every little success be crushed again so speedily?

"Something's happened suddenly," he told me over the 'phone. "I can't get away from the office just yet. No, it's nothing to worry about nothing personal," he added. I had been unable to refrain from asking questions. I lived in a state of constant dread of something terrible happening to Leonard.

I had my dinner, then sat down to read and wait for him. I tried to find interest in the two outing magazines, but now they failed to divert me. My thoughts were with Leonard. My brain picked up every possibility that might happen and turned it into a reality. My supersensitiveness even touched on the possibility of his not coming home at all.

Emma dropped something in the kitchen and my nerves jumped so that I let the magazine slip through my shaking fingers.

About 11 o'clock I heard Leonard's step on the piazza. I hardly knew whether I wanted to see him or not. Then I ran to the door and let him in. He looked so tired.

He followed me into the living room and sank down wearily into his chair.

"What do think, Darwood is dead!" he said.

"Dead?" I repeated wonderingly.

"Yes,—died of appoplexy out in Seattle. Just got word at 5 o'clock."

This would put an end to Mrs. Darwood's separation suit. I thought joyfully. My heart was beating wildly.

"When did he die?" I asked mechanically. It did not matter to me, I only knew I was glad that he was dead.

"Yesterday,' Leonard answered.

I longed to ask other questions—dozen of them. But I could only sit and think and hope that certain things would happen.

Of course Mrs. Darwood knew. Perhaps she had been the one to bring the news to Leonard. Well, she could have his money now. That was all she wanted. I hoped that it would be a great deal and that she would go way off some place and spend it.

Leonard said little more. He was tired and we soon went upstairs to bed.

I could not get to sleep. Way into the night I lay wide-eyed and thinking. I heard the hall clock strike, 2, and then 3 o'clock, but my thoughts were still racing around wildly. I tried counting forwards and backwards, but I only ended up by figuring up how many months it was since Mrs. Darwood had come into our lives and wondering how many more it would be before it was all ended. Then I wondered what the end would be. Would it end—or would it just be the end of me?

If Leonard was intensely fascinated, would he want to terminate their acquaintance Darwood's death might mean the end of things—but in a terrible way.

I got up and turned on the electric light, I walked up and down the room and then took a book and got back into bed and triel to read. I could not.

Once I tip-toed out into the hall and stood by Leonard's door. I wanted to see if I could hear his breathing. He was sleeping soundly for his breath came in deep, regular inhalations. The sound of it seemed to calm me a little. I went back to my room softly and crawled into bed. I must have fallen asleep soon after.

DID HE?

A letter before me from Australia says: "Out here the Prince of Wales said to one of the most important ladies in the Commonwealth that he never intends to marry. Or so she repeats to a good many people." Now that is interesting, because he is the oldest Heir Apparent who has never married, and he possesses an independence of character that his parents now realize. Always considerate, always nice, none the less he has firmly shown that he will submit to no tutelage except in association with his public position. He is the idol of England, and he masters every intricacy of Labor problems, whilst he entirely escapes that humdrumedness so dear to Queen Mary and to Lord Stamfordham.—Liverpool Weekly Post.

NEW SUSPECT IN BOMB PLOT

CHAUFFEUR AND GIRL SAY THAT TRUCKMAN RESEMBLED PICTURE OF DEATH WAGON DRIVER.

NEW YORK, May 21.—Giuseppi De Fillipos, 28 years old, a boss truckman, living at 539 Hudson Boulevard, Bayonne, N. J., was locked up in Police Headquarters at Bayonne after a girl and a man, who was said to be a chauffeur, had declared he resembled a composite picture of the man who was alleged to have driven the wagon containing the bomb which exploded in Wall Street on the afternoon of September 16 last. De Fillipos, however, was not accused of connection with the Wall Street explosion, the only charge lodged against him being that of "suspicion."

The fact that the man had been arrested was kept secret until Thursday evening, when Joseph Scalla, his lawyer, told of meeting De Fillipos in Police Headquarters shortly after 3 o'clock, when the suspect was being led from the Detective Bureau to the cell house in the rear.

Scalla said that he had acted as counsel for De Fillipos on several occasions, and when he saw him being led away from the Detective Bureau by several detectives, the prisoner said to him: "Joe, will you please find out what they have arrested me for?"

The lawyer said he then asked the detectives what charge had been lodged against De Fillipos, but that the latter refused to tell him, saying it was "a matter in which the Government was interested." Later it was learned that Patrick J. Ahearn, an agent of the Department of Justice, who several weeks ago arrested Tito Luigio in Scranton, Pa., on suspicion of being the driver of the bomb wagon, arrested De Fillipos near his home at 2.30 o'clock in the afternoon. Ahearn was accompanied by Acting Detective Sergeant Daniel Ward.

Word of De Fillipos's arrest was sent to William J. Flynn, Chief of the Bureau of Investigation of the Department of Justice, who was in his office in this city, and to Captain Arthur Carey, head of the local homicide squad. Ahearn, it was said, requested that the young girl and the man be sent to Bayonne immediately to view De Fillipos.

Before their arrival, however, Detective Sergeant James J. Gegan, head of the police bomb squad in this city, and two of his detectives, Kirk and Kenny, appeared in the Bayonne Police Headquarters and questioned De Fillipos. About two hours later the girl and the chauffeur were ushered into the private office in the Detective Bureau by Agent Ahearn, where De Fillipos and half a dozen other men had been placed in a line.

Inspector Daniel Cady, acting head of the Bayonne police, was in the room at the time, but neither he, Ahearn, nor the detectives would reveal what occurred. It was learned, however, that De Fillipos, who is married and has two children, repeatedly asked his inquisitors why he had been apprehended, and that on every occasion he was told to "wait and see."

Gegan and his two detectives hastened back to New York and reported to Captain Carey. Asked about their report, Captain Carey said: "The arrest of the man is not a matter I care to discuss. I understand he is a Government prisoner. It would not be fair to the prisoner for me to say anything about his arrest or the report made to me about it by Detective Sergeant Gegan."

It was said at Police Headquarters, however, that the Government agents had reported that De Fillipos was engaged in the trucking business in Brooklyn several years ago and that police records revealed that he had been arrested for a trivial assault and again for violating the law relating to the operation of automobiles in the city.

His friends in Bayonne declared that De Fillipos was living in that city at the time of the Wall Street tragedy. They declared he was a man of excellent reputation, and that several years ago the truckman received his first naturalization papers.

SETS OUT TO REFORM DRESS AND CUSTOMS

Illinois Congregation Bans Toddle, Shimmy, Short Skirts and Low Necks as Immoral.

CHICAGO, May 20.— Convinced that something must be done to save their suburb from the fate of Sodom and Gomorrah, the circumspect young men and women of the Evanston Congregational Church came forward to-day with a revised edition of "What Every Young Person Ought to Know."

The revision was accomplished at a meeting devoted to discussion of the subject, "Resolved, That This Age Is More Immoral Than Previous Ages." Almost without exception the sixty-five club members voted in the affirmative and then drew up a list, setting forth dances, short skirts, low-necked dresses and other self-revelations of the present day as horrible examples of things to be shunned.

Miss Dorothy Pickard directed the criticism of modern life. From her remarks and those of other speakers come these new warnings to the young:

Q. What is the toddle? A. The toddle is almost a dance, but unseemly.

Q. What is the shimmy? A. The shimmy is unspeakable.

Q. Are there any respectable dances? A. Yes. The waltz is respectable.

Q. Are short skirts proper? A. Short skirts are not improper when worn by the very young, but when worn by grown-ups they are immoral.

Each of the thirty young men in the class pledged himself after the meeting never to speak or walk with any girl wearing short skirts.

PRESENTATION TO MR. DAVID GRAHAM

OMEMEE NEWS OF INTEREST—EPWORTH LEAGUE MEETING.

OMEMEE, May 21.—On Wednesday evening a number of employees of the Omemee Tanning Co. gathered to show their esteem for their brother worker, in the person of Mr. David Graham, who is leaving with his wife and family for Collingwood the last of the month. The following address and purse were presented to him:

Mr. David Graham, Omemee:

Dear Friend.— It is with regret that we have learned that you are soon to leave our town, and have severed your connection with the Omemee Tanning Co., we, therefore, your associates in your work here, have gathered together this evening to wish you every success in your new home. You have always been a faithful, loyal, trustworthy worker ,ever willing to do anything at any time either night or day, for the welfare of your employer. It has always been a pleasure for men to work with you as the work has always seemed lighter where you were along with your jovial disposition. Many changes have taken place since you entered this business some twenty-seven or twenty-eight years ago, but you have not changed, only in years ,and our only regret is that you could not have seen your way clear to have remained and taken your place in one of the best tanneries of the Dominion. Not only will you be missed in our work here, but in the village life at large, as you were always ready to do your duty, either at the Village Council or on the Board of Education or anywhere for the welfare of this community.

We cannot let you leave us without showing, in a small way ,our appreciation of you, and would ask you to accept this purse.

Wishing you and Mrs. Graham and family every success in your new home.

Signed on behalf of the employees of the Omemee Tanning Co., Ltd.

The paper given by Mrs. Boyd was very interesting as well as helpful and is well worthy of repeating, so that all may hear it.

"Loyalty to Our Church."

Ref.—Psalm 131. 5th Verse.

"If I forget Thee, oh Jerusalem, let my right hand forget her cunning. The passage here quoted is the language of loyalty. The people of God were in captivity and had to endure many privations. They could not go to the sanctuary as was their custom. The whole Psalm is full of the most tender and pathetic language, descriptive of their attachment for Jerusalem and the temple where they worshipped. Their example should inspire us with similar feelings. The country that protects our lives and shields our property should have our warmest affections. For each of us our own denomination and our own individual church should be considered the best, without in anywise diminishing our warm regard for all who in every place call upon our Lord Jesus Christ.

It is hardly necessary for me to go into the details of the rise of Methodism, many of us, if not all, are familiar with its history. The condition of England at the beginning of the 18th century was most deplorable. The court was dissolute, the prevalence of skepticism was alarming, the church both established and dissenting, had lapsed into a state of lifeless formalism, the masses of the people had sunk into incredible vice and brutality. It was at this time that John Wesley was, we believe, elected by God to found the church which bears his honored name. He, seeing the need of a deeper spiritual life, joined with a few others and held meetings for their mutual, moral improvement. They soon manifested increased religious zeal, visited the prisons, taught the poor, etc. They were subjected to bitter persecutions as their numbers increased and often their lives were in danger, but they persevered and thus laid the foundation of the Methodist church, which has so widely extended, that not less than twenty-five millions of people are called by the name of Methodist, so we may truly say, God has been with us. Perhaps a few facts relating to the history of Methodism in our own vicinity may prove interesting to some at least.

To whom we owe the introduction of Methodism into Emily township is not very easily or accurately ascertained, but it was, as in many other places, by a pious layman. Inquiries lead to the conclusion that Mr. Thomas Mitchell, a class leader in Ireland, settled in Emily in 1820, and finding no place of meeting, commenced to hold prayer meetings and exhorted in his own house and that of his son-in-law, Mr. F. Henderson, on the middle road, second concession of Emily, a Methodist minister found his way in. Rev. Geo. Farr is recollected by some of the early settlers to have preached in Emily. He was on the Smith Creek cricuit in 1820 in which Emily then formed part. Messrs. Blackstock and Wolencroft, local preachers at that time, one from Cavan and the other from the township of Hamilton, sometimes took a tour through the country, preaching as opportunity offered in 1822-23.

The first house in Omemee was built in 1820 by S. Cottingham and James Laidley a few feet from the south-west corner of the present church. Morris Cottingham next built his house of some size a little west of it, in which he opened the first store and in which the Rev. G. Bissell, preacher on the Smith Creek cricuit in 1825 and 26, preached several times.

During the year of 1825 the first church in Emily was built on the corner of F. Henderson's farm. The carpenter work was done by Mr. I. Switzer, for which he was paid $12.00.

Rev. J. Norris succeeded R. Bamford and the name was again changed to Cavan Circuit. In 1828 Hamilton Bigger, teacher at Rice Lake, and local preacher, was sent to the Cavan circuit. These were followed by Rev. C. Vandusen and his assistant, Rev. W. Young. Rev. C. Vandusen was laid up part of this time owing to an accident he met with coming down Col. Davidson's hill to the east of the village. His horse fell, breaking his leg. He was assisted on by two men and rode to the nearest house, and while waiting for Dr. Vint, the only physician to be had, he preached to the people collected there. The superintendent lived at Rice Lake. He had to follow a blaze through the woods on the trees. There was then but on house in Lindsay. Father Purdy and the minister followed the blaze six miles further to Payne's shanty in Mariposa. Rev. W. Young received for his year's labor $32 and 23 pair of socks. During this year a great revival occurred in Emily at Henderson's Corners. 150 were converted. Prayer and praise could be heard in many directions on a summer evening. Regular ministers were appointed from this time on.

In 1836 the frame of the church was raised and in 1840 was opened for public worship. The parsonage was commenced in 1854, was finished and occupied in 1855. In 1860 churches were built at Bethel and Lebanon appointments.

When we contrast our privileges of to-day with the past we may ask ourselves ,are we making the best of these privileges. The pledge of our society, strongly emphahises "loyalty to our church," but it is not a mere matter of sentiment. It must be measured by our life. Our loyalty should be seen by faithful attendance at the service of the church. To every man his work, it is the working church that wins. We should pray fervently for the welfare of the church that Christian peace may abound and that the power of the Gospel may manifest in the salvation of many souls.

What are you paying for Laundry Soap?

There is nothing cheaper than the big bar of N.P. at 25 cents. If you buy more expensive soaps you probably get more frills on the wrapper, but you certainly do not get any better soap. One of those big, hard, bars of N.P. cut into four gives you four bars worth 10c each. It is best in quality, best in price, — just as it has been for over forty years.

COAL CUT SHOWS BUSINESS REVIVAL.

WASHINGTON, May 20. —Bituminous coal production now has jumped to more than 7,000,000 tons weekly, indicating that factory wheels are beginning to turn faster and that the country is well started on the long pull out of the business depression. Increasing coal production and consumption means less employment, larger production of necessities and lower prices.

"The coal production reports of the Interior Department constiute one of the nation's best business barometers,' said George H. Cushing, managing director of the National Wholesale Coal Association, here to-day.

"By July, bituminous production will have reached the stage of 9,500,000 tons weekly. This means employment of from 150,000 to 175,000 more miners.

"When miners go to work, closed factories start to re-open and unemployment decreases.

"There is every reason to believe that a steady increase in coal buying is under way. The slump seems to be over.

"Householders are buying anthracite coal at a rate seldom equalled at this time of the year. During the first week of May, the operators sold their entire output in the same week in which it was mined."

BIG FUR THEFT.

Steeplejack Robbers Make $100,000 Haul.

NEW YORK, May 21.—"Steeplejack" robbers made away with $100,000 worth of furs from the Vogel White & Co. lofts in Thirty-sixth street.

Two men, working most of the night, lowered the furs from the eleventh story of the loft building and took their spoils out through another building while a janitor held the door open for them.

The men raised themselves and lowered the furs by means of pulleys and a 300-foot rope. Part of the time they clung to window ledges and once they were compelled to cross a court bridged only by a narrow plank.

WHY W. J. HAMPTON RECOMMENDS DODD'S KIDNEY PILLS

Manitoba Man Says that the Pain is Nearly al gone and that Dodd's Kidney Pills Worked Wonders for Him.

NEWDALE, Man., May 20th. —(Special.)—That even the most chronic case of kidney disease and rheumatism can be benefitted by teh use of Dodd's Kidney Pills is the belief of Mr. W. J. Hampton, a well known resident here.

"Dodd's Kidney Pills certainly worked wonders for me," Mr.Hampton says. "My kidneys were so bad at times that I could not work and I was also a sufferer from rheumatism. Mine was a chronic case of 30 years' standing. Now the pain is nearly all gone and I recommend Dodd's Kidney Pills to all sufferers from kidney trouble."

Rheumatism is one of the effects of kidney trouble. The weakened kidneys fail to strain the uric acid out of the blood and rehumatism follows.

Ask your neighbors if Dodd's Kidney Pills are not the best remedy for weak or diseased kidneys.

"DRYS" TIGHTEN HOLD.

NEW YORK, May 21.—The "drys" have still furthered tightened their stranglehold upon the United States. Highly aromatic jags, annexed by thirsty ones with an appetite for perfumery and toilet preparations, will be an impossibility from now on. Announcement made in future be compelled to use a new denoturent, which makes perfume impossible as a beverage, has been the cause.

STONEY LAKE NEWS

STONEY LAKE, May 21. — Stoney Lake is putting on her summer dress, and looks more beautiful than ever. Every shade of green, from the faint colour of the little sapling to the dark (almost black) pines, which stand out like silent sentinels. Last October yellow, red and brown prevailed, and the lake was wonderful beyond description; but now, like a debutante in a new gown, nature is ready to receive the holidaymakers who are thronging there, early as it is.

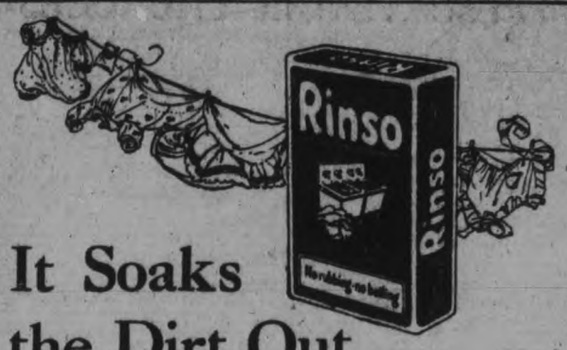
The Eakins Cottage, near Mount Julian is open, and Mrs. Oxley, Miss Eakins, and Mr. Herbert Eakins are there, having returned from Jamaica, where they spent the winter.

Mr. and Mrs. K. G. Lech, of Peterborough, are at Kenmore for the season.

Mr. T. H. G. Denne, of Peterborough, is occupying Denneholm.

Mrs. Laurence Graham and party are at Fiji for the summer.

The Gilbert cottage on Horse Shoe Island, is open, and also Mr. Joseph Yelland's summer home, Falls View. Mr. Yelland is doing some building.



It Soaks the Dirt Out

Rinso—the new form of soap in granules—is so rich in cleansing power that it loosens the dirt as the clothes soak—dirt runs away in the rinsing. Start using Rinso the next time you do your washing.

See how just a little sousing up and down in the rich suds—and then thorough rinsing in either warm or cold water—will leave them sweet and clean, without the washboard or boiler.

For particularly dirty clothes, such as cuff edges, collar bands, it will be necessary to rub between the hands.

If you have a washing machine—

Soak the clothes overnight in the usual Rinso way. The cleansing suds loosen every bit of dirt. In the morning operate the machine for a few minutes and the clothes are perfectly clean, even the most soiled spots.

Peterboro Rebekah Lodge Shows Steady Increase in Membership

The members of the feminine branch of the Peterborough Oddfellows have been busy lately. The Golden Link Rebekah Lodge is very enterprising and is steadily increasing in membership and activity. On Wednesday, May 11th ,a Peterborough group, composed of the Assembly Wardens, Mrs. Bert Watt, Mrs. Jos. Crowe, Mrs. Wm. Hartley, Mrs. Percy Fuller and the Noble Grand, Mrs. H. Sisson, went to Oshawa, to institute a new Rebekah Lodge, then on to Whitby, where the Oddfellows were celebrating the 50th anniversary of their institution there, and the Rebekah Lodge the 8th anniversary. Grand Sire Oliver of Ontario, and Grand Master Robertson were present with between five and six hundred men and women members of the society, in celebration of the event. A big parade headed by the band was followed by a banquet, with a birthday cake for the men, adorned with fifty candles, and one for the women with eight.

On Tuesday last, May 17th, a large gathering of the Rebekahs took place, at which the degree staff of Dorcas Rebekahs from Havelock, with the district superintendent of Lindsay, Mrs. F. Brown, and officers, were present. A presentation of jewels was made to Mrs. Frank Merritt and Mrs. Jos. Henderson of Peterborough, followed by a banquet in the Oddfellows' Hall, with about 250 in attendance. The Noble Grand, Mrs. H. Sisson, occupied the chair, and appropriate speeches were made by Mrs. F. Brown, of Lnidsay, and by the Assembly Warden of Peterborough, Mrs. Bert Watt. A very enjoyable evening was spent in music and dancing.

The Peterboro Council of Women

The local Council of Women, at their last meeting, appointed a committee of three ladies to investigate and make a report on the curfew law. There may be such a by-law in the city's regulations, but if so, it is not too rigidly enforced. Children of the tenderest years may be encountered at almost any hour of the night on the streets and by-ways of the city, very often unaccompanied by an older person. There is a recent case on record of two small mites being met with in the wee hours of the morning, going home from a "party." They throng the movies for the evening performances, and some little boys and girls of lesson and story-book ages are far too well acquainted with the cinema heroes and heroines and even with the various actors in cheap melodramas which sometimes visit the city. It is a very easy matter for a child to gain admission to a movie or show, unaccompanied by parent or guardian, although there is supposed to be a law aaginst this practice. He or she simply asks some good-natured looking elder to buy a ticket, the buyer's responsibility ending with the entrance of the child through the swinging doors. One especially soft-hearted individual was once made the recipient of the grimy nickels and coppers of nearly a dozen little youngsters, who wanted to see a performance really unfitted for their tender years. The children, who are habitual hangers-on at the theatres ,and there are many of them, soon become apt in recognizing the man or woman who will not refuse to oblige them in this way, and there are boys and girls of extreme youth in this city by the dozens who make a regular business of attending two or three movie shows a week, no doubt to the very detriment of their school studies and eyesight, and with no noticeable improvement to their morals or manners.

SUMMER STREET CARS OUT ON THE HOLIDAY

The "open air" street cars, so loved by the children whose fathers haven't to worry over the traffic regulations, and the price of "gas," will make their first appearance of the season on the holiday. In other words when houses were plentiful and cars were scarce, reversing the present order, and a man's standing in the community was often guaged by the size and the appearance of his dwelling, and not of his garage, the round trip rides had a greater appeal than they exist to-day. For many, however, they have not lost their attraction and the summer nights with a cool refreshing breeze following a warm day, such as yesterday, will bring the old time patronage back to the street cars that offer an hour's ride just before the children's bedtime. Some day, perhaps Peterboro's streetrailway will includeextended runs across country skirting fields and woods that afford one of the main pleasures of motoring. The electrification of railways by the storage battery method, as recently demonstrated between Trenton and Belleville, may be applied to the line between Peterboro and Lakefield sooner than is now expected; until then, however, the "open air" street cars must suffice for those whose moderate means and earnings are required for the necessities of their families precluding the purchase of a car like the Jones's.

"Retail Prices Down" —Barries, Ltd.

From May, 1920, records show prices not only stopped going up, but they began coming down.

Wholesale prices are down from 30 per cent. to 50 per cent., according to the various commodities used in the index by the Bureau of Labour, Dunn's and Bradstreet's.

Although retail prices were never as high in proportion as wholesale prices, they, too, are down somewhere around 30 per cent. on most things, and in many cases more than half.

Most economists agree that we will not be back entirely for some time to pre-war prices, and it seems fair to assume that prices to-day are nearing a stable level. In fact, in some lines that "slumped" too quickly, prices are stiffening and advances are being made on account of scarcity—notably in this, the case in many lines of Furs. All the recent Auction Fur Sales, in New York, Montreal, St. Louis and London, England, show advances from 10 per cent. to 50 per cent., and in one case 80 per cent. advance.

Never for a moment do we let up our determination to hold prices down to a minimum. Every day we refuse to buy merchandise where prices still seem to be held too high. With every new purchase of goods at lower rates, our retail prices have gone down to the new bases, the whole store being on the new replacement basis every week.

With our regular stocks of Furs and Ladies' Wear on the new low basis of prices, we would suggest the saving in many lines by purchasing now—saving which we cannot, in the nature of things, continue to give, because of rising values for raw materials, especially in Furs and some Silks.

We are striving to make this Store a real service to this community, as we very well know the public ever distinguishes between the true and the false—the real value of a service offered through a careful scrutiny of the markets, the present value of cash in its buying power and the correct judgment of qualities based on long experience.

We will not let any one pay us a dollar for which we will not give them a dollar's value.

DISTRICT DRUGGISTS MET IN PORT HOPE

CHANGES IN PATENT MEDICINE ACT EXPLAINED.

A meeting of the druggists of Central Ontario was held in Port Hope on Wednesday of this week. Mr. George Gibard of Toronto, read a very instructive paper on Patent Medicine and Narcotics Acts, pointing out to the druggists the numerous changes that have recently been made in this legislation. It was brought to the attention of the druggists that in some localities the doctors are dispensing their own prescriptions and although there might be some necessity for this in rural communities, wherever there was a well equipped drug store the interests of the general public would be better served by leaving that part of the profession to qualified druggists

RHEUMATISM

Rheumatism is produced by the accumulation of Uric Acid in the blood, and this poisonous substance attacks and inflames the membrane covering the joints and separating the muscles, thus producing severe pains. If the waste products of the human system are not properly carried off, Uric Acid forms and is deposited in the joints and between the different layers of muscles. DR. HENDERSON'S HERB TABLETS will correct this by its action on the kidneys and removing the Uric Acid from the blood. Try them and watch the results. If they fail your money will be refunded.

Dr. Henderson's Herb Tablets are put up three sizes—25c, 50c and $1 per box, at Warne's Drug Store, 351 George Street, Peterborough.

The Hair Spring

THE hairspring is the brain of the watch. It is the most delicate tension spring made. For use in the small sized watch, 84,000 springs are made from one pound of steel.

Waltham hairspring steel is drawn through diamond surfaces, and for the smaller watches, to a third of the thickness of a human hair.

The Breguet, or over-coil (named after its inventor, a famous old French watchmaker), is used on every Waltham watch. The most important part of the complete operation in making a hairspring is the forming and tempering of the Breguet over-coil.

At Waltham, instead of being formed or bent by hand as a separate operation, the entire completed hairspring is formed at one and the same time, after which it is hardened and tempered in form—the invention of John Logan, a genius who was a part of Waltham leadership in watchmaking. Waltham is the only watchmaker using this perfect method of making the Breguet hairspring.

Hand-made watch movements have hairsprings that are first formed in the flat, then hardened and tempered in the flat. Then the outer coil is bent to form the Breguet over-coil, which, if the flat spring were as hard as the Waltham, and properly tempered like the Waltham hairspring, it could not be bent to correct form, and would be liable to break in the attempt.

Waltham superiority is in original method, secret process, unvarying quality of every important part of the watch—a quality that cannot be equaled by any "hand" method of manufacture. That is why Waltham leads the world in standardized watchmaking, and why your watch selection should be a Waltham.

ENUMERATORS GIVEN THEIR INSTRUCTIONS

CENSUS DATA BACK IN OTTAWA BY END OF JUNE—CHILDREN BORN IN THAT MONTH NOT COUNTED.

OTTAWA, May 21.—"The census must be taken and all the returns be made to the office in Ottawa before the end of the month of June, or within a time to be fixed in special instructions to each commissioner." This sentence occurs in the special letter of instructions sent to each of the 235 census commissioners appointed to preside over the taking of the census in each constituency. Most precise instructions are given in this little pamphlet as to means of taking the census by the enumerators for each census sub-district, the exact information to be sought, and so on. It is to be the most elaborate census ever taken in Canada, as it includes a census of the wealth of Canada and of every living domestic animal of economic value, as well as of every person.

Midnight, May 31, is Deadline.

The decisive hour of reckoning is midnight on the night of May 31, or the moment when that day passes over into June 1, 1921. An infant born one hour before midnight would be included in the census figures, but one born a few minutes later would have to wait for the 1931 census before being included. A death just before midnight on May 31 would lessen the total population of Canada by one. If that death happened just after midnight, it would not be noticed by the enumerators, because the census is to show the exact number living at midnight on the day mentioned.

Every enumerator has secrecy enjoined upon him as to information obtained. He is expected to keep inviolate every bit of information given him, and the same secrecy is enjoined on the commissioners. The statistical department will not even give the income tax branch information as to earnings of various persons tabulated. Only the total figures resulting from the particular information given will be published or divulged, but heavy penalties are provided for every person giving false information or refusing to give information asked for.

35 Questions.

There are 35 questions to be answered by or for every person in Canada, and if he is a farmer, or a manufacturer or trader, or keeps hens, bees, pigs ,horses or cows in city or country, he will have to answer a host more. The most intimate information is asked, from the time, place of birth and language and religion of the parents, to all the details of his own life and his children's lives and his wife's. Therefore this insistence on secrecy is necessary, and also the penalties.

A list of the 44 principal languages spoken in Canada are given for the information of the enumerators, to help them understand answers and be correct. On farming statistics, if correct replies are given, the statistics department will be able to show exactly what is being done in every district, how much abandoned land there is, how much is tilled, and how much could be tilled, and how well the farmers did out of their respective acreages.

STOLE "FILLUMS."

Then Boys Rented Them At Bargain Rates.

CHICAGO, May 20.—The S. Film Company has gone "bloole."

The company placarded the city offering to rent the best six-reel thrillers from 25 cents to $1 a day. These usually cost $500 a day.

Leo Kardelasinski, 11 years old, the president of the company, was arrested.

He told how he did it: "Me and the kids used to visit a film joint and steal their celluloids. Then we'd rent 'em at professional rates."

President Leserman, of the film company from which the films were stolen, offered a job to President Kardelasinski, of the S. Film Company, but the latter turned it down.

BANQUET TO CHOIR.

Board of Managers Recognise Services of Choristers.

The choir referred to is that of Knox Presbyterian Church, and the banquet was tendred in the basement last Thursday evening.

For some time this event has been hanging fire, and was exploded on the afore-mentioned date with great eclat. The choir were invited by the Managing Board to receive of the goodness of their hearts, and ere proceeding to the banquet hall, the choristers were received with all due ceremony by the Board and ladies in the Ladies' Parlours, given cards for partners, and presented with a corsage bouquet or nosegay of sweet peas or rose, kindly donated by Mr. and Mrs. Herb. McCannan. The reception rooms wer prettily decorated, and an air of distinction was evident in the planning.

The Banquet.

The banquet hall was a place of joy—the tables bedecked and groaning with good things provided by the faithful and trusty lady workers of the church. A feast fit for the gods was easily and expeditiously consigned to the limbo of things past—and there might mention be made of several guests excelling along the sampling line, but space permitteth not. Suffice to say, "Everything was lovely."

Eulogies for the Choir.

Rev. Mr. MacKenzie was chairman, and fulfilled his duties wisely and well. The programme was interesting and lengthy, all the speakers and the artistes doing much to make it so. The representatives from the various organisations of the church spoke very kindly and encouragingly of the work of the choristers, under the able leadership of Mr. F. E. Walden, the organist—vieing with each other to tell how much appreciation was felt for the Sunday services of the choir in the leading of praise, and of the regularity of the members from week to week, the speakers introducing little anecdotes and overheard conversations anent the splendid work of the choir of Knox Church.

A Presentation.

An interesting event was staged early in the programme, namely, the presentation of a gold watch to Mr. J. F. Morrison, from the well-wishers of the congregation, for his untiring work in the church. This was in the nature of a surprise to the recipient Mr. Malcolm Clark and Mr. Robert Mulligan respectively reading the address and handing over the gift.

The address was couched in terms of respect and admiration for the quiet and unobtrusive workings of Mr. Morrison among the "strangers within our gates," among the sick and sorrowing and aged of the congregation, and of his great interest in all the activities of the church, and wishing him long life and happiness and comfort from a Divine hand in his heart-work in Knox congregation.

Mr. Morrison was taken aback, but after a short suspense, he thanked the donors in feeling terms for the mark of esteem and respect presented to him, saying he would value it very highly.

The Programme.

The programme was as follows:
The National Anthem.
Presentation to Mr. Morrison.
Address—Mr. Clark, for the Session.
Rading—Mrs. Roy Laing.
Address—Mr. J. W. Buyers, for the Board of Managers.
Jewsharp solo—Mr. Cruikshank.
Address—Mrs. Watt, for Missionary Society.
Song—Mr. W. McKinley, "Roamin' in the Gloamin'."
Address—Mr. Roy Laing, for the Sunday School.
Reading—Mrs. Roy Laing.
Reed organ and mouth organ duet—Rev. Mr. MacKenzie and Mr. H. McCannan, with encore.
Address—Mrs. (Dr.) J. M. McCulloch, for the Ladies' Aid.
Open meeting — Short addresses and replies by members of the choir.
Song—Mr. McKinley, "The Wee Hoose 'Mang the Heather."

Votes of Thanks.

Votes of thanks to the ladies, the donors of the flowers, and all who helped with the banquet were tendered with heartiness, and the benediction was pronounced at the conclusion of one of the finest, if not the best banquets in the history of Knox Presbyterian Church.

BABY'S OWN SOAP

BABY'S OWN SOAP

For Beauty—

Keep the skin clean, soft, and white, by regular use of Baby's Own Soap. Lather freely with tepid water—rinse well and rub gently with a soft towel:—the skin is improved—the complexion heightened—and the lingering fragrance of roses radiates an added charm (only natural flower extracts are used to give Baby's Own Soap its exquisite aroma). Contrast this treatment which hundreds of thousands of Canadian Mothers have used and are using so successfully on the delicate peach-blow skins of their darling babies—with that of covering up the pores with cosmetics, choking off the air, hiding defects which therefore stand confessed.

SPRING WORK IN THE GARDEN

(Experimental Farms Note.)

No doubt most gardens have been cleaned up by this time, even though nothing has yet been sown in many parts of Canada.

The covering is often left on roses too long in the spring with the result that a disease of the stem sets in and the plants are badly injured. It is desirable to get the stems of roses dry as soon as possible; hence, even if the covering is not removed altogether it should, at least, be loosened up so that air will get through, and in our experience it is better to uncover very early rather than to leave it until late.

Among the first seeds to sow in the garden are those of the sweet pea, the sooner they are sown now the better, many having planted them this year early in April. The object of planting early is to ensure the roots getting down into the cooler subsoil before the hot weather sets it, as the sweet pea needs a cool soil for best results. Instead of sowing in a trench as is often recommended, sow seed on the level from one to two inches deep and firm the soil so that seed will get sufficient moisture.

Among other hardy plants, the seed of which can be sown very early in the open are Sweet Alyssum, Candytuft, Cosmos, Summer Cypress, Lupine, Zinnia, Snapdragon, Poppy, Phlox Drummondii, Lobelia, Gaillardia, Forget-Me-Not, Pansy, and Cornflower.

The mistake is often made of sowing flower seeds deely. None of the above seeds should be sown more than hanf an inch deep, and for most of them one-quarter inch is often too much. If seed is sown too deeply the young shoots will not reach the surface, and the seedsman is often unjustly blamed.

Although the above mentioned plants are among the hardiest, it will be time almost immediately to sow any other seeds as danger of frost after the seedlings are up will soon be over and the ground will have warmed up soon. Warm soil is just as important for some seeds as prevention of injury from frost, as certain seeds will not germinate in cold soil and if it is moist they will rot instead.

There is often a temptation to put plants which have been growing in the house outside as soon as there are a few fine, warm days. While it will not hurt to set the pots out on such days, if they are taken in at night, the plants should not be set in the open ground until the last week of May or early in June. Too often plants which have been nursed all winter are killed or badly injured by spring frosts outside. The geranium is a very popular flower, and too often considerable money is spent for plants for a bed only to have them badly injured, if not destroyed, by a hard frost. In most parts of Canada the last week of May or even the first week of June is the best time to set out bedding plants that are liable to be injured by frost.

WHEN BABY IS SICK

When the baby is sick—when he is cross and peevish; cries a great deal and is a constant worry to the mother—he needs Baby's Own Tablets. The Tablets are an ideal medicine for little ones. They are a gentle but thorough laxative which regulate the bowels, sweeten the stomach, banish constipation and indigestion, break up colds and simple fevers and make teething easy. Concerning them Mrs. Philippe Payen, St. Flavien, Que., writes: "Baby's Own Tablets have been a wonderful help to me in the case of my baby and I can strongly recommend them to other mothers." The Tablets are sold by medicine dealers or by mail at 25 cents a box from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

DR. WALLACE ARRIVES

Dr. O. C. S. Walace arrived in the city at noon to-da yon his way from the Southern States and will preach the 75th anniversary sermons at the Murray street Baptist church tomorrow. Mrs. Wallace accompanies her husband.

LONDON IS TO HAVE THE MIDNIGHT FROLIC.

"Liberty Is Dead in America," Says F. Ziegfeld, Jr., Lamenting Prohibition Restrictions.

NEW YORK, May 21. — London, instead of New York, will have the Ziegfeld Midnight Frolic hereafter, according to an announcement made by Florenz Ziegfeld, Jr. Mr. Ziegfeld, who announced on Tuesday that he was about to close the New Amsterdam roof because of the encroachments of prohibition, said that he had arranged with Gilbert Miller for the London presentation of the midnight production in the near future.

In a statement Mr. Ziegfeld repeated and amplified his reasons for closing the roof.

"The closing of the Midnigh Frolic is symbolic of the fact that the most prized possession of America—liberty—is dead," said the producer. "Patriotism is at a low ebb when Americans returning from abroad look at the Statue of Liberty and laugh out loud. I am quitting for a principle, and that principle is more far-reaching than most people now see."

Work is to be begun immediately on the making over of the roof into a regular playhouse, which will be operated by the Messrs. Ziegfeld, Erlanger and Dillingham. The final midnight performance on the roof is scheduled for next week, and arrangements are now under way for a gala performance which will be in the nature of a farewell to Broadway night life.

AVERAGE METHODIST PREACHER GETS $1.154

CHICAGO, May 21.—The average salary the Methodist Episcopal Church in the U. S. pays its ministers is $1,154, according to a statement made by Joseph B. Hingeley, Corresponding Secretary, at the annual meeting of the Board of Conference Claimants of the church. Three years ago the average salary was $869, he said.

"THIS is my recommendation, Sir"

"NOT so very long ago I was in the same ill health as yourself. Long and busy hours, the responsibility of filling drug prescriptions and other duties of the day's work proved a strain. I took a couple of boxes of Milburn's Heart & Nerve Pills and can honestly thank them for my present splendid condition.

This little incident from everyday life fits your case in one way or another. In these days of strenuous living it is only natural for the heart to get below normal, thus affecting the nervous system.

Many people ignore the symptoms of heart and nerve trouble. Every day people drop dead, simply because of ignoring them. You cannot afford to do this. Ask yourself, "Have I any of the following complaints?"

Dizziness, Headaches, Palpitation, Breath Shortness, Brain Fag, Loss of Flesh, Depression, Sleeplessness, Anaemia, Tobacco Heart, Loss of Appetite

These are some of the sensations which are experienced. They are a warning of vital importance. If you would be well and strong, just ask your druggist to-day for a box of Milburn's Heart & Nerve Pills.

YOU WILL BE SIMPLY ASTONISHED at the fast recovery you will make on taking them. Remember, they have been on the market for over 25 years, and you are using a preparation recommended by prominent people the country over.

All busy druggists sell Milburn's Heart & Nerve Pills at 50c. a box, or they will be mailed direct on receipt of price by The T. Milburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ontario.

QUEER DOINGS

NEW YORK.—The New York Athletic Club will vote soon on a resolution forbidding women guests to smoke anywhere on the club's property.

NEW YORK.—Elias Rosenberg, arrested for peddling without a license, appeared in court wearing a Knights of Columbus button. After a "conference" with some Irish cops, he left without it.

CHICAGO.—The ankle of Mrs. Mary E. Underwood was her husband's pride. But when he lifted her skirts to show the shapely ankles to friends Mary called a halt and sued for divorce.

GRAND JUNCTION, Col.—Because Mrs. J. L. Cockerill requires special shoes, she and her husband drove her from Eureka, Nev., one thousand miles, to have a local shoemaker fit her. The trip and shoes will cost about $250.

MARION, O.—Things haven't been going right since Warren G. Harding left for Washington. For instance, each of the four faces of the town clock has been showing different time.

WICHITA, Kas.—Myra Noble was transferred from custody of her foster parents to the care of her grandmother. She told Detention Home Matron Mrs. Mary Raymond that she took her whiskey straight.

THE SATURDAY COLUMN

(By QUINTUS)

The season is approaching when those contemplating a sea-trip will take it. The greatest terror of the sea is sea-sickness, and notwithstanding the learned treatises of physicians and the unlearned cure-alls of the laity, we may venture to say from our experience that sea-sickness is due to a disturbance of the stomach brought on and caused by the very same things that cause a similar condition on land. Whirling about in a dance produces the same effect as a storm at sea, and if we were enclosed in a stuffy atmosphere of a room closed up against a storm we should continue to be sick just as people continued to be sick at sea. With some people swinging produces "sea-sickness," first giddiness and then violent nausea. The remedy therefore ies in accustoming ourselves to these conditions which produce sickness of the stomach on land and we may rest assured that the sea will then have no terrors for us on that score. The writer adopted the plan of going out in a small boat before going to his ship and he found that the swaying motion of a canoe or skiff in a bit of a blow more than prepared him for the long, slow roll or pitch of a liner. In fact to his surprise and to the surprise of others in a stormy voyage of sixteen days he did not miss a meal or suffer the least inconvenience of the stomach. This was a great change. It is wise, of course, to be in at least fair physical condition but that alone will not save anybody. Time and tijme again I have seen people who looked as healthy as fresh peaches, go all to the bad at the first sign of a swaying ship. Get accustomed to the motion before you go aboard and at sea a storm will rather whet your appetite than otherwise. A good smashing, rip-roaring storm at sea is a magnificent thing if you are well and not afraid of being ill, but otherwise the less said about it the better. To go about when few are able to do so, and the majority are hugging the lounge-rooms or more likely their cabins, is a joy in itself. And as storms usually blow for several days the pleasure comes pretty nearly to being a necessity as well. The fumes of cooking and what s known as the smell of the ship never occur to the passenger who is not ill but to the sea-sick there is no escape and Jonah's whale would be a welcome relief. To those who have not yet taken their first voyage, it may be well to say that what one can see at sea is limited by the circle o' the horizon and that is not very far away as we all know. As a rule the sea is not beautiful since it reflects the colors of the sky and a sunrise or sunset at sea is nothing to brag about except in tropical latitudes and there the heat would make most people long for Hades as a relief. Perhaps you will see a whale pursued by a thrasher, or snub-nosed shark of gigantic size and if so you will see the thrasher jump thirty feet in the air and come down on the back of the whale for that is his method of at ack. You say why doesn't the foolish whale swim? Because the whale has probably been caught napping on the surface of the sea, and is unable to do so. After a series of gigantic leaps and tremendous smashes, the combat ends usually with the death of the whale. But whether you see that incident or not you will see the schools of porpoises which are scarcely more interesting than a run of suckers or herring; although, o' course, they average possibly a hundred pounds in weight. Before they did away with sails altogether the whistle of the boatswain in the wind of an approaching storm and in the middle of a dark and forbidding night had something uncanny about it. But nowadays, a big liner is merely a moving hotel. The big ships are very slightly affected by the waves and are a very refuge in time of trouble for those with a weak stomach and a bit of fear for the stormy sea. The smaller vessels of ten to fifteen thousand tons are just as comfortable and if not quite so perfectly steady in all weathers, are nevertheless not so frequented by the vulgar rich and the gambler and his confederates. While the cold of winter does not appear so savagely cold at sea the summer season is often undeniably hot. When you strike the gulf stream which is at from eighty degrees up in the North Atlattic, the joys of the ocean consist in summer time in sipping ices. And that puts me in mind. In France, Italy and England, thirty years ago, ice was unknown, but now it is in general use.

To be shut up in a hip for a week is not so bad but over that it is not pleasant and makes the sight of land delightful. Since people cannot get away from each other on board ship there will be found the contrasts of sneering gossip and ardent love. Keep away from both at sea.

No one ever realizes the vastness of the ocean at any rate, in the same way that one gets an idea of the extent of a country, probably because of the continued sameness and monotony of the surroundings at sea. There is one thing, however, that will be missed by all but the close observers, and that is what is known in poetry as the "heaving of the sea." It is neither waves nor tide but the swell of the whole body of fluid which has always and at all times, even when it appears quite calm, a great slow, peaceful heaving swell extending over vast areas and therefore not likely to be noticed except by the close observer. It is the greatest "wonder of the sea."

The next greatest wonder of the sea is the professional social reformer, the woman who is going to a convention and will help to make laws that will put the laws of God and the plan of Christianity in the shade as also-rans. Incidentally, her own social standing in the world is one of her chief concerns, but, of course, she does not let that animal out of the bag.

When you get old enough to die you will have reached the conclusion that it is not greed but self-will that is th master-passion of the human race. And thus will Scripture be fulfilled again. The will-to-boss borrowed from the German is the chief desire of all who think other people not so good as they. That is if they do any thinking at all. They propose to lead the world by a string attached to the nose and though so good themselves, they are, of all people, the most afraid of death. In their hearts they are afraid that God made a mess of things at creation. But there are plenty of nice, sensible people like yourself, and they will soon restore your faith in humanity. That is, until you begin to find how low your purse is getting and here let me say that if you would see a country and its people go to some nice little inn in the country where prices are what you are accustomed to at home and make that your headquarters for all your explorations. And remember that comparisons are odious, even to ourselves. Canada has nothing to learn in the way of beauty from any any country but Canadians have much to learn. We are very youthful, self-confident and callow in many ways and yet strange to say, will actually admit that "things are in bad shape" with us which is true. And, in conclusion, let us remember that we are nor responsible for the creation of man and that if we have not faith enough in God to leave the world (let alone the universe) in His care then we are hopeless, vain and irremediably stupid.

What has made these names household words?

Daily Newspaper Advertising.

Mr. P. C. Larkin, President of the Salada Tea Company, says he has used every kind of advertising. "I do believe," he adds, "that nothing has given me the results for money expended as has Daily Nepspaper Advertising."

Says the Shredded Wheat Company: "For intensive advertising the Daily Newspapers' supremacy is unchallenged. It has no superior."

LARIMIE HOLDS THE RANGE

By Frank H. SPEARMAN.

"I wouldn't fail you, Harry."

"It's well you didn't—champagne, Luke," he added, calling a solemn faced bartender that wore a forehead shade.

"No champagne for me, Harry," protested Laramie.

"What are you going to have?" asked the mild voiced bartender, perfunctorily.

Laramie tilted his hat brim: "Why, he answered, after everybody had contributed advice, "if I've got to take something on this little boy, a little whisky, I suppose, Luke."

"No poison served here tonight, Jim," growled Sawdy, throwing his bloodshot eyes on Laramie.

"I don't want any, anyway, Henry," was the unmoved retort.

Luke, wrapping the cork of the champagne bottle under his long fingers, hesitated. Tenison, looking with his heavily lidded eyes, did not waver. "You'll drink what I tell you tonight," he maintained coldly. "Open it, Luke."

Laramie stood sidewise before the bar, one foot on the rail, his elbow resting on the bar, and, with his head turned, he was looking at Tenison, who stood directly opposite him behind the bar. Laramie submitted to the dictation without protest. "A man will try anything once," was his only comment.

As he uttered the words he felt a point pressed tightly against his right side and what was of greater import heard the familiar click of a gun hammer.

It was too late to look around; too late to make the slightest move. All that Laramie could get out of the situation without moving he read motionless in Tenison's eyes for Tenison was now looking straight at the assailant and with a frozen expression that told Laramie of his peril. The next instant Laramie heard rough words:

"Turn around here Jim."

They told him all he needed to know for in them he recognized the voice. In the instant between hearing the words and obeying a singular change took place in the Falling Wall ranchman's eyes. Looking over at Tenison his eyes had been keen and clear. Slowly and with a faint smile he turned his head the other way. When his eyes met those of Tom Stone who confronted him pressing the muzzle of a cocked Colt's forty-five gun against his stomach they were left soft and glazed. Laramie had changed in an instant from a man that had not tasted liquor to a man half tipsy.

It was a feint but a feint made with an accurate understanding of a dangerous enemy.

There was not a chance of escape. Laramie's left arm was resting on the bar. Under the overhang Stone as he faced Laramie pressed the gun with his right arm into Laramie's stomach. For Laramie to attempt to knock it away with his own right hand would be to take an almost fatal chance; while for any friend of his to touch Stone or shoot him would mean certain death to Laramie. Feeling that he had his victim dead to rights Stone baited him:

"Laramie" he began fixing his eyes on those of his victim "there's some men's lived in this country too long."

The words carried the irritable nasal tone familiar to Stone's acquaintances. Laramie's eyes merely brightened a little with the effort to reply: "Tom" he declared with just enough of hesitation to play the game "that's the first thing my wife said yes'day morning."

Stone stared: "When" he demanded with a drunken oath "did you get married?"

"Put up your gun. I'll tell you about it."

Laramie smiled: "Sure Tom but there's plenty of time; put down the hammer." Stone without moving his gun did silently lower the hammer. Laramie counted one. Then he began to describe his trick bride. Stone cut him off. He cocked his tun again: "Show me the picture" he snarled.

Tenison took the chance of leaning impressively across the bar. He pointed a long finger at Stone. "Tom" he said with measured emphasis, no man can pull a gun here tonight and get away with it. That'll be enough."

Stone scowled. "Harry, this scout is through; nobody wants him any longer in this country," he said.

"Take your quarrel somewhere else tonight—this is my celebration—do you get me, Tom?"

Under the implied threat of the determined gambler the hammer of Stone's gun came down. "I c'n get along with any man that'll do what's right," asserted Stone, trying to keep his head clear "Laramie won't."

"Why, Tom!" expostulated Laramie, reproachfully.

The revolver clicked; the hammer was up again.

There was probably fifty men in the room. As if by instinct each of them already knew by what a slender thread one man's life hung. Hawk, the quickest and surest of Laramie's friends, stood ten paces away, at the upper end of the bar, but the silence was such that he could he hear every deliberate word. Glasses, half-emptied, had been set noiselessly down; discussions had ceased; every ear strained. A few men tiptoed out into the office. Others that tried to pass through the swinging front door screen into the street found a crowd already peering intently in through the open baize.

"Tom," resumed Laramie, in measured seriousness, "it's not you 'n' me can't get on—it's men here has made trouble 'tween you and me, Tom. You 'n' me rode this range when we didn't have but one blanket atween us—didn't we, Tom?" he demanded in loud tones.

Stone, in drunken irresolution, uncocked his gun but held it steady. "That's all right, Laramie," he growled.

"Did we quarrel then?" demanded Laramie boisterously. "I'm asking you, Tom, did you 'n' me quarrel then?"

"When a man can't turn in with Harry Van Horn an' Barb Doubleday," grumbled Stone, "it's time for him to quit this country." His revolver clicked again; the hammer went up.

Laramie regarded him with sobering amazement. "Who told you I wouldn't turn in with Barb Doubleday?" he exclaimed loudly. "Who told you that?"

"Harry Van Horn told me."

Tenison tried to interpose. "You shut up, Tenison," was the answering growl from Stone. But Tenison stuck to it till the hammer came down. It was only for a moment—the next moment a click as the gun was cocked warned Tenison to lay off.

"Why," demanded Laramie, more cool-headed than his maudlin words implied, and still fighting for a chance, "didn't Harry Van Horn tell me to turn in with a friend? Why didn't he tell me to turn in with you, Tom Stone—with a man I've rode and bunked with? Why did they make you their scapegoat, Tom? You've got me all right; I know that Tom. But what about you? You can't get ten feet. Abe Hawk's right back of you, waiting for you, now. They'd dump us into the same hole, Tom. You don't want to quit yet. Let's talk it over."

The half maudlin words sounded so reasonable they won a brief reprieve from Stone.

"Don't uncock your gun till I'm through, Tom," urged Laramie. "I don't want to take any advantage at all of an old pardner. Keep it cocked, but listen.

"I don't want to talk with Van Horn," Laramie went on, "not even with Barb Doubleday, fine man as he might be—I ain't a-sayin', Tom. But I don't want to talk to him. I want to talk to you. Just you and me, Tom—talkin' it over together. Don't be goat for nobody, Tom. What?"

The drunken foreman's brow contracted in irresolute perplexity. "What do you say?" urged Laramie. Vacillating, Stone let down the hammer to talk it over. It went up again almost instantly. There may in that last brief instant have flashed across his muddled consciousness a realization of his fatal mistake; perhaps he saw in the wicked flash of Laramie's glazed eye a warning of blunder.

Knowing that mountain men carry only five cartridges in their revolvers, leaving the hammer for safety on an empty chamber, Laramie had parleyed with Stone only long enough to suit his purpose.

His right arm shot out at Stone's jaw. As his fist reached it, the gun against his stomach snapped viciously. But the hammer, already raised six times came down on the sixth and empty chamber. It was the chance Laramie had played for.

Stone sank like an ox. As he went down his head struck the footrail. He lay stunned.

A great wave of relief swept the room. Men drew long breaths. McAlpin, stooping in a flash, wrenched Stone's revolver from his hand and with a grin laid it on the bar. Laramie, watching Stone coldly, did not move. His left foot still rested on the rail, his arm on the bar. But, without taking his eyes off the prostrate man, he in some way saw the white faced bartender peering over in astonishment at the fallen foreman.

"It seems to take you a good while, Luke," protested Laramie mildly, "to open that bottle.

When the eating house at the Junction was closed Harry Tenison sent for Belle and offered her the position of housekeeper at the Mountain House. This Belle declined. She had long had in her head the idea of taking a place and serving meals on her own hook, as she expressed it. Her instinct for independence, always strong, had not only prevented her getting married but made her restive under orders. She was stubborn—her enemies called her abusive names and her best friends admitted that she was sometimes difficult. At Sleepy Cat she took a cottage in lower Main street She had a little furniture, and, having a little money saved and a little borrowed from McAlpin, Belle bought a few new pieces, including a folding bed secured at a bargain, and opened her doors for business. And whatever her faults of temperament, Belle could cook.

Kitchen's barn was headquarters for the small ranchers from the north and for the Falling Wall men, and McAlpin soon had a trade seeking Belle's place. The cottage itself faced the side street, but a little shop annex opened on main. In this and in the cottage dining room Belle served her meals. Very soon, however, she had McAlpin in trouble. It developed that she would not serve anybody she did not like, and as her fancy was capricious, she gave most of McAlpin's following the cold shoulder instead of the hot steak. He spent much time in the beginning hot-footing it, as Belle termed it, between the barn and the cottage trying to straighten things out. In the end he gave over and told Belle she could starve if she wanted to. Whereupon she said she did want to; and McAlpin, snatching off his baseball cap, as he did when greatly moved, and twirling it in his hand, asked for his money, whidch he did not get.

Yet one man among the hardy friends of the barn boss did find favor at the cottage, and he the last whom McAlpin would have picked for a likely favorite. This was Jim Laramie. Laramie became a regular customer of Belle's and his friends naturally followed him.

The closing out of her father's interests at the Junction was without regret for Kate, since it sent her up to where she wanted to be—at the ranch. For some time after establishing herself there she rarely came into Sleepy Cat. Then as the novelty wore off and small wants made themselves felt she rode oftener to town—mail and shopping and marketing soon established for her a regular round, and when she did ride into Sleepy Cat she nearly always saw Belle; sometimes she lunched with her. Belle was a stickler in her home for neatness, even though her experience in the cyclone might have been supposed to harden her to dust. Then, to some women is given one talent and to some another; to Belle it was given to make things taste good, and in this she stood alone among the cooks in Sleepy Cat.

More than this, Belle knew what was going on—she had the news. Little in the daily round of the town and its wide territory got by the modest scrim curtains of Belle's place; she became Kate's reporter. Men would say that this was the principal attraction for Kate, and that the cooking came second—not so The real reason Belle got the gossip of the country was because her customers were men. Kate was probably the only woman, certainly almost the only one, among her patrons. Belle explained this by saying that none of the rest of the ranchwomen would spend their money for lunch. The truth really was that Belle did not like women, anyway—Kate she tolerated.

It was the day after Tenison's big celebration that Kate rode into town for the mail, and after some shopping walked down to Belle's for lunch. Belle was at the butcher shop across the street, telephoning. She came in after a moment.

"It seems to me you spend a good deal of time with that butcher," said Kate, significantly.

"O, no, he's got a club foot. Has Harry Van Horn been shining up to you?"

Kate was taken aback, but she had been to blame for giving Belle an opening and could only enter a confused denial.

"The first serious symptom," said Belle, garrulously, "will be he'll have a headache; he'll ask for cold cloths on his forehead. When that works pretty well he'll tell you your hair is like his sister's, and some evening he'll ask you to take it down. He asked me one night to take mine down. I handed him my wig. Say! he was the most surprised man in Sleepy Cat. I've been trying for an hour to get that rascally milkman on the telephone—there's not a drop of cream in the house. Well, how are you stranger? Was Tom Stone home when you left?"

"After McAlpin picked up Stone's gun, Laramie told him to turn it over to Luke; and he told Luke not to give it back to Stone till this morning—but I guess they hid Stone last night." She wound up with an abusive fling at Doubleday's foreman. "What do you keep such a beastly critter around for?" she asked, looking at Kate for an answer.

Humiliated and sore at the recital, Kate thought it time to say something herself: "Why do you ask me a question like that?"

Belle arched her eyebrows belligerently. "Well, why shouldn't I?" she demanded. And bridling with further criticism of Stone, and by implication of those that employed him, she let fly again.

Kate tried to ignore her outburst. "You know perfectly well," she said firmly, "I have nothing to say about the ranch, or how it is run, or who runs it. And I don't care to listen to any comments on that subject."

"Then you needn't come here," retorted Belle flaming.

The two were standing at the cook stove where a steak already was on the broiler.

"While I am here," returned Kate with tart dignity, "please don't abuse me."

"I say what I please to anybody if it's right," exclaimed Belle rudely.

"You'll be ashamed of yourself when you call off," Kate returned, pointing to the broiler: "Please give me my piece of steak before it burns up," she added, with what sternness she could muster.

"It's not going to burn up," muttered Belle. Her face was fiery, but professionally sense prevailed and she rescued the steak with vigor—dipping it hot into a platter literally sprinkled with dices of butter and with pepper and salt.

"My conscience, Belle," exclaimed Kate, as Belle held the steak up between her two forks, "you'll bankrupt yourself. You don't expect me to eat all that."

Belle answered with an offended dignity of her own: "I expect Jim Laramie to eat the biggest part of it. And there he comes now!"

MACKENZIE RIVER OIL LIMITED

For years Geologists have reported the unmistakable indications of a great wealth of oil in the Mackenzie River basin. The Oil, according to geologists, is oozing from fissures in the cliffs, seeping through the ground, and standing in pools. Near Fort Norman the oil structure extends for 40 miles on one side and 60 miles on the other side of the river. The oil is reported to be the highest grade crude ever found in the world, testing 38 Gravity Baume, rich in light products. It is stated that it can be piped in a temperature 70 degrees below zero.

Just before the close of navigation, and too late for further development work in 1920, the Imperial Oil Company brought in a well estimated at from 1,500 to 2,000 barrels, at a depth of about 800 feet, within 45 miles of Fort Norman.

1921 OPERATIONS

In 1921 the first attempt on a large scale to develop the resources of the Mackenzie River oil field will be made. The Mackenzie River Oil Limited has acquired leases, under the old regulations, of 3,840 acres, or 6 square miles, in this rich field. With the opening of navigation it is intended to commence extensive drilling operations on this property. An expedition will also be fitted out for the purpose of securing additional oil leases from the Government.

ORGANIZATION AND EQUIPMENT

For the drilling operations, three complete rigs have been ordered, and should be on the ground about July 1st. Experienced drillers have been engaged to work under the direction of Mr. Frank H. Stover, one of Canada's best-known oil-drilling experts. From the locations already in evidence, and as oil is found at a depth of 800-1,000 feet, it is expected that each crew will bring in several wells during the season.

The exploration work will be personally directed by a man who knows the North Country thoroughly — Mr. Frank E. Davison — assisted by a competent geologist and engineer. Mr. Davison first went over this ground in 1898, and for over twenty years has been engaged in work in the Yukon and Alaska. In view of the probable wealth of the country and the experience of the men engaged, the expedition should acquire many more acres of valuable oil and mineral lands in 1921. Twenty or more trained men have been engaged for this development work by the Mackenzie River Oil Limited.

TRANSPORTATION AND SUPPLIES

The Company has made full provision for the carrying in of rigs and supplies. A transportation company operating boats on the waterways, and trucks, tractors and motor cars at the portage, will take in all the freight required for this Company's operations.

PEACE RIVER OIL HOLDINGS

Mackenzie River Oil Limited, in addition to the 3,840 acres at Fort Norman, have 10,000 acres of Oil leases in the Peace River District. Geologists claim that oil will be found at from 1,800 to 2,500 feet in these fields, so that some of the wells should soon reach the oil strata. In this case the Company's holdings will become extremely valuable.

OFFER

To finance the purchase of drilling rigs, supplies, cost of expedition and development work, the Company now offers the first One Hundred Thousand Treasury Shares at $5.00 per share (par value $10.00 per share, fully paid and non-assessable) and not subject to call. The entire proceeds of the sale of stock are to be used only in the development and exploration work outlined above.

These shares offer a speculation in oil that must appeal to business men.

It is a venture in what is known to be in a most promising field.

It is being supported by well-known men of means and business experience, who will carry on the Company's operations in a good business way.

This is a Canadian Company, the management and organization is sound. The work will be carried on by men who know oil drilling and know the country.

PROSPECTUS

A complete prospectus and further information will be mailed from the Head Office of the Company on request.

ANNUAL MEETING OF THE Y.W.C.A.

no accidents. Teas are held from time to time for the girls and members of the Board to promote general good feeling, and special affairs at Christmas and New Year's. Thanks was expressed to all who remembered the Y.W.C.A. at Christmas time. Some $500 was spent during the year in repairs and re-furnishings, which added greatly to the comfort and attractiveness of the Home. On the 12th of July last, about 200 visitors were served with dinner, with the generous help of the house girls. During the year, addresses were given by Mrs. Willowby Cummings and Dr. Cossley-Batt, which were very much enjoyed.

Report of the Board of Management.

This report, read by Mrs. Thos. Cruikshank, gave a review of the work of the past year, which was described as having been full of interest. The Green Room was renovated during the year, and a bequest of $506 received from th eestate of the late Mrs. Isabella Whyte. The convenors of the different committees who meet frequently to plan for the work have been busy throughout the year. Mrs. Duncan Drummond on the Industrial Work committee, Mrs. H. R. H. Kenner on the Educational and the committees on Social, Swimming Pool and the committee on Religious Work. Within the last two months three very attractive affairs, entailing an immense amount of planning and work, were held, the extravaganza, "Earth's Awakening," the Spring Fair, and the Gymnasium Closing. Hearty praise was given to the efforts of Miss Layton, Miss Brownscombe, Miss Pryce and Miss Thomson in this connection, and Mrs. Morrison, the house superintendent, was described as being second to none.

Acknowledgment was made of Mrs. Harvey's kind donation of a cup to the basketball league, Mrs. Barrie's gift of a skiff to the Campers' League, of the work of Miss Pryce and Miss Payne in the gymnasium and the swimming pool, and of the president of the Association, Mrs. Scott, who has been indefatigable in her efforts during the past year.

Report of the Industrial Extension Department.

This report, read by Miss J. Thomson, Industrial Secretary, recorded a great deal of progress along the lines of interesting the girls in the work of this department, hampered somewhat by the prevalence of unemployment in many of the factories. Once a week, meetings are held in the Bonner-Worth, Quaker Oats, Canadian General Electric Company, and Auburn Woollen Mills, and numbers of girls from these establishments have become interested in the series of basketball games played during the season in the Y.W.C.A. In November, a Recreation Committee was formed to plan recreation for the girls of the city, of which the Basketball League was an outcome which proved very popular, and in December an Old Country Club was formed. The secretary calls upon Old Country people, whose names are forwarded from port. During the year 151 names were forwarded and 69 calls made. The Campers' League, formed in the fall of 1919, met at regular intervals during the year, and thus kept the campers in touch with each other. This year they held a Spring Fair and realized $180. There has been a splendid spirit of co-operation shown among the clubs. In order to give a more definite idea of the number of girls reached by the Young Women's Christian Association, an estimate has been made from the records as follows: Teachers, 42; office girls, 113; store girls, 45; factory girls, 113; household workers, 17; other occupations, 308—making a total of 638 for the year 1920. On May 11th, a banquet was given in honor of the basketball teams, at which were present representatives from Cressman's, Turnbull's, Barrie's, the De Laval and the Colonial Weaving Co. About 90 were present at this very jolly evening.

Report of Physical Department.

The annual report of the Physical Department was read by Miss Edith W. Pryce, physical directress, showing a great deal of interest in this branch of the work by the different classes. Basketball was very popular, with a junior enrolment of 113, and senior 93—a total of 206, an average attendance of 161, number of classes held per week 11, and number of private lessons 27. The performance of "Earth's Awakening" was very successful, netting the sum of $95; the exercises in the closing of the gymnasium held in the Y.M.C.A. were well attended, and three very jolly parties were held during the year, a junior and senior Hallowe'en party and a Christmas party for the junior classes.

Report of Swimming Pool.

Miss Emma Carrell, the new instructor for the swimming classes, read the report, showing a total enrolment for the year of 267, with 60 juniors, 15 school girls, 111 in the night classes, 20 life-saving and 61 swimmers. The pool was re-opened on April 18th with an enthusiastic attendance. A specialty of club classes is being made this year, life saving classes have again been organized, and the enrolment for this year to date is as follows: Seniors 14, juniors 16, club classes 56, life-saving 15, and swimmers 30—a total of 131.

The adoption of the several reports was moved by Mrs. C. C. Abbott, who congratulated the several departments on their excellent showings, and seconded by Mrs. E. E. Harvey. Mrs. W. Roger, honorary president of the Board, spoke for a few minutes here, giving some interesting recollections of the first meeting of the Young Women's Christian Association in Peterborough, some 25 years ago.

During the evening, a fine musical programme was given by Mrs. Geo. H. King in vocal solos, accompanied by Mrs. N. D. Buchanan, and by Miss Agnes Logan in instrumental numbers.

CUT THIS OUT

OLD ENGLISH RECIPE FOR CATARRH, CATARRHAL DEAFNESS AND HEAD NOISES.

If you know of some one who is troubled with Catarrhal Deafness, head noises or ordinary catarrh cut out this formula and hand it to them and you may have been the means of saving some poor sufferer perhaps from total deafness. In England scientists for a long time past have recognized that catarrh is a constitutional disease and necessarily requires constitutional treatment.

Sprays, inhalers and nose douches are liable to irritate the delicate air passages and force the disease into the middle ear which frequently means total deafness, or else the disease may be driven down the air passages towards the lungs which is equally as dangerous. The following formula which is used extensively in the damp English climate is a constitutional treatment and should prove especially efficacious to sufferers here who live under more favorable climate conditions.

Secure from your druggist 1 ounce of Parmint (double strength). Take this home and add to it ¼ pint of hot water and a little granulated sugar; stir until dissolved. Take one tablespoonful four times a day. This will often bring quick relief from distressing head noises. Clogged nostrils should open, breathing become easy and hearing improve as the inflammation in the eustachian tubes is reduced. Parmint used in this way acts directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system and has a tonic action that helps to obtain the desired results. The preparation is easy to make, costs little and is pleasant to take. Every person who has catarrh or head noises or is hard of hearing should give this treatment a trial.

A WOMAN'S HEALTH NEEDS GREAT CARE

Every woman's health is dependent upon the condition of her blood. How many women suffer with headache, pain in the back, poor appetite, weak digestion; a constant feeling of weariness, palpitation of the heart, shortness of breath, pallor and nervousness? Of course all these symptoms may not be present—the more there are the worse the condition of the blood, and the more necessary that you should begin to enrich it without delay. Dr. Williams' Pink Pills are a splendid blood-building tonic. Every dose helps to make better blood which goes to every part of the body and brings new health to weak, despondent people. Dr. Williams' Pink Pills are valuable to all women but they are particularly useful to girls of school age who become pale, languid and nervous. There can be neither health nor beauty without red blood which gives brightness to the eyes and color to the cheeks and lips. Dr. Williams' Pink Pills build up the blood as is shown by the experience of Mrs. Jos. E. Veniotte, West Northfield, N.S., who says: "For several years I was in a bad state of health. I was pale and nervous, my appeite was poor, and I suffered from weakness, headache and a feeling of oppression. I got so nervous that I was afraid to stay in the house alone. All this time I was taking medicine, but it only did not help me, but I was growing weaker. Finally I decided to try Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, and after using six boxes I felt much better. I had a better appetite, slept better and felt stronger. However, I continued taking the pills for a couple of months longer and now I am feeling as well as ever I did. I give all the credit to Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, and hope that my experience may be of benefit to some other weak woman."

You can get Dr. Williams' Pink Pills through any dealer in medicine or by mail at 50 cents a box or six boxes for $2.50 from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

RUPTURE RELIEF

RETENTION NOT INFLUENCED BY AGE, SO REPORTS VISITING EXPERT.

Rupture is not a tear in the abdominal wall, as commonly supposed, but a stretching of a natural opening. J. Y. Egan, 1057 College street, Toronto, the long established Canadian Rupture Appliance Specialist, will visit Peterborough, Empress Hotel, Saturday and Sunday (all day and night), 2 days only, May 28 and 29.

The "Curatrus," the new surgical invention, as now used and prepared to order for men, women and children, not only retains rupture perfectly, affording immediate and complete comfort, but is intended to assist nature in her work in the shortest time known and at small cost. These new surgical appliances have received highest approval wherever shown, and are designed in accordance with the principles laid down by the world's text book authorities on this subject; producing results without harmful ready-made old-fashioned foreign trusses. Mr. Egan has testimonials from our own section for inspection. Free demonstration and examination of samples. Now is the time to make yourself safe and comfortable for your daily work. THIRD VICTIM OF BRANTFORD CAR'S 70-FOOT PLUNGE

HERBERT BYGRAVE DIED IN HOSPITAL THIS MORNING.

BRANTFORD, May 21.—(Canadian Press).—After all night exposure and a gallant fight in the hospital for a day, Herbert Bygrave passed away in Brantford General Hospital this morning, the third victim of the automobile accident near Burtch, the sum total of which was three lives. His medical advisor stated to-day that the eight-hour exposure was largely responsible for his death. It is now believed that the welded bumper broke on the bridge, fell in front of one of the wheels, and caused the swerve which forced the car into its death leap.

NEARLY CRAZY WITH ECZEMA

No rest day or night for those who are afflicted with that terrible skin disease, eczema, or as it is often called, salt rheum.

With its unbearable burning, itching and torturing, relief is gladly welcomed.

There is no remedy like Burdock Blood Bitters for giving relief to such sufferers; no remedy that has done, or can do more for those who are almost driven to distraction with the terrible torture.

Apply it externally and it takes out the stinging, itching and burning, and proomtes a healthy healing.

Take it internally and it gets at the source of the disease in the blood,—for eczema is a blood disease—and drives it out of the system.

Miss L. M. Boutilier, 89 Victoria Road, Halifax, N.S., writes:—"I have suffered for years from eczema. I could not rest day or night. I suffered great agony, and was nearly crazy with the itching and burning. I used all kinds of salves, but nothing seemed to help me. I saw Burdlock Blood Bitters advertised, and was advised to try a bottle. I found great relief, and I really cannot recommend it highly enough for what it has done for me."

Burdock Blood Bitters has been on the market for over forty years, and during that time has been manufactured only by The T. Milburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.

AT THE THEATERS

AT THE ALLEN.

"The Woman in His House", with an all-star cast, including Mildred Harris, will be the attraction at the Allen Theatre for an engagement of three days opening on Monday. This production is heralded as the sensation of the year, and is declared to be the best vehicle in which Mildred Harris has appeared. Included in the cast are Ramsey Wallace, who is her leading man; Thomas Holding, George Fisher, Gareth Hughes Winter Hall, Richard Hedrick, Catherine Van Buren and Bob Walker. The picture was produced at the Louis B. Mayer studio in Los Angeles under the direction of John Stahl, regarded as one of the most brilliant members of his profession in the motion picture world. The film was "shot" straight from the director's mind, Mr. Stahl having no continuity to guide him. The sub-titles were written and filled in after the scenes had been taken. The picture is based on an original story by Irene Reels. It was approximately six months in the making, the photography being the work of Pliny Goodfriend, who jumped into prominence among cameramen for his exceptional work in picturizing "Old Dad". "The Woman in His House" constitutes Mildred Harris' fifth release through Associated First National Pictures, Inc. "The Woman in His House," according to previous reports, is a powerful story of a materialistic husband, a love-hungry wife, a philosopher, and a child. The story opens on the rugged coast of Eastern Canada, and the scene then shifts to the metropolis of New York city. Neither time nor money, it is said, have been spared to make this lavish production ,and an unusual treat is promised to motion picture audiences who see it.

MARVEL REA MOST APPEALING IN "THE SIMP", NEW MERMAID.

Marvel Rea is seen as an appealing mission worker and is strikingly reminded of Edna May in "The Simp" latest of the two-reel Mermaid Comedies, starring Lloyd Hamilton, which comes to the Allen theatre, Monday.

This is the fourth Mermaid Comedy in which Miss Rea has appeared having been seen in "A Fresh Start" "Duck Inn" and "Nonsense." Her role in this last picture is straight comedy. In fact, that element is relied upon for the greater portion of the laughs, and critics who saw the picture at a special advance showing in New York, declare that in this one Hamilton actually makes comedy an art. The picture is unique in that there is not the suggestion of a smile on the part of any of the players, yet the effect upon audiences is said to be riotous.

In 'The Simp" Miss Rea is said to do her very best work and she has had long experience in comedy when one considers that she is only nineteen. She started as one of the 'bathing girls" with Mack Sennett and gradually worked herself up to leads, then going to Sunshine Comedies. Miss Rea is a girl of remarkable beauty of the tenderer, more appealing sort.

AT THE REGENT.

"A SMALL TOWN IDOL," FIRST MACK SENNETT-A. P. PLAY, HERE

Everybody has heard of the beauty of the Mack Sennett Girl. She has become an institution in the land—an abstraction meaning beauty of face, symmetry of form and grace of person.

Well, they'll all be in the next Mack Sennett production, "A Small Town Idol," released by Associated Producers and booked for presentation in the Regent Theatre for a brief engagement, opening Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday.

All the Mack Sennett "dolls" will be there—and then some! In one scene alone 500 beautiful girls participate, their harmonized presence being headed by Marie Prevost who, with another Sennett beauty, Phyllis Haver, shares the feminine stellar honors of the production.

And Ben Turpin will be there also. His will be the title roll—a small town idol.

Poor Ben Turpin! All the woes that have ever been allotted him in a Sennett plot will seem like items in a perfect day compared with the calamity that follows him as hero of "A Small Town Idol."

AT THE CAPITOL.

Captain Sam McGinnis, D. S. C., and Florence Lanham, a New York society girl working in a Red Cross unit in France, are married after a short romance, during which Florence has been attracted by Sam's good looks in his uniform. A few days later, she receives word of his death in action, and leaves for America, where she consents to become the bride of Billy Arkwright.

At a dinner given to announce her engagement, Sam turns up, not dead after all, and is so flashily dressed that Florence is ashamed of him. Denouncing her as a snob, Sam takes a position left vacant in the Lanham household as a butler. Florence, not wishing to be humiliated, does not dare make known that he is her husband.

Mrs. Smythe, a young widow, is attracted to Sam, and Carter Dumont, a mining promoter, overhearing a conversation in which Sam's true indemity is revealed, tells Mrs. Smythe what he knows. Sam's former general is a guest at one of the Lanham dinners, and recognizes him at once. Dumont says that he is looking for a man with brains and courage to put through a South American venture.

The General suggests the "butler," giving his true name and enviable record. Dumont, unable to approach Sam in any other way, enlists the aid of Mrs. Smythe. Mrs. Smythe offers to co-operate with Sam in his effort to democratize his wife, and Sam, takes her into his confidence.

The immediate result is a violent feigned flirtation between Mrs. Smythe and Sam, which naturally arouses Florence's jealousy. She is so upset that she consents to elope at once with Billy Arkwright, and the two flee to Havana. Sam and the conspirators, Dumont and Mrs. Smythe, follow them.

Sam meets Florence and tells her that he is quite willing to give her a divorce as he has other plans in view. The sudden arrival of Sam's father, a wealthy shoe manufacturer, brings affairs to a climax.

McGinn's, Sr., is sympathetic with Florence. Sam accepts Dumont's offer, and, returning to his room, finds Florence waiting for him. He forgives her, also promising never to wear loud clothing again.

The above is the story of Thomas Meighen's best picture, "Civilian Clothes," that comes to the Capitol Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday and a big special matinee on Tuesday.

BUFFALO, May 21.—(Canadian Press).—Twenty men, masked and armed, held up a freight train on the Sanborn branch of the New York Central Railroad near North Tonawanda early to-day and carried away silks, shoes, clothing, automobile tires and other freight estimated to be worth seventy thousand.

The train was held for half an hour, half of the bandits covering the crew and railroad detectives who were on the train as guards, while the other loaded the goods into six motor trucks. The bandits headed for Buffalo with their loot.

The Sporting Page

SPORT COMMENT

Carpentier and Dempsey will headline the sport pages for the next six weeks, when either one or th other will hit the trail for obscurity. Carpentier is going to train in secret, and has selected a spot that the rabble will find hard to bust into. Dempsey is going at his work in the open. The odds favour Dempsey to win, and as he has all the advantage in the fight, it looks like a superhuman ask for Carpentier to win.

Many of the great hitters of baseball are left-handed batsmen. They are great hitters because they can hit portside pitching as well as right-handed, and their ability to do this was the result of mastering the mind. They hit left-handed pitchers because they thought they could, and kept on trying.

Ty Cobb, sporting an average of .370 a season for 15 seasons, was a "sucker" for a left-handed pitcher when he started his major league career. He believed he could hit left-nanders, and set about to overcome the handicap that was his by physical habit. And after diligent effort, he was just as effective against the portsiders as he was against the right-handed curvers.

The average Briton is not what you would call jumpy. In moments of extreme tenseness he is about as skittish and as excitable as a stone fence.

But for all that you can't blame him for casting a slightly nervous eye upon his array of cups which he has collected through the drifting years. There is, for example, the amateur golf cup; the open golf cup; the golf cup for women; the polo cup; the tennis cup, and what not.

He esteems these highly, and no duplicates will do. Yet everywhere he looks there is an American hand coyly reaching for one of his precious trophies, and everywhere he turns there is an earnest young American practising quick starts for the sportive cupboard.

He starts down the street of one city and runs into "Chick" Evans, Francis Ouimet, and Bobby Jones.

Around another corner he bumps into Devereaux Milburn, Earl Hopping, and Watson Webb.

Down the next block he collides with Bill Tilden, just in time to see Alexa Stirling walk by.

These Americans are all honest-looking citizens, and yet something tells him they are not to be trusted in the cup pantry between now and July.

Can't Blame Him.

And you can't blame him. Last summer didn't he slip the keys of the city and the Empire to Bill Tilden and Bill Johnston? And before they got through there wasn't a tennis cup left on the Island.

One picked off the City of London championship while the other gathered in the British title, known over her as the championship of the world.

This time it isn't only tennis. It is golf and polo as well. Men and women. Youngsters and veterans. And all would esteem it intense bliss to leave with a nice, new polished cup tucked safely under the right or left arm.

The Greatest Of All.

Great Britain, to put it briefly, is now in the throes of the greatest sport invasion she has ever known.

Raiding parties from America and France have descended upon her shores before. But they were only retail xcursions. This is wholsale to the final word.

The American division will attempt to carry five points by storm. They are Hoylake, Turnberry, and St. Andrew's for golf; Wimbledon for tennis, and Hurlingham for polo.

And each entry is working with feverish keenness to get ready. For don't make the mistake of thinking that Uncle Sam looks for an easy victory at any point. The British, sensing some time ago the strength of this invasion, have gone out of their old ways to be prepared. As a rule they take a tournament as it comes, whether it be local or international. But they have been working unusually hard to be prepared for the next five weeks, where they know that only the best they have to give will prevent their cup supply from being totally exterminated.

As it is, one can easily understand that they are now quite confident of holding their own; that, in fact, they expect to retain a majority of their leading trophies.

They see no great chance of wresting the tennis cup away from Tilden, and they have no one on form who can stop Mlle. Lenglen. But they believe the open golf championship and thr polo cup are reasonably safe and that they have enough good golfers to carry at least an even chance against Evans, Ouimet, and Jones at Hoylake next week. And they don't believe Miss Stirling can quite get by Miss Leitch at Turnberry. But you can never tell. And so John Bull has ordered the guard doubled around cup headquarters until the turmoil subsides.

There are other complicated matters concerning this cup supply. He has lost the polo cup before, so it would be no great shock to have it happen again. But it costs an awful lot of important money to come over and bring it back. And important money to-day isn't piled up by the wayside. Tilden already has the tennis cup, and if he wants it as badly this June as he did last year he can probably keep it. But losing a golf cup is an unseemly blow. The matter of expense is much lighter in golf than in polo, but oJhn Bull has only lost two golf cups in all history, one amateur championship to Travis, the American, and one open championship to Massy, the Frenchman. The stolid old gentleman will give the best he has to see that this doesn't happen again.

Major League pennant races were considerably tightened by the second number of the east-west series just ended.

The Giants closed on the leading position and the Yankees took the lead away from the Cleveland Indians.

Pat Moran was treated like anything but a guest on the Polo Grounds, the Giants taking four straight games.

The St. Louis Cards, on the other hand, acted like anything but guests over in Brooklyn, and took three out of four from the Robins.

Pittsburg did well to get two out of three from the Phils, and the Phils and the Braves and the Cubs split even.

The Yankees pulled the big surprise in the American League by going to Cleveland and taking three out of four games from the champions. The New Yorkers went west in a rather pessimistic mood, but the team rallied and has lost only two games on the trip.

Washington got an unpleasant reception in Detroit, where the Tigers took three out off our games. There was also some more evidence that makes it look as if Walter Johnson were through.

The White Sox mopped up the Athletics with four straight victories, and the Browns and Red Sox split even.

Pittsburg will have more tough meat for the rest of the trip with the Robins and the Giants.

Cleveland, however, should be able to rest up on the Athletics, and the Yanks should not have much trouble with the White Sox.

SPANIARDS FIGHT WITH OPEN HANDS

TONGUE-THRESHING IS USUALLY SEVEREST RESULT OF AN ENCOUNTER.

MADRID, May 1.—(By Mail).—Spaniards do not understand boxing, and do not want to, judging from some of the comments in connection with the recent exhibition given by Carpentier in Madrid, where he reproduced, with Lenaers as his boxing partner, his bout against Battling Levinsky.

The Diario Universal says: "When the great, incomparable, unique Carpentier entered the ring and noticed that there were not more than 200 spectators present, he was unable to refrain from a gesture of astonishment. Wherever he had exhibited previously the tickets had been sold out a fortnight beforehand, and in some cases special trains had been run for the accommodation of 'fans.' The managers on this occasion must have suffered ruinously, for Carpentier's terms are high.

"The secret of this 'frost' is not far to seek. Spaniards do not use their fists. They prefer smacks. Fists hurt the adversary and, besides, it hurts one's hands to hit with them closed.

"We are a people of open hands, and our anger shows itself more in words than in muscles. Should Spaniards come to blows, the necessary preliminaries are a long string of insults for the adversary and two or three generations of his ancestors. Then ensue a couple of smacks, after which the contestants embrace and hold each other so as to give time for the onlookers to separate them."

The newspaper concludes: "While boxing continues to be a fight with closed fists it will not catch on with us; but arrange a match with open hands and then we shall see a crowded gathering to witness it."

"Then we're engaged?"
"Of course."
"And I am the first girl you ever loved?"
"No, dear, but I'm harder to suit now than I used to be."

CARPENTIER RESTS IN CAMP; ENTERTAINS NO FEAR OF RIVAL

NEW YORK, May 21—Regardless of his frame of mind when he enters the ring against Champion Jack Dempsey in the battle for the world's heavyweight championship title at Jersey City on July 2, Georges Carpentier, European champion, does not entertain any fear of his ri val right now. The visitor from across the seas has heard often of the wonderful ability of the man he has come here to box. Tales have reached him of the annihilating Dempsey who mowed down the giant form of Jess Willard. He has had brought to his attention tales of the wanton disregard Dempsey shows for a rival's blows and the wicked, destructive forces of the punches dealt out by the world's title holder. The only response to these reminders of his danger, however, is a smile of confidence wihch reflects a measure of contempt and absolute self-reliance.

Carpentier yesterday had occasion again to laugh at the reports of Dempsey "the man-killer." The French boxer, loafing about his training quarters at Manhasset, L. I., was discussing things in general in a conflab on the porch of the quaint little house which will be his home while here. The elaborate preparations for his work at the farm drew his admiration. The ring pitched outdoors was mentioned, and awakened memories of the memorable battle several years ago between the late Stanley Ketchel and Philadelphia Jack O'Brien. Carpentier replied in the negative when asked if he ever met Ketchel. Georegs listened attentively then to a discourse on the wonderful ability of Ketchel, and when the former middleweight champion was referred to as a "killer," Carpentier's eyes glisened, he laughed broadly, and, with a typical shrug of his shoulders and accompanying flourish of the hand, said:

"Well, Dempsey, you call him the 'man-killer,' too, do you not? Yet I have never heard of him killing anybody. He kill nobody, this 'man-killer.'"

Carpentier was jolly and comparatively voluble yesterday, his second day at the camp. He slept late, arising about 10.30 o'clock, and lounged about the premises without exerting himself in the sightest. He still is in the process of discarding his sealegs, and has progressed to the stage where he is able to walk about without an impulsive lurch or roll. The European champion loafed about the farm house attired in the extreme of comfort and ease. A bathrobe of heavy, warm material enveloped the boxer, and his bare feet were encased in house slippers. Carpentier did not trouble to dress until dinner time, contenting himself with chatting with his visitors on the proch. Incidentally, the title challenger has acquired quite a command of English.

CANADIAN GENERALS SPRING A SURPRISE ON THE BANKERS

WIN CITY JUVENILE GAME BY 6 RUNS TO 5 AFTER EXCITING BATTLE—VICTORY LEAVES THEM TIED WITH BANKERS FOR FIRST PLACE.

The Generals sprung a big surprise on the Bankers in the juvenile series of the City League at Riverside Park last night, beating Louis Yeotes' League leaders by 6 runs to 5 and thereby climbing up to a tie for first place. It was the most exciting game of the series and the fans who were out enjoyed every moment of the battle.

The Generals earned their victory. They outbatted and outfielded the leaders and came from behind twice to win. Chartren, on the rubber for the winners, was wild, passing four men and hitting two others, but the Bankers did not relish his speed, and hits were not forthcoming with men on bases. Parrington, who pitched for the Bankers, was frequently in trouble, but held his opponents to three runs. Turner, who relieved him, was touched up for four hits in the sixth and the bunched safeties gave the Generals three runs and the decision. The youngsters are playing great ball in the juvenile series and every game is a battle.

The Bankers got away to a good start by scoring two in the first. McLean opened with a clean single to centre and stole second. Hensley was safe on Wells' low throw to first, and both came home on Jeff Hardill's single through third. Hardill was picked off second. Wilgar walked and Whitlow was hit, but Chartren struck out Jack Hardill and took care of Pogue's roller.

The Generals tied it up in the first half of the second. F. Edgar singled to left to start with, and after J. Edgar and Evans had fanned, Davis scratched a hit to third and stole second. Chartren helped to win his own game by singling over second, scoring Edgar and Davis and going to second on Turner's wild heave to the plate. Pogue made a fine catch of Allen's fly to end the innings.

In their half the Bankers went ahead again. Turner was sent to first for interference by the catcher, and Parrington walked. McLean's infield out sent Turner in, after which Hensley popped to Chartren and Jeff Hardill flied to left.

In the fourth the ultimate winners tied the count. J. Edgar singled over third and stole second, going to second on Evans' infield out. Davis bunted safely, Edgar being held at third. Davis stole second. Chartren rolled to the pitcher, the runners being held. Allen's grass cutter got away from Hensley and Edgar scored, but Davis was out at the plate, Hensley to Wilgar, trying to score on the play.

With Turner pitching for the Bankers the Generals staged a rally in the sixth that won them the game. Evans struck out, but Davis beat out a bunt, his third hit in succession. Chartren hit to Turner, who threw to second to nail Davis, but Hardill's foot was off the bag and everybody was safe. Allen scratched an infield hit, filling the bases and then Wells came through with a clean single to right centre, scoring Davis and Chartren. Batten singled through short, sending Allen across. Wells was out at the plate on Williams' tap to Turner and F. Edgar fanned.

Chartren developed a wild streak in the second half of the innings and nearly tossed the game away. He walked Jack Hardill to start with and then hit Pogue. Turner's single filled the bases with nobody out and a pass to Parrington forced Hardill home. Chartren got out of a bad hole by fanning McLean and Hensley and getting Hardill on a fly to Batten.

The Bankers were dangerous again in the last innings. Wilgar singled over second to start with and went to second while Wells was throwing out Whitlow. Jack Hardill singled to deep short and Wilgar came home from second when Baten threw high to the plate, Hardill going to the middle station on the play. With the tieing run on second it was anybody's game, but Hardill was doubled up on Pogue's fly to Batten and the game was over.

PETES EASILY WIN AT KEENE

CENTRAL ONTARIO LEAGUERS HAVE GOOD WORKOUT IN U.F.O. TERRITORY.

The Peterborough Central Ontario League team had a good workout and a very enjoyable outing at Keene last evening, when they defeated the Keene East Peterborough League team by 17 to 3 in a six innings game. Manager Solomon arranged the trip as a practice for Tuesday's game at Cobourg and the boys were very hospitably received by the Keene team and fans. Lornie Rose and Lefty McElroy did the twirling for the Petes, with Bob Ross behind the bat, Ray Rose, Holyman, Cherrett and Murray in the infield, and Lowe, Pinnette, Guerin and McCarney in the outfield. Micky Murray donned the mask and big mit in the last innings. Ald. Nagle Phelan was umpire.

There is a big programme of baseball doings for the Peterborough fans on Tuesday with a City Juvenile League game at Riverside Park in the morning and a joint City and Mercantile League double-header in the afternoon.

Every member of the Peterborough Central League team is expected to be at Riverside Park on Monday evening for the final practice before the Cobourg game.

GREAT INTEREST IN CUP FINALS

C.G.E. AND CALEYS CLASH AT OVAL ON VICTORIA DAY.

Football fans are all agog over the Gordon Cup final at Nicholls Oval on the afternoon of Victoria Day. A clash between the Caledonians and C.G.E. is always a battle, no matter under what circumstances they meet, and on this occasion, with the possession of the Gordon Cup and the right to represent Peterborough in the Ontario Football series at stake, the game should easily be the titbit of the soccer season. From the rival camp come sories of abundance of confidence, and it is expected both teams will be at full strength. The biggest crowd that ever saw a football game in Peterborough is expected if the weather conditions are favourable.

WILL PLAY AT OVAL.

The football game on Saturday between the Canadian Woollens and the Caledonians will be played at Nicholls Oval instead of the Exhibition grounds.

HORSE RACING

Commander J. K. L. Ross, the new head of the Montreal Jockey Club and the leading money-winning figure in American racing in 1918 and 1919, will put his best foot forward at Blue Bonnets this spring during the session of the Montreal Jockey Club, which was inaugurated on May 7th, to run seven days. In addition to the section of the stable of the Montreal sportsman that has been in Canada all winter, Henry McDaniel, trainer of the main division of the string, will ship from Baltimore to Toronto some time next week the horses that have been racing since mid-April at Havre de Grace and Pimlico. After the meeting of the Ontario Jockey Club at Woodbine McDaniel's horses will proceed to Blue Bonnets.

The most famous members of the string in McDaniel's care are Boniface, the biggest money winner of greater age than 4 years old on this side of the Atlantic last season; Billy Kelly, the best gelding with the possible exception of Exterminator in training; Milkmaid, a 5-year-old mare that has won in all parts of the United States and Canada; King Thrush, an imported son of Trush and Silent Queen; Star Voter, winner in Kentucky last season of the Cincinnati Trophy; Baby Grand, the smartest 2-year-old that raced in Canada last year, now a rattling good three-year-old; also, Sailing B., Muttikins, Hildur, Intriguante, Sun Turret, Bastile, Harmonique and Jacobina.

The 2-year-old of the McDaniel string that has attracted most attention so far is Diadema, a daughter of Marathon and a product of Commander Ross' thoroughbred nursery of the Province of Quebec, which is domiciled on a farm overlooking the St. Lawrence, a few miles down stream from Montreal. Diadema won the only race in which she has started this season, a spring of half a mile decided at Havre de Grace in April, and she won away off like a good filly. Diadema is one of a dozen smart Canadian breds by Marathon and Fitz William in Commander Ross' establishment. Most of these Vercheres youngesters are in the Canadian division of the string.

Boniface, an iron-limbed son of Transvaal and Cerina, she a daughter of Meddler and Chinkara, and she a daughter of Galopin, accounted for $7,000 of the quarter of a million dollars won last season in the United States and Canada by the horses of the Ross stable. He campaigned all over the United States and Canada and was a winner at Toronto. He did not race at Montreal. Boniface has won the $5,000 Philadelphia handicap, the best race for horses of all ages of the Havre de Grace programme this spring. He is in splendid condition. Billy Kelly, winner of the $5,000 Hartford handicap—Billy has won renewals of this race three seasons running—comes to Canada with a clean 1921 record. He won three races at Havre de Grace and three at Pimlico. This son of Dick Welles is one of the most versatile horses in training. He can sprint three-quarters of a mile in 1:12, or better, and gallop one mile and a furlong in 1:51, or thereabout. Sun Turret is a $25,000 son of Sunstar and Marian Hood that started only a couple of times last season. He is, practically, a green 3-year-old, but a horse of royal breeding and high promise.

King Thrush is a strapping outlander that won some notice last season and the season before. He was a winner at Havre de Grace during the last fortnight of April and he looks like a useful horse for both sprinting and distance running. Star Voter, probably, is the best horse the celebrated Ballot has sent to racing. He was a first-rate 2-year-old and McDaniel thought that he might have beaten Boniface in the Philadelphia handicap renewal at Havre de Grace if he had been permitted to run. He was pulled to his older stable companion. Star Voter will be the Ross candidate in the important 3-year-old specials of Canadian and New York racing this season. Some of the Ross horses, notably the 3-year-old Pampas, a strapping son of Short Grass and Ellangowan and a half-brother of Cock o' the Walk, and the 2-year-old Elemental, a son of Ultimus and Xarco, that cost $10,000 at the auction block last summer at Saratoga, have been sick. These will not go to Toronto. They will be shipped from Maryland to Montreal for the Blue Bonnets meeting. Elemental was the winner of the first race of the Havre de Grace meeting, a sprint of half a mile for 2-year-olds. He is a colt of high speed and great promise. Commander Ross has put him in all of the important 2-year-old specials of American and Canadian racing.

BUTTER HITS NEW PRICE LEVEL TO-DAY ON FARMERS' MARKET

POTATOES DOWN TO FIFTY CENTS A BAG—JULY WEATHER.

July weather featured to-day's market. A hot sun poured down out of an azure sky on the open market and made standing in the unprotected glare unpleasant while in the basket market it was very warm and close. All that was required to metamorphose to-day's market into typical July or August one would be to fill the waggons with tomatoes currants and raspberries and other summer fruits and vegetables. The weather even if a little tepid was certainly an invitation to the farmers to come into the city and there was therefore what is called a 'good' market to-day.

Butter Lower

Butter opened lower in price today. There was plenty of butter and eggs and although at ten o'clock 32 and 33 was being fearlessly asked for butter it is quite likely 25 cents would be the prevailing price after 11 o'clock. Eggs were 30 cents and there were some splendid eggs on to-day. The butter to-day was carefully wrapped in rhubarb leaves and most of it was firm and unaffected by the heat.

Chickens Lower

There was some nice fowl on today's market. The price 35 to 38 cents was down slightly from recent levels.

Potatoes Plentiful

More potatoes were on the open market than in weeks. In no very definite way the farmers asked 50 cents. Most of them seemed hopeless of selling many and doubtless plenty could be had at 40c. The arrangement of summer produce was evident to-day. Lettuce grown in the open was 10c a bunch; radishes were 5c, as were green onions. There was lots of rhubarb at 5c and a notable feature of the market was the tomato plants, cabbage and cauliflower and asters. Tomatoes, cabbage and cauliflowers were 15c and 20c or two for 35c. Asters were as high as 25c. In the basket section an enterprising young boy was selling maiden hair ferns fresh from the damp and musty woods at 10c and the dainty ferns were being eagerly snapped up.

Young pigs were selling lower today. The prices ranged from $10 a pair up to $18. The only other live stock seen by the Examiner were several pairs of black rabbits. The boy in charge, who asked 50c a pair, was the hero of the hour to half-a-dozen street urchins who hung around the box.

Besides the $5 levy he was further assessed $10 for a violation of the act. The prosecutor was M. J. Woodcock, Game and Fish Overseer, for the county of Peterborough.
A man from Buckhorn was similarly charged before the Game Warden this morning.

BANISH DRUGS AND BATHE INTERNALLY
Cleansing of Intestinal Tract Permits Healthy Functioning.

'I have been using the J. B. L. Cascade for about eight months now. I have found it in every way satisfactory. I feel better than I have for a good many years. I would not be without my Cascade for anything. I also use it on my children, as it is so simple to use, and they would rather use it than take drugs." writes Mrs. J. Jones, 76A Notre Dame street, Lachine, Que.

This letter is only one of thousands with a message of gratitude over the benefits derived from Internal Bathing.

By the use of "The J. B. L. Cascade" the colon, or lower intestine, can be cleansed of poisonous waste. This poisonous waste if not removed, and nature cannot always do it unaided, gives rise to the large number of the health-destroying conditions of to-day.

The Internal Bath gives the only permanent relief for constipation. Through the gentle action of warm water, it cleanses and purifies, removing the cause of stomach ills, headaches, loss of appetite, impure blood, piles, lack of energy and sleeplessness.

The J. B. L. Cascade, used with sterilized warm water, is easy and pleasant in its effects. You bathe outside, why not bathe internally too—it is far more important.

The J. B. L. Cascade is the perfected invention of Dr. Charles A. Tyrrell for internal bathing. It is now being shown and explained at the Warne Drug Co., Druggists, Peterborough. Telephone or ask them for free booklet all about it, or write Tyrrell's Hygienic Institute, 163 College street, Toronto.

CAR BARN STAFF ARE NEAR ARTISTS

HAVE DISGUISED OLD NO. 11 IN A SPRIGHTLINESS THAT SURPRISES

Like a bright spring butterfly old No. 11 ,one of the Ferguson chariots, was run out into service the other day full of new life and seemingly as sound as ever. New flooring, new seats and other fixtures, not to mention the striking work of the painting crew combined an ensemble or altogether effect indicating the capabilities of the car barn staff of the street railway system. The metamorphosis pleases as much surprises the patrons of the Ferguson system, and the fact that the employees behind the scenes can turn out a work as attractive as No. 11 is surely worthy of a word of commendation.

LIFE FORCE

In the brain is life force, which is delivered from the brain to all parts of the body. Everyone knows that if the nerves leading to the arms are cut, that arm is paralyzed. It cannot move. It becomes small. It is in truth dead, so far as its use to the body is concerned. Why? Because the nerves are the tiny telegraph wires which carry this life force from the brain to the arm.

Just as this is true of the arm, it is also true of every other part of the body. The stomach must receive its life force from the brain. This is also true of the liver, the kidneys, the heart, the lungs, and in fact every tiny unit of the body. All of this life force is carried from the brain to the body by the nerve fibres. If cutting the nerves supplying the arm paralyzes it, so the cutting of nerves supplying the stomach, the liver, the kidneys, the heart, and the lungs would paralyze these organs.

LOSS OF LIFE FORCE

However, a nerve does not need to be cut to lose part of its ability to carry life force. If it is squeezed at any point along its course, the life force will be cut off in just that proportion. This is exactly what happens to produce disease and sickness. Nerves come out through tiny openings in the spine. If these little bones of which the spine is composed are not in their proper positions, the size of these openings is decreased. Naturally, if they are made smaller, they produce pressure upon the nerves which pass through them. What part of the body is involved because of this pressure depends on which nerves are squeezed, and it is found that by restoring these small bones to their proper positions, health will result.

WHAT TO DO

The chiropractor uses a science which is based on this idea. When he finds that you are sick, he first locates your trouble. If he finds it is in the stomach, he knows immediately where the nerves are pressed upon to produce that condition. He looks in that part of the spine, and he finds how that pressure is produced. He then replaces the small bones in their natural positions, and as soon as this is accomplished, sickness no longer exists. As this is true of the stomach, it is also true of every other part of the body. Disease in any of them is caused by pressure upon nerves in some part of the spine and the removal of that pressure always produces health.

GERMANS HAVE REGULAR ARMY IN U. SILESIA

IN SPITE OF EFFORTS OF ALLIES HOSTILITIES CONTINUE, THE POLES RETIRING FIVE MILES.

HUNS ARE DETERMINED

LONDON, May 23.— (Canadian Press.) — The Germans Saturday drove the Polish insurgents in Silesia back toward Gross Strehlitz for a distance of five miles, says a despatch to the Times from Oppelin. The correspondent says that there is every sign that the Germans have the resources of a regular army at their disposal. He adds that they have been concentrating forces and making preparations for two weeks and that indications point to a determined effort on their part to recover the possession of Upper Silesia from the Poles.

The movement is regarded by the Times correspondent as far more serious that the mere reaction of the German population against the insurgents. He asserts that the Inter-Allied Commission was unable to prevent the outbreak of fighting and is now just as powerless to intervene. The Polish insurgents, according to a despatch, have been steadily consolidating their position and extending their control over the industrial districts of Silesia.

Allies Intervene.

PARIS, May 23. — (Canadian Press.)—The Allied High Commission in Upper Silesia has sent delegations to intervene with Both Germans and Poles and endeavor to obtain a cessation of all military operations in that territory, according to French official despatches to-day. Each of the delegations is composed of representatives of France, Great Britain and tIaly.

British Troops to Restore Order.

LONDON, May 23. — (Canadan Press.)—The British government has decided to send troops to Silesia at an early date, it was announced to-day.

Mr. Williamson, of the Peterborough Floral Co., reports the heaviest Saturday business for a long time. The demand for garden plants made a heavy haul on his greenhouses, of which a very wide variety and extensive stock has been provided. All the old garden favorites by the thousands are going out fast, and the service is strained for special deliveries.

Where persons cannot call, 'phone orders receive prompt attention. Bedding and pot plants of strong growth are in fine shape, and in this respect "the best is the cheapest.

WHEN CLOCKS IN MARION, OHIO, PLAYED ANTICS THEY ASCRIBED IT HARDING'S LEAVING, BUT HERE—?

The hard feeling which once existed between the timepiece that soars above the Market Place and the one surmounting the Post Office Building has evidently been forgotten. Time was when these ancient public necessities strove hard against one another. Sometimes it would be two minutes, or three minutes, or five, or even one of them would be duplicated by the same numbe soaring up to ten minutes, before the hour struck by of strokes three blocks away.

Many a tardy child or office member used to be thankful in the old days to the clock that was behind time. If one was late by the Post Office time regulator, one had five minutes sometimes still to spare by the Market clock. But something or other has happened to heal the breach between the ancient enemies. Perhaps it was the article in Saturday's Examiner, which commented on the crazy-quilt time effect achieved by different portions of the Dominion adopting daylight saving, thus causing clocks in different cities to beat out the same number of strokes at widely different periods of time, which induced the realisation on the part of Peterborough clocks of the foolishness of such variations.

Or it may be that the fresh coat of paint achieved by the Market timepiece has counteracted the natural feeling of superiority always evidenced by the clock poised above such an important public building as a Post Office. However this may be, the two public time-tellers of Peterborough struck together at seven and nine o'clock this morning, with a most gratifying and peaceful unanimity of musical sounds.

ORDINATE TWO TO PRIESTHOOD

IMPRESSIVE CEREMONY AT ST. PETER'S YESTERDAY MORNING—PONTIFICIAL MASS CELEBRATED.

BOTH SANG VESPERS

A very impressive ceremony took place at St Peter's Cathedral yesterday morning when His Lordship, Rt. Rev. M. J. O'Brien, Bishop of Peterborough, elevated two young men to the dignity of the priesthood, Mr. Vincent Gillogly, of Lindsay, and Mr Henry McHenry, late of Dublin, Ireland, now ordained to the priesthood in the diocese of Peterborough. His Lordship celebrated Pontifical High Mass, assisted by Monsignor McColl as high priest, Rev. C. J. Phelan as deacon, Rev. P. J. Costello as sub-deacon, and Fathers M. J. and P. McGuire as honorary deacons. Father Cantelon was Master of Ceremonies, and Father John O'Brien assisted the young priests. Fathers Galvin, Meagher, Power, Garvey, McAuley and M. S. O'Brien were present in the sanctuary. An eloquent sermon on the priesthood was preached by Rev. Father Carroll of St. Augustine's Seminary in Toronto, and His Lordship Bishop O'Brien addressed a few remarks to the young priests, encouraging them in the performance of the duties of their high office, and referring to the inspiration of such a ceremony to others desirous of following in their steps.

Father McHenry sang Vespers for the first time at the Cathedral last evening and celebrated his first mass there at 8 o'clock this morning. Father Gillogly sang Vespers at Lindsay last evening.

Germany May Buy 140,000 IN America for Reparation Purposes.

BERLIN, May 23.—Germany still is short 140,000 horses in her reparations deliveries to France and Belgium. A trial shipment of the animals from the United States recently has shown such a favorable average after inspection by the Entente commission that it is not improbable Germany will depend upon the American market for further deliveries.

Only four horses out of a shipment of sixty-four which arrived in May 5 from Baltimore were rejected by the allied control officials, whereas 50 per cent of the animals formerly purchased in Holland and the Scandinavian States failed to measure up to the Entente's requirements and were refused.

Another cargo of seventy horses is on the way from the United States to Germany.

BANDITS RAID STORE; MURDER ONE CUSTOMER

ONE MAN UNDER ARREST

ST. CATHARINES, May 23.—(Canadian Press).—Nete Waevods, a Finlander, is dead and Jack Vinosky, an Austrian, is under rrrest following a sensational hold up at the general Store at Port Weller, on Saturday night when four bandits descended on the place, overawed the proprietors and clerks and a store full of customers with their revolvers and got away with three hundred dollars out of the till. Waevods was fatally shot and another Finander named Kurna Saprosnik badly wounded in the groin, when they did not show enough speed in obeying the command of the Highwaymen to throw up their hands. Saprosnik is in the hospital and may die.

The store is owned by John Bonick, who with his clerk, Peter Martin, were in the place when the raiders entered and commanded the cosmopolitan crowd to surrender. Waevoda and Saprosnik walked towards the door and were shot down instantly. After taking the contents of the till the bandits cleared out. Vinosky was later arrested by the County Police and Saprosnik is said to have identified him as the man who guarded the front door when the shooting took place. The prisoner denies that he was connected in any way with the crime.

Sam Koruch and Pete Murick were to-day arrested in Thorold township on suspicion of being implicated in the murder and robbery at Port Weller on Saturday night. They admitted that they were in Port Weller on Saturday night.

This afternoon a clerk at the store positively identified Murick as the man who did the shooting. The identification is understood to have been confirmed by another Port Weller man.

WOMEN'S LEAGUE HELD A MEETING

A meeting of the Catholic Women's League took place yesterday afternoon at St. Alphonsus' Lyceum, with a good attendance. The president, Mrs. Jas. V. Gallivan, was in the chair. Reports from the first and third vice-presidents were heard. Mrs. G. H. Popham's report dealt with the organization at Ennismore on the 15th inst., which resulted in the election of the following officers for that branch: President, Mrs. Geo. McNerney; 1st vice-president, Mrs. Wm. Young; 2nd vice-president, Miss Kate O'Connor; 3rd vice-president, Mrs. Wm. Scollard; Treasurer, Miss Nellie Killen; Secretary, Miss Noriel Crough, and at which 41 members were enrolled at the initial meeting. Mrs. V. J. McElderry spoke on Social Welfare work, and recommended the Well Babies' Clinic to all the mothers. The new secretary, Miss Margaret Heffernan, gave a short report in connection with communications re organizing.

His Lordship Bishop O'Brien, who was present at the meeting, spoke of his pleasure at the advancement the League is making in all its departments and the keen enthusiasm shown by the members in the furtherance of the work of the society.

The election of two delegates to the Convention of the Catholic Women's League, which takes place in Toronto from June 1st to 5th, resulted in several nominations. Only Mrs. V. J. McElderry and Mrs. G. H. Popham were in a position to accept, and the election resulted in Mrs. McElderry being appointed the voting delegate, with Mrs. Popham accompanying her. Both ladies gracefully acknowledged their election.

During the afternoon, Miss Mollie Young gave a very fine vocal solo, and Miss Amy Halpin read an interesting paper on Thomas Moore.

SAVED HER THE TROUBLE.

Her headgear consisted of a bowl-like foundation from which protruded huge plumes. She was deeply interested in the musical comedy when she felt some one tugging at her hat from behind.

"Does my hat annoy you?" she asked loftily.

"No, miss," replied the young man behind her.

A few minutes later, fearing that she had been ungracious, she again turned.

"Perhaps my plumes interfere with your view?" she suggested, amiably.

"Oh, no, thank you—not now," was the reply, "I've bent them back."—Pearson's Weekly.

COMPARISON OF PRODUCE PRICES

Present Prices are Nearly Down to the pre-War Levels.

The lowest price that butter reached on Saturday's market was 30c and this was the price most of the creamery in the stores was selling at to-day. The dealers say they do not look for many more fluctuations in the price of butter and it is generally the opinion that butter will say around 30c for some time.

Eggs have been fairly steady and are selling at 30c and 32cents in the groceries to-day.

An Examiner fyle of 1914, says that on May 23, 1914, butter ranged from 23c to 27c a lb., and eggs from 22c to 23c, so there is a close parallel between to-day's prices, and those of 1914, and closer than most people seem aware of. In the same Saturday market report potatoes were said to be very plentiful and opened at $1.50, later settling to $1.30 and $1.25 a bag. This seems an exorbitant price compared with the humble 40c and 50c the farmers asked here on Saturday.

Cheese Prices.

On Wednesday, May 20, 1914, the first cheese board meeting was held, and 575 cheese boarded selling at 12 1-16, only 3 8-16c lower than the price paid last Wednesday when the first sale was made in Peterboro. And there were 123 more boxes at the first sale seven years ago, with a resultant effect on the price.

Indications now are that the high level reached by cheese during last winter will not likely be reached again. Considering all the items in the produce market a downward tendency is prominently in evidence. Consider the lowly pig.

Pigs Lower.

The mercenary value of young pigs slumped to some extent on Saturday's market. Lively young porkers that a week ago were bringing $17 and $18 a pair sold at $14 and ones formerly selling at $12 were down to $10.

If one took the time to study the imported fruit prices of 1914, and hose of to-day, one would see a wide difference in price. Here would be found no parallel and if the cause was probed fruit men say the high freight rates would be found responsible. At any rate imported tomatoes selling now at 35 and 40c a lb., do not match well with the 1914 20c; and California cherries that then sold at 50c a lb. now read high at $1 and $1.25.

WOUNDED BANDIT DIES ON TRAIN

FORT WILLIAM, May 23.—(Canadian Press.)— Steve Severuk, one of the bandits who attempted to hold up Paymaster Mayes of the Hydro-Electric at Cameron Falls on Saturday afnoon, and who was shot through the abdomen by Constable Eady, died on the train Sunday morning as he was being brought to the Port Arthur Hospital. Constable Eady is suffering from three bullet wounds, but it is believed he will recover. According to reports received here, six men, all Austrians or Poles, took part in the attempted hold-up. Three of the bandits escaped in the bush.

GRAIN INQUIRY OPENS TO-DAY

CHAIRMAN PROMISES TO AVOID DOING INJUSTICE TO ANY PERSON.

PROBING THE SITUATION

WINNIPEG, May 23.—(Canadian Press.)— "I apprehend reason for existence in the complaint that the producer of grain crops has not been receiving just reward for his labor or at least his fair share of the amount ultimately realized on the sale of his products,' was the exparte statement of Justice Jas. J. Hyndman, chairman, at the opening session of the Royal Grain Inquiry Commission here to-day. "The Board would take constant care, it was scarcely necessary to say," said the chairman, "to avoid doing injustice to any person, however humble or powerful."

CROPS BENEFITTED BY HEAVY RAIN

Hay Takes a Drop on the Local Market—Crop Prospects Good.

Last night's rain storm, though not very heavy, brought relief to the crops, and this morning the grain was looking splendid, according to Peterborough county farmers. The danger of drought was eliminated by the downpour and the continuance of the growth which has been so marked this season is assured Fruit, vegetable and grain crops all benefitted alike.

With the spring work finished many farmers have been cleaning out their hay mows and realizing considerable on the hay, while the price is good. The influx of so much hay into the city caused a decline of $1 last Thursday and the price on the market is now $27 a ton.

BEDOUINS ARE REVOLTING IN EGYPT; 5 DIE

TWO EUROPEANS BURNED IN STREETS OF ALEXANDRIA; 1,500 BEDOUINS ADVANCE ON RAMLEH.

RIOTING IN ALEXANDRIA

ALEXANDRIA, Egypt, May 23.—(Canadian Press).—Five Europeans were killed and seventy-two others wounded in rioting here Sunday night and this morning, it was announced at noon to-day. The police casualties were not announced.

A Cairo despatch to the Exchange Telegraph Company reports many dead lying in the streets of Alexandria. One report states that two Europeans were drenched with petrol and burned in the streets. On Sunday evening it is known some benzine stores near the Alexandria docks were ransacked. A band of fifteen hundred Bedouins is reported to be advancing on Ramleh, five miles north-east of Alexandria, to "participate in a general revolution, which but for the presence of the British, may succeed." Cairo, adds the message, is in an excited state, but no disorders have developed there."

The body was badly cut and the hair had been completely torn from the scalp but it was identified bu a small note book in one of the pockets.

STRAW HEATS MAKE DEBUT ON SATURDAY

The Heat Wave Brought out a flock of Summer Headgear at Ball Game.

Saturday's heat gave Peterboro's male population an excuse to wear a straw hat and hundreds of sailors and Panamas, new and renewed were sported at the baseball game, football match and on the main thoroughfare of the city. Only an occasional straw chapeau was seen before Saturday but with the thermometer at 85 the tendency to again don the universal summer headgear could not be resisted by that part of the population who had watched their wives, mothers and sisters wearing a straw contraption since February.

SAYS BREACH OF GAME LAWS IS GENERAL.

Man Fined on Saturday Said Nearly All His Neighbours Take Fish Out of Season.

The conviction of two men on Saturday morning for infractions of the game laws and the fairly stiff fines that were imposed by Game Warden Coffey, of Ottawa, has been warmly approved by members of the recently organized Game Protective Association in this city. So flagrant have been some of the violations of the Act that one member of the association reported that his wife had bought a bass in a certain store, but in accordance with his pledge of membership, he requested his wife to return the fish to the dealer.

The Harvey Township man who was fined $25.20 told the Examiner after the trial that he was satisfied with the treatment he had received in the Warden's Court, and he added that nearly every person in the northern township village took fish out of season.

Members of the local Fish and Game Protective Association contend that one overseer is altogether inadequate for the protection of the fish and game in this county, and are urging the Provincial Department to appoint at least four officials.

LIQUOR STORES IN CHINATOWN.

VICTORIA, B.C., May 19.—(Canadian Press). — The Provincial Oriental liquor trade is not to be neglected by the newly-formed British Columbia Liquor Board. It is hoped that the entire Oriental liquor business will be corraled.

Liquor stores are to be opened in "Chinatowns," and special brand of liquors favored by the Chinese imported by the Government.

For the Japanese large quantities of Saki are to be imported. Government vendors have been selling this for some time past, and, judging from the demand the amount will make an important addition to the Government's liquor business when it gets going properly.

Chinese and Japanese interpreters will be employed in Oriental stores.

It is exceedingly foolish to worry ourselves and others with what cannot be remedied.

QUIT MEAT IF YOUR KIDNEYS ACT BADLY

Take tablespoonful of Salts if Back hurts or Bladder Bothers.

We are a nation of meat eaters and our blood is filled with uric acid, says a well-known authority, who warns us to be constantly on guard against kidney trouble.

The kidneys do their utmost to free the blood of this irritating acid, but become weak from the overwork they get sluggish; the eliminative tissues clog and thus the waste is retained in the blood to poison the entire system.

When your kidneys ache and feel like lumps of lead, and you have stinging pains in the back or the urine is cloudy, full of sediment, or the badder is irritable, obliging you to seek relief during the night; when you have severe headaches, nervous and dizzy spells, sleeplessness, acid stomach or rheumatism in bad weather, get from your pharmacist about four ounces of Jad Salts; take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast each morning and in a few days your kidneys will act fine. This famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for generations to flush and stimulate clogged kidneys, to neutralize the acids in urine so it is no longer a source of irritation, thus ending urinary and bladder disorders.

Jad Salts is inexpensive and cannot injure; makes a delightful effervescent lithia-water drink, and nobody can make a mistake by taking a little occasionlly to keep the kidneys clean and active.

LUMBER TAXES OPPOSED ALSO BY MR. GORDON

CLAIMS PROPOSKD TAX WOULD INCREASE COST OF ORDINARY WORKMAN'S HOUSE $150 TO $300.

ALLEGES SALES TAX FLAW

OTTAWA, May 23.—(Special to The Examiner.) — G. N. Gordon, M.P. for West Peterborough, carried on the war waged Saturday against Sir Henry Drayton's proposed taxation on milled food products. Mr. Gordon Friday night received the assurance from Sir Henry Drayton that oat meal and rolled oats would not be taxed, and Saturday, until adjournment, he put up a vigorous fight, organizing a large support, part of which came from the Government side, to his contention that no taxes should be imposed on any milled foods.

Sir Henry Drayton claimed that puffed rice, puffed wheat, corn flakes, and other patent food products, should be taxed, but Mr. Gordon claimed that these were warm weather breakfast foods. As this would certainly raise the cost of living and as a result the cost of exported production would tend to reduce the standard of living of the wage earner.

Mr. Gordon discovered that 1 1-2 p.c. would be pyramided every time there was a turnover from the manufacturer to the wholesaler or the wholesaler to the retailer.

The farmer group in the House supported Mr. Gordon unanimously in his objection to bran and shorts being taxed, because Mr. Gordon said that this was a raw product entering into cheese and butter, and would increase the price of both, because the farmer would require to pay more for his cattle and hog feed.

Mr. Gordon carried on the battle all day Saturday against the taxing of foods and lumber, and was outspoken in claiming that all the lumber products in Peterborough and that district would be increased in price by the tax and it would increase the cost of building the ordinary house of the working man from $150 to $300, when houses were so badly needed in Peterborough and other industrial centres, as at the present time.

Hon. McKenzzie King, in commenting on Mr. Gordon's budget speech, said that no new member in his maiden effort, had surpassed in able delivery and presentation, Mr. Gordon's advocacy of the rights of the working men and the family of small means, and that Mr. Gordon was one of the most effective and valuable debaters in the House.

PROROGATION NEXT SATURDAY LIKELY

PLOT TO TAKE THE CHILDREN OF GREENWOOD

SECRET SERVICE REPORTED TO HAVE DISCOVERED SINN FEIN PLOT AGAINST SIR HAMAR.

HEAVY GUARD PLACED

LONDON, May 23.—(Canadian Press).—Secret Service operatives are reported to have discovered a Sinn Fein plot to kidnap the three young children of Sir Hamar Greenwood from their London Home. Sir Hamar Greenwood, is the chief secretary for Ireland. An armed and mounted guard has been stationed at the Greenwood Home and no unauthorized person is allowed to approach the door.

Much alarmed, the second farmer pulled out into the deep snow to let his belligerent neighbor pass.

When he was back on the road again, he turned, and said to the farmer:

"Tell me, neighbor, what did you do to the man who wouldn't turn out for you?"

"I turned out for him!" replied the hot-headed farmer.

"Pa," said a young lady to her farmer dad, "I wish you wouldn't say "I seen.' I don't know how many times, pa, I've corrected you on that."

"Now mamie, you look-a-here," said the old man, shoveling a generous piece of peach pie into his mouth with his knife 'you make yer livin' by good grammar and eddication, but yer ma and me, we're obliged to take in summer boarders, and, by jiminy, they demand the dialect if they pay the rates.—Argonaut.

BANDITS FAIL IN ATTEMPT TO ROB PAYMASTER

WOUNDS ONE SERIOUSLY

CAMERON FALLS, Ont., May 23.—A daring but unsuccessful attempt by six bandits to rob the paymaster of the Hydro-Electric Power Plant was made Saturday afternoon at the railway station here.

Accompanied by Guard Edy, Charles May, paymaster, arrived on Canadian National train No. 4 with a suitcase containing between twenty and thirty thousand dollars. Three of the robbers arrived on the same train as the paymaster and three others on train No. 79. One of the robbers seized the suitcase which he supposed contained money, but took the one which contained some wearing apparel. May resisted, and the bandits opened fire, despite the fact that there were about thirty people standing around. Edy returned the fire, and received bullets in the groin and shoulder, but neither of the wounds were serious. The bandits then fled, and Policeman Frank, although unarmed, pursued them to the woods. He overtook one, who turned and menaced him with his gun, but Frank closed with the man, wrested his pistol from him and shot him in the groin. His condition is serious. The captured man is a foreigner. Altogether, some twenty shots were fired.

"QUEBEC KLONDIKE" TEMPEST IN TEACUP

QUEBEC, May 23. — Canadian Press.) The clamour which was made early this month about a rich gold discovery at Kazubazua, on the Gatineau River which was promptly named "Quebec's Klondyke," has proved to be a temptest in a teacup, according to a report of an investigation made by Theo. O. Denis, the Quebec Superintendent of Mines, who affirms that none of the assays of the samples colected by him at Kazabazua showed any trace of the precious metals and all analyses gave blanks in gold and silver.

ANOTHER ARSON CAMPAIGN, BUT LESS DAMAGE

ABOUT THIRTY FIRES STARTED AND GAS MAINS EXPLODED IN ENGLAND SATURDAY NIGHT.

THREE ARRESTS MADE

LONDON, May 23. Canadian Press. — Another arson campaign, supposedly of Sinn Fein origin, occurred on Saturday night between 10 o'clock and midnight when about 30 fires were started ,mostly in the farm buildings and haystacks, but in some instances motor garages and timber yards in the neighborhood of Jarrow, Wallens-end, Stockton and Middlesboro.

The gas mains over the bridge between Jarrow and South Shields exploded, temporarily depriving the towns of light. Some of the suspected incendiaries were fired at by farmers and three arests were made. The Valley water boards main outside of Stockton was blown up, causing serious floods. In most cases the fire damage was comparatively small, but the engineering plant and sawmill at Stockton were destroyed.

THE WEATHER

Some particularly hot weather for the month of May was experienced on Saturday last, and to a lesser degree on Friday. On Friday the thermometer went up to 86 degrees, and on Saturday, about two p.m., to 91 degrees in the shade. This was a higher temperature than was experienced any day last summer, and as far as I can find out, is a record for the month of May. The lowest on Saturday night was 70 degrees—as warm as we usually get it during the hottest nights of midsummer. Sunday brought a decided change ,and the highest for the day was but 79. The rain which has fallen, while not heavy, will do much good. It totalled during the night .44 of an inch. It will be remembered that May of last year was unusually dry, the total for the whole month being but .28.—W. P.

TO-MORROW'S HOLIDAY.

Victoria Day perhaps of all the holidays in the year, seems to illustrate best the love of Canadians for athletic games and for the great outdoors. To-morrow, if the weather conditions are favorable, thousands of young Canadians will be participating in baseball and lacrosse and football and many thousands more will be eager spectators of the various games. From the Atlantic to the Pacific all Canada will spend Victoria Day in the open air. There will be picnics and bathing and sports everywhere and Canadians will learn again the beauties of their country and appreciate afresh the return of summer and its pleasures. It is this getting out for an airing and a fresh grip on things that makes Victoria Day, the first holiday of the summer, so beloved by all Canadians. May it be a happy day for all Peterborough is the Examiner's wish for its readers.

THE FISH SUPPLY.

It is announced that the Ontario Department of Game and Fisheries intend to place two hundred and fifty million fry in the public waters of the province next summer in pursuit of their campaign to keep up the fish supply of Ontario. The attention of Mr. Thos. Tooms and Mr. E. N. McDonald, members of the Legislature for West and East Peterborough respectively, is called to this announcement, while the Trent Waterway Association, the local Fish and Game Association, the Stoney Lake Cottagers' Association and other similar bodies would also do well to study the programme for next summer and decide upon a joint effort to see that the waters of this district receive a fair share of the fry In the past we have been given some attention from the. Department, but the supply of fish alloted to this district has not been as large as the popularity of the Trent waters warrants, perhaps because we have been backward in davancing our claims ,and have made no proper effort to impress our case upon those in authority. If the various bodies interested would unite in this effort the Kawartha Lakes and Rice Lake would be replenished properly and the much-talked-of fish hatchery for this district might be secured. Why not get together?

AN IMPORTANT MATTER.

It must have been rather a surprise to the members of the House of Commons that it was left to Isaac Pedlow, the Quaker member for Renfrew, to protest against the working out of the new regulations which require imported goods to be stamped with the name of the country of origin as it affected ladies' stockings. Mr. Pedlow seemed to be worried because women would not be able to wear short skirts if their stockings were stamped where the mark would show It was a feature of the new budget that had escaped the attention of the Minister of Finance, and naturally the problem advanced by Mr. Pedlow caused some deep thought. Where could ladies' stockings be stamped so that the marking would not be visible? It was a serious matter and more than one member scratched his head in perplexity. At last somebody—the news despatches do not furnish us with the name of the bright-minded individual—suggested the toe as an appropriate marking place and the crisis was passed. The question now naturally arises was Mr. Pedlow's anxiety inspired by a natural desire to cultivate the woman vote—or otherwise. But joking aside, there are discussions in the House that make the people wonder how the members ever had nerve enough to increase their indemnities.

THE COMING CENSUS.

The decennial stock-taking of the Canadian people—in other words the census—begins on June 1st. The importance of this collection of statistics and information it is hoped will so impress itself upon Canadians generally that there will be whole-hearted co-operation and the work of those engaged in the census will be made as light as possible. Not only will the representation in the Federal parliament for the next ten years be determined by the coming census, but the information obtained will be of the greatest service in other ways. There need be no hesitation in answering the questions that will be asked. The information is confidential, for every one engaged in the work is under oath of secrecy and no personal matter will be given publicity, while statistics collected are not to be given to the taxation officials or used as the basis of any other administrative action. Lieut.-Col. Jos. Mills is in charge of the work here ,and his staff of returned soldiers are receiving their final instructions. It is to be hoped that they will be courteously received by the citizens of Peterborough and given every assistance in their important task.

EMPIRE DAY

MONDAY is Empire Day! Throughout the breadth and width of the United Kingdom, the Dominions and the colonies, the story of the greatest Empire on the earth will be told. From the days of Elizabeth, with her famous Empire builders, Drake and Raleigh, the triumphs of Wellington and Nelson later on, down to the last and greatest war of all and on to the present day, the story of the Empire will be unfolded and wreaths will be placed on centopaths and statues. It is a fitting thing that the deeds of the army and the navy through the centuries of Britain's might should be recounted. It is more fitting that the ideals which animated those deeds should be dwelt upon with greater stress, since the whole foundation of the Empire rests upon those ideals. British graves in every corner of the globe are silently eloquent as to the price of those ideals, the price of Empire.

To the children of Canada the commemoration of Empire Day is of more than passing significance. Canada's contribution towards the maintenance of the integrity of the Empire has been a large one. Tiny white crosses on the veldts of South Africa speak of her sons' endeavors there. Tiny white crosses in Palestine, Salonika, Switzerland, Austria, Germany, Holland, Belgium, France and England tell more eloquently than words the story of her largess in treasure and in blood. From the Pacific to the Atlantic, from the Arctic to the hair line boundary on the south ,live men who have come back. How often in the silence of the night their minds hark back to the gas-reeking fields of St. Julien; the stark nakedness of Sanctuary Wood; the grim horror of international trench and the craters of St. Eloi; the slimy chalk of Poziers; the dread depths of Death Valley; the shell-pocked slopes of Vimy Ridge and Farbus Wood; the shambles of Lens and Avion, the sinister watch of the Green Grassier; the hell of Passchendaele; the rush, the fury, the relentlessness of the last Hundred Days at Amiens, Arras, the Canal du Nord, Cambrai, Denain, Valenciennes and Mons! Deep down these men and those who loved them well know how high is the cost of the building of an Empire, know what Empire means.

In a few years' time these men and women will have to pass on to their children the standard they have borne so well. These men and women of to-morrow are the children who on Monday will parade your streets, whose shrill treble in song will voice the virtues of their land. Now is the time to inculcate in them those ideals for which their fathers and their brothers fought, for whose attainment their mothers, and their sisters shed many bitter tears. In a measure those ideals—protection of the weak, steadfastness for the truth and for right—have been reached. The realizing of those ideals, the advancement and augmentation of Canada's share in the building up and the knitting together of the component parts of the Empire is a work of Empire-building that Destiny may have reserved for those very children. Put the soft petal on war and doughty deeds. Preach statesmanship and the unbounded benefits of fearlessness for all that is right, all that is truthful, all that is beautifu, the spirit and the soul which made possible the British Empire of to-day. —Sunday World.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

It is a good thing Empire Day is observed in the schools. Elsewhere too little attention is paid to the significance of the occasion.

Unemployment may be serious, but theer seems no lack of money in Canada. $50,000 was bet on the first race at the Woodbine Saturday.

The Scottish footballers resemble some newcomers we have met. They started kicking on their first day in Canada.

Life is just one thing after another. Next week we'll have to tell the census man all about ourselves.

A speaker in Yamaska the other night said the eyes of the whole country were on that county. And only a few short months ago the politicians were telling the people of Peterborough that very same thing.

Did you notice that it was the people who a few days ago were complaining about the cold weather, were the first to kick about the heat on Saturday.

WISE AND OTHERWISE

European diplomacy seems to consist of holding conferences to reach compromises which entitle each party to claim that it won.

Peterborough is rather out of the limelight since the bye-election. Almost any town up and down the country has had a juicy murder or two at least.

Another type which will soon be found in the insane asylums is the poor man who tried to read all the books written by those who managed to get past the doorkeeper at the Peace Conference.

The boy who wanted the years rolled back to the days when pirates roved the Spanish Main grew up to find a parallel to his dream, minus the romance, in the operations of the war profiteers.

In our opinion, about the biggest shock a historian could receive would be to hear one of these blue-ruin whimperers vapouring about the present age being one of unrivalled decadence.

Usually figures bore us, but we really would like to know what the average increase in hat size is that results when a young man returns to his home town after spending a few months in a large city.

Psychologists are trying to figure out why it is that most people nowadays do so little thinking. Well, between absorbing the details of the latest divorce scandals and puzzling over the latest murder mysteries a large part of the population really hasn't any time to think.

Let's give the men who are handling the country's finances some credit by assuming that they sit up all night to figure out new methods of taxation instead of new methods of economising on public expenditures because they wish to impress upon us that it is better to give than to receive.

Although he had been assigned to cover the "dead line" the enterprising new cub reporter was determined to dig up stories with unusual angles. One day he returned from the morgue and left a story with the following lead, on the city editor's desk:

"It had always been the great wish of Mr. and Mrs. John J. Jones that they should die together. One-half of this wish was granted last night when Mr. Jones passed away at his residence, 113 Blank Street."

Summoning the cub to his desk, the city editor declared gravely, "My boy, you have missed a great coincidence in this story."

Aghast, the cub inquired what that might be.

"Why, they were married on the same day," replied the editor, as he resumed his copy reading.

THIRTEEN-YEAR-OLD BRIDE SHOT STEPDAUGHTER

FARMINGTON, Missouri, May 23.—Folks in the Ozarks hooked up their mules to-day and drove into town to hear Letta Parson's story in court.

Most everybody in the Ozarks knows about Letta.

For thirteen years she was nobody's child, just running around Farmington and the countryside without father or mother. She never learned to read or write—Letta is just "po' white."

Then, shortly after her thirteenth birthday John Parsons, a wood chopper, married her and brought her home to mother his two children.

Killed Stepdaughter.

Letta is being tried for the alleged murder of one of them. Five days after she was married she blew the top of six-year-old Lilly Parson's head off with a shotgun.

The child bride—she didn't look it to-day with her skinny pigtails and her scared eyes—says she didn't "make out" to kill Lilly. She says she was playing on the floor with the children and didn't know the gun was loaded.

But Johnny Parsons, her other stepchild, says she killed his sister because she acted up when Letta was trying to comb her hair.

"Gettin' Even?"

Then there are folks who say Letta isn't such a child as her 13 years indicate. They say she was "gettin' even" with John Parsons because he trapsed around with another woman right after he had married Letta.

There is a chance the Ozark folks who know all about Letta won't get a chance to hear her story. The case may be heard behind closed doors. But they are leaving spring planting and coming away because, although Letta is a queer, little creature—wild as a hawk, some say—there are a passel o' folks who feel right sorry for her.

She always was "nobody's child."

A fool and his money are soon parted, we know, but every now and then we find ourselves wishing we had a little money we could be foolish with.

CONCERTED DRIVE FOR SUNDAY "BLUE LAWS"

WINONA LAKE, Ind., May 21.—A concerted drive for Sunday laws and a move to check wide-open Sabbath agitation has begun here.

The Sunday law question was thrown before the Presbyterian General Assembly when sessions opened here. e

"The battleground of the church is on the field of the Christian Sabbath," the Christian Sabbath Committee stated in a report to the conference.

"One of the outstanding features of the campaign," said Dr. Bowlby, "is the nation-wide propaganda for a wide-open Sunday, backed by powerful amusement and sporting organizations bent on making the Christian Sabbath the big money-getting day of the week.

"We have already warned the leading ministers of the country that the most dangerous movement against the American Sunday in fifty years is now in progress. This should stir the blood of every American patriot and certainly every American Christian.

"Close up the movie theatre, shut the gates of the ball parks, lock the doors of many places of business and this paramount problem of the churches will be well on its way to solution."

Dr. Bowlby expressed the view that the blue Sunday would come. He said those who once predicted prohibition would never come now say America will soon be as dry as a "sun-kissed chip."

LOVE!

By KATHERINE MOORE

THE "MOVIES" BARRED.

Chapter 57.

After the news of O. J. Darwood's death Leonard was home very little. Night after night I had to spend alone.

A few times after he had telephoned and I knew that he would not get in until late, I would put on my hat and go down town to the moving pictures I had to do something to take my mind off the venomous thoughts that were constantly tormenting me.

It seemed to help me. For a few minutes my awful thoughts were crowded out by the excitement and interest of the picture. But even this little respite was soon spoiled for me.

I always sat near the rear in the orchestra where there would be little chance of being seen. And I made it a point to hurry out as soon as the performance was over. Trouble always isolates one. I felt very much alone these days. I dreaded talking to anybody. Then too I knew what people would be apt to think if they should see me alone so much in the evenings. I knew that they were already suspicious and prying.

One evening I had hardly been seated when a man and a woman came in and took the two seats next to me. The picture was on and I could not recognize them in the darkness. I thought nothing of it—someone always had to sit next to one Presently a purring voice that I immediately recognized as belonging to Mrs. Russell chirped into my left ear.

"Why, it's Mrs. Allen—of all people. Where's Leonard?"

I was thankful for the darkness.

"He is working awfully hard," I explained and then hated myself for bothering to make an explanation.

Jack Russell leaned across and said a few words to me. He was so much nicer than Mrs. Russell. I felt sorry for him. But after all perhaps he did not want my sympathy. At least all their difficulties were small and petty. For a minute I wondered if I would be willing to change places with them.

It was the first time that I had seen Mrs. Russell since her delivery of that unpleasant duty. The atmosphere still smouldered a little after the fire. It reminded me of two cats whose fur still stood on end long after the combat.

"I haven't seeen Leonard in ages," Mrs. Russell probed, still trying to appear innocent behind her purring voice. "Why don't you come over some evening?"

I did not explain why but I felt she knew perfectly. I knew she would not urge me. I had a sudden desire to slap her in the face. I feigned interest in the picture and we lapsed into silence.

Of course they insisted on seeing me home. I tried to think of some way to elude them but it was hopeless.

Mrs. Russell even suggested stopping for ice cream and I simply could not get out of it. I hated being with them but it would be much worse to betray my feelings. I knew that Mrs. Russell was taking great pleasure in tormenting me. I felt that she could look right into my soul.

I hated some women's methods. I could understand Mrs. Darwood's badness better than Mrs. Russell's code.

I tried to talk and appear natural, and quite at ease, but I was only too thankful when they finally said good night to me at the door.

"Run over and see me," Mrs Russell called back coyly. I did not dare trust myself to answer her with the murderous thoughts I was trying hard to control.

That would be the end of my trip to the "movies." I dared not take the chance again of being seen out alone evenings. Fate was blocking me on every side. It seemed as if Mrs. Russell was trying to see how difficult and uncomfortable she could make me. I hated her unmeasurably.

My poor body was so full of such deadly emotions these days that I wondered what the end of it all would be.

To-morrow: A New Situation.

ANGLO-AMERICAN FRIENDSHIP GETS LONDON SUPPORT

POST CONSIDERS IT GUARANTEE OF WORLD PEACE.

LONDON, May 21. — (Canadian Press).—Two very cordial editorials were included in this morning's newspaper comment on the address made by George Harvey, United States Ambassador to Great Britain, on Thursday night. They were published in the Morning Post, which never had any use for the League of Nations, and the Daily Telegraph. The Post said that Lloyd George's assertion that the "future well-being of the world depends mainly upon Anglo-American friendship and co-operation," was true, and continued: "This being so, the League of Nations cannot, as we have been told rather frequently, be the only and unique guarantee of the future peace of the world." Referring to Anglo-American relations, the paper declared that nothing in recent years more thoroughly dissipated misunderstanding than President Harding's memorable statement of the United States policy to which Mr. Harvey referred during his speech.

OFFICIAL REPORT FARM CONDITIONS

The following is a summary of reports made by the Agricultural Representatives to the Ontario Department of Agriculture:

Fall wheat has been making growth, and is now showing a very fair top.

Clover has picked up recently, and also presents an encouraging appearance.

Spring grains were rushed in during the fine weather lately prevailing, and in most counties the work is practically over. The newly sown crops are looking particularly well on tiled fields.

Some more early corn and potatoes were got in during the week, and land is now being prepared for roots.

In Essex some early tomatoes have been set out already.

Elgin states that less tobacco than usual will be grown this year.

Leeds says that more land than usual will be given to millet and buckwheat.

Orchards are in unusually full bloom, generally speaking. Apples particularly are promising. Lincoln, however, reports that peach leaf-curl is beginning to show on some trees. Norfolk states that black currants and gooseberries have been injured 85 per cent. by frost.

Lennox and Addington states that more farmers are going into strawberry growing this year as a side line for supplementing the low prices now prevailing for ordinary farm produce.

Cattle have been doing well on pasture, although Haldimand states that a number of farmers are selling stockers and feeders rather than keep them over. Simcoe reports that one co-operative shipper sent out six carloads of fat cattle last week.

Huron reports that two carloads of cattle, two of horses and one of hogs were shipped from Clinton on Saturday. The Huron representative also says: "I attended a sale yesterday and saw cows bring from $90 to $95, which a year ago would have brought $150 to $175."

Milk production is increasing in quantity, but there has been a considerable drop in prices and in the value of milk products. Frontenac says that milk is selling in that county for $2 a cwt. Recent sales of cheese were made at from 15c to 17½c a lb., while Frontenac reports that 14c was boarded with no sales. Creamery butter has been realizing only 35c and below at various points during the week.

Hogs have been selling at from $9 to $10.50 a cwt. Three carloads were shiped from Napanee during the week.

While little pigs have been disposed of in Brant at $16 a pair, Lennox and Addington quotes sales at $12 a pair.

During the week hay has been selling all the way from $11 to $23 a ton.

Farm labor is easier to procure than for many years, owing to lack of employment in other lines of work. Frontenac claims that the general quality of the labor offering is also much improved.

BAN ON AT THE BEACH.

Atlantic City Police Bar Daring Surf Togs.

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., May 21.—The local police are determined this year to suppress radicalism—in bathing suits.

One-piece costumes will not be permitted and women bathers must wear stockings.

"The stockings must extend above the knee and overlap the low extremity of the bathing suit," it was explained at Police Chief Miller's office. "The skirt must also be a real skirt; not a mere ruffle."

"Only a few bathers had to be warned last year that their costumes were extreme," it was said. "In all but a couple of cases one warning by a life-guard was sufficient. Two of the women were defiant and were fined. But they had been drinking."

What this year's bathing suits lack in scantness, however, will be offset by daring color combinations, judging by dealers' window displays.

A BIRTHDAY GREETING

To a Dear Friend.

My friend, on this your natal day,
To you my warmest wishes stray,
And from my heart ascends the prayer
That Christ may keep you in His care;
Defend from Satan's every wile,
And bless thee with fair Fortune's smile.

May Earth's most treasured joys combine
With every gracious gift divine,
And cloudless sunshine on thy way
Beam brighter till Life's closing day.
Nor better can I wish you here
Than Love returned and Friends sincere.

But if should wasting illness be
Thy lot by His allwise decree
May Christ's sweet presence round thy bed
Peace, far beyond all knowledge, shed.
Or gloomy clouds of sorrow lower
His love make bright the lonely hour.

May Heaven prolong for many a year
Thy life of kindly service here.
And calm, serene, Life's ebbing tide
Down to Death's silent ocean glide;
Then may thy anchor safe be cast
In Heaven's eternal port at last.

WATER FRONTS PILFERED.

MELBOURNE, Australia, May 21.—(Canadian Press).—Following upon the disclosures made recently concerning the practise of pilfering on Australian water fronts, the Federal Government has appointed a Royal Commission to investigate. The inquiry is to be thorough, covering cargoes from overseas and interstate cargoes and including the establishment of necessary measures to prevent pillaging in the future.

Fringed dresses galore are worn everywhere in New York. The most popular are of crepe de chine fringed in four rows from the hips down, while another has a tunic deeply pointed at the side and finished with a six-inch fringe, the body section of both frocks being plain.

The New Laws

on teeth cleaning—five of them

Dental science has adopted new laws on teeth cleaning. They mean whiter, cleaner, safer teeth to those who follow them.

Millions employ these new methods, largely by dental advice. Now this ten-day test is offered to show every home the results.

1—Fight the film

The first law is to fight film—that viscous coat you feel. It dims the teeth and causes most tooth troubles.

Film clings to teeth, enters crevices and stays. Old ways of brushing do not end it. So few have escaped some form of film attack.

Film absorbs stains, making the teeth look dingy. It is the basis of tartar. It holds food substance which ferments and forms acid. It holds the acid in contact with the teeth to cause decay.

Two methods now

Two ways are now known to fight film. Able authorities have proved their efficiency. Leading dentists everywhere now advise their daily use.

Both are embodied in Pepsodent — a scientific tooth paste. They keep the teeth uniquely clean and also highly polished.

Three other laws

Modern starchy diet also calls for other helps to Nature. So every use of Pepsodent brings these three desired results.

1—A multiplied salivary flow. 2—Multiplied starch digestant in the saliva, to digest starch deposits that cling. 3—Multiplied alkalinity of the saliva, to neutralize mouth acids which cause tooth decay.

Thus Pepsodent fights two deposits—film and starch—which may do great harm to teeth. Also the destroying acids, and in Nature's way.

Brings a new era

These mean vast improvements on old methods. In fact, old methods brought the opposite effects. Pepsodent has introduced a new era in teeth cleaning, and millions now enjoy it.

Now we urge that you send for a 10-Day Tube. Note how clean the teeth feel after using. Mark the absence of the viscous film. See how teeth whiten as the film-coats disappear. Feel the other good effects.

Then decide by what you see and feel. Do this for your own sake. Cut out the coupon now.

SHATTERS MYTH ABOUT COMPASS

CARNEGIE INSTITUTION EXPEDITION FINDS NEEDLE DOESN'T ALWAYS POINT NORTH.

SAN FRANCISCO, May 21.—The Carnegie Institution of Washington has completed what might be termed an X-ray of the earth's atmosphere, and has forwarded from here all data in regard to the experiment, made through the use of the non-magnetic ship Carnegie, which arrived here recently.

The X-ray was in the form of observations of compass and other magnetic variations on all the earth's oceans, these variations being traced in the atmosphere by two specially designed instruments called a deflector and magnometer. These tracings later will be shown on a chart, which might be likened to the X-ray plate. This chart will be made available to every navy and merchant marine on earth as a guide to navigation, as nearly exact as it is humanly possible to make such a guide.

So intensively and penetratingly did the instruments work, aided by the utter absence of magnetic attaction by eveything else on the vessel, that certain degrees of longtitude in the Indian Ocean were found recently to be radically different from the best chart and projections available up to that time. In some instances these differences amounted to several minutes.

Play of Variations.

There is a constant play of these variations over the magnetic fields, and the cause of this play of change, although exhaustively theorized on, never has been exactly explained, the Carnegie scientists said. These magnetic changes make the ultilization of the non-magnetic ship and its instruments and the reparation of new charts constantly necessary. For instance, a mariner using a magnetic chart prepared by the institution ten years ago could not steer as accurately as if he consulted a chart prepared only a year ago.

The non-magnetic ship made an absolute myth out of the general belief that the compass always points directly north. It added convincing proof to the scientific theory that there are only two longitudinal lines, one of them extremely irregular, where such a thing occurs. Whenever a ship crosses one of these lines the compass will get the direct polaric influence. Everywhere else it will point either east of north or west of north.

Not United States Enterprise.

On the present voyage, which began in October, 1919, she touched at French West Africa, Buenos Aires, the Island of St. Helena, Cape Town, Ceylon, Australia, New Zealand, Papeete, the Fanning Islands and San Francisco.

The Carnegie was compelled to use her auxiliary gas engines a number of times to take her out of equatorial calm belts and help her drive through storm-tossed seas when the sails were in danger of blowing away. This engine contains the only magnetic influence on board, but it is so far away from the recording instruments that it has absolutely no effect on them.

THE REQUEST.

Life, silver-haired, held in his hand two keys
To mystic doors—the doors of Pain and Bliss.
Desire, big-eyed, coy, touch'd his fingers: "These!"
She softly begged, and knelt his hand to kiss,
Craving the boon to bring from Faith's fair land
Rare tokens—just for him! to live alone
For him; impulsively she clasp'd his hand,
Vowing to crown him king of her heart's throne.
Life bowed, and paused; then, silent, gave the key—
"Ah! now I'll know the joys of Heav'n," she said:
"The sunset winds shall linger oft near me
And wand'ring fragrance breathe above my bed."
She opened wide the door—by Bliss beguiled,
Tasted the cup—gazed long at life—and smiled.

—Aileen Ward.

It was one of those rare occasions when Sir E. Marshall Hall, the lawyer, lost a case, and he didn't feel so very happily over it.

"Your profession doesn't make angels out of men, does it?" said a medical friend, teasingly.

"No," retorted Sir Edward, "that's one thing we leave to you doctors!"

TERROR UNKNOWN ON LAND FOUND IN SEA BATTLES

THOUSAND DEATHS IN ONE SHELL BLAST.

CHICAGO, May 21.—The modern naval battle is different from everything else in the world in this, that nowhere else do men, banded together in such numbers and wielding such powers, contend with one another at so extreme a peril to themselves. It is more ringed with terror than any other human experience. Each man commits himself with a thousand others to a vulnerable shell, and launches it into an arena sheeted and bolted with flame and concussion. He can do nothing for his own safety, but only for the common purpose.

In addition to the ordinary risk of destruction to the human unit, there is the almost equal risk of destruction to the naval unit; and a single stroke of a single weapon might wipe out a thousand lives. This is warfare at the point to which Christian civilization has so far exceeded in bringing it; and no Pagan ingenuity has invented anything more hellish than this—that man's floating home and citadel can in a second be turned into a weapon to destroy him by the thousand.

Risks Sailors Take.

For if his floating tabernacle be dissolved it is not to a hospital or dressing station that he passes, but into the cold sea; hospitals, patients and surgeons in the very act of operating are tumbled into it, too; the fight sweeps on; in ten minutes it is three miles away, and there are no stretcher-bearers in the sea. He may die by a blow, by asphyxiation, by flaying, by boiling, by mutilation, by drowning, or may be instantaneously consumed in a glory of mauve flame, accompanied by the thunder of a detonation which he never hears.

With all these varieties of death in visible and audible demonstration around him, and instantly menacing himself, he has to continue quietly and coolly doing the exact work for which he has been trained—work, perhaps, with delicate and scientific instruments such as other men handle in the calm of a laboratory or observatory. And often he has to continue this work in what he knows is the last minute or two of earthly existence left to him, and to do it as carefully as if his career in the navy depended on it.

Seamen as Heroes.

It is the supreme glory of the naval training that thousands and thousands of men are always ready to do this as a matter of course; do it easily, desire to do it. There is no one to whom life is sweeter than to the average sailor, whose mental habit it is always to be looking forward to pleasure; and there is no one who can so utterly put aside the preoccupation of safety and lose himself in his immediate duty.

How else, indeed, would such events as the battle cruiser fight at Jutland, or the attack of our destroyers after it, be possible? If men thought of themselves in such a situation, their demoralization would be indescribable, and the names of Queen Mary, Invincible, and Indefatigable would be names of terror. Instead of which it is the high morale which is indescribable, and these names are names of glory.

One has some right to say this who for the whole of a grey January morning knelt in the Lion's top while the storm of that concentrated bombardment gradually envelon-ed it, and had nothing else to do but consider it and give myself to its sensational embrace.

Mind Numb to Terror.

I remember that the increasing uproar and concussion came gradually to have a stupefying rather than an exciting effect; the mind became numb to mere terror, while it remained actively interested in what was going on.

Many mere details are registered on my mind and memory; the smell and taste of cordite smoke, as the wind drove it back upon us from the mouths of our guns; the great sounds about us, which I must admit to be among the noblest sounds I have ever heard, so enormous were they, so deep and trembling. No sharp or musically distressing note had place in that orchestra; it was as if the whole heaven were rolling up in a scroll of thunder.

I remember also the silences; lulls that came in the very heat of the battle, when sometimes for five or ten seconds there would be no sound but the soft brushing of the wind and its harp-like harmonies in the rigging, until a salvo from our guns would split the heavens again and, like its echo, the hollow growl of the enemy's guns would fill the gap between it and the next.

WILLIAM HALL

The funeral of William Hall was held on Friday afternoon from his late residence in Fenelon Township, Victoria County, to Eden Cemetery, in the Township of Mariposa. It was one of the most largely attended funerals in the history of the district, the presence of so many friends testifying to the general respect and goodwill which was felt for Mr. Hall by all those who knew him. Rev. Matthew Wilson, of Cambray, conducted the services, and the pallbearers were William Webster, Daniel Gillis, John Irwin, Wm. Sinclair, of Fenelon, and Samuel Bagshaw and A. F. Craig, of Lindsay. These were old neighbors and friends of the deceased, who, although born in Smith Township 86 years ago, was the second last of the pioneer farmers of Fenelon. Among those present at the funeral were Mr. Robert Hall, Collector of Customs: Mr. and Mrs. R. R. Hall, Mr. W. G. Ferguson, Mrs. Andrew Hall, Mrs. M. Brealey, Mr. Robert Mulligan, Mr. R. W. F. E. Davidson, Mr. W. H. Taylor, Llewllyn Hall, W. T. Hall, and R. M. Glover, of Peterborough; Miss Annie McKibben and Mr. Samuel McKibben, of Lakefield; Mr. and Mrs. Edgar Lytle and Mr. H. J. Lytle, of Lindsay; Mr. and Mrs. John Brandon and others of Fenelon Falls. All the members of Mr. Hall's family were at the graveside, including the sons, Adam and T. H. Hall, who came home from Francis, Sask., for the funeral.

MORE STRIKES IN APRIL THAN MARCH

418 More Workers Involved--4143 More Working Days Lost.

OTTAWA, May 20. — A review of the industrial conditions in Canada during April, 1921, contained in the current issue of the Labor Gazette shows that the loss of time on account of industrial disputes was greater during March, 1921. There were in existence at some time or other during the month 19 strikes involving 3697 work people, and resulting in an estimated time loss of 57,071 working days, as compared with 26 strikes, 3252 work people and 52,928 working days in March, 1921; and 44 strikes, 6,349 work people and 84,099 working days in April, 1920.

On April 1, there were on record nine strikes affecting 1,159 work people. Ten strikes were reported as having commenced during April as compared with seven during March, 1921. Three of the strikes commencing prior to April, and six of the strikes commencing during April, were reported terminated, leaving ten strikes, involving 1,577 work people on record at the end of the month.

Corn Enders

The old sort—and the new

Corns used to be treated by fakers.

But science has found a better way to treat corns. And millions have adopted it.

The modern way is Blue-jay—liquid or plaster. A famous chemist perfected it. This great surgical dressing house prepares it.

Blue-jay is applied by a touch. The corn pain ends instantly. Then the corn is gently loosened. In a little while it comes out.

It is folly to pare corns or to treat them in unscientific ways. This new way is ending some 20 million corns a year. It will end yours any time you let it.

Prove this tonight.

Ex-Governor Catts, of Florida, Sought By Police

PENSACOLA, Fla., May 21.—Federal officers to-day joined state authorities in a search for ex-Governor Sidney J. Catts, wanted on criminal charges by both the state and federal governments.

Catts was yesterday afternoon indicted by a federal grand jury on two charges of peonage. The former governor is alleged to have pardoned Ed. Brown and John Henry Rogers, negroes, from prison sentences and to have later made them work for him involuntarily.

An indictment was returned against Catts by a state court grand jury several weeks ago, charging malfeasance in office during his term as chief executive of the state In this charge he is alleged to have accepted money for granting a pardon.

Since he was first indicted state officers have conducted a search in several southern states, but as yet have been unable to locate him. He left Florida, it is said, ten days before the state charge was made.

GEDDES DENIES PROPAGANDA.

Doubts Britain Will Ever Bar Boxing or Liquor—Edison List Bores Him.

CHICAGO, May 21.—Prohibition, boxing, the possiblity of war between the United States and England, the British labor situation and Mr. Edison's now famous questions were discussed by Sir Auckland Geddes, British Ambassador to the United States, who, with Lady Geddes, stopped in Chicago on his way to Washington from a trip through the Southwest.

"Prohibition appears to have been very beneficial to the small towns of this country," said Sir Auckland, "but in the big cities—

"What I find strange to me is that boxing is prohibited in some of your States. Why, in England every schoolboy is taught the art of self-defence. I boxed a good deal myself. I don't think we'll ever have prohibition of either boxing or liquor in England.

"Mr. Edison's questions? Oh, I found them rather boresome, don't you know? Really, nothing much in them.

"Yes, the British labor situation is acute; no doubt about that, but it is purely an economic question and must be solved with economic measures. The miners must have more pay. There is no sign of revolution, no Bolshevism ,and few of the miners are extremists."

At this point a reporter murmured something about British propaganda and the possibility of a war with Great Britain. The British diplomat laughed.

"Pooh," he said. "There is about as much chance of a future war between your country and mine as there is of a trip to the moon."

He would be considered prejudiced, he thought, if he said anything to offset the anti-British propaganda now flooding the United States. Great Britain, said Sir Auckland, had not spent a cent on this side of the water for propaganda and did not intend to.

Sir Auckland saw in the appointment of Colonel Harvey as Ambassador to the Court of St. James an indication of the growing friendship between the two great branches of the English-speaking family that was bound to cement the cordial relations promoted by the war.

Sir Auckland will leave for Washington to-morrow.

HALTS "BIRTH OF NATION."

BOSTON, May 23.—The Municipal Licensing Board, of which Mayor Peters is a member, suspended for an indefinite period the license of the Shubert Theatre. The action was taken on recommendation of the Municipal Censorship Board, which had viewed privately a motion picture which was to have been presented.

A large delegation of negro men and women appeared earlier at the City Hall to protest against the picture, on the ground that its presentation of scenes in the South under reconstruction after the Civil War would arouse racial antagonism and might provoke disorder. The picture, "The Birth of a Nation," was shown in this city several years ago.

A Review by
WALTER LITTLEFIELD
(In the New York Times.)

La Guerra Alla Fronte Italiana—Fino All Arresto Sulla Linea Delia Piave E Del Grappa. In two volumes, 8vo. With three maps. Milan: Fratelli Treves.

The great war wrecked several political and military reputations. The subsequent attempts of the victims to rehabilitate them have not always been conducted in good taste—resentment, when coupled with a sense of injustice suffered, often finds expression in the very things of which it complains, public betrayals and personal vindictive. Since Caporetto, General Count Lulgi Cadorna, Chief of the General Staff and Commander-in-Chief of the Italian armies in the field until that event, has been on the defensive. He now explains rather as a duty to the Italian people than to himself. He does so without any disclosure of secret documents or personal animus. Apparently he has not, without reason, been accused of being an aristocrat—in the Greek sense.

But Count Cadorna has many friends who can hardly allow his objectively dispassionate story of "The War on the Italian Front" to go unsupplemented. Already they have begun to offer appendices. The well-known writer, Tommaso Siliani, repeats in the columns of the Messagero, five days after the publication of the book, a conversation he had with the Count which is not complimentary to either the diplomacy or the military acumen of Sir William Robertson, then Chief of the British Imperial Staff. Signor Siliani reports Cadorna as saying to him, on Nov. 23, 1917:

Lacked Reserves.

"After the Bainsizza offensive, the British and French desired that I should continue the offensive. It was a question not of continuing, but of initiating, a new offensive. Hence, I answered that I was short of munitions and reserves. Thereupon Sir William Robertson sent me an almost insolvent (quasi insolente) telegram, saying that if I wished to sustain merely a defensive attitude, he begged me (mi pregava) to order the immediate withdrawal of the sixteen batteries which I had only asked for an offensive. I replied immediately and ordered the withdrawal of their batteries. As to the tone of his telegram I gave him to understand that on the Italian sector of the war I alone was responsible before my King and my Government."

Apparently this is only the beginning. Before long we may expect to learn why it was that Lord Derby, now British Ambassador at Paris, suddenly threw up the War Portfolio at about the same time when he learned that dispatches sent him by Cadorna on the eve of the Caporetto disaster, reminding him of his engagements made months before, had not been delivered until after the Germans had annihilated the Second Italian Army.

Studies Situation.

The first ninety pages of the book are devoted to the political and military situation in Italy previous to her entering the war. The Government, inspired by the King and the people, and led by Salandra and Sonnino, were striving to free the country from the non-interventionist policy of Giolitti and his followers, who were vitally interested in the economic and financial grip that Germany had on the Peninsula. In the Villa Malta sat Prince von Bulow ready to sacrifice the territorial integrity of the Dual Monarchy in order to retain that grip and keep Italy out of the war. Perhaps it was only the memory of the Lusitania and the Belgian atrocities which made von Bulow so thoroughly unpopular and caused him to fall. At any rate, Italy was utterly unprepared for war. The influence of the non-interventionists, and what Cadorna stigmatizes as the 'idol of the Treasury," had at least prevented unpreparedness. Italy utterly lacked the field equipment for an offensive: of mobile mid-calibre and large calibre guns, she had none. Since the days of Marius in the first century, B.C., all her military plans had been defensive. Only Napoleon, a foreigner, had conceived for her offensive operations and by them had reached Klagenfurt and even Vienna. All plans had to be changed from the defensive to the offensive. By the aid of his resourceful lieutenant, General Porro, Cadorna changed them. His equipment, however, did not permit him to devise an offensive in both the Trentino and against the Isonzo.

Italy Delayed.

Cadorna had expected to take the Austrians by surprise. The rupture of the Triple Alliance on May 4 should have been simultaneous with a declaration of war. But Italy did not declare war until May 23. By the terms of the Treaty of London, signed April 26, she was obliged to enter the war before May 26. Considering the political situation, it is no exaggeration to say that had Italy attempted to enter the war before she actually did enter it she would not have come in at all. The Salandra Government would have been repudiated by the Chamber, and Giolitti, back in office, would have accepted Vienna's maximum concessions conveyed by Prince von Bulow. As it was, the resignation of Salandra on May 13 inspired a mighty demonstration which denounced it. And Salandra, borne back, figuratively, on the shoulders of the Romans, received a carte blanche for war from a chastened and repentant Chamber six days later.

Doubts Arose.

It was quite natural that in these circumstances the Austrians could not be surprised. It was quite natural, too, that serious doubt should arise in London and Paris as to whether Italy would really keep the engagements entered into at London, on April 26. Hence it is not surprising that the interested chancelleries, as well as pro-ally officials in Rome, should have attempted to inform the Italian people how far the through the Salandra Government, were committed to a war policy.

Cadorna blames France for publishing the date by which, in accordance with the agreement at London, Italy would be obliged to enter the war or turn the treaty into another "scrap of paper." But it was all along a secret of Polichinelle. Since May 4, Vienna had known that war was inevitable, unless, indeed, von Bulow and Giolitti could perform a miracle. Thus Austria needed no information, but the Italian people and those sympathetic abroad did need it. Only four days after the signing of the London pact the New York Times contained a Rome dispatch, the heading of which read: "Italy and Allies Now in Agreement—Concerted Attack to be Made on Central Empires if She Enters the War—To Become Member of the Quadruple Entente," &c. At the dedication of the Garibaldi monument at Quarto on May 5, Gabriele d'Annunzio was allowed to announce the rupture of the Triple Alliance Treaty. And there was also that little town, Chiasso, on the Swiss frontier, by which pro-ally officials simultaneously contrived to let their friends abroad know the truth or falseness of the "official" dispatches emanating from Rome. Taken simply as an Italian word, chiasso means a vehement denial.

In these circumstances it would appear that Cadorna is unjust and unreasonable in his charge against France.

Sealing Passages.

After the first plunge in the direction of the Isonzo, the remaining part of 1915 was spent in sealing up the passes from the Trentino, and the winter of 1915-16 in reorganizing the army in order that it might take the path toward Vienna which Napoleon had blazed over a century before. But the Austrians caused this to be postponed for another year.

The first signs of a projected enemy offensive became obvious in March. In the Trentino the Austrians began massing an army, while Cadorna continued his preparaations on the Isonzo front. By May the Austrians had 200 battalions in line in the Trentino with 2,000 guns, while the static Italian Army consisted of 182 battalions and 851 guns. Still Cadorna continued to hasten his work on the other front, until the storm broke on May 14.

Threatened Lines.

Austria drove into the Region del Veneto and reached Asiago on the Sette Communi, thereby threatening the lines of communication with the Isonzo front on the southeast and Italy's great metallurgic centre on the south. It was nothing more than a threat, however. Although it proceeded further than Cadorna believed it would, it could have been nothing more. In June the Austrian invasion was flanked from the Val Sugana in the northeast and from the Astico in the southwest and rolled back with the loss of nearly 100,000 men and half of its artillery. Still, it suspended the Italian plans on the other front, causing Cadorna to mass a great army along the edge of the Plateau of Asiago, which, however, it was unnecessary to employ.

Cadorna was ill-served by his intelligence; nevertheless, his reasoning, both tactical and logical, showing that the Austrian offensive, if it came, would be abortive, was sound. It is now known that Hindenburg strongly opposed the sally. Cadorna knew, and he presumed the Austrians knew, that Brusiloff was about to begin his great offensive on the Russian front. His strategic position, too, was impregnable. Still, lacking correct knowledge of the enemy's strength and being utterly unable to fathom the idiosyncrasies of the Hapsburg military mind—just as Hindenburg was—his plans for a great offensive over the Isonzo were, for the time, rendered naught.

Allies Conferred.

In January, 1917, there was an Inter-allied Conference at Rome. According to Cadorna there was only one man there who understood the enormous importance of the Italian front — enormous and decisive — Lloyd George—"Un solo uomo aveva compreso l'importanza enorme del Lloyd George." The British Prime Minister, later seconded by the British Minister of War, was for sending to Italy from 300 to 400 guns of all calibres, and several Anglo-French divisions until a decision had been reached. Later at Paris Cadorna became convinced, after a conversation with General Nivelle, that he could hope for no such support, and that, on the other hand, the British and French General Staffs believed that a decision would be reached by the co-ordinated plan they were then formulating for an offensive in Flanders and Champagne. The sudden withdrawal of the Germans in March disarranged that plan, although Nivelle, at terrible cost, tried to retrieve it in April. Cadorna could appreciate Nivelle's position, for he himself was hampered by politicians at home.

Helped by British.

With the miscarriage of their plans on the western front, the allied General Staffs encouraged Cadorna to proceed. Sixteen batteries of heavy English guns were sent him. So in August Cadorna, with promises of more help, began the great offensive across the Isonzo. He almost severed the Austrian line in the Chiapovano Valley, secured the slopes of Monte Nero, from Piezzo to Tolmino, and crashed over the plateau of Bainsizza Santo Spirito on a ten-mile front with a penetration of seven and a half: in the south only the volcanic pile of Hermada, already under fire of the British heavy mobile guns, blocked the way across the Carso to Trieste. He was thirty-five miles from Liabach, and before him, with the Chiapovano Valley once crossed, lay the road traversed by Napoleon.

The manoeuvre cheered all the allied armies and their people. But military men knew it was still indecisive, and could only be made decisive with heavy guns. But this was not the worst. The twelve-and-a-half-mile sector at Monte Nero was exposed to attack from Piezzo and Tolmino, where the Italians had been prevented from crossing the Isonzo by the bridgehead formed by Monte Santa Maria and Monte Santa Lucia, still held by the enemy on the western bank. The positions on the Bainsizza were exposed from Monte San Gabriele and Monte San Daniel on the south.

Did Not Fear Blow.

Then came Caporetto. Up to the last minute the allied chiefs would not believe that there was to be a monstrous Teutonic blow leveled at the Isonzo front. They would not credit the news that told them of the arrival of forty German divisions, of the arrival of von Bulow. And because Cadorna believed these things and ordered the armies to take the defensive, they recalled the ninety-nine Anglo-French guns,

RESULTS ASTONISHING, SAYS ONTARIO WOMAN

Mrs. Saunders, of Hamilton, Dreadfully Run Down After Operation Gains 55 Pounds By Taking Tanlac.

"Tanlac has been a godsend to me and I can never praise the medicine enough for the wonderful blessings I have received from its use" said Mrs. Ada Saunders, of 258 Rosslyn Ave., Hamilton, Ont., wife of a well-known salesman.

"I suffered so from a complication of troubles that four years ago I was forced to undergo five operations and was confined to may bed for three months. I fell off from one hundred and forty-five to only a hundred pounds in weight and was in a terribly weakened condition. I had no appetite and suffered dreadfully with indigestion, bloating and palpitation of the heart. I was bothered a lot with constipation and headaches, too, and at times became so dizzy that I could scarcely see. My back was unusually weak and pained me so bad I could hardly bear to stoop over. My nerves were completely upset and I would lie awake most of the night unable to sleep a wink.

"One of my friends advised me to try Tanlac and I began improving from the very start. My appetite picked right up and it wasn't long until I was rapidly gaining weight and strength. It may sound astonishing, but it's true nevertheless, Tanlac has not only put me in the best of health, but has actually built me up to one hundred and fifty five pounds in weight, which makes me ten pounds heavier than I was before my troubles started. I feel fine all the time now and my gratitude toward Tanlac is unbounded."

Fire, originating from spontaneous combustion in a bale of hay or straw, in the top of the stables of William Stock and Son, 283 Sherbrooke street, at 5.20 on Sunday morning, gave the Fire Department a stiff battle and did considerable damage.

The fire was under control 20 minutes after it broke out, but was not completely extinguished until 7:30. The entire fire fighting equipment and 1800 feet of hose, laid from three hydrants, was used.

The horses were all saved but the building and contents suffered .

"Here Comes The Bride!"

Everybody wishes her well! Happy and radiant she starts out on life's adventure. She should have health to begin with. Good looks in woman do not depend upon age, but upon health. You never see a good-looking woman who is weak, run-down, irritable, out of sorts, fidgety and nervous. Headaches, backaches, and troubles of that sort are all destroyers of beauty. Men do not admire sickness. It is within the reach of every woman to be well, healthy and strong if she will take Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription.

TORONTO, ONT.—"Less than a year ago I was in a very poor state of health; my back ached dreadfully and I could scarcely drag myself around to do my housework. I started to take Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription and I cannot praise it too highly for the great benefit I received. My backache and pains disappeared entirely and I soon was restored to perfect health. GENERAL LUIGI CADORNA, CHIEF ITALIAN STAFF which had been in Italy since spring, and countermanded the dispatch of 102 French guns already on their way. But Cadorna's order for a defensive was not obeyed. General Cappello, the hero of Gorizia and the Bainsizza, still sought new laurels for the Second Army, and thereby brought about its annihilation.

Cadorna frankly expresses his doubt as to whether the enemy's offensive would be limited to the exposed positions in the Piezzo-Molmino zone or extend to the sea. He was not left long in doubt. From the Piezza von Bulow entered the valley of the Natizone; behind the bridgehead south of Tolmino he crossed the Isonzo and entered the valley of the Jurio, enveloping the Piezzo-Tolmino zone and exposing the rear of the Second Army on the Bainsizza and that of the Third Army on the Carso. The Third, under the Duke of Aosta escaped; the Second, under Capello, did not.

Obliged to Retreat.

To prevent being cut off, the armies in the north mountains were obliged to retreat, and when the Fourth Army was out of the Val Sugana, Von Bulow repeated the Austrian drive upon the Asiago of May, 1916, but this time without any danger of being flanked. Von Bulow's offensive was launched on Oct. 24, and as "from hour to hour, all precipitated, and the situation grew always more tragic," and, having in vain tried to stop the enemy's rush by a line pivoting on Monte Maggiore, on the 27th, Cadorna gave the order for a general retreat on the Tagliamento River, not with the hope of remaining there, but only to pause until the defenses of the Piave could be prepared. Beyond the Piave he would not retire—"do qu non si passa!"

And so in the month that followed allied reinforcements arrived, but they had orders to dig in on the Adige, to which their chiefs believed the Italians must ultimately retire, and so surrender Venice, the Pearl of the Adriatic. But the Italians did not retire to the Adige, they clung to the Piave and so saved their Venice. On that line the Anglo-French detachments ultimately joined them, making possible Vittorio Veneto of the following year, which proved, although under another commander, Cadorna's faith in the Italian front as a means to decisive victory. It will be remembered that the Austrians capitulated on Nov. 4, and the Germans not until a week later. The Austrian armies had been shattered beyond all recovery and scattered to the four winds. The German armies in formations proceeded to evacuate Belgium and France in an orderly manner.

Confirmed Theory.

Yes, Vittorio Veneto confirmed Cadorna's theory as to the decisive character of the Italian front. But that was not the only Napoleonic precept he had faith in. When Napoleon was fighting both Germany and Austria, he left Moreau on the Rhine; he himself fought in Veneto; Carnot the connecting link, thus making, under one commander, one army and one battlefront, and being able to move on the inside of an arc while the enemy was forced to move on the outside. From the very beginning Cadorna believed the same thing, but constantly argued for, at least, a Council of Allied Army Chiefs and for co-operation between the western and the Italian fronts. There would have been no Caporetto, he dismally observes, "if there had existed then the inter-allied Military Council which had its birth a month and a half later, but only as a consequence of the sad experience of Caporetto."

THE ANNIVERSARY AT MURRAY STREET

DR. O, C. S. WALLACE WAS THE SPEAKER YESTERDAY.

The 75th anniversary services at Murray Street Baptist Church yesterday were well attended. Every pew was filled at both services, and the music rendered by the choir was exceptionally good. Mr. Asa Huycke gave a splendid solo at the morning service, and the choir of 40 voices was augmented in the evening by violin and organ accompaniment.

Dr. A. C. S. Wallace, of Montreal, formerly Chancellor of McMaster University, now pastor of Westmount Baptist Church, preached at both services. He is a strong and virile speaker, and handled his sermons in a masterly manner. His morning text was taken from Colossians, second chapter, part of the 20th verse: "Christ liveth in me," which the speaker characterized as Paul's mystic slogan. Paul was accustomed to speak confidently always, and when he made the statement that "I have been crucified in Christ," he meant that his self-will, his self-love, his vicious programme of life had been crucified within him, and Paul was saved to a life in Christ by the crucifixion of self. Taking this as a parallel for the lives of ordinary beings, he considered it from three angles, first, the direct action of Christ upon the soul, in the quickening powers of the Divine Visitor, in the grafting of renewed energy and power on our dead spiritual life; secondly, the re-action of the soul to this direct action of Christ in its adoption of the standards of righteousness and appreciation of the Sermon on the Mount and the Golden Rule of life; and, thirdly, the type of life which may be expected from this direct action and re-action, which does not imply either an extinction of individuality or personality in the person partaking of this experience, or the quality of infallibility which some consider is bestowed upon them, so that we do not become sinless or infallible by getting into direct touch with the Saviour, only, inasmuch as we conform our manner of living and standards of life to the influence of the Master. Christ is the Hand and our life the glove, which has no energy, no shape, no practical use without the guiding mould of the Hand within. The speaker finished his eloquent and inspiring address with the following direct message to the young people of the congregation: "You young men and women, I appeal to you in the name of God, to let Christ come in, so that you can say, 'I have been crucified in Christ, and it is no longer I, but Christ that liveth in me.'"

Evening Service.

For the evening service, the reverend speaker chose part of the 40th verse from the 7th chapter of Luke, "Simon, I have somewhat to say unto thee," dealing with the bringing by Christ of a great new idea to a Pharisee who was not looking for great new ideas and was not concerned with the great new age which had come through the appearance of Christ, a man who was deficient in spirituality and ignorant of the highest morality. Dr. Wallace enforced the idea that many of the problems of this new age can be done most effectively only through knowledge based upon the life of Christ, which grows out of an intimate personal relationship with Him.

THE GREAT HAT UNREST

(By H. I. Phillips.)

"How to pick out a Straw Hat," is respectfully suggested as the title of a book that will bring a fortune to the author. Millions of males blunder along spring after spring, with no technical knowledge of straw hat selection.

They enter the hat stores in May, sensible looking persons, apparently adults of intelligence and discretion, but emerge looking so foolish from the face up that their wives and best friends spend the summer hoping for the speedy return of winter and the Hard Boiled Hat season.

Of course some men look well in a straw hat but they are entitled to no credit. Accidents will happen. The truth of the matter is that next to waiters all men fear straw hat clerks more than any other beings in the world. And all hat salesmen know it.

The salesman follows these cardinal rules:

1. A customer never is satisfied with the first twelve hats shown him; so show him hats that really become him to start with.

2. After the eighth hat cease saying "That looks very well on you, sir," shift to "Now, that is the very latest thing."

3. After the eleventh hat, begin to show impatience; give just the suggestion of a sneer at his indecision, and pull this one, but if you want to know what looks good on you, etc., etc."

4. After the twelfth hat, begin pulling down the Clown Models (old stuff from last season preferred); glare at the customer, look at your watch frequently; then exchange a sickly grin with the salesman across the aisle. The customer is now beginning to weaken.

5. Ask "Where did you get that hat you had on when you came in?" This never fails. The customer is now in your power. Work the old Forcing-the-Hat trick derived from the famous Forcing-the-Card trick; force an impossible bonnet upon the customer making sure that it makes him look like a goof from any and all angles; then exclaim, "Ah, that's it! It certainly does pay to try on all these models. That's what we are here for," etc., etc.

6. If the hat is a $2 lid, say "$8.75." Always send the new straw hat buyer out smiling. Call the other clerks and have a smile on the house and on the customer.

7. Be happy in the knowledge that the man you just sold the hat to is sending hundreds of pedestrians along their way smiling.

CHINESE EGGS ARE NOT IN DEMAND.

VICTORIA, B.C., May 19.—(Canadian Press). — People of British Columbia are not eating Chinese eggs, despite large importations, according to the Department of Agriculture. Thirty-eight carloads of Chinese eggs recently arrived, but they all went through the province to Winnipeg, Toronto, Montreal, New York, Boston, Philadelphia and Trinidad, B.W.I., with the exception of 109 kegs of salt eggs to Vancouver and 25 to Victoria, consigned to Chinese residents. The kegs contained what is known as egg-meat—eggs shipped in liquid form without shells.

CAMPING VACATIONS

Camping, with all its pleasures, is one of the most healthful ways of enjoying a summer vacation. Good fishing, beautiful camping spots, clear, pellucid water for drinking and bathing, magnificent scenery, interesting canoeing routes and all the pleasures that can be derived from outdoor life under ideal climate conditions await the camper in the "Highlands of Ontario". There are literally thousands of lakes, and these are linked together by streams affording the canoeist a choice of highways such as are to be found in no other section of the continent. While camping in this beautiful wilderness, campers may still be in touch with the outside world, if they so desire, and within easy paddling distance of the outfitting stores, postal and telegraph offices, enjoying fresh provisions and daily mail service. The principal regions most suitable are Lakes Simcoe and Couchiching, Georgian Bay, Algonquin Park and Timagami. For all information apply to any Grand Trunk Ticket Agent or C. E. Torning, D. P.A. Goodyear could make a good looking 30x3½ tire to sell with a profit at $10.00

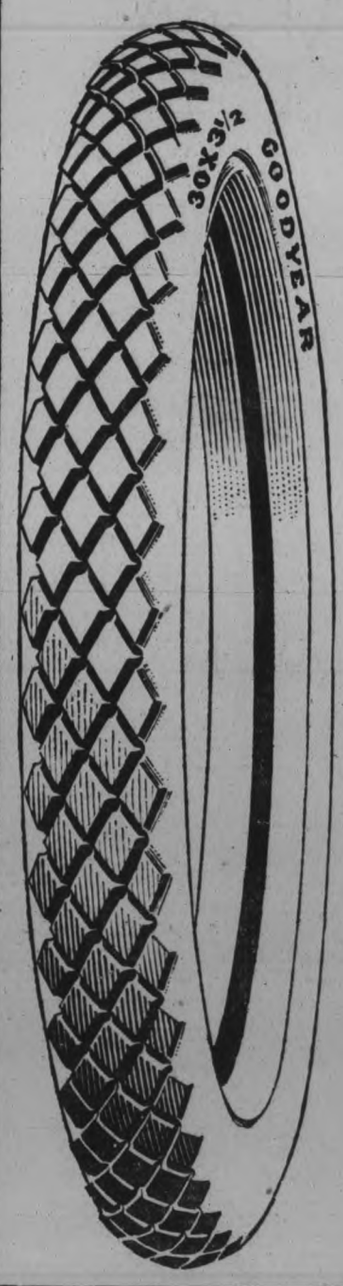
All-Weather Tires are All-Wheel Tires



There are a number of tire buyers to whom we could sell Goodyear Tires by building a very cheap tire.

These men are shoppers—purchasers on a basis of price alone—blind to the true economy of quality and value.

They have been the mark for every brilliant salesman with means enough to manufacture a few tires from the market's cheapest materials.

Such tires have been legion—here to-day and gone to-morrow, only to be replaced by another "morning glory" under another name.

The Goodyear Tire & Rubber Company from the wealth of its experience as the world's largest maker of tires wishes to convey a frank message to every motorist in Canada.

Goodyear could make a good-looking 30x3½ tire to sell with a profit at $10 — but it wouldn't be worth the price — the cost-per-mile would be higher

Motoring, as a business or as a recreation, cannot stand the high cost of low mileage, quick blowouts, annoyance, and frequently soiled clothes.

Over 4,000 Goodyear dealers in Canada are ready to serve you on Goodyear Tires in both Cord and Fabric types, and the new Goodyear Non-Skid Tread 30x3½ Tire.

These tires are, each in its class, the finest, strongest and most rugged tires we can possibly produce.

By their use the minimum of annoyance and expense can be obtained.

WOMEN TO FIGHT NATION'S LEAGUE.

VILNA, April 23. — (Associated Press — By Mail). — The Polish women of Vilna have taken up cudgels against the League of Nations. They shouldered arms last summer and fought Bolshevik soldiers in defence of the city, and they assert they will fight again if the League should attempt to send an international army to police the disputed territory in event of a plebiscite.

Vilna, at present, is occupied by General Lucien Zeligowski, and some 20,000 Polish soldiers, while representatives of Poland and Lithuania, with the League of Nations as mediator, have been conferring with the view to determine the fate of the Vilna district, which is called Central Lithuania by General Zeligowski and his adherents.

Denied Franchise.

The League's Military Commission of Control, which since last fall has been endeavoring to settle the controversy between Poland and Lithuania, until recently made its headquarters in Vilna. The Control Commission has never been popular in Vilna. By a recent decision which denied women the right of franchise, should a plebiscite be held, the Commission came into greater disfavor than ever, especially among the women.

The Commission members contend that the birth records of Central Lithuania are so incomplete that the voting of women would only complicate matters.

It was in consequence of this decision, and to manifest their disapproval, that a crowd of women attacked the Commission's chairman, Colonel Chardigny, and spattered his French uniform with eggs, some of which were not exactly fresh. A few days after this incident, the Commission removed its headquarters from Vilna to Kovno, which is the seat of government of the Republic of Lithuania.

Eight Arrested.

Eight of the women were arrested by the local police authorities, but no date has been set for the trial.

A petition signed by thousands of Vilna women has been sent to the League of Nations, asking for the removal of Colonel Chardigny as head of the Military Commission of Control.

The Lithuanians contend for the Vilna district on the grounds that Vilna was the capital of the ancient state of Lithuania. They claim it also under terms of a treaty of peace with the Soviets signed in Moscow last summer.

The Vilna Poles contend that the majority of the population of the Vilna district is Polish, and that as less than three per cent. of the population of about 1,500,000 are Lithuanians, the state of Lithuania has no just claim to the land under dispute.

Filled With Soldiers.

Vilna's streets are daily filled with Zeligowski soldiers, all of whom wear the Polish uniform. Many of the officers have adopted the Zeligowski Central Lithuania insignia, which is worn on the collar together with the Polish white eagle. The Polish colors are to be seen everywhere in the business section of Vilna on holidays, and in most of the stores and restaurants there are pictures of Joseph Pilsudski, Poland's Chief of State.

NAPLES STATUE OF VIRGIN ROLLS EYES.

NAPLES, May 19.—Naples has been chosen again as a site for miracles and the infatuation and superstition on the part of its population know no bounds. The latest miracle is that a wooden statue of the Virgin has expressed its satisfaction with its new surroundings by repeatedly moving its eyes. The old historical little church called Madonna del Rosaria had followed the destiny of many others, and some time ago had been converted into a baker's and confectioner's shop and workroom.

The wooden Madonna was removed and placed in an out-of-the-way corner. Finally, the baker's contract coming to an end, it was decided to reconsecrate the church and re-establish te 400-year-old statue on the altar.

On this being acomplished, according to sworn eyewitnesses, the miracle of the statue repeatedly blinking its eyes occurred. At once there was a determined rush of visitors, with which the police are powerless to cope. Faithful Neapolitans from far and near are visiting the church by tens of thousands, and the pilgrimage shows no signs of abating.

PRINT OF RUBBER HEEL CAUSES ARREST AS THIEF

New Employee of Dress Manufacturer Accused of Loft Silk Robbery.

NEW YORK, May 19.—The imprint of a rubber heel, according to the police, resulted in the arrest yesterday of Edward Groverstein, of 267 Madison street, in connection with the theft of a quantity of silk goods from the loft establishment of Joseph Winderbaum, manufacturer of dresses, at 13 East Twenty-sixth street.

When the robbery was reported to the East Twenty-second street police station Detective John Wilson made a careful examination of the loft. He discovered a piece of paper bearing the letter-head of the company lying on a table. The sheet bore a faint mark that the detective thought might have been made by the imprint of a rubber heel. Closer examination disclosed the faint impression of the words, "Canton, Mass." and "Plymouth, Mass.," surrounded by small circles.

Detective Wilson decided that the heel that made the mark was unabout thirty in number, were assembled.

According to the police, the heels of Groverstein, who had been in the employ of the company only a week, corresponded to the imprints on the paper. He was locked up in the East Twenty-second street station on a charge of burglary.

MOSQUITOES BAD AT STONEY LAKE

Returning from Stoney Lake, Peterborough parties bring with them stories of mosquito attacks which would be incredible if they were not born out by countless huge-sized lumps on ankles, arms, head and neck. The little lancers got in a busy week-end at the lakes, evidently much to the discomfort of the cottagers who were up for the first time. Sleep is indeed a blessed thing, but it was next to impossible to get a wink of sleep, for when they were not in action, the unrelenting busy bodies were massing for another attack. It is said that the mosquito forces have been unusually active at Chemong too. In the city the mosquitoes have been plentiful and aggressive enough, but nothing like they have been at the lakes and also down the river it is stated that there is infinite multitudes of the summer pest.

Buckwheat Griddles.

Mix two cups of buckwheat flour with two cups of milk, two teaspoons each of sugar and baking powder, teaspoon of molasses and a little salt. Bake in small cakes on a well-greased griddle.

Stuffed Potatoes.

Lima Bean Salad.

Chill two cups of lima beans that have been cooked. Either the canned or dried beans may be used. Serve on lettuce with the following dressing. Mix in the following order a tablespoon of sugar, the same of salad oil, or melted butter, a teaspoon of dry mustard, a heaping teaspoon of cornstarch, salt and pepper. Then add one beaten egg and three fourths of a cup of vinegar. Boil until thick, stirring all of the time. Chill.

GEISHA GIRL IN JAP ARMY SCANDAL

GENERAL WHO GAVE WOMAN MIKADO'S CIGARETTES PUT ON "WAITING LIST."

TOKIO, Japan.—A pretty geisha, a bunch of cigarettes, and a more gallant than discreet general in the Japanese army form the ingredients of an incident which has given Tokio and the rest of the empire food for talk and argument for some days. The immediate result was the removal from active duty of General Takayanagi, Chief of the General Staff of the Japanese Siberian military forces.

The trouble started when a Customs officer in searching the baggage of a geisha girl returning to Japan from Vladivostok, found in her baggage a bunch of cigarettes bearing the crest of the Emperor, such as are smoked only by members of the Imperial family or are given as gifts by His Majesty to distinguished persons.

The lady not being such, an inquiry was made, and it was found that General Takayanagi had received the "smokes" from the Emperor and had given a part of them to the girl. A great outcry followed, and the General was promptly placed on the waiting list, despite the fact that he is generally known as one of Japan's most efficient officers and a particularly well-informed authority on Siberian matters.

The geisha gallantly came to the defence of her friend, explaining that, Delilah-like, she plied her admirer with wine to such an extent that he was not accountable for his actions when she obtained the Imperial cigarettes from him. The General explained that as they were celebrating the lady's impending retirement from the geisha profession he thought the occasion suitable for the bestowing of the gift as a proper encouragement in her laudable course.

As might be expected, the Japanese press has filled columns with arguments pro and con, the most interesting comment being probably that contributed by the Yomiuri which bitingly opines that it is a peculiar sort of army discipline which places a general on the waiting list for giving cigarettes to a geisha but has failed to punish anyone for the great tactical blunder which resulted in the great massacre of over 000 Japanese at Ninolaesk last year.

Marshmallow Gingerbread.

Melt a large tablespoon of butter, add a cup of molasses, one egg, a cup of milk, a little salt and two and one-thirds of a cup of flour. Add a teaspoon and a half of soda, a teaspoon of ginger and turn into a well-greased pan and bake twenty-five minutes. Remove from the pan and cut in half. Spread half with marshmallow, cover with the other half and spread marshmallow on the top. Place in the oven to melt a bit

RELIGIOUS JAZZ NOT EFFECTIVE.

Interest Ceases When the Band Stops Playing.

WINONA LAKE, IND. — Preaching of the gospel by sensational and spectacular means is no longer favored by the majority of America's leading churchmen.

Most representative ministers and laymen frown upon what they now call the "ragtime circus" method of conversion.

These points were brought out most emphatically as the opinion of delegates to the Presbyterian General Assembly, who met as the committee on evangelism here today.

This committe, in endorsing conservative methods, not only represented the rank and file of the 1,500,000 members of the Presbyterian church of America, but also the views of many other denominational governing bodies with whom it cooperates and exchanges views.

Quiet Methods Best.

"Our 20,000 converts last year were gained through quiet methods," said Dr. George Mahy, head of the evangelical committee. "We learned that most of the churches found this way the most satisfactory."

The Rev. W. R. Graham, New York, secretary of the committee stated that those who follow a band to church usually leave when the band quits playing.

Sawdust Trail Goes.

"We have dispensed with the sawdust trail and the Pied Piper methods altogether," he said. "Persons who are converted in wholesale lots are not as apt to stick to their church membership as those who accept the faith after a quiet talk, with some good brother or sister."

Graham said new members are now obtained by personal work of church members among their neighbors.

Findings of the committee will be reported to the Presbyterian General Assembly when the annual sessions are started.

VOICE OF THE PEOPLE

Dear Sir: I wish to call the attention of our police to something that is going on in our city just now—namely, young toughs in autos who stop young ladies on George street, and coax them to go for a ride. Some poor foolish girls go with them to their ruin. Surely our police should watch some of these.

Another place I wish to call their attention to is the C. P. R. footbridge which is not safe for a woman to travel on after dark. It is a meeting place for all the toughs of the city. Thanking you, Mr. Editor, for the space in your paper, and hoping this note will do some good.

Mrs. George Carter,
Perry street.

STATUE OF VENUS DE MILO COST FRANCE 750 FRANCS!

PARIS, May 19.—France is preparing to celebrate the centenary of the presentation of the Venus de Milo to the Louvre, and a story is being told of the finding of the famous statue that is in curious conflict with the account published in the latest collection of data in A Century of Archaeological Discoveries. The evidence goes to show that the statue was found in several pieces by a peasant of Melos. French officers were told of the find, examined it and reported the matter to Brest. Brest told Smyrna, Smyrna told Constantinople, and the French Ambassador offered to buy the statue.

A Greek priest, however, had meanwhile purchased statue from the commune of Melos, but had not paid cash. A messenger from the French Legation thereupon tempted the commune with 750 francs, and carried off Aphrodite. The angry priest protested, and the commune was fined 7,000 piastres, afterward reduced by the Sultan at the request of the conscience-stricken French Ambassador at Constantinople. But France kept the statue.

CHURCH PARADE OF S.O.E. LODGE

INSPIRING SERMON BY REV. W. E. COURAGE—VOTE OF THANKS.

The annual church parade of Lansdowne Lodge, S.O.E., was held Sunday evening to St. George's church, Braidwood avenue. The attendance of the members in the parade was smaller than usual; a large number of the older members on account of the longer walk than usual, were taken to the church in auto cars and other members were out of the city over the holiday.

Rev. W. E. Courage, rector of the church, in introducing his subject for the evening discourse, took the opportunity of assuring the members of the Sons of England that on behalf of himself and the members of the church that they were very glad to have them present at their service, this being the first occasion that the Lodge as a body had worshipped in their church.

The sermon which followed was very apropriate to the occasion, the speaker pointing out the various obligations that the lodge had as a body, and the members had as individuals and also the necessity of some great underlying principle besides the payment of sick benefits and funeral expenses in order that a society should be a real benefit to the members and to the community.

During the evening the choir sang an anthem and the service throughout was conducted in a manner befitting the sacred and solemn service of the Church of England, and the members of the Lodge assembled in their lodge room after the service, voted a hearty vote of thanks to the rector and the choir and the wardens of St. George's church for a very profitable and excellent service. A hearty vote of thanks was also given to Bros. R. Tovey, J. Runnett, marshals, and to Bros. J. J. Turner, T. Jackson, J. A. Williams, E. Greggon and Mr. H Manley for the use of their motor cars in conveying members to the church

Acknowledgement of flowers received by Bros J. William J. Comstock and R. Butcher, who were unable to attend the parade on account of illness, was also conveyed to the Lodge.

SOLDIERS' GRAVES WERE DECORATED

Members of the 57th Chapter, I.O. D.E., Honor the Fallen Dead.

A number of ladies of the 57th Chapter of the I.O.DE. in accordance with the Empire observance, went down to Little Lake cemetery on Saturday afternoon and decorated about 150 of the soldiers' graves there with small Union Jacks. A large flag near the entrance commemorates the fallen heroes who have not returned, but who sleep somewhere in foreign lands, their memory living as green in the hearts of their countrymen as that of the boys who rest beneath the cool, soft grass of the Little Lake cemetery, long lullaby. Mrs Wm. Merrell is decorating the graves in St. Peter's cemetery to-day.

HOW TO SPEND THE HOLIDAY IN THE CITY AND DISTRICT

A Varied List of Events Will Feature the Holiday Programme in Peterboro City and the Surrouuding Towns and Watering Places.

PROBS FOR TUESDAY.

The Peter Robinson Chapter I.O.D.E. is holding their opening dance of the season at Chemong Pavilion on the evening of the holiday.

The "open air" street cars will be available all day for trips around pretty Peterborough.

The Murray Street Baptist Church convention will be held in morning, afternoon and evening sessions, with men and women speakers on all branches of young people's work.

THE DAY IN SPORT.

Victoria Day is always a red letter occasion for the sporting fraternity, and to-morrow is no exception.

For those who stay at home there is an attractive programme.

The baseball fans can see a City Juvenile League game at Riverside Park at 10 a.m. between St. Peter's and the Lakeviews, and in the afternoon have a chance of witnessing a double header at Riverside Park, the Y.M.C.A. clashing with Wm. Hamilton's in a City League game, and Westclox and Cressman's meeting in a Mercantile League fixture.

The soccer devotees have nothing to worry about, for the afternoon of Victoria Day provides the final game for the Gordon Cup between the two old rivals, the C.G.E. and Caledonians. The game is called for 3 o'clock at Nicholls Oval.

The Peterborough Central Ontario League team will spend Victoria Day in Cobourg, where they will pry the lid off the League season. Many Peterborough fans will motor to Cobourg for the game.

Peterborough's lacrosse team will also be away from home playing the Norwood-Hastings team at Norwood.

CAMPBELLFORD'S BIG DAY.

In the celebration of Victoria Day throughout this district, Campbellford has prepared probably the biggest programme of sports and amusements. Their holiday card is made out in three parts, with something doing in the morning, afternoon and evening. The main event in the afternoon at the Fair Grounds has been arranged by the Fair Board, of which Mr. Alex. Hume, a farmer of Seymour Township, is President. Fred. Kellar, who has charge of the races, has interested many of the horsemen of the district and a big entry list is promised. Campbellford never stints itself in the purses it offers for races, and the several Peterborough horses that were shipped over the week-end will get all kinds of competition.

FIRST LACROSSE GAME.

The lacrosse game between Havelock and Campbellford will be the first played in the Trent town in six or seven years. The game has come back strong, and from the present outlook Charlie Nadoo's team has a good chance of winning the district. Both these teams have been practising for weeks, and should give a good exhibition of the National game.

Sir Adam Beck Coming.

Other features of the programme need not be enumerated, except the evening concert under the direction of Mr. and Mrs. Cowell and the presence of Sir Adam Beck, who will doubtless visit the Hydro-Electric Commission's new power plant at Rainey's Falls and will also give an address at the Exhibition Grounds in the afternoon.

KEENE'S WAR MEMORIAL.

The people of Otonabee Township have issued a general invitation to the citizens of Peterborough and their other neighbors throughout the district to attend the unveiling and dedication of the memorial to the Otonabee men who died in the war. The ceremony will begin at 2 o'clock in the afternoon, and will be marked by dedicatory speeches and eulogies of the men in whose honor the memorial has been erected. In the morning the children of the township school are holding their first annual picnic at the Exhibition Grounds, and in the evening at 5 o'clock the first game of the East Peterborough League between Zion and Keene will be started.

For those who do not motor to either Campbellford or Keene, or both these places, there are two G.T.R. trains, one leaving at 8.25 a.m. and the other at 12.20 p.m.

NORWOOD EN FETE TOO.

Norwood has a celebration of its own, including a lacrosse game between the Peterborough Intermediate team and the combined Hastings-Norwood team.

STONEY LAKE OPENING.

Victoria Day opens the holiday season at Stoney Lake, and many of the cottagers will make their first trip of the season to their summer homes. The usual train and boat service will be provided.

Innumerable picnics have been advertised. The annual outing of the Salvation Army will be held to Hiawatha on Rice Lake. The boat leaves the George Street Wharf at 8 o'clock. Another picnic is announced to take place at Scott's Corners. Among the attractions at this Monaghan gathering will be boxing matches according to the bills, which state that "boxing gloves will be provided. Come and learn how to take and give punishment."

HONEST LANDLORD REFUSED HIGHER RENT.

Apparently An Exception, According to the Reports of Protesting Tenants.

Page Diogenes boy and tell him he needn't bring his lantern, for the radiant honesty that enhaloes the honest man discovered on Saturday night would pale the lantern's feeble light into invisibility. The old cynic is well aware that the world is full of rent gougers, the last of the profiteers and some say the worst. Heads of families who have of late been lying awake at nights, facing the approaching date of the expiration of their leases, and having no other house in sight, these men declare that some landlords have lost all sense of real estate values and that rents have become intolerable. Against the chorus of such angry protests, the following minor incident stands out in bright relief. This man is a small householder, who, having a house to rent, decided that $25 a month was a sufficient rental for it. In fact, he was satisfied that he was getting a liberal return on his investment. He had no sooner made a bargain with a tenant, and the agreement was not an irrevocable one, than another anxious house-hunter offered him $30, and was surprised when he refused the larger sum. The man "who owns his little home," to use an aldermanic expression, may not find anything remarkable in this incident. His worries are about taxes rather than rents, but those luckless citizens who complain that they are being "chivvied about" by landlorlds with notices of higher rents, and who bluntly suggest that the landlords should "get a write up," whatever that is, these men will quickly note the virtue in the action selected for recommendation to old Diogenes.

AT THE ALLEN.

Robert Hedrick, a four-year-old youngster, has an important role in "The Woman in His House," the First National Picture which will begin an engagement of three days at the Allen theatre to-day. Bobby plays the part of a little boy who has been stricken with infantile paralysis. His acting is declared to be one of the outstanding features of the attraction.

Mr. Brock ws 75 years old and a man of sterling character, respected and loved by a restricted circle of friends for Mr. Brock for all his inherent fine qualities did not seek prominence but lived quietly enjoying the friendship of the few rather than of the many. He was a son of the late Rev. James Brock, who at the time of his death in Kingston was the oldest living Methodist in Canada and would have passed the century mark if he had been granted another birthday and he had charge of George street Methodist church in 1864. A great many all black costumes have been noted on Fifth Avenue during the past week, following the Paris vogue for dull black, and the coat and dress have been noted for these more than the suit, with black hat, gloves and slippers, but biege or grey silk stockings to lend the only contrasting color touch.

New York notes that short ostrich feather boas are being used to complete modish costumes.

WALL STREET

NEW YORK, May 23.—(Canadian Press)—The strength of Mexican Petroleum, which opened at a gain of 1 1-8 points and immediately extended its rise to three points, was the only noteworthy incident in preliminary dealings on the stock exchange to-day. General Asphalt, Sumatra Tobacco, Central Leather, Virginia Carolina Chemical and some of the rails also showed moderate improvement. Motors and specialties, embracing food, leather and equipment shares, were fractionally lower. A substantial reaction in British remittances from last weeks' final quotations was the feature of the Foreign Exchange Market.

Mexican Pet remained the dominant feature of the morning, increasing its lead 4 points. Pan-American, Geeral Asphalt and Tidewater were among the other strong oils. Bethlehem, Republic and Crucible Steels rose one to 1 1-2. Tobaccos one to 1 3-4 and American Smelting, People's Gas, American Linseed, Bosch Magneto and Famous Players one to almost two points. Buying of Rails was restricted to standard pacifies and coalers. Junior issues showing little of their recent activity. Some disappointment was felt at the firmness of money rates, call loans holding at seven per cent.

The market made further upward progress at midday, rails becoming more active with shipping and coppers. Motors were the only backward issue, locing 1 to 2 1-2 points on selling, which concentrated in Piere-Arrow, Common and preferred and Studebaker.

Further losses were sustained by the motor group later impairing gains among the oils and rails. Call money declined to 6 1-2 per cent. The closing was irregular.

CHICAGO GRAIN.

CHICAGO, Ill., May 23.—(Canadian Press.)—Highest prices yet yet season were reached to-day for July delivery of wheat. Hot dry weather and extremely unfavorable crop reports gave a big advatnage to bulls and induced heavy buying in which exporters appeared to be participating. Commission houses sold freely at times but the offerings were readily absorbed Opening quotations, which varied from a 1-2 decline to a 2 3-4 advance, were followed by a moderate general set-back and then a sharp advance all around.

Corn hardened with wheat, notwithstanding huge arrivals of corn here. After opening 1-4 off to 3-4 cents higher the market sagged a little more and then scored gains all around. Oats parallelled the action of other cereals, starting unchanged to 1-2 lower, July 41 to 41 3-8 and later making a general advance. Provisions were firmer with grain, despite lower quotations on hogs.

LIVESTOCK MARKET

TORONTO, May 23.—(Canadian Press)—Receipts heavy, trade slow. Quotations, heavy beef steers, $10 to $10.50; butcher steers, choice, $9 to $10; butcher cows, medium, $5 to $7.50; calves $10 to $12; lambs $15 to $17; hogs, selects $9.50 to $9.75.

FOREIGN EXCHANGE.

NEW YORK, N. Y., May 23. — (Canadian Press.) — Sterling exchange weak, demand 3.97 1-4, Canadian Dollars 10 9-16 per cent. discount.

TORONTO.

TORONTO, May 23.—(Canadian Press.)—F. N. Burt extended its advance started last week on the announcement of a special dividend on common stock when trading was resumed on the Toronto Stock Exchange this morning. The stock was early in demand and sold strongly throughout the session at 113, a gain of two points from Saturday. British Empire Steel made its initial appearance, gaining one quarter during the morning after the opening at 31. Riordon started with a spurt opening one point up at 20, but the close was weak, two points down from the high mark, a net loss of one point. Canada Steamships preferred moved up fractionally to 53 1-4.

MAY GO TO WOODSTOCK.

Mayor McIntyre said this afternoon that he wasn't sure whether he would go to Woodstock to-morrow or not for the official opening of the new sewage disosal plant that will be officially opened. Representatives of all the cities and larger towns have been invited for the occasion, but Peterborough's delegation was an uncertainty this afternoon. His Worship had a big day in Brampton last Tuesday and his calendar for this week includes the possible trip to Woodstock, and the reception to the Duke and Duchess of Devonshire on Thursday at Government House, Toronto.

Ald. Hamilton's opinion was there was little to be gained in sending a deputation to Woodstock because City Engineer Parsons, who is in Otawa on a visit, could not accompany it.

"Retail Prices Down" —Barries, Ltd

From May, 1920, records show prices not only stopped going up, but they began coming down.

Wholesale prices are down from 30 per cent. to 50 per cent., according to the various commodities used in the index by the Bureau of Labour, Dunn's and Bradstreet's.

Although retail prices were never as high in proportion as wholesale prices, they, too, are down somewhere around 30 per cent. on most things, and in many cases more than half.

Most economists agree that we will not be back entirely for some time to pre-war prices, and it seems fair to assume that prices to-day are nearing a stable level. In fact, in some lines that "slumped" too quickly, prices are stiffening and advances are being made on account of scarcity—notably in this, the case in many lines of Furs. All the recent Auction Fur Sales, in New York, Montreal, St. Louis and London, England, show advances from 10 per cent. to 50 per cent., and in one case 80 per cent. advance.

Never for a moment do we let up our determination to hold prices down to a minimum. Every day we refuse to buy merchandise where prices still seem to be held too high. With every new purchase of goods at lower rates, our retail prices have gone down to the new bases, the whole store being on the new replacement basis every week.

With our regular stocks of Furs and Ladies' Wear on the new low basis of prices, we would suggest the saving in many lines by purchasing now—saving which we cannot, in the nature of things, continue to give, because of rising values for raw materials, especially in Furs and some Silks.

We are striving to make this Store a real service to this community, as we very well know the public ever distinguishes between the true and the false—the real value of a service offered through a careful scrutiny of the markets, the present value of cash in its buying power and the correct judgment of qualities based on long experience.

We will not let any one pay us a dollar for which we will not give them a dollar's value.

Your Winter Furs Stored and cared for during the Summer Months. Perhaps they need some slight repairs or Remodeling. We undertake all this kind of work for you.

The Cost of Uncompleted Calls

The cost of handling a call that we are unable to complete is often as great as where the parties have actually conversed.

Operating labor has been expended and circuit time consumed just as if the party called had been located.

The "Report Charge" covers a portion of this expense. It applies when the person called is not available, or will not talk; or when the right telephone address has not been given and the person called cannot be reached within one hour; or if he refuses to talk.

The rate for a "Report Charge" is about one-fourth the "Station-to-Station" rate.

By careful study of your long distance needs, you can ensure profitable use of the service.

Every Bell Telephone is a Long Distance Station.

PREM. MEIGHEN A NATIONALIST

Not as Aggressive, However, as Borden and Rowell and Some Publicists.

FOREIGN AFFAIRS

Largely Unfamiliar to Him — Will Represent Canada Well at Premiers' Conference.

By M. GRATTAN O'LEARY.

"THE great statesmen of both political parties in Canada have contributed to the progress through which we have reached our present status. Speaking only of those who have passed away, I may allude especially to John A. Macdonald, George Brown, Alexander T. Galt, Georges Etienne Cartier, Edward Blake, John S. D. Thompson, and last, but not least, Wilfrid Laurier. I believe the present prime minister (Mr. Meighen) will stand as strongly for our full autonomy and all our constitutional rights as any of his predecessors."

Sir Robert Borden, who spoke the foregoing words in the Commons the other day, apropos of Mr. Meighen's coming attendance at the London Conference of Premiers, had ample ground for his confidence in his successor's guardianship of our autonomy. For Mr. Meighen, notwithstanding that he has been represented as an Imperialist who believes in centralized control, is in fact a thorough-going Canadian who puts Canada first, as much a Nationalist as Sir Robert Borden himself. This does not mean that he is careless of our position in the British Commonwealth, or dissatisfied with our present status. It means simply a belief that to be a good Canadian implies no antagonism to being a good Imperialist, that it is possible to love Canada without being hostile to the Empire, that, in truth, the two things are not antagonistic, but complementary. "Imperialism," he told the Imperial Press Conference last year, "is Nationalism rightly understood." It was an acute and compressed way of summing up the creed of the Canadian autonomist; and one suspected that it was shrewdly aimed at some in the conference to whom Imperialism was a vastly different thing.

Not Aggressive Nationalist

MR. MEIGHEN, however, is not an aggressive Nationalist. He would not agree with constitutional writers like Mr. J. S. Ewart and publicists like Mr. John W. Dafoe, that eternal vigilance is the only guarantee against Imperial centralization, and he probably does not go as far as Sir Robert Borden or Mr. Rowell in holding that we possess all the attributes of a nation. His view is rather that our position as a British dominion is satisfactory, that it is all we should want it to be for the present, and that, taken as a whole, the Canadian people are very little concerned with external or imperial problems. This view he set out clearly not long ago when he wrote:

"Our position, both at home and abroad, gives no cause for alarm. Our place in the family of nations is what at the present time we would want it to be. It is compatible with the measure of our development as a British dominion. It meets the aspirations of all who love the empire and see in it the world's best hope. It accords with the desire of the overwhelming majority of the Canadian people. We have the rights of a full-statured dominion within the British commonwealth of nations—and that is the best lot of which I know. We have a distinct voice in the League of Nations, a voice comporting with our individuality as a self-governing people, and at the recent gathering at Geneva our representatives played a part which did credit to the name of Canada. Finally, and, perhaps, most important of all, Canada's share in making happier the relations of the British Empire to the rest of the world, more especially as they concern our great Anglo-Saxon-Celtic neighbors to the south, is becoming more clearly recognized and defined."

In the recent House of Commons debates on the question of a plenipotentiary at Washington and the coming London conference, Mr. Meighen appeared to be eclipsed by Sir Robert Borden and Mr. Rowell. He spoke like a man dealing with a subject regarding which he had some doubts, and it was considered by some as significant that he declared himself "in sympathy" with those who opposed the appointment of a minister.

An Ally in Smuts.

THE explanation is that Mr. Meighen has had little time to study foreign matters, and is comparatively unfamiliar with them. One doubts whether he has ever had time to read the Treaty of Versailles, and it is a safe bet that he has read the platform of his own and the two other parties twenty times for every time he has given a thought to the covenant of the League of Nations. It is not that he is oblivious to the importance of external questions; it is simply that he has been overburdened with the stress of home problems and strife. His comparative ignorance of foreign and imperial matters, however, need not cause fear for his position when he meets his fellow-premiers in London. For Mr. Meighen possesses a wonderful capacity for sizing up a situation quickly and diagnosing it accurately. It is probable that up to the present he has not as much as read the Anglo-Japanese Treaty; but it is much more probable that when he does read it his reading will bring adequate comprehension. What attitude he will take on such a question as well as upon the other problems to come before the conference, remains to be seen, but those who know him best are unanimous in believing that he will take an anti-imperialistic, liberal stand, that he will find his natural ally in that great Liberal statesman, Jan Christian Smuts, and that, above all, he will safeguard well the interests of the Canadian people.

Jacob Gould Schurman

NEW U.S. MINISTER TO CHINA A CANADIAN

DR. JACOB GOULD SCHURMAN, who is to go to China as United States minister, is a Canadian by birth. His forbears, originally Dutch, settled in New Amsterdam when it was a Dutch colony, about the middle of the seventeenth century. Like many other New England families, they found their way to the Maritime provinces and settled in Prince Edward Island, before the revolution.

Dr. Schurman was born in Freetown, P. E. I., in 1854. He wound up his brilliant local scholastic career in 1875 by winning the Gilchrist scholarship at Acadia University, which sent him to the University of London with $500 a year for three years. All kinds of scholarships and study all over Great Britain and Europe followed. No wonder that such studentship won him rapid promotion in the scholastic world. He returned home to lecture in turn at Acadia and Dalhousie Universities but in 1886 he was called to Cornell as Sage professor of philosophy. Six years later he was elected president of Cornell, while not yet forty years old.

This appointment to China is not by any means his first public recognition by his adopted country. In 1899 he was chairman of a committee appointed to investigate and report on conditions in the Philippines and in 1912-13 he acted as United States minister to Greece. But although he became an American citizen he never forgot his British birth and he taught in lectures to Cornell students his belief that Canada and the United States had before them a common international destiny, though he never prophesied political union. A little more than a year ago he resigned the presidency of Cornell after 28 years, declaring in his letter to the board of trustees that the head of a great institution should not retain the post more than 25 or 30 years if he wished to avoid causing debate.

Col. Gooderham Associated With Royal Grenadiers for 36 Years

Again Becomes Officer Commanding Toronto Regiment—He Served as Well as They in the Great War.

COL. A. E. GOODERHAM has again become officer commanding the Royal Grenadiers of Toronto. Thus is resumed a connection that dates back to 1885, the time when the "Grens." were in the final scrimmage against Louis Riel at Batoche. This happened just after young Gooderham had joined the regiment as a second-lieutenant of 24. He offered his services for the campaign but the officers' complement was full without him.

The Grenadiers and Gooderham were for years almost synonimous terms. The colonel gave to the regiment both time and money. One of the notable events with which they were linked took place in 1908 when he commanded the regiment at the Quebec-Tercentenary Celebration.

In 1913 occurred the biggest military dinner ever given in Canada—that was in the days before banquets were given to returned soldiers. To celebrate the 50th anniversary of the Royal Grenadiers as a regiment Col. Gooderham feasted members and exmembers. Altogether, 1,778 officers, non-commissioned officers and men sat down in the Armories.

It is a far cry from the red coats of 1885 to the khaki veterans of 1921 and much lies in between in the way of service. Many a "Gren." proved that the regiment was no peace-time organization. Col. Gooderham was not able to go to the front himself but he gave service of a very high degree nevertheless. He gave up the distilling plant of Gooderham and Worts, without rental, except that the British government paid taxes and insurance to the manufacture of acetone, used as a solvent in the manufacture of cordite. This plant produced 75 per cent. of the acetone made in Canada, which produced 75 per cent. of all the acetone made in the British empire in the war. Under the auspices and advice of the British War Mission Col. Gooderham also established two acetone plants at Terre Haute, Indiana, which produced about 2,000,000 pounds in three months.

The anti-toxine farm of 50 acres with stables, laboratories and animal houses, which Col. Gooderham presented to the University of Toronto, supplied all the anti-toxine for the second British army during the last two years of the war.

Col. Gooderham has much wealth and a big home but he remains a simple man with many friends. It is related that one hot June day, some years ago, he took a friend in his car out to West Toronto to look over a piece of property. On the way home the colonel decided it was too warm to be anxious about work, so he stopped his car at a fruit store, loaded up and drove back to High Park. He and his friend picked out the coolest place they could find and sat in the shade of the trees for the best part of an hour, eating the fruit with the abandon of school boys.

The family to which Col. Gooderham belongs is one of the pioneer families of Toronto. William Gooderham, the founder, came to Muddy York from England in 1832. When he died in the early eighties, aged 91, his children, grandchildren and great-grandchildren numbered no less than 90. The commander of the Grenadiers is the second son of the late George Gooderham, son of the founder, and who also succeeded him as a distiller.

No Need to Worry

"JACOB," squealed Rebecca, "I must run for the doctor! Ikey has just swallowed dat coin you gif 'im!"

"Don't vaste your money, voman," replied Jacob, soothingly. "It vasn't a coin—it was only a brass button."

A REAL BOLSHEVIK COMING TO CANADA

CANADA is going to have a real dyed-in-the-wool Bolshevik in her midst this summer if Leonid Krassin, the commercial envoy of Russia at present in London, keeps his promise to come out and discuss with the Canadian government and manufacturers the possibility of establishing credit with Russia and supplying her with locomotives, agricultural implements, clothing and shoes.

But Krassin does not belong to the long-haired, unwashed variety of Bolshevist. German papers have called him the world's greatest living master of electrification and perhaps the world's most competent organizer in the field of mechanical engineering industries. He was the genius, they say, who with nothing but the wrecks of plants, railroads and bridges in his hands after the revolution and with mobs of untrained workers to depend on, built up for Soviet Russia a system that goes through the motions of industrialism in a lifelike manner. Before the war he worked for the great German scientific firm of Siemen's. He furthered bizarre engineering feats, he planned sensational schemes of electrification, which always won out despite criticism. He has been since the revolution, the business man of Bolshevism. Kerensky and Lenin were in turn delighted with him. Nothing daunts him it is said. He rose naturally to be commissioner of trade and commerce. He has worked out mathematically schemes to pay Russia's war debts and to meet all the claims of the western world. They are as fantastic as some of his plans as an engineer—but many of these succeeded.

Krassin is a Siberian by birth, just 51 years of age. His revolutionary activities began early for as a youth he was expelled from the Technological Institute of Petrograd for taking part in a students' uprising. His first imprisonment came in 1892 when he was arrested while serving in the army.

Birkenhead Climbs On the Water Wagon

Lord Chancellor Goes "Dry" for Two Years, Result of Bet.

CANADIANS who recall the book which Sir Frederick E. Smith wrote after his visit to this country and the United States, in which he gave his views on the prohibition question, will be surprised to learn that as Lord Birkenhead, the lord chancellor, he has "climbed on the water wagon." It comes as the result of a bet. If he succeeds in remaining "dry" for two years he will receive $25,000 from Capt. Frederick Guest, the British air minister.

Capt. Guest, who is very rich, challenged Lord Birkenhead at a recent dinner party to abstain entirely from stimulants for two years for five thousand pounds. In making this offer Guest felt safe, but when, to his surprise, Birkenhead accepted, Guest had no retreat open.

The conditions laid down are most stringent, Birkenhead being restricted to water, tea and coffee. Even ginger beer was excluded because it contains nearly two per cent. of alcohol.

Why Guest fancied he could offer such a big sum to Birkenhead with impunity may be conjectured, and it is understood that he is suffering in spirit from offers from other members of the government to take no alcohol for an even longer period for less money.

Lord Birkenhead, says the New York World, who is a connoisseur in champagne and other wines, is now constantly subjected to the trials of Tantalus at dinner parties, where his friends take every opportunity of tempting him by their ostentatious, unctuous enjoyment of fine liquors—in fact, "to meet Lord Birkenhead, teetotaler," is now the social draw among his set. Some predict that he will compromise for £2,500 at the end of the first year; others think he will find teetotalism so beneficial that he will remain permanently on "the wagon," and become one of the most valuable object lessons for the "pussyfooters."

Silenced the Heckler

HECKLERS do not get much change out of the Right Hon. Sir L. Worthington-Evans, the new British secretary for war.

While addressing an election meeting, a woman, who appeared to be highly incensed at something he had said, shouted out, "If you were my husband I'd give you poison."

"Madam," replied Sir Laming, "if you were my wife I'd take it."

SECRET OF THE PRINCE'S GIFT

How Is It That Heir Apparent Wins Affection Like No Other Man?

ONE EXPLANATION

Others Have Good Looks, Grace, Thoughtfulness, Tact, Etc., But Prince Is Supreme.

"IT'S very strange," said a Scottish journalist in Glasgow the other day. "I've been watching the Prince all day until three hours ago, and now I'm as keen to see him again as any of these thousands of people."

"I know," said another, "I feel like that, too. Every time I see him going about, winsome, boyish, among these masses of madly applauding people, I feel as if cold water were running down my back. I could cry." What is the Prince's secret?

It is clear from the Scottish tour that he is everybody's Prince here as much as ever he was in the Dominions.

Women cried, "My Prince! My Prince! Isn't he lovely?"

Grey-haired business men said, "He's a great lad!"

Shipwrights and riveters who had been known to give cheers for Lenin and Trotsky when other distinguished visitors have passed, cheered him enthusiastically.

Why is it?

Some reasons are plain. He is more bovish and his face is more winning than even his pictures show. No picture can catch the sunny tint of his hair. If the Prince were not the Prince, Douglas Fairbanks and Owen Nares would have to look to their laurels.

The Prince has a finely resonant voice and excelled in delivery any speaker who accompanied him on the Scottish platforms. He is thoughtful and kindly. When councillors have been presented to him he will stroll over to their wives; he is swift to ask an old man to keep his hat on or an audience to be seated. He sees that nobody is left out.

He has humor and great spirits. "That's the stuff! That's the stuff!" he will say in approval, or drag a local tag into his address.

The essential rightness of what he does amounts almost to genius. His initiative in offering, so soon as he saw the unemployed processions in Glasgow, to meet their accredited leaders, robbed the affair at once of any possible ugliness. Many men in his position would have pretended they had not seen the processions.

But you can give a man thoughtfulness, ability, tact, and good looks, and he will be a long way off being the Prince of Wales.

I think it is that the sight of that slim, alert figure carrying heavy responsibilities, facing thousands of people, distinguished and rude, erudite and ignorant, wins sympathy, and that sympathy turns, when he speaks, to intense admiration of his very real ability, his courage. He is often nervous, but always brave, never less than the Prince, but always modest, always, indeed, himself.

Yet having said all this, his dashing love of sport has been missed. He is a man's man as well as a woman's or a statesman's man.

If you have seen him you love him; that is certain. The Prince brings joy and sunshine; that is his secret.

THE CONFESSIONAL: Uncensored Talks With Big Men About Themselves

No. 35—HON. FRANK CARVELL

By EMIL LONGUE BEAU

FRANK by name and frank but not faultless by nature, is a faithful description of the railway judge who used to be called the lord high executioner of the Liberal party. But the most candid statesmen can't be as candid as he was before the cares of office beset him. Once you have been in a government, the secrets you acquire are not all your own. From having been an erupter at large you join the Explosions Company, Limited.

For nearly four years Frank Carvell has scarcely accused anybody of anything. What this sort of restraint has cost him he refuses publicly to confess. He is still a confessor, though; and not frightened to stir things up a bit. He went through the west a few weeks ago, sitting in judgment with his fellow commissioners, whose chairman he is; and pronouncing on certain extra-judicial aspects of his job. He scandalized many conventional souls; and started sundry Ottawa correspondents into rumoring that he will return to his old political love, the symbols of which are a New Brunswick shillelagh and a pair of handcuffs. What he said to me the other day in his room at the Grand Trunk station at Ottawa, was a sidelight on his later speeches, and on a personality which sundry shrewd observers have not been shrewd enough to fathom.

"The changes of this mortal life," he began, "would be beyond belief, if you didn't go through some of them. Were you in the house when I went for Sam Hughes and his shell committee?"

I said I was, and it was the last onslaught he made in the old house before the fire.

"So it was," he said. "When he put up Kyte to finish the attack we were at the Victoria Museum. Well, I went for Sam and his crowd pretty fiercely. One of my answerers was Burrell, who raked up some silly stuff about hay contracts in New Brunswick. As a rule, Burrell is the gentlest man you ever saw; but he put so much spunk into his attack on me that one of the reporters said he was like a sheep that had taken to biting. Afterwards Burrell called me 'that beast.' But Burrell and I were in the same cabinet for two years, and never a cross word passed between us."

"That doesn't exhaust the list of your changes, does it?" I asked.

"Not by a jug-full. Some of them stack appearances against you pretty hard, too. They make it difficult for you to resume cordial relations with old friends, whose goodwill you would like to recover. I'm afraid I'm not much of a dove.

"The surprises of the war will never be catalogued—I mean what you might call the domestic political surprises. Why, I surprised myself at the very start. I am of United Empire Loyalist stock; but the American revolution was a long time ago; and I thought the tinge of that blood was faded out. I live just across the Maine border when I'm at home—this darned place isn't home and never can be. My wife is a Yankee—one of the best. I never supposed that I would want to fight in a British war. But August, 1914, told me I didn't know Frank Carvell as well as I thought I did. Before I knew what had happened I was on my hind legs. I had been in the militia, and I at once offered my services to Sam Hughes. Some snakes said I was doing it for political effect; but the only effect I was after was upon the Germans. We have no son, but we lost a son-in-law at the front, and all through the war I was for the strongest possible participation in it.

"You helped keep the Liberal party up to the mark?" I suggested.

"It doesn't have to be put that way," was the rejoinder. "We were all right as a party from the beginning. The great mistake was that the Government didn't ask Laurier to share the official responsibility from the commencement. They thought it was a war for their glory. Jack Reid has since told the house of Commons they thought it would last six months. That meant, of course, that little Canadian blood and not much treasure would be lost; but a vast amount of electioneering ammunition would be gained. However, when a war's on, your attitude to the cause can't be governed by the errors in policy of incompetent commanders. It was early in 1917 that some of us began to find that all of our friends were not as sturdy for a Canadian fight to a finish as we were. I remember the day A. K. Maclean came to me with the story that the Old Man didn't stand where we did. When Borden offered a coalition there was only one way out, unless we would all back any conscription he proposed. Some of our Quebec friends had all along been saying that the right thing to have done in the first place was to operate the militia act. But when compulsory service came by another way, they jibbed. And I'm sorry to say Laurier jibbed at a coalition under any circumstances."

"Specifically?"

"Yes, specifically. You've heard of Fred Pardee's effort to get Laurier into the coalition?"

"Not yet."

"Then I'll tell it you. Most of us realized the futility of a party government during such an awful war and though Borden had badly bungled the business by insisting on conscription before inviting Laurier to co-operate, we tried hard to reach an agreement. Quebec was against compulsion with Bourassa taking the extreme line. Pardee succeeded in getting Laurier to agree to a coalition on the understanding that for six months a campaign would be pushed in all provinces to get more men by voluntary enlistment; and, if it failed, the whole situation was to be open for a new alignment. Pardee consulted our friends in Toronto, who assented. Then he went to Montreal and secured Gouin's support. But when he returned to Ottawa the Old Man called the whole thing off. He was afraid that Bourassa's influence would do more harm to the war than a coalition would do good.

"A somewhat similar thing happened in September, though long before that, with an election inevitable in the early winter, Pardee had come to believe that a party fight could not be avoided. The negotiations with Borden during June, July and August were painfully disappointing. Most of the cabinet were in shrouds. Everybody else was in the dumps. In September, it was clear that on no consideration could Laurier be got to endorse conscription. He was sure that if he did Quebec would politically be delivered body, bones and breeches to Bourassa. Finally he agreed to retire from the leadership, and said that either Murray, of Nova Scotia, Calder of Saskatchewan, or myself would be agreeable to him as a successor. It was believed that this was fixed up at conferences in Montreal; but once more a plan to save the Liberal party from disruption broke down. They had been at me all summer, and I had to struggle hard between duty to the war and feeling towards our old faces.

"The union fluttered in the balance to the very last. I think it was the twelfth of October that we finally decided to join. The Quebec fellows tell one another that three days before being sworn in I wrote Sir Wilfrid saying he might rely upon me never going in with 'that gang'. But we were up against a crisis which made our party allegiance insignificant. We didn't boast about it; but the formation of the Union Government, so far as we were concerned, was a piece of unadulterated patriotism. Some of us said we were committing political suicide; and we were.

"Who were?"

"I expected you to ask me that. For the others look over the field and judge for yourself. Perhaps you suppose that because I am chairman of the railway commission at twelve thousand a year, I've done pretty well through getting out of politics by the union gate. As an administrator of public works I wasn't a howling success. I'm a lawyer, not a contractor. Some day I may tell what it was like to succeed Bob Rogers; but not now. I'm doing my duty by the country where I am, and I may stay out my term."

"'May stay?'"

"Yes, 'may stay.' You have seen that I have been expressing views about government ownership of railways, which is not strictly according to the canon. I made more money as a lawyer than I get as a commissioner and got more fun out of politics than I can get here. Perhaps it wouldn't be easy to win a seat again in the commons—at least not for a New Brunswick riding, where our politics are fearfully and wonderfully made. The president of the U.F.N.B. took my place, and it looks as if the farmers' class movement will hold its own for some years to come. But fighting is my forte. The part of political policeman suits me; and maybe I shan't be happy till I resume my former role.—I don't know. We shall see what we shall see; and that's about all anybody can say just now."

"Do you see daylight for the National Railways?" I asked fighting Frank.

"I said about everything I want to say on that score when I was in the west; and maybe I said far too much. Our basic railroad trouble is not so much the necessity for high freight rates to meet high costs of wages and materials. It come from our having railroaded ourselves on the way to national bankruptcy. I'm as much to blame as anybody, I dare say; but it's only fair to myself to say that I had no conception of what we were doing."

"'We?' Where did your responsibility begin?"

"I was elected for Carleton in the general election of 1904, which was fought on the Grand Trunk Pacific scheme, and its eastern goldmine, as we were told, the National Transcontinental. We were brought up, down east, on the idea that anything that meant spending public money where we could receive some of it was not only fine politics, but good statesmanship. Like everybody else, I was a creature of that delusion; and I supported what was called a great railway policy. It wasn't until about the start of the war that I realized the folly we had committed. I had never been far west till the trip we took to see the Canadian Northern line to the coast. West of Edmonton I saw the Canadian Northern running alongside the Grand Trunk Pacific for miles and miles, through country that was not only empty then but will be empty for many years to come. After watching the insane duplication I found Frank Oliver on the train, and asked him if we were responsible for such an economic travesty. He said we were; but made excuses for it.

"I saw there was no excuse; and also saw more trouble coming. To-day as you know, two hundred miles of the mountain sections have been abandoned—some Canadian Northern and some Grand Trunk Pacific. Put the bare cost at the very low figure of fifty thousand dollars a mile, a total of ten million dollars; and the interest charge at only four per cent., and the people are paying four hundred thousand dollars a year on the cost of two hundred miles of line that was no more needed than rails are required to bring Jack Reid from his office in the west block to cabinet meetings in the east block. That's an example of our fundamental folly; and until we can get out of the body politics the delusive microbes that brought it about, there's small hope for a government road producing anything like the results that belong to efficient management.

"But if I say much more like this to you I shall be getting into politics, which I'm supposed to be as far from as sense is from insanity. We ought to be punished for what we did. But it's the country that's punished."

"And the chairman of the railway commission?"

"You're right, but about the only place I get any sympathy from is here"—and frank Frank smote his bosom, and I found my hat.

He used to be called the Land High Executioner of the Liberal party.

The reader will not take too literally the observations of leading men about themselves recorded by Mr. Longue Beau, but will understand that they are what the speakers would be likely to say confessionally.

A SMART MAIDEN

SIR WALTER PARRATT, the organist of St. George's chapel, Windsor, who recently celebrated his 80th birthday, is fond of telling the story of how a fair visitor to the castle "got one back" nicely on a bandsman who was showing her round.

A number of stars upon the cuff of a passing veteran aroused the young lady's curiosity.

"He's the battalion astronomer," explained the escort gravely. "Most useful man. Guides us home by the stars when we've lost our way on night manoeuvres."

"How interesting," said the maiden. Then, noting his bandsman's badge—the representation of an ancient stringed instrument—she exclaimed slyly:

"I suppose that thing on your arm means that you're the regimental lyre?"

VIEWS OF HIMSELF.

THE MAGIC CARPET

THE only Englishwoman who has composed grand opera, Dr. Ethel Smyth, whose interesting personal reminiscences of Queen Victoria, published in the Strand Magazine, have aroused so much interest, tells an amusing story.

She had been invited to Balmoral, and after dinner went to the drawing-room.

On a large hearthrug Queen Victoria and the Empress Eugenie stood talking, an avenue of royal personages ranged according to precedence, leading up to the presence. Without realizing that she was committing a serious breach of etiquette, Dr. Smyth walked up this avenue with the intention of saying, "How do you do?" to the queen!

As she advanced to the hearthrug, however, she felt that something was wrong. Queen Victoria looked at her as "if I were some strange insect." Fortunately, Princess Christian came to the rescue, and shook hands with Dr. Smyth, "after which," she writes, "I backed away into the obscurity from which I should never have emerged."

She afterwards heard that the hearthrug was regarded as a "sacred carpet," and the distance from it at which people were permitted to station themselves was the measure of their own rank and importance!

SOCKS IN PARLIAMENT

THE child's musical-box with which Lieutenant-Commander Kenworthy illustrated a recent speech in the British House of Commons must now be added to the list of queer articles exhibited in Parliament. Among these were three attenuated Irish potatoes, which Mr. Swift MacNeill once produced from his pocket to show that the potato crop in the West of Ireland had failed.

An Irish member, who was in the habit of bringing down vast masses of documentary evidence, once plunged into his black bag and, to the intense delight of the House, produced a brush and comb. Nothing daunted, he made a second dive, and brought out—a pair of socks!

WAITRESS BECOMES HOTEL CHATELAINE

Owner of Celebrated Fashionable Newport Hotel Weds Servant

NEWPORT, R. I., May 21.—Coming from Sweden six months ago, with no knowledge of English and seeking a job as a servant in this country to-day, Miss Martha Josephine Ekberg, 19 years old, finds herself the chatelaine of the Muenchinger King Hotel, the most ultra-fashionable and conservative establishment in this country, and the home at intervals of the most prominent people, socially, in the United States.

She was married at noon to-d- to Burtin J. Baldwin, owner and manager of the celebrated establishment. Miss Ekberg, a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Adolf Carl Ekberg of Custafsberg, Sweden, obtained a place as waitress in the Muenchinger King soon after her arrival in this country while staying at the home of her aunt in this city.

The late Mrs. Muenchinger, who died a few months ago, left all her property, both real estate and personal, to her manager, Mr. Baldwin, a former professor in Columbia University and a versatile scholar.

Since that time the will has been contested by her niece, Miss Irene Huebel of Boston, her only blood relative in this country. The trial is assigned before the superior court here in June.

The ceremony to-day was performed by the Rev. Harold S. Capron at the United Congregational Church. Mr. and Mrs. Baldwin left on their honeymoon, and upon their return will reside at their hotel. In taking out their license she gave her age at 19 and he as 44. There was a notation on the application stating that he had no parent or guardian in the State of Rhode Island.

Worker—Mr. Bigman, I should like very much to have an increase in my wages. I was married yesterday.

Employer — I'm sorry, my good man; we can't do it. The company is not responsible for accidents which happen to our employees outside the factory.

AIRPLANES REACH FARTHEST NORTH

WINNIPEG, Man., May 17. — (Candaian Press).—Airplanes reached their "farthest north" up to that time when the two Imperial Oil Company metal machines landed at Fort Simpson on the route to the new oil fields at Fort Norman, last month. Both machines broke their propellers at this place, one in landing and the other in taking off for Norman, but as has been reported the ingenuity of a Hudson's Bay Company steamboat engineer resulted in the construction out of sleighboards of propellers which enabled one of the machines to return to Peace River.

The trip was beset with difficulties There were, of course, no proper landing places and the machines came to earth in four feet of snow. Taking the air was just as difficult and dangerous. There were no repair stations, no spare parts, and insufficient gasoline stores. The trip through to Norman by the air-route had to be deferred, but exceptions are that it will be made at an early date.

A correspondent at Fort Simpson of The Beaver, magazine of the Hudson's Bay Company, says that when the 'planes first were heard droning in the sky the Indians were startled, and struck with wonder that birds should be winging north again so early and with such an unwonted whirring of wings. As the planes grew larger on their closer approach, the cry of "Look at the two big birds", went up. Some of the Indians rushed for their guns.

As the machines hovered overhead many natives bolted for the bush and then as one young hunter was about to shoot a squaw shrieked, "Oh! there is men in them—don't shoot", and in a motherly way held her arms wide as if to catch the airmen.

The airplanes are a radical departure from the ordinary commercial type of machine, being of all-metal construction excepting the landing skis and the propellers which are of black walnut. They are squat, compact powerful machines capable of flying at an average speed of ninety an hour, carrying a ton of freight a pilot navigator and four passengers.

Sergeant R. H. Thorne, R. C.M.P., reached Fort Simpson in one of the planes. He was returning from Edmonton after taking out an Indian charged with murder, from Fort Providence.

Sergeant Thorne had spent eight weeks of arduous travelling, mushing with a dog team on the way out from Fort Simpson to Peace River, but he had returned over the same ground in eight hours—with Captain G. Gorman via the air route.

STEEL COMPANY DROPS TIME AND A HALF PAY.

Other Corporations Follow Republic's Action in Eliminating All Overtime Work.

NEW YORK, May 19.—The Republic Iron and Steel Company has announced that all time and a half pay for work over the eight-hour day basis would be eliminated. This affects every day worker in the mills. The despatches from the West state that the change has nothing to do with the basic eight-hour day, although the effect of the new arrangement amounts to a termination of all benefits accruing therefrom, the benefits being those which were established during the war years to speed up production. At the offices of the company, however, it is said that the elimination of the extra pay for overtime work will have very little effect on the present earnings of the workers, as there has been little or no overtime work done at the mills for some time because of the slackened demand for steel products. The plan, it is said, is adopted merely in the interest of economy.

Nicholas Kostantinovich Roerich, the noted Russian painter, who has turned a deaf ear to the blandishments of the Metropolitan Opera Company of New York, has succumbed to Mary Garden, and will paint the scenery of her new Russian opera.

MEN REPLACE WOMEN IN ITALIAN GOVERNMENT SERVICE.

Girls Reluctantly Leave Slothful Ease for Housework.

ROME, May 19. — (Canadian Press).—Italian soldiers who were more or less mutilated during the war lately have taken the law into their own hands and have swarmed in thousands into many of the Government ministries, taking possession by force of the places of the many young women who gained a footing there during the war, and so far have refused to be displaced.

Newspapers are being flooded with letters, some few of them arguing that the women clerks have earned the right to work if they please, and to support themselves, but most of the writers telling lurid and terrible tales of the frivolity of these daughters of Eve; of the little work they do and the great amount of time they waste on flirtations and on their toilettes; of the alleged subversive effect they have in well - regulated ministries, and of many families whose peace is said to have been undermined by their dangerous proximity to staid and respectable men.

At any rate it appears that soldiers who have served their country have made good their claim to the coveted positions and, both in Rome and in many provincial towns, the edict has gone forth that the girls must go. Italian housekeepers hope that some will return to the many mistresses who sigh in vain for assistance in their households, but doubt whether, after the short hours and independence of office life, they will take kindly to domestic service or the long hours of shop work.

Plaid suits, especially those featuring forest green for the foundation color, have made their appearance on Fifth Avenue.

AT THE THEATERS

AT THE ALLEN.

Mildred Harris is the featured player in an all star cast in "The Woman in His House," which opens an engagement of three days at the Allen Theatre to-day. Ramsey Wallace is the leading man. Others in the cast are Thomas Holding, George Fisher, Gareth Hughes, Winter Hall and Richard Hedrick. The picture was directed by John Stahl. It is a First National release.

AT THE CAPITOL.

The Capitol offers a splendid programme to-night, and at the special holiday matinee to-morrow at 2.30, one of the best pictures of the year, "Civilian Clothes."

It's certainly a big and splendid programme that the popular Capitol Theatre offers to-night—a show big in every way, both as to quantity and quality. A special holiday matinee will be offered to the public tomorrow, on the holiday, at regular evening prices. There will be no matinee performance on Wednesday of this week. To-morrow's matinee will take the place of the usual Wednesday matinee. Besides the big feature picture, the balance of this quality programme will be found to be up to the very high standard set by the Capitol ever since it opened its doors to the public more than a month ago.

An excellent picturization of the popular stage success, "Civilian Clothes," with Thomas Meighan in the stellar role, will be the big feature.

The story deals with an army captain who married a society girl in France, while she was dazzled by his handsome appearance in uniform, and discovered upon his return to America ,after having been reported killed in action, that she was reluctant to own him in his over-loud civilian clothes. To cure her of her snobbish ideas, he became a butler in her household and, after several dramatic developments that fell exactly in with his plans, convinced her that clothes don't make the man.

Mr. Meighan is assisted by an able supporting company headed by Martha Mansfield, the pretty Follies girl who was also John Barrymore's leading woman in "Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde." Marie Shotwell, Warren Cook, and Frank Losee are also in the cast. The picture was produced by Hugh Ford and is a Paramount release. It marks the elevation to stardom of Mr. Meighan, who has played the leading male roles in such conspicuous successes as George Loane Tucker's "The Miracle Man" and Cecil B. DeMille's "Male and Female" and "Why Change Your Wife?"

Excellent musical selections by the splendid 8-piece Capitol concert orchestra at both matinee and evening performance makes the Capitol the ideal resort in Peterborough for the amusement seeker.

HERE'S WHAT HAPPENED

"The Small Town Idol" at the Regent Theatre — A Great Production.

When Charley Chaplain ran a nail in his foot it was as bad as if Heifetz had lost a finger and it led us to hope that Mack Sennett's title writer will persuade his boss to be very careful in crossing the street. Casualties involving Sennett and Chaplin involve national resources, and if Chaplin is careless we hope Sennett will be careful. If we ever lose one of them it will be bad, no matter which it is, and we prefer it is not Sennett.

When he touches high, as he does in his latest release, "The Small Town Idol," it is as high as Chaplin and Sennett works all the time. He produces. His is a Niagara of production, almost like the flood that Dickens used to release.

To name the classics of moving picture comedy would be to name at once three of Chaplin and at least five of Sennett. Sennett was on his heights with Uncle Tom's Cabin, Salome vs. Shenandoah, Married Life, Love, Honor and Behave, and now in The Small Town Idol he has his head wrapped in a cloud.

He has no trouble in running in competition with Chaplin right at this minute when Charles is at his best in The Kid. We are half inclined to say that "The Small Town Idol" is the greatest moving picture ever made.

The cussed censor has done something to "The Small Town Idol." It may have been inevitable. When Sennett uses all of his girls for scenic effect a censor is likely to think thta something must be done about it and so thinking do it.

A censor who would touch this picture would take a whitewash brush to Raphael, but some one must have the heart to do it.

KIRN'S PITCHING TOO MUCH FOR C.G.E. TEAM

Y.M.C.A. SPRING SURPRISE ON ELECTRICIANS, WINNING HANDILY BY 6 RUNS TO 2—WINNERS LED ALL THE WAY.

The veteran Kirn, with his tantalizing benders, had the C.G.E. eating out of his hand on Saturday afternoon, and the newly organized Y.M.C.A. team surprised fandom by romping home an easy winner by 6 runs to 2 in the City League fixture at Riverside Park. Kirn held the Electricians to four hits, two of them scratchy, and with air-tight support would have had an easy shut out. All the losers could do was to tap the ball back at him, with the result that the "old master" turned in a fielding performance that was pretty near a record. In seven innings he threw out nine men at first base, another at the plate and took a fly. As he fanned two others, the pitcher was responsible for the extinction of thirteen men himself, which left very little for his team mates to do. Kirn had his curve breaking nicely and his control was perfect.

Frost was on the rubber for the losers, and while he kept the hits well scattered, except in one innings, he hit a couple of batters and both of them scored. In addition his support was not of the best.

The features next to Kirn's pitching and fielding were contributed by Barrie, the C.G.E. second baseman, who made several great stops of hard hit drives.

C.G.E. were blanked in the first, although Barrie hit the first ball for a single and stole second. Primeau fanned. Seeley threw Barrie out at the plate on Corrin's roller and Soden's smash was grabbed by Kirn for an out at first.

The Y.M.C.A. scored one in their half. Seeley was hit to start with, stole second and went to third on Pogue's roller to Barrie. McWilliams hit to third and Seeley easily beat the throw home. McWiliams walked off first and was tagged out and Sheehan flied to Primeau.

Kirn threw out Dugan, Frost and Starr on easy rollers in the C.G.E.'s half of the second.

Bad base-running threw away a chance for the Y.M.C.A. in their half. With one gone Butcher singled through short and stole second. Fitzgerald singled over second, Helson nearly making a sensational catch of the drive and Butcher was caught at third on the play. Lyons' out to Barrie retired the side.

In the third Kirn threw out Helson and Foley, making six assists in a row for the pitcher, and Barrie hoisted to Seeley.

In the Y's half, Kirn was hit to start with and went to second on Soden's bad throw to first. He started for third on a short passed ball and came all the way home when Soden threw wild to third. There was no further scoring in this session.

Both teams went out in order in the fourth and the C.G.E. duplicated in their half of the fifth. But the winners had a big session. With one out, Soden started the trouble by dropping the third strike on Kirn, and the pitcher was safe on first. Seeley singled down the third base line, Kirn going to third on Foley's wide throw to second. Fitzgerald ran for Seeley and stole second. Pogue singled to second, Barrie making a great stop and Kirn scored. When Corrin lost Frost's throw to first, Fitzgerald carried Seeley's run over and Pogue went to second. McWilliams tapped to Frost, who nailed Pogue at third. Sheehan doubled to left to score McWilliams and Powell singled through short, scoring Sheehan. Powell died stealing.

C.G.E. broke into the scoring column in the sixth. Helson doubled to right and went to third on Fitzgerald's wild throw in. Foley hit to Kirn, who nailed Helson at the plate, but Lyons threw high to first, trying to double the batter, and Foley reached second. He went to third on Barrie's out, Seeley to McWilliams and scored when Primeau beat out a slow roller to Butcher. Corrin scratched a hit through the box, but Soden grounded to Kirn for the third out.

The losers got another in the seventh. Dugan fanned to start with, but Jackson was safe on Butcher's fumble, stole second and came home when Seley threw wild to first on Franks' roller, the latter going to second. A wild pitch put Franks on third, but he was doubled up on Helson's fly to Pogue, ending the game.

LOCK WORKS WIN.

The Mercantile League game between Lock Works and Barrie's, which formed the second half of the afternoon's programme, was a listless affair. The Lock Works team took all the interest out of the engagement by scoring a brace of runs in each of the first three innings, and after that it was just a case of playing out the string, although Barrie's tightened up in the last half of the game. Lock Works won 7-2. Neary was on the rubber for the winners and he was a mystery to the Barrie crew, getting thirteen strike out victims and allowing the losers only three hits. The field of both teams was ragged.

Lock Works got two in the first on passes to Liddell, Smith and Black, and hits by Jobbitt and Neary. They might have got a bunch more if Black hadn't tried to steal second with the bases full.

Singles by Connors and Liddell, a pass to Jobbitt, errors by McGee and Mulhall, and Neary's safety, gave the winners two more in the second.

In the third, errors by Kelly, McGee and Hill, and singles by Westbrook, Black and Connors, sent two more in.

Barrie's did not score until the fifth, when Nicholls' single and errors by Neary, Westbrook and Hill gave them their only counters.

Lock Works got their last counter in the sixth on Liddell's single to left, Mulhall's error and Neary's sacrifice fly.

DEMPSEY THINKS GEORGES MAY RELY ON BODY BLOWS

ATLANTIC CITY, N.J., May 23.—Jack Dempsey intends to be ready for an attack on his body by Georges Carpentier when the French aspirant faces him in the ring at Jersey City on July 2.

Despite the fact that the heavyweight champion refuses to take seriously most of the advice being handed to him by volunteer boxing bugs, he is reported to have paid considerable attention to information that the Frenchman is perfecting a number of fast downward punches to the midriff, and that he hopes to weaken Dempsey by that form of attack. Dempsey started to-day on special training for his stomach muscles.

Dempsey has introduced something new in road pace-makers for his morning trips in two Belgian police dogs, which arrived here from the coast a few days ago.

The heavyweight champion made a further cut in the length of his individual battles with his sparring partners this afternoon, shortening to two rounds each of his set-tos with Clifford, Britton, Houck and Renault. Following the actual boxing Dempsey did some shadow work.

BELLEVILLE ATHLETE IS CANADIAN CHAMPION

BELLEVILLE, Ont., May 23.—Grant Maidens, of this city, a pupil in the High school and a member of the local Y.M.C.A., has won the all-round Canadian championship in the unlimited class of Y.M.C.A. athletic sports. A few of the records to Maiden's credit are: 5 feet 1 3/4 inches in the running high jump; 9 feet 4 inches, standing broad jump, and 43 feet, 8-lb. shot put. In all he made 643 points. His nearest competitor had 621 points. He also made the record for 1921 in the fence vault, 6 feet 7 3-4 inches.

THE CENSUS SCHEDULES.

Some Intereting Explanations Made As to the Information Required.

The census to be taken in the town during June will be recorded on five forms of schedules. Form No. 1, which is the main record, contains all information connected primarily with population. Form No. 2, which will not concern town dwellers at all, is a census of agriculture of Canada. Form No. 3 is a record which is in some respects novel, as it will contain the facts relating to animals, animal products, fruits, etc., raised on urban acres (not on farms.) Form No. 4 will record information concerning manufacturing, trading and business establishments. Form No. 5 is a special schedule to record those individuals who suffer from blindness or are deaf mutes.

In the population record, form No. 1, there are 3 questions requiring answer in respect to every individual. These deal with the name, residence, personal description, birthplace, occupation, race, language and religion as well as the education and occupation of each person. The citizenship and year of entry into Canada and the nativity of both parents are also recorded.

Form No. 2 contains sixty-five questions, dealing with the parties owning and operating the farm, the acreage, the crops and stock, especially pure bred animals. It also takes account of the use of motor transport and machinery, lighting and power.

Form No. 3 will include horses, cattle, pigs, poultry, kept in the town together with such products as milk, butter, eggs, honey. Flowers, vegetables and fruits produced in city gardens will be recorded.

Form No. 4, dealing with manufacturing, trading and business establishments, will give information respecting all such establishments, small or great, from the corner grocery or small dressmaking business to the factory or wholesale house.

The only exceptions will be such businesses as have no stock or goods on hand, as those of financial agents, stock brokers, real estate agent, bank, insurance companies, or professional firms as lawyers, doctors, dentists, etc.

Form No. 5 is the result of earnest effort on behalf of those interested in the care and training of those unfortunate individuals who lack their sight or are deaf or dumb. The schedule will, it is hoped, be a complete record of such disabilities and lead to organized care of such as stand in need of training to fit them for full and useful citizenship.

PARIS MAY BE SELECTED FOR THE OLYMPIC GAMES OF 1924

LAUSANNE, Switzerland, April 21. (By Mail)—Probable selection of Paris as the place for holding the 1924 Oylmpic Games is only one of many question to be decided at the June meetings of the International Oylmpic Committee and other Olympic organizations. These sessions will be held here from May 25 to June 12.

Delegates are to be entertained in the buildings and gardens of Montbenon. A sort of club life has been planned for the delegates and their families. Parts of the buildings will be reserved for their convenience and when the day's work is finished musical and sporting programs will be presented in the gardens.

Five principal topics will be discussed at conferences of the International delegates. These subjects are:

The possible addition of a regular winter sports week, preceding the games. These would be held in turn in the winter sports countries, Swedish, Norway, Switzerland and Canada.

Decision upon the best way of choosing, and of crowning each year at the games the person credited with the most remarkable performance in mountain climbing.

Adoption of a permanent program of equestrian sports.

Methods for obtaining better co-operation of writers and artists for the literary and artistic competitions of the Olympiads.

Formulation of a program that municipalities should adopt to encourage sports and to provide public grounds.

Revival of the Greek public gymnasium open to all, is one of the subjects to be considered at a conference called by the Olympic Institute of Lausanne, an organization founded by Baron Pierre de Coubertin, the chairman of the International Olympic Committee.

The results of all these conferences will be submitted to the governing body of the games, the International Olympic Committee.

During the three weeks of conferences there will be a Congress of Olympic committees, representing all participating countries. This congress will be called upon to make final decisions on questions concerning the games—such as the proposed suppression of walking and tug-o-war contests; formulation of definitions of amateurs! limitationof entries; composition of juries and a number of pending questions on fencing, rowing, yachting, football, tennis, cycling as well as the proposed revision of the gymnastic program. This congress will consider only matters submitted by the international Olympic Committee.

The series of Olympic meetings will be held under the patronage of the Swiss Federal Council. M. Edmond Schulthess President of Switzerland has promised to open the proceedings and ceremonious closing exercises have been arranged for Sunday, June 12, by the Swiss authorities.

"All the Boys Want a Ride on My New C.C.M."

TOMMY STEVENS has one big kick—

All the boys want to ride his new C. C. M. bicycle.

Tommy says, "The fellows pester the life out of me. Before one of them has finished a ride, some other fellow is

Coaxing for a Turn

They all seem to like my new C. C. M. a lot better than their own bikes."

Aside from this one kick, Tommy is tickled to death with his new bicycle.

He admits he can hardly blame the fellows for wanting to ride it. It runs so much easier. And when the boys ask him why, Tommy tells them about the

C.C.M. Triplex Hanger

It reduces friction. And there's a freedom from those mean "tight and loose" spots often developed by other hangers.

Tommy says, "It makes a C. C. M. bicycle run so smooth and easy you'd almost think you were riding down grade. And I can feel the Triplex fairly sizzle with power and pull away like mad when I hit her up!"

Boys! Girls! Have you ridden a C. C. M. Bicycle with the C. C. M. Triplex Hanger? Get your father to go to the dealer's with you and see one.

The New Models Are Beauties

The last word in bicycle style and smartness. Wonderfully smooth enamelling that fairly sparkles. And the "bright as sunshine" nickelling is done over copper so it can't rust.

All C. C. M. Bicycles have the New Hercules Positive Drive Coaster Brake — the kind that coasts farther and has no clumsy side arm.

The C. C. M. is "A Real Bicycle for a Real Boy."

And there's a special one that the boy won't outgrow. Equally good for a lad of nine or a youth of twenty. Step into a C.C.M. dealer's and ask to see the C. C. M. 18-in. Curved Bar Model.

PERSONNEL OF SCOTTISH FOOTBALL TEAM THAT OPENS TOUR IN HALIFAX

PARTY OF SIXTEEN PROFESSIONAL PLAYERS WILL PLAY THEIR WAY ACROSS CANADA—IN TORONTO ON MAY 28.

WINNIPEG, May 23.—(Canadian Press.) — When the officers and members of the Scottish All-Star football team arrive in Halifax today, the desire of all Canadan football men to have an Old Country professional, first-class team of players come to this country, will be satisfied.

The Dominion Football Association, through President Dan MacNeil and Secretary-Treasurer D. W. Roy, have completed final arrangements for the tour, after several months' efforts and development, and those officials will welcome the party on behalf of the Association which they represent on their arrival at Halifax.

The party of sixteen players, who have been chosen for this long-deferred missionary football enterprise to bind Canada and the Old Country closer in the bonds of sport and brotherhood, sailed from Liverpool May 10 on the Cunard liner Cameronia. Upon their arrival in Canada, the Canadian National Railways will take charge of transporting the party to the Pacific Coast and return, and the railway is bending every effort to make the tour a pleasant one for the visitors.

The forthcoming tour is creating considerable interest in Canada and in addition to the matches played in the Dominion the programme will include four games in the chief cities in the United States. Matches in Canada will be played at Halifax on May 18; Ottawa, May 21; Montreal, May 24; Hamilton May 26; Toronto, May 28; Fort William-Port Arthur, June 1; Winnipeg, June 4; Regina, June 6; Saskatoon, June 8; Calgary, June 11; Edmonton, June 14; Vancouver, June 18. On the return trip they will play at Prince Albert on June 28; Winnipeg, July 1; Toronto, July 6; International game at Montreal on July 9. The four games in the United States will be played between July 9 and 26.

The officials of the visiting team include Col. J. B. Wilson, chairman of the Third Lanark Club; Andred Mitchell and Thomas Sloan, two of the directors and Mr. Connell, who is manager of the undertaking. The line-up of the team is:

Craig Brown—Centre half back of the Motherwell Club, who came into the team when Cringan, the centre star, was forced to withdraw. Is credited with being a "team in himself" by Old Country experts.

John Marshall—One of the two players from English clubs expected to tour with the Scottish team. Plays for Middlesborough and is credited by "Bedorin" as being the great right back of modern times. Starred in recent international.

James Gordon— Captained Scotland's team on several occasions. Formerly starred for Rangers but has been performing for Dumferline Athletic during the current season. Probably the most versatile player in Britain. Starred in recent international.

Alex. Bennett—Albion Rovers, one of the finest and neatest dribblers playing the game in Scotland. Made his reputation while a member of the Glasgow Rangers.

Alex. Troup—Dundeed youngster who has been the sensation of the football season. He has been the star performer for the Dens Park outfit, but reached the pinnacle of fame when he featured a recent international kame. Is "slippery as an eel."

Jimmy Quinn — On retired list. Gained fame as centre forward for Celtic and Scotland. Of the aggressive, bustling type he packed a wicked shot. Probably the best centre Scotland has produced. May play here occasionally.

James McMenemy—The dandy little inside winger, who contributed much to the success of Partick Thistle in the reent Scottish Cup series. Formerly played for Celtic and was frequently capped for Scotland. Known as the "Napoleon of Football."

Paddy Crossan—No Scottish team would be complete without one member from Edinburgh. "Auld Reekie's representative is Paddy Crossan, a back of the first water, rugged as he looks, but a veritable stone wall in the pinch. Possesses a powerful kick.

Alex. McNair—Veteran right back of the Glasgow Celtic, hero of many international battles and considered one of the "brainiest" defence men playing the game in the Old Country. Of the "old war-horse variety." Never beaten!

Jimmy Brownlee— Famous goalkeeper, who can be classed as a veteran. Has been faithful custodian for Third Lanark for many years, and has seen much service in international matches. One of the best exponents of last-line defence in the world. "Daddy of them all."

BIG BASEBALL BILL ON HOLIDAY

MORNING AND AFTERNOON LEAGUE GAMES AT RIVERSIDE PARK.

It is possible that Alex. Kay will remain in town to umpire the City League and the Mercantile League games at the Riverside Park tomorrow morning and afternoon.

In the morning at ten o'clock, the Lakeviews and St. Peter's will play a league game in the Juvenile Series of the City League. Here is an opportunity for supporters of amateur baseball to see what the baseball enthusiasts are doing to developing young players. These youngsters put up a good exhibition of the summer pastime, the battery and infield being particularly good.

Y. M. C. A. after beating Canadian Generals on Saturday, will endeavor to win another game from Hamilton's, in the first of the afternoon's double bill. Kirn will pitch for the Y. M. C. A. and Cousins for Hamilton's.

Cressman's and Westclox play in the Mercantile League. This is the game the fans have been awaiting. Westclox will send a strong team against the store nine and the holiday crowd will see a warm argument.

TEAMS TIED AT NICHOLLS OVAL

CALEDONIANS AND WOOLLENS MEET IN LEAGUE FOOTBALL FIXTURE.

In a City League soccer fixture at the Nicholls Oval Saturday afternoon the Caleys and Canadian Woollens tied, 1-1. The tie indicates the play, both teams splitting the honors fairly even, although the Scots did not show up as strong as was expected and missed a good chance in the first period to ring up some tallies. It might have been that the Caleys were saving themselves for the big encounter on Tuesday for the Gordon Cup, but whatever was the cause the Woollens seemed to work like beavers. Frost, the two Jones, and two Shaws never gave up trying. The Woollens tallied in the first and the Caleys did not score till just after the second period started. Both goalkeepers had a busy afternoon, for the pendulum swung both ways and there were some hot shots poured at both Wright and McFadden.

Won the Toss.

The Caleys won the toss and took the north field with the sun and a slight breeze at their backs. They were at full strength, but the Woollens lined up at Referee Frank McKinley's whistle with only nine men and played for some time with no centre or left half, Frost having to watch the defence all by his lonesome. The Woollens opened with a new man in goal, McFadden, and he showed that he had good stuff in him before the game was over. For several minutes of play the game was featureless and then Burgess ,outside left for the Caledonians, delivered the first dangerous shot at the Woollens' nets, but failed to find the goal When the play zig-zagged around the Caleys' goal M. Shaw kicked a warm shot over the nets on a pass from T. Jones. Service had a good chance shortly after for the Woollens' goal with nobody in front except the keeper, but the ball soared high over McFadden's head. Hannah lost another one, too, when he had a straight shot in, but hit the cross-piece. Service again was prominent around the Woollens' net, but McFadden guarded well. A few minutes before the period was over "Ted" Jones got away with the ball in a long run down the left field and past the halfbacks shot for the goal. It was a long shot and Ralston, left full-back in heading it off, sent it into the Caleys' goal and so, through an error on the Caleys' part, Woollens got their counter. Jones a second after sent another shot after the first but Wright caught it niftly. The first period ended 1-0 for the Woollens ,and Caleys went stronger in the second half determined to even up. They were only playing with ten men, though, Morris, who played left half, having twisted a leg injured in a recent match and he did not play at all in the second period. Woollens met the show of strength from the Caleys and forced a gaol kick off the bat. The Caleys got away with the ball and Hannah planted a smart kick at McFadden, and following up blocked McFadden and deftly slipped the ball into the nets, making the tie. Till the end of the game both goalkeepers were under fire considerably Service getting in close for one once that looked like a goal The ball struck McFadden square on the face and Caleys muffed, and in a general mix-up at the goal the ball was lost.

Both teams were about tuckered out with the heat, for the entire game was played under a broiling sun and the Oval is unprotected in any way from the scorching rays and certainly none of the players and few of the spectators were sorry when Frank McKinley called time.

The linemen were: Swan for the Woollens and A. Duthrie for the Caleys. The teams lined up as follows:

Canadian Woollens		Caledonians
McFadden	Goal	Wright
Cridland	R. Full Back	Anderson
Chambers	L. Full Back	Ralston
Frost	R. Full Back	Brown
Hensby	C. Half Back	Moir
Roberts	L. Half Back	Morris
Beard	O. R. Forward	McFeat
H. Jones	I. R Forward	Dingwall
M Shaw	C Forward	Service
James Shaw	I L. Forward	Hannah
T. Jones	O. L. Forward	Burgess

BASEBALL.

At Cox's field, on Armour Road, the "Beavers" of East City defeated the supposedly impregnable "Duffus Devils" by a score of 10-8. It was the "Beavers" game all through. Line-ups:

"Beavers"—H. Leahy ("Eagle"), c.; F. Holland, p.; M. Clancy, 1st base; J. Holland, 2nd base; H. Brooks, 3rd base; M. Guerin, shortstop; C. Perdue, r.f.; R. Brady, c.f.; R. O'Brien, l.f.; Rupert Brady, manager.

AT THE ALLEN.

Two cripples figure prominently in "The Woman in His House" which with Mildred Chaplin and an all star cast will be shown at matinee and evening performances at the Allen Theatre for 3 days beginning to-day. One is a hunchback, played by Gareth Hughes. The other is a baby boy, a victim of infantile paralysis, played by Richard Hedrick.

C.G.E. TEAM FOR TO-MORROW AFTERNOON.

The C.G.E. Executive have placed the following team against the Caledonians for Gordon Cup final at Nicholls Oval: C. Griffin, goal; Mason and MacDonald, backs; Williams, Turner and Mann, halfbacks; Manders, Hotston, Parkins, Gash and Bartley, forwards. Reserves—Bestard and Marsh.

ARMLESS SALESMAN BECOMES AN EXPERT MOTOR DRIVER.

CARPENTIER'S CAMP IS TO BE SURROUNDED BY BARBED WIRE

MANHASSETT, N. Y., May 20.—The camp of Georges Carpentier will look like an ammunition factory during the war when the Frenchman goes to work.

The Andrews farm, French headquarters, within a stone's throw of the magnificent country home of Harry Payne Whitney, is barricaded with barbed wire. A high board fence is built around the cow pasture where the ring has been pitched. The final touch of the military will be furnished by two "soldats" as Descamps called them, who will pound a beat around the place.

Strange eyes that see the Frenchman compounding his dynamite for Jack Dempsey will have to resort to forgery, strategy and wartime cunning.

Only a pass will get anyone not well-known to the Frenchman past the guards.

Twice a week the newspapermen will be notified that they can come out and look the Frenchman over, and ask him a few questions.

No one—not even the trustiest scribe—will be allowed to see Georges at work.

Descamps resorted to good, straight English to-day to make that clear.

"There will be not a chance for anyone to see Carpentier doing his real work. Not even the newspapermen. We will welcome to our home once in a while, but never in the gym," he said.

Descamps said to-day that Carpentier would not do any heavy work for at least two weeks.

"He is in the grand condition now We must be careful to keep him from getting in the stale shape. He will not do any hard work until the first week of June. May be he will not box until two weeks before the week," he said.

The barn where an indoor ring has been erected for bad weather, is filled with evidence to show the Frenchman at his work that he is good.

Covering the entire side of one end of the barn is a huge billboard picture in colors of Joe Beckett prostrate on the floor of the London ring and Carpentier standing over him.

At the other end of the barn is a poster of similar size depicting the victorious Georges being carried from the ring on the shoulders of his admirers.

In the few bare spots of the walls are cartoons and pictures of the French here in various poses and attitudes.

In one corner is a six-foot strip of new carpet neatly tacked to the floor in front of a mirror, where Georges can see himself when he is doing calisthenics.

There are at least a dozen different sized punching bags and a box full of new rubber bladders, for they say Georges is very cruel to the bags, and very considerate of his sparring partners.

RECORD FOR THEFT

LILLE, France, April 22. (Associated Press, by Mail).—The record for theft by motor car bandits is held by the little village of Essars in the devastated regions. After knocking an inspector of reconstruction work senseless, several men carried off a bronze church bell weighing a ton and a half, which had been in the wreckage of the church since the retreat of the Germans on the Somme in 1917.

ALL HAM AND EGG JOKES STEP ASIDE IN FAVOUR OF THIS ONE

Ever since Lloyd Hamilton adopted the brevity of "Ham," under which he appeared in 134 single reel comedies for the old Kalem Company, the star of Mermaid Comedies has been the victim of jokes on his name, but probably the best one of them all was pulled by Marvel Rea, the leading woman in "The Simp," latest of the two reel Mermaid Comedies, which comes to the Allen Theatre to-day.

During the making of this picture Hamilton was almost daily annoyed by a well known Los Angeles character, who calls himself an actor, but whose chief occupation is in borrowing money from the prosperous players. With about the fifth visit Hamilton lost his generally good humor and ordered the man off the studio premises.

"Trying to 'bone' you again?" asked Marvel.

"Yes," replied Hamilton, "you know I sort of feel sorry for the fellow. I guess he thinks I am a hard boiled egg."

"Well," retorted Marvel, without the trace of a smile, "I'd rather be a hard boiled egg than a well done Ham!"

RUPTURE RELIEF

RETENTION NOT INFLUENCED BY AGE, SO REPORTS VISITING EXPERT.

"BABY BRIDE" FREED OF MURDER CHARGE

FARMINGTON, Mo., May 23.—The charge of murder against Letta Parsons, the "baby bride" of the Ozarks, was dismissed to-day.

The 13-year-old girl wife, accused of killing her six-year-old stepdaughter, Lilly, was held in custody, however, and will have to face trial later on a charge of fourth degree manslaughter in connection with the slaying. Trial will be in juvenile court.

Prosecution attorneys decided to dismiss the murder charge when Judge Houck ruled that the girl was too young to be tried in circuit court

Fought Over Age.

Prosecution attorneys attempted to show the girl was 18, while her lawyers presented a tattered and torn family Bible to prove her contention that she was only 13. If she was 18, she would be tried in circuit court, and if found guilty would face a death sentence.

Otherwise she would be tried in juvenile court, as Judge Houck had previously ruled, and could only be stenenced until she is 21. The prosecution attempted to induce Judge Houck to rescind his ruling.

ADDRESSED THE SCHOOL

At the Queen Alexandra School to-day Mr. Joseph Wearing addressed the upper classes on "The Progress of Freedom on the British Empire." In simple language with many apt illustrations the speaker traced the movement of liberty in Great Britain and Canada and showed that in every practical way we have the best form of government that has yet been devised. The children took part in a number of patriotic exercises and at the conclusion Mr. Wearing sang the French version of "O Canada".

Fire of unknown origin destroyed the barn and last year's tobacco crop of Sandy Badgeley, Dresden.

M'FADDEN NOT THE MURDERER AVERS CONLEY

LEAVING TO SERVE 15-YEAR SENTENCE, CONVICTED BANDIT SAYS M'FADDEN DID NOT SHOOT SABINE.

THINKS HOTRUM THE MAN

TORONTO, May 25.—(Canadian Press).—"McFadden should not go; he is not the man whot shot Sabine." This statement was made by Arthur Conley to a local newspaperman this morning at the Union Station while he was awaiting removal to Kingston to serve a fifteen-year sentence. He stated that he was not aware Sabine was murdered until his arrest two days after the crime was committed.

Jack Conley, who was handcuffed to his uncle, said he thought it was Hotrum did the shooting. He based the statement on what he had been told since the trial. The statements are surprising, in view of the fact that Hotrum was a friend of Conley's. Jack Conley's evidence at the trial favored Hotrum.

THE GEORGIAN BAY.

The Georgian Bay, that great arm of Lake Huron, has become a favourite summer playground with residents of Canada and the United States. In this magnificent bay are more than 30,000 islands—islands crowned with vegetation that seems as fresh and captivating as though it were the morning of creation, islands peeping out of the blue depths of crystal-like water and covered with moss, islands of all shapes and sizes. It is impossible to describe this wonderful waterway with any degree of satisfaction, Nature having been so generous in beautifying and adorning it and having dowered it with so many gorgeous scenic effects, including rugged promontories, intricate channels and narrows, and vast amphitheatres of open water. The Thirty Thousand Islands region of the Georgian Bay is reahed through Midland, Penetang, Rose Point, and Parry Sound. At Midland (101 miles from Toronto) steamboat of the Georgian Bay Tourist Company connects with the trains of the Grand Trunk Railway System. For all particulars, apply to Grand Trunk Agents, or to C. E. Horning, D.P.A., Toronto, Ontario.

BED BUG POISON

There are dozens of preparations recommended to destroy bed bugs. But the preparation that gives the best results is POST'S BED BUG POISON.

A few applications of this poison will soon wipe out the pest. It is composed of corrosive sublimate methyl-hydrate and carbolic acid, and as it is very poisonous it should be kept out of the reach of children.

Post's Bed Bug Poison is sold at Lynch's drug store, 168 Hunter St.

PROPOSE TO SPLIT UPPER SILESIA, BUT UNDER CONTROL OF COMMISSION OF NATIONS' LEAGUE FOR 30 YEARS

PARIS, May 25. (Canadian Press.) — The latest plan for the settlement of the Upper Silesian controversy, reported to be a British suggestion, is to give Poland and Germany respectively the Communes that voted in their favour at the recent plebiscie, but to hold the entire territory under control of a special commission for thirty years.

Unde this plan the commission would be appointed by the League of Nationals and at the end of the thirty year period the population would again be given an opportunity to express their wishes. The exchange of views between London and Paris on the question are continuing, notwithstanding the debate in the Chamber of Deputies and the feeling in French official circles this morning was that the allies were coming together.

Bowes, of Toronto, owing to illness, and of the 1st vice-president, Dr. Thos. Wearing, of Woodstock College, the chair was occupied by the 2nd vice-president, Rev. N. S McKechnie, of London. Dr. O. C. S. Wallace, of Montreal, a man of forceful and inspirational address, gave the opening devotional exercises, followed by addresses of welcome in a few well-chosen words from Ald. J. J. Turner on behalf of the City and the Board of Aldermen, from Rev. J. R. Webb, on behalf of Gilmour Memorial, Park street and Murray street Baptist churches, and from Mr. Allan W. Doughty of Peterborough, 3rd vice-president of the society, on behalf of the B.M.P.U. Suitable responses were made by Mr. Thos. Riches of Hamilton. Mr. W. F. Reynolds, of Brockville, secretary of the Union, and president of the International B.Y.P.N., extended the greeting of the latter organization to the assembled company. Business and announcements followed, with the election of a nominating committee as follows: Chairman, Rev. J. L. Sloat, Niagara Falls, Messrs. Thos. Riches, Hamilton, Bingham, London, McLeod, Brantford, and Allan Doughty of Peterborough, and of a resolutions committee, composed of: Chairman, Rev. Mr. Bremner of Galt, and Messrs. McLean, Orillia, L. Barnard, Montreal, A. J. Madill, and Rev. Mr. Morrow, of Peterborough.

Future Generations.

In the absence of Dr. Thos. Wearing, who was to deliver an address, his place was taken by his brother, Mr. Jos. Wearing, of Peterborough, at a couple of hours' notice. Mr. Wearing gave a striking and powerful talk on the pessimistic attitude which is necessarily adopted by any thinking person with regard to present-day conditions, saying: "Future generations will not draw up pictures of Hades as we have done from the writings of Milton and Dante, but from reports of the conditions existing in our day and generation, pictures of merciless cruelty in Belgium, of unutterable misery in Serbia, of depths of grief in France, of the horrors of starvation in many countries, of untold despair in Russia, from the devil's caldron which has been stirred up in our time. These conditions, according to the speaker, do not exist because Christianity has failed, but because the streams of living water have been dammed up in the lives of so many so-called Christians throughout the centuries. Quoting the words of Christ, "If I be lifted up, I will draw all men unto Me." Mr. Wearing declared men had failed to lift up Christ in the proper way and instead had lifted Him in the caricature of their own imaginations, and said that the hope of the future generations lay in the hands of the young people of this age to raise a new life on the ruins of the smashed idols of the old.

Personal Service.

Mr. S. J. Moore of Toronto, followed with an earnest and touching appeal to the young people for personal service to the Master, saying "I ask of you young people, whatever you have decided to do with your future, to make the Lord Jesus Christ your daily and your constant companion."

Selections by the full-robed choir and a vocal solo by Mr. Asa Huycke were very much enjoyed by the audience during the evening.

Yesterday morning's session opened with a song service, led by Rev. Mr. McKechnie, and accompanied by Miss Charlotte Layton, general secretary of the local Young Women's Christian Association. Dr. Wallace led the devotional exercises, and copferences followed, the first on Sacred Literature, by Rev. W. E. Hodgson, of Toronto, giving the method of study, the proper leader, arguments for and against an examination, the group plan, the division of the society into classes, and the number of programmes per month on this subject.

On Missions.

Rev. H. Merritt, of Preston, spoke on Missions, answering the following questions: Who should have charge of topic? Should the society have a definite missionary object to support? Should a book be studied? What part should the pastor play? and "Where can the greatest amount of information be obtained in the shortest time?

Rev. N. S. McKechnie, of London, gave a fine talk on Personal Evangelism, giving an idea of the part to be played by all men in the everyday indirect effort to lead men to the Gospel of Christ, the help that may be given the pastor by everyone uniting in this common cause, the value of the personal work in this connection, not only to those helped, but in establishing new faith in the worker, strengthening his or her character, making new friends and increasing one's knowledge of the Bible.

Rev. J. L. Sloat, of Niagara Falls, spoke on Bible Readers' Course, telling how best to organize, to put on a campaign for readers, and to explain nature of the readings, Miss E. Wardell of Toronto, gave an address on Junior Work, outlining the hours of meeting, advisability of a pledge, teaching of prayer, and leading juniors to Christ by, first prayer; second, by being living examples of Christ; and third, by being ready to answer all questions.

Interesting Reports.

Mr. Thos. Riches of Hamilton, gave some interesting reports on Associated Work, and the conference on General Work was led by Mr. W. F. Reynolds, of Brockville, the energetic-secretary treasurer of the B.Y.P.U. Questions concerning the relation of the pastor to the B.Y.P.U., the group system, the age limit, which was regarded as being from 16 to 30, the division of union into two bodies when membership reaches 40, the advisability of "Paid" entertainments, and "on time" plans, were all dealt with by Mr. Reynolds in a very illuminating and satisfactory manner.

A quiet half hour led by Dr. Wallace, whose beautiful appeal to "Do something more for Christ," was listened to with the most rapt attention, closed the morning session.

A solo by Howard McCannon, "The Holy City," during the morning session, was very much enjoyed.

Afternoon Session.

The afternoon session, opening with a song service and devotional exercises, was mainly taken up by business. The report of the board of managers, composed of Mr. Thos. Riches, Hamilton, Mr. J. T. Bowes, Toronto, Dr. Thos. Wearing, Woodstock, Rev. N. S. McKechnie, London, Mr. Allan W. Doughty, Peterborough Mr. W. Fred Reynolds, Brockville, Rev. W. E. Hodgson, Toronto, Rev. F. W. Stewart, St. Catharines, Rev. H. Merritt, Preston, and Miss E. Wardell, Toronto, was read, dealing with every phase of the work of the organization, and a presentation of Bible Readers' certificates was made by the secretary-treasurer Mr. W. F. Reynolds. The place of meeting for next year was decided on as the Adelaide street Baptist church in London.

Statistical reports showed an increase of nearly 1,200 members in the year, and a good financial showing. The secretary-treasurer's report followed, both of these reports being received and adopted as read. For the year just completed, Peterborough was one of the few unions which went over the top in their allotment to the budget, and a warm tribute was paid here to the work of Miss Clara Doughty, as convenor of the reception committee. The report of the resolutions committee, read by Rev. Mr. Bremner of Galt, expressed strong appreciation of the efforts of the three Baptist churches, of the interest shown by the citizens, of the work of the choir, of the committee on reception and billeting, of the speakers, of Dr. Wallace's services, and of the interest taken by the local press in the convention. The report of the Nominating committee, adopted as read, resulted as follows: Honorary President, Mr. J. T. Bowes, of Toronto, president, Rev. N. S. McKechnie, of London, first vice, Mr. Allan W. Doughty, of Peterborough, 2nd vice, Rev. Mr. McLeod, of Brantford, 3rd vice, Mr. Edgar Sheriff, of Hamilton, secretary-treasurer, Mr. W. F. Reynolds, of Brockville, convenor of Bible Readers' Course, Rev. F. W. Stewart, M.A., of St. Catharines, convenor of Mission Work, Rev. H. Merritt, of Preston, convenor of Junior Work, Miss E. Wardell, of Toronto, secretary of Associated Leagues, Mr. Thos. Riches, of Hamilton. A solo by Miss Lillian Eastwood, "The Lord is My Light," was rendered

DEAD MAN MAY BE WANTED FOR TRUNK MURDER

MAN KILLED BY TRAIN THOUGHT TO BE EUGENE LEROY, FOR WHOM NATION WIDE SEARCH WAS MADE.

DESCRIPTION IDENTICAL

SHAWNEE, Okla., May 25.—(Canadian Press).—George Leroy, killed here last Friday night by a railroad train, is Eugene Leroy, wanted at Detroit in connection with the sensational trunk murder, according to the belief expressed here last night by Police Chief Simms, who says the dead man's description is identical with that of the missing Eugene Leroy. Officials here are in communication with the Detroit authorities.

A nation-wide search was instituted last summer for Eugene Leroy, following the finding of the body of a woman, alleged to be Leroy's wife, in a trunk in a Detroit express office which had been shipped from Chicago. Working on evidence obtained, the Detroit poice sought Leroy for the murder of his wife, believing she had been slain in Chicago and the body shipped to Detroit in a trunk. The search aroused interest throughout the United States and Canada and several men were taken into custody on the strength of their resemblance to Leroy, but in each case were later freed.

Wholesale Charges of Intimidation By Both Sides at Ulster Polls

EACH PARTY ALLEGES BEATING OF VOTERS AND MAKES NO ATTEMPT TO CONCEAL THAT PERSONATION WAS CARRIED ON TO AN UNPRECEDENTED EXTENT TO INFLUENCE YESTERDAY'S VOTING.

COMPLETE RETURNS NOT BEFORE END OF WEEK

BELFAST, May 25. (Canadian Press.) Wholesale charges of intimidation and impersonation during the ballotting in Ulster for members of the new Northern Irish Parliament, are being made by both the Nationalists and the Unionists. A Nationalist newspaper cites dozens of incidents with names in which it claims Nationalist voters in Ballymacarret were beaten on their way to the polls, or after voting, thus preventing others from attemping to cast votes. Similar claims are put forward by the Unionists. Neither side attempts to conceal the fact that impersonation was carried on to an unprecedened extent.

BELFAST NOW QUIET AFTER WILD NIGHT.

Belfast to-day was almost normal after a night of the wildest excitement, reports reaching the city indicating that many districts in Ulster were similarly affected. The crowds continued to walk the streets until eleven last night in the expectation that trouble would occur but at that hour armed soldiers sent pedestrians to their homes. Stragglers were gathered in by the sentries afer 11.

Election officials at nine this morning began to count the votes, but the complicated system of proportional representation provided for under the Irish Act made it doubtful, it was said, whether complete returns would be known until he end of the week.

FINANCIAL AND MARKETS

WALL STREET.

NEW YORK, May 25. (Canadian Press. Supporting orders in steels, equipments, motors and representative oils, at gains extending from liberal fractions to a point, imparted a semblance of firmness to the stock market, at the outset of to-day's dealings. Within the first half hour, however, the market restored its course on renewed selling pressure, against cetain of the leaders.

Crucible and Republic Steels, American Car, United States Rubber, American Woollen, Houston Oil and Stromberg Carburetor, reacted 1 to 1 1-2 points.

Prominent specialties, such as American Tobacco, Corn Products, International Paper and Industrial Alcohol, also reacted.

During the forenoon shorts directed their attacks mainly against the rubber tire group. These issues lost one to 2 1-2 points on further unfavorable trade reports. Equipments made additional recessions, notably General Electric and Pressed Steel Car. Several of yesterday's weakest features, including Central Leather Preferred and Remington Typewriter, also extended their losses. Secondary oils and a few of the higher priced shares, among them Standard Oil of New Jersey, were lower by 1 to 3 points. Dealings in rails were nominal, St. Paul preferred losing one point and Atlantic Coal Line 2 points. Call money opened at 7 per cent as against yesterday's early rate of 6 1-2 per cent.

Trading slackened during midsession, but liquidation and short selling made further substantial progress. High-priced Oils, as well as leading Steels, Equipments and Food shares were especially heavy. Adverse dividend rumors contributed largely to increased losses.

NEW YORK, May 25. — (Canadian Exchange steady, demand 3.96 1-8; Canadian dollars 10 9-16 per cent. discount.

CHICAGO GRAIN.

CHICAGO, May 25. (Canadian Press.) — Rains in some sections of Kansas had a bearish effect on the wheat market. The bullish crop reports which came from Nebrasa and Missouri led to rallies, but failed to exercise lasting influence. It seemed evident that buyers were inclined to be cautious owing to the rapidity of the recent advance in prices. The opening quotations, which varied from a 1 3-4 decline to 3-4 gain, were followed by decided general set back, although interrupted by moderate transient upturns. Corn sagged with wheat, but later showed independent strength. After opening 3-8 to 1c lower the market scored something of an advance. Oats were easier, governed largely by the action of wheat, starting 1 1-8 off to 5-8 up and failing to hold the upturn later. Weakness in the hog market put some weight in provisions.

TORONTO.

TORONTO, May 25. (Canadian Press.) — Pessimistic sentiment regarding the financial conditions, led to a general liquidation on the Toronto Stock Exchange this morning, losses ranging from small fractions to four points. Riordon broke heavily again, going down to 16 for a loss of 4 points, while the gain made by the Sawyer-Massey Preferred on Monday proved to be but short lived. At one time this issue was off five points at 30, but before noon close buying brought about a rally to 33, a net loss of 2 points.

Steel Corporation was the most active stock and dropped 2 1-8 to 31 3-4. Canada Steamships preferred lost 1 at 54. Duluth Superior was weak at 22.

LIVE STOCK

TORONTO, May 25. (Canadian Press.) — Cattle receipts were heavy but trade was weak. Heavy beef steers, $9 to $9.50; butcher steers, choice, $8.50 to $9.50; butcher cows, medium, $5 to $7; calves, $10 to $12; lambs, $15 to $17; hogs, selects, $9.5

CUSTOM HOUSE, DUBLIN, FIRED BY SINN FEIN

BUILDING WAS ATTACKED AND BURNED, ARMED MEN GUARDING APPROACHES TO PREVENT ITS BEING SAVED.

LOSS A MILLION POUNDS

LONDON, May 25.—(Canadian Press).—The Dublin Customs House says a Central News despatch, was attacked and burned by Sinn Feiners this afternoon. The fire, says the account, started at one o'clock, the flames breaking out simultaneously throughout the building, which was totally destroyed.

It was one of the finest buildings in Dublin, and cost one million pounds. The inmates fled as the fire broke out. Another account says that the building was set on fire through bombs thrown in.

A railroad bridge running past the building was occupied by a large number of men, upon whom a fusillade was opened. Others in the immediate vicinity of the Customs House also were fired upon. Lorry loads of military were bombed as they were driving up to the scene. The soldiers fired machine guns, rifles and revolvers, and several persons were seen to fall. So far three persons appear to have been killed. Armed men guarded all approaches to the Customs House to prevent the saving of the building. Shortly afterwards, Liberty Hall, the headquarters of the Irish Transport Workers, was set on fire and destroyed.

It is said that four auxiliary policemen were wounded and seven Sinn Feiners killed, eleven wounded and sixty-five taken prisoners. The Customs House was still burning late this afternoon.

WEDDING BELLS

DUNCAN—SMITH.

A very quiet but pretty wedding took place in St. John's church Tuesday, May 24th, at 1.30 p.m., when Miss Martha Smith, of Peterborough was united in marriage to Mr. [illegible] Duncan, formerly of Cleveland. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. Dr. R. C. Blagrave. The bride was given away by Mr. Rush, of Peterborough.

The bridesmaid was her sister, Miss Margaret Smith. The groom's best man, Mr. Herbert Delahay, of Peterborough.

Following the wedding, luncheon was served to a number of relatives at the house.

Mr. and Mrs. Duncan left on the 3.20 C.P.R. for Cleveland, and on their return will reside at 585 Aylmer street.

KIDD — REID.

On Saturday, 21st May, the marriage of Vera Mae Reid, only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Reid, Otonabee, to Everett H. Kidd, son of Mr. Walter Kidd, Otonabee, took place at St. Paul's Presbyterian Manse, Rev. Robert Pogue officiating. The bride looked charming in a pretty travelling suit of navy blue gabardine, with hat to match, and wore a corsage bouquet of sweetheart roses. The happy couple left for a short honeymoon trip to New York, and on their return will reside in Otonabee.

SALVATION ARMY HOLIDAY OUTING.

The annual outing of the Salvation Army, which took place yesterday to Hiawatha, was a great success. The boat itself was crowded to its fullest capacity, and six motor cars filled with those who could not be accommodated by steamer followed the party to Rice Lake. Baseball and football were on the programme of sports for the afternoon, and the band, with a collection of merry songsters, made things lively on the return trip.

NEW MACHINE MAY REVOLUTIONIZE CODFISH INDUSTRY.

Revolution wrought in the salmon canning industry by the "Iron Chink" is destined to be repeated in the great codfishing industry of the North Atlantic through a recently developed machine known as the "Iron Splitter." The new machine dresses cod and similar fish for salting or smoking. Operated by two men, the "Iron Splitter" does the work of 60 to 75 men, who now wield sharp knives aboard the codfishing boats and in the salting and smoking plants of Labrador, Newfoundland, England, France, Norway, and Sweden. The "Iron Splitter" will take a fish every second, 60 a minute, into one end and from the other sends it out perfectly dressed, with head and backbone removed, the fish split, thoroughly cleaned and washed, and the back napes removed, reading for salting or smoking.

CARE OF MUNICIPAL PROPERTY.

In our towns and cities one cannot go far without observing conditions of neglect and carelessness due entirely to the lack of interest of the people themselves.

Unfortunately, the average citizen feels that once he has paid his taxes he has fulfilled his duty, and the city can do the rest. He overlooks the fact that the city is but an aggregation of units, of which he is one; that any improvement or maintenance charge must be paid for by these units, and he must bear his share.

It is a well-known axiom that a careless employer is reflected in a careless employee, which largely accounts for the fact that in altogether too many cases the cost of municipal public works is largely in excess of the cost of such works when privately carried out.

Many instances might be cited of losses due to either wilful damage or carelessness by the people themselves. In an eastern city during the past month a sewer became blocked by the depositing of material which could not be carried away. Many cellars were flooded and a cost of $30,000 entailed. These losses are reflected in the tax rate, and just so long as so much of the public revenue must be utilized to replace or repair the effects of neglect or disregard of public property, just so long will the tax rate continue to increase.—Conservation Bulletin.

Until comparatively recent years the umbrella was a distinctive badge of monarchs and nobles, and to-day the King of Siam bears as one of his titles, "Lord of the Tent House and Umbrellas."

Some of the latest types of American - made passenger automobiles have as many as 14 electric lights as a part of their equipment.

WIFE TAKES HUSBAND'S ADVICE

And Is Made Well Again by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Springfield, Mass.—"The doctor told my husband that I had to have an operation, otherwise I would be a sickly woman and could not have any more children on account of my weakened condition. I refused to have the operation. My husband asked me to try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. For the first four months I could do but little work, had to lie down most of the time, and was very nervous, but my husband was always reminding me to take the Vegetable Compound, which I did. Of my eight children this last one was the easiest birth of all and I am thankful for your Vegetable Compound. I recommend it to my friends when I hear them complaining about their ills."—Mrs. M. NATALE, 72 Fremont St., Springfield, Mass.

Sickly, ailing women make unhappy homes, and after reading Mrs. Natale's letter one can imagine how this home was transformed by her restoration to health. Every woman who suffers from such ailments should give Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound a fair trial. It is surely worth while.

M'FADDEN NOT THE MURDERER AVERS CONLEY

LEAVING TO SERVE 15-YEAR SENTENCE, CONVICTED BANDIT SAYS M'FADDEN DID NOT SHOOT SABINE.

THINKS HOTRUM THE MAN

TORONTO, May 25.—(Canadian Press).—"McFadden should not go; he is not the man whot shot Sabine." This statement was made by Arthur Conley to a local newspaperman this morning at the Union Station while he was awaiting removal to Kingston to serve a fifteen-year sentence. He stated that he was not aware Sabine was murdered until his arrest two days after the crime was committed.

Jack Conley, who was handcuffed to his uncle, said he thought it was Hotrum did the shooting. He based the statement on what he had been told since the trial. The statements are surprising, in view of the fact that Hotrum was a friend of Conley's. Jack Conley's evidence at the trial favored Hotrum.

THE GEORGIAN BAY.

The Georgian Bay, that great arm of Lake Huron, has become a favourite summer playground with residents of Canada and the United States. In this magnificent bay are more than 30,000 islands—islands crowned with vegetation that seems as fresh and captivating as though it were the morning of creation, islands peeping out of the blue depths of crystal-like water and covered with moss, islands of all shapes and sizes. It is impossible to describe this wonderful waterway with any degree of satisfaction, Nature having been so generous in beautifying and adorning it and having dowered it with so many gorgeous scenic effects, including rugged promontories, intricate channels and narrows, and vast amphitheatres of open water. The Thirty Thousand Islands region of the Georgian Bay is reahed through Midland, Penetang, Rose Point, and Parry Sound. At Midland (101 miles from Toronto) steamboat of the Georgian Bay Tourist Company connects with the trains of the Grand Trunk Railway System. For all particulars, apply to Grand Trunk Agents, or to C. E. Horning, D.P.A., Toronto, Ontario.

BED BUG POISON

There are dozens of preparations recommended to destroy bed bugs. But the preparation that gives the best results is POST'S BED BUG POISON.

A few applications of this poison will soon wipe out the pest. It is composed of corrosive sublimate methyl-hydrate and carbolic acid, and as it is very poisonous it should be kept out of the reach of children.

Post's Bed Bug Poison is sold at Lynch's drug store, 168 Hunter St.

PROPOSE TO SPLIT UPPER SILESIA, BUT UNDER CONTROL OF COMMISSION OF NATIONS' LEAGUE FOR 30 YEARS

PARIS, May 25. (Canadian Press.) — The latest plan for the settlement of the Upper Silesian controversy, reported to be a British suggestion, is to give Poland and Germany respectively the Communes that voted in their favour at the recent plebiscie, but to hold the entire territory under control of a special commission for thirty years.

Unde this plan the commission would be appointed by the League of Nationals and at the end of the thirty year period the population would again be given an opportunity to express their wishes. The exchange of views between London and Paris on the question are continuing, notwithstanding the debate in the Chamber of Deputies and the feeling in French official circles this morning was that the allies were coming together.

BAPTIST YOUNG PEOPLE'S UNION MET IN CONVENTION YESTERDAY

OVER FOUR HUNDRED DELEGATES PRESENT FROM ONTARIO AND QUEBEC—THREE SESSIONS YESTERDAY—SPLENDID ADDRESSES.

The Inter-Provincial Baptist Young People's Union Convention opened at Murray street Baptist church on Monday evening to a packed church. About 400 delegates were present from Ontario and Quebec and over 500 registrations were made. In the absence of the president, Mr. J. T. Bowes, of Toronto, owing to illness, and of the 1st vice-president, Dr. Thos. Wearing, of Woodstock College, the chair was occupied by the 2nd vice-president, Rev. N. S McKechnie, of London. Dr. O. C. S. Wallace, of Montreal, a man of forceful and inspirational address, gave the opening devotional exercises, followed by addresses of welcome in a few well-chosen words from Ald. J. J. Turner on behalf of the City and the Board of Aldermen, from Rev. J. R. Webb, on behalf of Gilmour Memorial, Park street and Murray street Baptist churches, and from Mr. Allan W. Doughty of Peterborough, 3rd vice-president of the society, on behalf of the B.M.P.U. Suitable responses were made by Mr. Thos. Riches of Hamilton. Mr. W. F. Reynolds, of Brockville, secretary of the Union, and president of the International B.Y.P.N., extended the greeting of the latter organization to the assembled company. Business and announcements followed, with the election of a nominating committee as follows: Chairman, Rev. J. L. Sloat, Niagara Falls, Messrs. Thos. Riches, Hamilton, Bingham, London, McLeod, Brantford, and Allan Doughty of Peterborough, and of a resolutions committee, composed of: Chairman, Rev. Mr. Bremner of Galt, and Messrs. McLean, Orillia, L. Barnard, Montreal, A. J. Madill, and Rev. Mr. Morrow, of Peterborough.

Future Generations.

In the absence of Dr. Thos. Wearing, who was to deliver an address, his place was taken by his brother, Mr. Jos. Wearing, of Peterborough, at a couple of hours' notice. Mr. Wearing gave a striking and powerful talk on the pessimistic attitude which is necessarily adopted by any thinking person with regard to present-day conditions, saying: "Future generations will not draw up pictures of Hades as we have done from the writings of Milton and Dante, but from reports of the conditions existing in our day and generation, pictures of merciless cruelty in Belgium, of unutterable misery in Serbia, of depths of grief in France, of the horrors of starvation in many countries, of untold despair in Russia, from the devil's caldron which has been stirred up in our time. These conditions, according to the speaker, do not exist because Christianity has failed, but because the streams of living water have been dammed up in the lives of so many so-called Christians throughout the centuries. Quoting the words of Christ, "If I be lifted up, I will draw all men unto Me," Mr. Wearing declared men had failed to lift up Christ in the proper way and instead had lifted Him in the caricature of their own imaginations, and said that the hope of the future generations lay in the hands of the young people of this age to raise a new life on the ruins of the smashed idols of the old.

Personal Service.

Mr. S. J. Moore of Toronto, followed with an earnest and touching appeal to the young people for personal service to the Master, saying "I ask of you young people, whatever you have decided to do with your future, to make the Lord Jesus Christ your daily and your constant companion."

Selections by the full-robed choir and a vocal solo by Mr. Asa Huycke were very much enjoyed by the audience during the evening.

Yesterday morning's session opened with a song service, led by Rev. Mr. McKechnie, and accompanied by Miss Charlotte Layton, general secretary of the local Young Women's Christian Association. Dr. Wallace led the devotional exercises, and conferences followed, the first on Sacred Literature, by Rev. W. E. Hodgson, of Toronto, giving the method of study, the proper leader, arguments for and against an examination, the group plan, the division of the society into classes, and the number of programmes per month on this subject.

On Missions.

Rev. H. Merritt, of Preston, spoke on Missions, answering the following questions: Who should have charge of topic? Should the society have a definite missionary object to support? Should a book be studied? What part should the pastor play? and "Where can the greatest amount of information be obtained in the shortest time?

Rev. N. S. McKechnie, of London, gave a fine talk on Personal Evangelism, giving an idea of the part to be played by all men in the everyday indirect effort to lead men to the Gospel of Christ, the help that may be given the pastor by everyone uniting in this common cause, the value of the personal work in this connection, not only to those helped, but in establishing new faith in the worker, strengthening his or her character, making new friends and increasing one's knowledge of the Bible.

Rev. J. L. Sloat, of Niagara Falls, spoke on Bible Readers' Course, telling how best to organize, to put on a campaign for readers, and to explain nature of the readings, Miss E. Wardell of Toronto, gave an address on Junior Work, outlining the hours of meeting, advisability of a pledge, teaching of prayer, and leading juniors to Christ by, first prayer; second, by being living examples of Christ; and third, by being ready to answer all questions.

Interesting Reports.

Mr. Thos. Riches of Hamilton, gave some interesting reports on Associated Work, and the conference on General Work was led by Mr. W. F. Reynolds, of Brockville, the energetic-secretary treasurer of the B.Y.P.U. Questions concerning the relation of the pastor to the B.Y.P.U., the group system, the age limit, which was regarded as being from 16 to 30 ,the division of union into two bodies when membership reaches 40, the advisability of "Paid" entertainments, and "on time" plans, were all dealt with by Mr. Reynolds in a very illuminating and satisfactory manner.

A quiet half hour led by Dr. Wallace, whose beautiful appeal to "Do something more for Christ," was listened to with the most rapt attention, closed the morning session.

A solo by Howard McCannon, "The Holy City," during the morning session, was very much enjoyed.

Afternoon Session.

The afternoon session, opening with a song service and devotional exercises, was mainly taken up by business. The report of the board of managers, composed of Mr. Thos. Riches, Hamilton, Mr. J. T. Bowes, Toronto, Dr. Thos. Wearing, Woodstock, Rev. N. S. McKechnie, London, Mr. Allan W. Doughty, Peterborough Mr. W. Fred Reynolds, Brockville, Rev. W. E. Hodgson, Toronto, Rev. F. W. Stewart, St. Catharines, Rev. H. Merritt, Preston, and Miss E. The place of meeting for next year was decided on as the Adelaide street Baptist church in London.

Statistical reports showed an increase of nearly 1,200 members in the year, and a good financial showing. The secretary-treasurer's report followed, both of these reports being received and adopted as read. For the year just completed, Peterborough was one of the few unions which went over the top in their allotment to the budget, and a warm tribute was paid here to the work of Miss Clara Doughty, as convenor of the reception committee. The report of the resolutions committee, read by Rev. Mr. Bremner of Galt, expressed strong appreciation of the efforts of the three Baptist churches, of the interest shown by the citizens, of the work of the choir, of the committee on reception and billeting, of the speakers, of Dr. Wallace's services, and of the interest taken by the local press in the convention. The report of the Nominating committee, adopted as read, resulted as follows: Honorary President, Mr. J. T. Bowes, of Toronto, president, Rev. N. S. McKechnie, of London, first vice, Mr. Allan W. Doughty, of Peterborough, 2nd vice, Rev. Mr. McLeod, of Brantford, 3rd vice, Mr. Edgar Sheriff, of Hamilton, secretary-treasurer, Mr. W. F. DEAD MAN MAY BE WANTED FOR TRUNK MURDER

MAN KILLED BY TRAIN THOUGHT TO BE EUGENE LEROY, FOR WHOM NATION WIDE SEARCH WAS MADE.

DESCRIPTION IDENTICAL

SHAWNEE, Okla., May 25.—(Canadian Press).—George Leroy, killed here last Friday night by a railroad train, is Eugene Leroy, wanted at Detroit in connection with the sensational trunk murder, according to the belief expressed here last night by Police Chief Simms, who says the dead man's description is identical with that of the missing Eugene Leroy. Officials here are in communication with the Detroit authorities.

A nation-wide search was instituted last summer for Eugene Leroy, following the finding of the body of a woman, alleged to be Leroy's wife, in a trunk in a Detroit express office which had been shipped from Chicago. Working on evidence obtained, the Detroit poice sought Leroy for the murder of his wife, believing she had been slain in Chicago and the body shipped to Detroit in a trunk. The search aroused interest throughout the United States and Canada and several men were taken into custody on the strength of their resemblance to Leroy, but in each case were later freed.

Wholesale Charges of Intimidation By Both Sides at Ulster Polls

EACH PARTY ALLEGES BEATING OF VOTERS AND MAKES NO ATTEMPT TO CONCEAL THAT PERSONATION WAS CARRIED ON TO AN UNPRECEDENTED EXTENT TO INFLUENCE YESTERDAY'S VOTING.

COMPLETE RETURNS NOT BEFORE END OF WEEK

BELFAST, May 25. (Canadian Press.) Wholesale charges of intimidation and impersonation during the ballotting in Ulster for members of the new Northern Irish Parliament, are being made by both the Nationalists and the Unionists. A Nationalist newspaper cites dozens of incidents with names in which it claims Nationalist voters in Ballymacarret were beaten on their way to the polls, or after voting, thus preventing others from attemping to cast votes. Similar claims are put forward by the Unionists. Neither side attempts to conceal the fact that impersonation was carried on to an unprecedened extent.

BELFAST NOW QUIET AFTER WILD NIGHT.

Belfast to-day was almost normal after a night of the wildest excitement, reports reaching the city indicating that many districts in Ulster were similarly affected. The crowds continued to walk the streets until eleven last night in the expectation that trouble would occur but at that hour armed soldiers sent pedestrians to their homes. Stragglers were gathered in by the sentries afer 11.

Election officials at nine this morning began to count the votes, but the complicated system of proportional representation provided for under the Irish Act made it doubtful, it was said, whether complete returns would be known until he end of the week.

FINANCIAL AND MARKETS

WALL STREET.

NEW YORK, May 25. (Canadian Press. Supporting orders in steels, equipments, motors and representative oils, at gains extending from liberal fractions to a point, imparted a semblance of firmness to the stock market, at the outset of to-day's dealings. Within the first half hour, however, the market restored its course on renewed selling pressure, against cetain of the leaders.

Crucible and Republic Steels, American Car, United States Rubber, American Woollen, Houston Oil and Stromberg Carburetor, reacted 1 to 1 1-2 points.

Prominent specialties, such as American Tobacco, Corn Products, International Paper and Industrial Alcohol, also reacted.

During the forenoon shorts directed their attacks mainly against the rubber tire group. These issues lost one to 2 1-2 points on further unfavorable trade reports. Equipments made additional recessions, notably General Electric and Pressed Steel Car. Several of yesterday's weakest features, including Central Leather Preferred and Remington Typewriter, also extended their losses. Secondary oils and a few of the higher priced shares, among them Standard Oil of New Jersey, were lower by 1 to 3 points. Dealings in rails were nominal, St. Paul preferred losing one point and Atlantic Coal Line 2 points. Call money opened at 7 per cent as against yesterday's early rate of 6 1-2 per cent.

Trading slackened during midsession, but liquidation and short selling made further substantial progress. High-priced Oils, as well as leading Steels, Equipments and Food shares were especially heavy. Adverse dividend rumors contributed largely to increased losses.

NEW YORK, May 25. — (Canadian Exchange steady, demand 3.96 1-8; Canadian dollars 10 9-16 per cent. discount.

CHICAGO GRAIN.

CHICAGO, May 25. (Canadian Press.) — Rains in some sections of Kansas had a bearish effect on the wheat market. The bullish crop reports which came from Nebrasa and Missouri led to rallies, but failed to exercise lasting influence. It seemed evident that buyers were inclined to be cautious owing to the rapidity of the recent advance in prices. The opening quotations, which varied from a 1 3-4 decline to 3-4 gain, were followed by decided general set back, although interrupted by moderate transient upturns. Corn sagged with wheat, but later showed independent strength. After opening 3-8 to 1c lower the market scored something of an advance. Oats were easier, governed largely by the action of wheat, starting 1 1-8 off to 5-8 up and failing to hold the upturn later. Weakness in the hog market put some weight in provisions.

TORONTO.

TORONTO, May 25. (Canadian Press.) — Pessimistic sentiment regarding the financial conditions, led to a general liquidation on the Toronto Stock Exchange this morning, losses ranging from small fractions to four points. Riordon broke heavily again, going down to 16 for a loss of 4 points, while the gain made by the Sawyer-Massey Preferred on Monday proved to be but short lived. At one time this issue was off five points at 30, but before noon close buying brought about a rally to 33, a net loss of 2 points.

Steel Corporation was the most active stock and dropped 2 1-8 to 31 3-4. Canada Steamships preferred lost 1 at 54. Duluth Superior was weak at 22.

LIVE STOCK

TORONTO, May 25. (Canadian Press.) — Cattle receipts were heavy but trade was weak. Heavy beef steers, $9 to $9.50; butcher steers, choice, $8.50 to $9.50; butcher cows, medium, $5 to $7; calves, $10 to $12; lambs, $15 to $17; hogs, selects, $9.5

CUSTOM HOUSE, DUBLIN, FIRED BY SINN FEIN

BUILDING WAS ATTACKED AND BURNED, ARMED MEN GUARDING APPROACHES TO PREVENT ITS BEING SAVED.

LOSS A MILLION POUNDS

LONDON, May 25.—(Canadian Press).—The Dublin Customs House says a Central News despatch, was attacked and burned by Sinn Feiners this afternoon. The fire, says the account, started at one o'clock, the flames breaking out simultaneously throughout the building, which was totally destroyed.

It was one of the finest buildings in Dublin, and cost one million pounds. The inmates fled as the fire broke out. Another account says that the building was set on fire through bombs thrown in.

A railroad bridge running past the building was occupied by a large number of men, upon whom a fusillade was opened. Others in the immediate vicinity of the Customs House also were fired upon. Lorry loads of military were bombed as they were driving up to the scene. The soldiers fired machine guns, rifles and revolvers, and several persons were seen to fall. So far three persons appear to have been killed. Armed men guarded all approaches to the Customs House to prevent the saving of the building. Shortly afterwards, Liberty Hall, the headquarters of the Irish Transport Workers, was set on fire and destroyed.

It is said that four auxiliary policemen were wounded and seven Sinn Feiners killed, eleven wounded and sixty-five taken prisoners. The Customs House was still burning late this afternoon.

WEDDING BELLS

DUNCAN—SMITH.

A very quiet but pretty wedding took place in St. John's church Tuesday, May 24th, at 1.30 p.m., when Miss Martha Smith, of Peterborough, was united in marriage to Mr. [illegible] Duncan, formerly of Cleveland. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. Dr. R. C. Blagrave. The bride was given away by Mr. Rush, of Peterborough.

The bridesmaid was her sister, Miss Margaret Smith. The groom's best man, Mr. Herbert Delahay, of Peterborough.

Following the wedding, luncheon was served to a number of relatives at the house.

Mr. and Mrs. Duncan left on the 3.20 C.P.R. for Cleveland, and on their return will reside at 585 Aylmer street.

KIDD — REID.

On Saturday, 21st May, the marriage of Vera Mae Reid, only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Reid, Otonabee, to Everett H. Kidd, son of Mr. Walter Kidd, Otonabee, took place at St. Paul's Presbyterian Manse, Rev. Robert Pogue officiating. The bride looked charming in a pretty travelling suit of navy blue gabardine, with hat to match, and wore a corsage bouquet of sweetheart roses. The happy couple left for a short honeymoon trip to New York, and on their return will reside in Otonabee.

SALVATION ARMY HOLIDAY OUTING.

The annual outing of the Salvation Army, which took place yesterday to Hiawatha, was a great success. The boat itself was crowded to its fullest capacity, and six motor cars filled with those who could not be accommodated by steamer followed the party to Rice Lake. Baseball and football were on the programme of sports for the afternoon, and the band, with a collection of merry songsters, made things lively on the return trip.

NEW MACHINE MAY REVOLUTIONIZE CODFISH INDUSTRY.

Revolution wrought in the salmon canning industry by the "Iron Chink" is destined to be repeated in the great codfishing industry of the North Atlantic through a recently developed machine known as the "Iron Splitter." The new machine dresses cod and similar fish for salting or smoking. Operated by two men, the "Iron Splitter" does the work of 60 to 75 men, who now wield sharp knives aboard the codfishing boats and in the salting and smoking plants of Labrador, Newfoundland, England, France, Norway, and Sweden. The "Iron Splitter" will take a fish every second, 60 a minute, into one end and from the other sends it out perfectly dressed, with head and backbone removed, the fish split, thoroughly cleaned and washed, and the back napes removed, reading for salting or smoking.

CARE OF MUNICIPAL PROPERTY.

In our towns and cities one cannot go far without observing conditions of neglect and carelessness due entirely to the lack of interest of the people themselves.

Unfortunately, the average citizen feels that once he has paid his taxes he has fulfilled his duty, and the city can do the rest. He overlooks the fact that the city is but an aggregation of units, of which he is one; that any improvement or maintenance charge must be paid for by these units, and he must bear his share.

It is a well-known axiom that a careless employer is reflected in a careless employee, which largely accounts for the fact that in altogether too many cases the cost of municipal public works is largely in excess of the cost of such works when privately carried out.

Many instances might be cited of losses due to either wilful damage or carelessness by the people themselves. In an eastern city during the past month a sewer became blocked by the depositing of material which could not be carried away. Many cellars were flooded and a cost of $30,000 entailed. These losses are reflected in the tax rate, and just so long as so much of the public revenue must be utilized to replace or repair the effects of neglect or disregard of public property, just so long will the tax rate continue to increase.—Conservation Bulletin.

Until comparatively recent years the umbrella was a distinctive badge of monarchs and nobles, and to-day the King of Siam bears as one of his titles, "Lord of the Tent House and Umbrellas."

Some of the latest types of American - made passenger automobiles have as many as 14 electric lights as a part of their equipment.

WIFE TAKES HUSBAND'S ADVICE

And Is Made Well Again by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Springfield, Mass.—"The doctor told my husband that I had to have an operation, otherwise I would be a sickly woman and could not have any more children on account of my weakened condition. I refused to have the operation. My husband asked me to try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. For the first four months I could do but little work, had to lie down most of the time, and was very nervous, but my husband was always reminding me to take the Vegetable Compound, which I did. Of my eight children this last one was the easiest birth of all and I am thankful for your Vegetable Compound. I recommend it to my friends when I hear them complaining about their ills."—Mrs. M. NATALE, 72 Fremont St., Springfield, Mass.

Sickly, ailing women make unhappy homes, and after reading Mrs. Natale's letter one can imagine how this home was transformed by her restoration to health. Every woman who suffers from such ailments should give Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound a fair trial. It is surely worth while.

CAMPBELLFORD LACROSSE TEAM WON GAME FROM HAVELOCK

DEFEATED THE RAILWAY TOWN BY 8 TO 6 IN FAST, CLEAN GAME —FAIR BOARD'S FIELD DAY WAS A FINE SUCCESS.

BIG CROWD PRESENT

CAMPBELLFORD, May 24.—The absence of Sir Adam Beck, who was probably watching the ponies at the Woodbine w,as the only disappointment to the Campbellford Fair directors in their Victoria Day celebration. The big crowd at the Exhibition Grounds was apparently unaware that the Hydro Chief was expected to spend the day with them, according to the programme, for they followed the races and athletic games and sports highly satisfied with the attractions, and a brand of spring weather that was delightful.

Mr. Alex. Hume, ot Seymour Township, and Mayor A. J. Meyers made the only addresses of the afternoon. Mr. Hume briefly sketched the plans of the Fair Board, and stated that the large attendance ensured the financial success of the day's endeavour. To Mayor Meyers fell the duty of recalling for the benefit of the younger generation and as a reminder to their parents the significance of Victoria Day. His Worship spoke of the beneficent reign of Victoria the Good and of the strengthening of the ties between the British Dominions and the Motherland during her long and happy tenure of the throne. Her memory was cherished to-day in all the nations that form the British Empire, and it was an evidence and an inspiration of loyalty that Victoria Day should be appropriately celebrated in every community.

Big Card of Sports.

The afternoon's sports included three races, which were not concluded until after six o'clock. They were all closely contested, and the entry list in each event was comparatively large. The feature of the programme was the lacrosse game between Campbellford and Havelock's Intesmediate O.A.L.A. teams. Campbellford won by the score of 8 to 6, getting a big lead in the first period that was rather one-sided. For the rest of the game Havelock played the home team on almost even terms, although Campbellford missed a lot of shots in the third period.

Warkworth defeated the Hydro football team by one goal to nothing at soccer, and in the tug-of-war between teams representing the east and west side of the town, the men of the east hauled their opponents all over the place or thereabouts.

An interesting incident was a competition in throwing the lacrosse ball. Of the players of the two teams who tried for the lacrosse stick presented by the Fair Board, Jim Kerr and Tom Thomas, of Campbellford, outdistanced all the others, and Kerr won from Thomas by about three feet.

The Lacrosse Match.

The lacrosse teams lined up as follows:

Referee—Dick Cole.

Bluett scored the first goal in less than a minute on a lob from well outside. Pete Thomas made it two for Campbellford shortly afterwards. Kerr took a nice pass from Edwards for the third, and Jacobs got the fourth in one of the prettiest plays of the game. Graham started a fast combination from the Campbellford end, and nearly the entire home field had a stick in the getting of that goal. About the end of the period Dug Brennan was given five minutes for clouting Kelly and his brother got three for remarking to Dick Cole, "You're dirty." Gould made way for Brinkman in goal at the second quarter, and from that time Havelock tightened up all the way out. The checking was closer and a little harder.

Charlie Holmes, who was just about the best player of the entire lot, got Havelock's first goal after a long lone run, and just to show that this wasn't much of a stunt, Jacobs went the length of the field but shot high. At that he got two goals at that stage, taking the firing end of combinations that showed Campbellford at its best.

In the third Glen Wright poked one past Kelly from around the corner of the net. Holmes pulled off another run and passed to Dug Brennan, who scored. Havelock got the next on a play, in which Brennan carried the ball, and to close the period Tom Thomas took a hand in a nice play that was started by Pete Thomas.

Harry Copp went into the Havelock line in the last period, and, after Dug Brennan's shot was stopped by Kelly, batted the rubber against the netting. A few minutes later he staged a similar stunt. Kelly made a beautiful save, but Copp bounced the rebound through the posts. In the last minutes of the

FLAGRANT BREACH OF THE GAME ACT

A flagrant breach of the Fish and Game Act was committed at Hastings yesterday in broad daylight, and without any concern about the possible presence of spotters, inspectors or even a stray game warden. Two men fishing off the dam above the highway bridge, succeeded in spearing a fourteen pound 'lunge. Apparently they were apprehensive of losing it, so one of them held the big fish while another foraged an additional harpoon. Transfixing the 'lunge with the two spears they hauled it up on to the dam, dumped it into a bag and walked away. No wonder the local Fish and Game Protective Association declare thaat the game laws are badly flouted throughout the district.

MADOC DOCTOR DIES OF BURNS

DR. HENRY SUTTON, ONE OF THE OLDEST PRACTITIONERS IN THE PROVINCE,

CLOTHES CAUGHT FIRE

BELLEVILLE, May 25.—(Canadian Press).— Terribly burned about the body on Monday at his home in Madoc village, Dr. Henry H. Sutton, one of the oldest medical practitioners in the Province, died yesterday morning in the General Hospital here, to which he was rushed in the hope of saving his life.

Dr. Sutton had ben an invalid for years and being accustomed to smoke either in bed or in a chair, he is thought to have dropped a match setting fire to the bedding. His daughter, Miss Louisa Sutton, had stepped out into the garden and was surprised a few minutes later to discover smoke issuing from the house. Rushing to her father's room she could not see him for smoke. She called for help and with assistance rescued him in his burning clothes. He was badly burned about the body, his shirt being consumed, and his feet were burned to a crisp.

MUCH RIOTING MARKS ULSTER VOTE TUESDAY

HEAVY VOTE POLLED

LONDON, May 25, Canadian Press —Unprecedented scenes marked the polling throughout Ulster yesterday. Ninety per cent. of the registered vote was cast. Lines formed before the voting booths long before the opening hour both in the cities and in the rural districts.

In Belfast several outbreaks occurred outside the booths and the police were forced to use their batons to stop the disturbances. In Ballymacarret revolvers and stones were used by the rioters. Nine were sent to the hospital. The police used rifles and revolvers to disperse the mob. The ywere aided by an armoured car. The women voted in full strength in Belfast. At nightfall elaborate precautions were taken to guard the ballot boxes. In all sections where Protestants and Catholics live side by side there have been incidents which required the attention of the police. In an attack on one of the Belfast booths several persons were stabbed and beaten,one so seriously that he lies unconscious in an hospital. Two policemen who came to their assistance were injured. Many of the voters had to be rescued from their assailants by armoured cars.

KEENE GRABBED THE FIRST GAME

Keene made an auspicious start in the East Peterboro league yesterday by defeating Otonabee 26 to 7, in a seven innings engagement. Both teams were raw for the game, but Keene with a stronger pitching force and better fielding, cinched the game with no trouble. Otonabee used three twirlers, but Keene found all of them, in the fifth innings Fletcher touching G. Close for a home run, the feature of the game.

The game was played on the fair grounds before a good crowd of fans whose interest in the game is an earnest of a successful ball league this year. The game did not start till five o'clock, when the unveiling of the memorial was completed. Rain threatened to stop the game but the clouds blew over and the game was finished without interruption.

The Line Up.

The teams lined up as follows:

Keene—

Catcher, G. O'Dette; pitcher, J. O'Dette; 1b, H. Reid; ss, M. Robertson; 2b, A. E. Fletcher; 3b, C. Nelson; rf, Hugh Renwick; cf, Fred Hall; lf., E. Doris.

POLICE SWOOP ON SURPRISED COCKING MAIN

ARREST ABOUT A SCORE OF THE 200 PRESENT, CONFISCATE 35 BIRDS AND 3 CASES OF LIQUOR.

MANY U.S. CITIZENS

THOROLD, Ont, May 25.—(Canadian Press.)—In the early hours of yesterday a gathering of about two hundred men, spectators at a cocking main in an open field near Port Weller, about seven miles from here, received an unwelcome surprise when a number of Provincial police officers swooped suddenly down upon them. There was a wild ramble to escape and the majority of the crown contrived to get away, but about a score were arrested. The sports present were mainly from New York State, but the gathering included also men from Toronto, London, Hamilton and other Ontario towns and cities. It was evident that the main had been in progress for some time as no fewer than 20 dead birds were found in the pit. Live birds confiscated numbered 35 and three cases of liquor also fell into the hands of the Provincial officers. Some of the men under arrest will face charges of selling liquor, in addition to a charge of participating in a form of amusement banied by law.

LAKEFIELD QUIET OVER HOLIDAY

LAKEFIELD, May 25—The Social Club celebrated the holiday by a very enjoyable shore dinner up the river.

A number of local young men engaged one of Mr. Charton's motor trucks and went to Norwood for the sports.

A football team from the village drove to the 16th Line and engaged in a friendly game with the boys there.

Mr. and Mrs. Woodbridge, of Little Britain, motored to the village on Sunday and were the guests of Mr. and Mrs. E. Bickell.

Miss Ethel Davis and Mr. Bert Davis of Toronto, were in the village for the week end.

Mr. A. B. Doidgu, of Toronto, was visiting friends for the week end.

Lakefield was the "deserted village' on the 24th as there were no sports and no public celebration. The sports at Norwood, the ball game on the 16th, the unveiling of the monument at Keene, each took its quota. There were also a great many who took advantage of the holiday to picnic up the river. The steamers, which ran special holiday trips between Lakefield and Stoney Lake on Saturday, Monday and Tuesday, were crowded almost to capacity. The 24th of May marks the first visit of many cottagers to the Lakes, and every year brings an increasing number.

ASK DOMINION FOR LOAN FOR CITY VETERAN

CONVENTION OF G.W.V.A. ASKS $50,000,000 TO ERECT HOMES — OPPOSE SPINNEY BILL.

HIGH PRESSURE BUSINESS

BRANTFORD, May 25.—(Canadian Press.)—The annual convention of the Great War Veterans' Association, Ontario Command, is to be one of high pressure business, as shown by the heavy session held yesterday. The Veterans called on the Dominion Government for a loan of fifty millions to the Soldiers' Settlement Board to enable city veterans to erect homes on such conditions as Veterans farming receive them, payable in 30 years with a limit of 85,000 and interest at five per cent. It was held that this would solve the housing problem and aid to combat unemployment and give assistance to Veterans needing homes. The convention also passed a resolution against the Spinney Bill as a return to patronage, a condition no Veteran wanted.

WEDNESDAY, MAY 25TH, 1921.

THE LAST AWFUL WEEK

In order that Parliament may be prorogued this week it is announced that a large amount of legislation—some of it of considerable importance—is to be thrown overboard. Bills now on the order paper, including amendments to the Criminal Code, and the penitentiary situation, the Copyright Bills, amendments to the Civil Service Act, and other legislation, are to be scrapped to suit the convenience of the members and allow the session to come to an end. There is something radically wrong with our parliamentary system when, at the end of each session, important bills have either to be abandoned or passed with only the slightest consideration. The present session has shown no improvement over preceding ones in this respect—in fact the number of bills to be jettisoned by the government this week is undoubtedly larger than usual. There is so much time wasted in talking in the early stages that the last week's proceedings become a farce, rather than a business-like carrying on of public affairs.

OTONABEE REMEMBERS.

The people of Otonabee have kept faith with the men from that township who laid down their lives in France, and the splendid monument which was unveiled and dedicated at Keene yesterday is a striking evidence that the residents of Otonabee have not forgotten the gallant officers and men who made the supreme sacrifice overseas. In planning this lasting tribute Otonabee has set an example which other places in the district—including the City of Peterborough—might well follow. The young men of the township were found in every unit that was recruited in this district, and their fellow citizens backed up their efforts by a liberal response to every patriotic appeal. And now they have given another proof of their loyalty and patriotism by dedicating a fine memorial to the memory of the "unreturning brave." Otonabee's record, both during the war, and since, has been such as should fill every resident with pride. We in Peterboro have reason to feel a little ashamed that it should have been left to one of the townships to point the way.

PROTECT THE FISH.

In inflicting a fine upon a Peterborough County man for illegal fishing, one of the deputies of the Fish and Game Department, used some pointed language which, it is hoped has not failed to have some effect upon other offenders. This official declares that the Peterboro district has more than its share of fish pirates, men who violate the Fish and Game Laws, who fish out of season and by illegal methods, and who slaughter hundreds of fish during the spawning season. Unfortunately it is to be feared that the inspector's remarks are only too true. There is in many sections of this district an utter disregard of the regulations, and until an example is made of some of the offenders, it is idle to hope that the fishing during the legal season can remain up to standard. Men who are law-abiding citizens in other respects seem to think nothing of taking a fine maskinonge in the close season, and it is the prevalence of this sentiment that is more than anything else, ruining the fishing in the Trent waters. The newly formed Fish and Game Association have a splendid oportupnity to do some effective work in putting a stop to illegal fishing. If anybody is interested in protecting the fish it should be the members of that organization.

BUY CANADIAN GOODS.

The Canadian Reconstruction Association has published a timely and instructive booklet, entitled "Buy Canadian Products, which can be had free of charge from the editorial departmnt of the Association at 6 Jordan Street, Toronto. Every patriotic Canadian who has the welfare of his country at heart should seriously ponder the arguments here presented as to the wisdom, and inced the necessity, of patronising the home market if present conomic handicaps are to be removed. Since it is estimated that women buy 0 per cent. of the commodities used in domestic life, the appeal is directed especially to them, and they should make it a point to obtain this little booklet and study its contents.

At the annual meting of the Canadian Club, held in the Royal Connaught Hotel last night, the retiring president, Mr. George C. Martin, made this duty on the part of patriotic Canadians the theme of his address.

The important bearing which has question of imports has on the Canadian employment market may be illustrated by a quotation from the preface to this booklet: "Many commodities of Canadian manufacture are unsurpassed in the world. If even 5 2per cent. of the goods imported into Canada last year had been supplied from Canadian sources direct employment would have been provided for some 65,000 additional business workers at good wages. Including dependents, such additional business would have supported directly more than 250,000 persons. Every dollar spent in Canada on Canadian products means more money for Canadian workers, improved demand for farm and factory products and additional business for wholesalers and retailers."

The intricacies of the exchange situation make it difficult for many people to understand the relationship between the "made-in-Canada" movement and the value of the Canadian dollar. It will help such to realise th true position if a few statistics are given from the Reconstruction Association's leaflet. At the end of March, 1914, Canada's net debt was approximately $336,000,000. At the end of March, 1921—no credit having been taken for non-active assets—it was officially computed as $2,311,294,444. The interest on the debt in 1914 was under $13,000,000; for 1921-22 the charges on public debt, including sinking funds, will be in excess of $142,000,000. The amount of gold in possession of the Canadian Government, the Canadian banks, and in the central gold reserves is only about $170,000,000. "Adding the unfavourable balance of the so-called "invisible" items in trade account to the excess of imports over exports, we have a total of adverse obligations far exceeding the total gold stock in this country. It is apparent that Canada cannot return to an effective gold standard unless imports are greatly reduced, or exports greatly enlarged, or the money situation so improved that Canada can borrow freely abroad." Everyone can help in this movement to decrease imports and increase exports, and incidentally give employment to a great number of Canadian workers who ar perforce at present idle, by insisting, when making his or her purchases, on getting goods manufactured in this country. The cumulative effect of such actiort, if generally adopted, would be of surprising proportions.—Hamiltton Spectator.

RESOURCES AND FUTURE OF CANADA.

To the current number of the Canadian National Railway Magazine, Mr. R. M. MacIver, associate professor of political science in the University of Toronto, contributes an article in which he surveys the natural resources of the Dominion and the possibilities that they reveal. Specially does he emphasize the importance of encouraging agriculture and of securing that it should not be subjected to any needless handicap as compared with other industries. This, he points out, is not only bad in itself, but would be less injurious, in the long run, to manufacturers as well.

Professor MacIver provides a needed antidote to pessimistic sentiment when he remarks that to turn from the immediate outlook to future prospects is to pass into a sunnier environment. The position of Canadian industry in the trade of the world is full of promise and potentiality. It may seem brighter because of the clouds in the foreground, but nevertheless the grounds for optimism are great and substantial. The optimism that is natural to the Canadian is no mere accident. It springs from a true, instinctive sense of great powers yet unrealized; of a great heritage not yet entered upon.

A mere survey of our resources is impressive, continues the writer. With great spaces still undeveloped, Canada is already fifth among the wheat producers of the world. And yet we have scarcely begun intensive scientific farming. The average yield for the ten years prior to the world war was but 17 1-2 bushels per acre, as compared with 31 1-2 for England. Our farmers are only awakening to the possibilities of mixed farming. So in both these lines there are great developments to be made. Canada's mineral resources are most varied and valuable, including, as they do, coal, iron, copper, gold, silver, lead, nickel, asbestos (in the last two of which we have something approaching a monopoly), and there are vast areas still unprospected.

No product of the earth has to-day a greater commercial significance than has oil. It is now the precious fluid of the earth and is far more important than are the precious metals. In the world of to-day the promised land flows, not with milk and honey, but with oil. And it is significant that the far northwest contains an enormous, though not yet defined, area of oil-bearing land. Canada is credited with having 14 per cent. of the world's resources in coal, and the two great provinces which lack coal have the increasingly adequate compensation of splendid water powers. Ontario has a larger developed horse power per capita than has any other part of the world, and yet it is estimated that less than one-eighth of the available power is harnessed as yet. This points not only to a great utilization of water power for general manufacturing purposes, but also to the special development of an industry of increasing importance—the electro chemical—whose products such as aluminum, graphite, calcium-carbide, and ferro-alloys, are required more and more for the industrial arts.

Canada is a land of maple, pines, spruces, firs and other commercially important trees. It has the largest per capita resources of timber in the world. Our fisheries along an extended coast line on both Atlantic and Pacific, and on the Great Lakes are probably unequalled throughout the world. Nature and the enterprise of Canadians have conspired to give Canada a great network of communications by water and by land, not only furnishing facilities for adequate and rapid transportation, but making our Dominion a land of exits and of entrances to the markets of the world.

LOVE!

By KATHERINE MOORE

A NEW SITUATION.

Chapter 58.

I could see plainly that Leonard was worried. Ever since he had told me of O. J. Darwood's death he had been in a more agitated and nervous state than before. He stayed out late night after night. In the mornings he was fagged and irritable.

I racked my tired brain to think up all the little wifely things that I might do to win back his old happy nature, and perhaps his love. I tried to do everything to have home a place of comfort and rest for him. But if my effort won any response in his heart, I had no way of knowing. He seemed to be slipping farther and farther away from me again. All the success which I had hoped I had gained in the last few days, was wiped out. It counted for naught.

Then, too, I was afraid I had guessed the cause of his dispondency.

Darwood's death would mean the abrupt termination of the proceedings of the separation case. His business relations and duties with Mrs. Darwood would be over. She could hardly continue the suit when the defendant ceased to exist. At first the realization of this had given me hope—stirred my heart with joyfully anticipated relief. But was not this fact the very thing that was ~~setting~~ Leonard?

Or he must care— and care tremendously. He did not want to ~~give~~ her up. The thoughts of it were making him unhappy and restless. This was very evident.

What would he do? The taut line which bound us together—would the strain prove too great?

My heart was plunged again into the depths. If Darwood had not died, even then it might have been better. I might have been able to win Leonard back in spite of her. Would she take him from me? If I had only had a little more time —Leonard might have seen more clearly what he really wanted. He might have found out how much he needed me. I needed him so much. Was it possible God would make things all one-sided?

I longed to have Leonard talk to me about the case. If he would only say something! My anxiety chafed for information of Mrs. Darwood and what she might intend to do. Feminine curiosity broke down my reserve.

"I suppose Mr. Darwood's death relieves his wife of a great deal of trouble and annoyance?"I ventured one night when Leonard had come home earlier than usual. We were in the living room and he had just put down the evening newspaper which he had been reading. He scowled a litle at my question and for the moment was sorry I had ventured upon the forbidden subject.

"Not exactly. Under the circumstances, Darwood's death makes it rather difficult," Leonard answered without looking at me.

"Difficult?" the word jumped from my lips before I could stop it. He sat and stared in front of him for a minute. I could not make out whether he cared to continue the conversation or not. His answer gave me a surprise I was not expecting.

"It's a question of money. As he spoke, his voice sounded tired and his arms dropped limply at his sides. "Darwood's wife would be his sole heir if she had not started to sue him for a separation. But that will make a lot of difference. It means trouble."

I put the magazine which I had been reading on the table. My hands trembled so I was afraid Leonard might notice. My breath cae quickly.

"You mean —mean Darwood's death won't be the end of things? You'll have more work to do on the case?" I tried not to let too much emotion creep into my voice.

"Heavens, yes! There's no end of difficulties now." he told me, and I was sure that the thoughts of it were not entirely pleasing to him.

My brain rushed around in turmoil. I hardly knew whether to be glad or sorry for the turn that things had taken.

Leonard was not languishing over the possibility of losing Mrs. Darwood. At least I could be sure of that.

OTONABEE TOWNSHIP UNVEILED A MEMORIAL TO 53 WAR HEROES

A SPLENDID TRIBUTE FROM THE MUNICIPALITY—IMPRESSIVE SERVICE AT KEENE.

KEENE, May 25. — Otonabee township yesterday, with the unveiling and dedication of a splendid memorial to its fallen soldiers at Keene, put on record the final chapter of a glorious war record; a record which stands well to the front in comparison with any other Canadian municipality.

The memorial is a handsome monument to the fifty-three Otonabee boys who laid down their lives on the field of battle. Standing 22 feet high it is a granite obelisk of beautiful design, suitably enscribed with the names of the unreturning brave of Otonabee on one side, its dedication by the municipality on the other two, and a view of Flanders Fields on the other face. It is erected at the intersection of the two main streets and is strikingly prominent, and when the surrounding lot is seeded and graded the setting of the handsome granite memorial will be complete. The memorial was erected by the municipality at a cost of $3,000. The Coughlin Monumental Works of this city, executed the work in an excellent manner.

Two Inscriptions.

The monument bears two inscriptions as follows:

Erected in grateful remembrance by the municipality of Otonabee, A.D. 1921. "Let thosef who come after see to it that their names are not forgotten."

In Memoriam.

Dedicated to the memory of the men of Otonabee who served, fought and died for freedom's sake in the Great War, 1914—1918.

"Their name liveth for evermore.

"We are the dead,
Short days ago we lived,
Felt dawn, saw sunset glow,
Loved and were loved.
And now we lie
In Flander's Fields."

The Names.

The inscriptions and the following list of the men from Otonabee who died in service are in lead letters on the base, which adds much to the beauty of the monument, of which simplicity is the keynote: Robert Anderson, Alphonse Bolin, Herbert Carpenter, Wm. Howard Curtis, Thomas Doherty, Robert Emery, Patrick Fitzgerald, Franklin Girven, Harry Hastie, Roy Hawkins, John Head, Harold Hatcher, W. J. Long, Henry Mathers, Robert Mahood, Alex. McKenzie, Ray Nelson, Ernest Peters, Charles Powell, Stanley Rippingale, Harold Smith, Herbert Sydes, Alfred Shaw, David Tier, Lang Thompson, William Toms, Richard Wadlock, Gordon Weaver, Joshua Blaker, Edward Corrigan, William Curtin, Thomas Dyer, William Edwards, Herbert Guest, Alex. Hastie, Bruce Hawkins, Wm. R. Hope, John Henderson, John Kittle, William Melling Percy Mann, Joseph D. McCarthy; John McGregor, Frederick Orde, Wiliam Pue, George Read, Benjamin Rippingale, George Smith, Harold Spiers, Robert Tobico, Ormond Weir, Arthur Whitt.

The Ceremony.

The unveiling took place at 3.30 in the afternoon, following speeches by prominent speakers and songs by the school children. A platform surrounded with benches was erected near the memorial, and before hundreds of people crowding the benches and lined up and down the streets, Mrs. John Hawkins, of Otonabee, whose two sons made the supreme sacrifice, pulled the flag down from the obelisk and the monument was officially dedicated by Reeve Fred E. Eason.

From the surrounding country automobiles began arriving after dinner and there was estimated to be over one thousand people witnesses of the ceremony, in which the two elements of sadness and joy were strangely mingled.

The First Speaker.

Reeve Fred Eason, the first speaker, spoke of the prominent part of the township in the war in contributions of men, money and supplies. "This day," he said, "is the culmination of that effort." He praised the continued support of Otonabee in every war effort.

Lieut.-Col. T. J. Johnston, in referring to the sacrifice of families of the dead, said: "These people have given what dollars and cents cannot buy. They have given what the war cost." There is no township has done more than Otonabee, he said. As far as I know the people, if the case ever arises again, they will give the same response."

Rev. Father McGuire.

"The Reeve spoke of what you have done and let me tell you, people of Otonabee, it's to your everlasting credit," said Rev. Peter McGuire, of Peterborough. "You have shown a fine and generous spirit and raised a splendid monument.' The speaker denounced profiteering during the war and said that the hope of the country was now on the younger generation.

Professor Reynolds.

Professor J. R. Reynolds, of Guelph Agricultural College, spoke thoughtfully. "I am sure this community, this township, are to be commended and congratulated on an occasion of this sort." Continuing he spoke the thought that the community should not now rest on their oars, but should work to bring the world back to its natural channel.

Financially Broken.

The world, he said, is financially broken and Europe is suffering from too much of the spirit of nationality. He emphasized the need to cherish American friendship and commended the absence of race differences and prejudices in Canada. "Those men,' he said, "died that the differences of men and their antagonisms might be forgotten and men might live in peace and freedom like brothers.' This was Professor Reynolds' closing tribute to the unreturning dead:

Faith in Empire.

Faith in the Empire to weather all perils characterized the address of Rev. W. H. Andrews, of Toronto. His was also a touching tribute to the men who died, as he compared the peaceful, unclouded spring to the lives of the dead, who in the full flush of youth and glory were taken from this life.

Rev. F. W. Anderson, of Port Hope, outlined the final progress of the war in which the Canadians played so glorious a part. 'The memorial, he said, should set an example to service for generations to come." These men, your representatives, my comrades, saved others themselves they could not save.

Rev. P. Costello suggested in a brief address that on each May 24 a service similar to yesterday's be held, and W. A. Anderson, in voicing the appreciation of the committee for the assistance given them by the people at large, also made a similar suggestion. On behalf of the relations of those whose names are inscribed on the monument, Mr. Anderson spoke a few words of gratification at the immortalizing of the heroes in this way.

The Last Post.

When the memorial was unveiled and dedicated, 'Nearer My God' was sung, and Walter Hughes sounded the Last Post, following which the school children of Otonabee placed flowers on the monument. With bowed heads and tear-dimmed eyes, mothers, fathers, wives, sisters, brothers and sweethearts tenderly laid wreaths and bouquets around the monument in memory of loved ones lying in far away graves.

School children of Otonabee to the number of about 150 were trained by Miss Pearl McCann of Keene, and gave several excellent numbers and a united choir of Presbyterians, Methodists and Roman Catholics, sang during the afternoon, Miss Heffernan playing the accompaniment on the organ.

TRY PHOSPHATE IF YOU ARE THIN AND UNDER WEIGHT

Nothing like Bitro-Phosphate, says Dr. Harringan, of New York, to make thin, delicate, nervous, discourged men and women take on needed weight and quickly exhibit a nerve force that radiates health, energy nd ambition.

It is known to be such a wonderful aid to frail and tired out people that McDermid and Jury and other leading druggists, who have a large demand for it, are glad to guarantee Bitro-Phosphate.

CAUTION: Although Britro-Phosphate is an excellent aid in relieving weak, nervous conditions its use is not advised unless increased weight is desired.

Mothers! Keep Syrup Pepsin Handy

An absolute household necessity, a wonderful emergency remedy for constipation. Someone may need it any minute!

ALL in the family look to the mother for guidance and advice in the multitude of little disorders that arise almost daily. Chief of the minor ailments are those that precede or follow constipation. The experienced mother will tell this one to exercise more and that one to cut down on certain binding foods, but when these cautions fail she has to advise medicine.

Modern people are getting away from the notion that simple constipation, a headache, biliousness, colds, feverishness, indigestion, require a drastic, weakening drug. They take a teaspoonful or less of Dr. Caldwell's Laxative Syrup Pepsin, which is but a combination of simple laxative herbs with pepsin. The full formula is on every package. It is a mild, gentle remedy that does not gripe or weaken. The taste is syrupy and pleasant, and as it is free from narcotics and mercurials, mothers have for thirty years past felt safe in giving it to infants. A sixty-cent bottle will last a family months, and it is guaranteed to produce the results claimed or your money will be refunded.

You will find nothing better for disorders of the stomach, liver and bowels than this same Dr. Caldwell's Laxative Syrup Pepsin. Every member of the family can use it with safety and feel sure of results. Many thousands of families are never without a bottle in the house, and last year over eight million bottles were sold in drug stores, the largest sale of its kind in the world.

These believers in Dr. Caldwell's Laxative Syrup Pepsin no longer take calomel or castor oil, salt waters, physics or purgatives even if made into a sugar-coated pill, for they have learned that they can get better, safer and more agreeable results with Dr. Caldwell's Laxative Syrup Pepsin. If you will once bring a sixty-cent bottle into your home and take a teaspoonful the next time you feel constipated you will never thereafter be without it.

Try It FREE

There are heads of families who will want to prove to their own satisfaction that my Laxative Syrup Pepsin is as effective in constipation, as mild and gentle in action, as pleasant-tasting and safe as I claim. Let such write me for a free sample. It will be sent postpaid. Simply say "Dr. W. B. Caldwell, 19 Front Street, Bridgeburg, Ont.: Send a free trial bottle of your Dr. Caldwell's Laxative Syrup Pepsin to—" and give your name and address. I will see that the rest is attended to promptly.

Beware of Tender Gums

Unhealthy soil kills the best of wheat. Unhealthy gums kill the best of teeth. To keep the teeth sound, keep the gums well. Watch for tender and bleeding gums. This is a symptom of Pyorrhea, which afflicts four out of five people over forty.

Pyorrhea menaces the body as well as the teeth. Not only do the gums recede and cause the teeth to decay, loosen and fall out, but the infecting Pyorrhea germs lower the body's vitality and cause many serious ills.

To avoid Pyorrhea, visit your dentist frequently for tooth and gum inspection. And use Forhan's For the Gums.

Forhan's For the Gums will prevent Pyorrhea—or check its progress, if used in time and used consistently. Ordinary dentifrices cannot do this. Forhan's will keep the gums firm and healthy, the teeth white and clean. Start using it today. If gum-shrinkage has set in, use Forhan's according to directions, and consult a dentist immediately for special treatment.

RICHARD HALL & SON LIMITED

Tells of Four Months in Russian Jail

REVAL, Esthania, May 25.—(Associated Press).—The worst phase of imprisonment in Moscow is not the possibility or probability of execution, but the daily attempts made to wring confessions from the prisoners, says Dr. Morris Zucker, a Brooklyn Communist, who arrived here this month after having served four months in the Russian jails. Some of his experiences and observations have previously been made public. Zucker sentenced in New York in 1919 to 60 years imprisonment for sedition, but was deported instead.

Speaking of the life of the prisoners in the principal political prison at Moscow, which is called the "O. O. V.," he said: "The daily third degree to which prisoners are subjected if they are suspected of a serious political crime is worse than execution. These prisoners are taken every day, if their captors think there is a chance of wringing a confession from them, into the questioning room. There, whether they have anything to confess or not, they are commanded to 'reveal the truth.'

"The commissar puts a revolver to the prisoner's head; 'confess, or I'll shoot,' he say. The prisoner waits for the shot. He never knows whether it is coming or not.

"This process is often repeated until the prisoner will confess rather than undergo any further ordeals, in which case he is shot anyway."

The mental condition of these prisoners becomes such that they would prefer death, said Dr. Zucker. The Brooklyn Communist says that he met in the various prisons of Moscow 20 of the radicals deported from America and that he could well understand why the Bolsheviki arrested them, for they were chiefly anarchists who did not believe in any government, "particularly in a government so dictatorial as that maintained by the Bolsheviki."

Zucker said he found in prison also the President of the Turkestan Soviet Republic, Mohammed Hadjiz, General Alex. Gertor, once commander of the Russian south-western front, eight members of the Executive Committee of the right wing of the Social Revolutionist Party, three members of the Executive Committee of the left wing of that party, including Mayorieff, who was Commissar of Agriculture in 1918, and also a former Minister of Ecclesiastical Affairs M. Samaun.

Zucker described the summoning of prisoners for execution in much the saw way as did Schwartz, the San Francisco Communist, who came out of Russia some months ago. He added that executions were going on as late as March 27 and declared there had been no diminution of the "red terror" in Russia.

A DOUBLE DANGER.

A plot has been discovered, says a Dutch correspondent, for the reconquest of Germany by the ex-Crown Prince. If it had succeeded it would have served them both right.—Punch, London.

A lecturer had been describing some of the sights he had seen abroad during his tour in many countries.

He described the Pyramids of Egypt, Niagara Falls in America, the Steppes of Russia, the boiling springs of Hawaii, and concluded generally:

"There are many spectacles in the world that one never forgets."

"I wish you would tell me where I can get a pair!" exclaimed an old lady in the audience. "I am always forgetting mine."

"Do you know, Miss Bigal," said young Saphead, "I've got a gweat mind to fwighten you by wocking the boat?"

"A young man like you tried that with me once and the boat upset," replied Miss Biggal ,an athletic young woman.

"Did it, weally? What did you do?"

"Iswam to shore and notified the coroner."

A Man is just as Young and Strong as his Blood

No man can fight the battles of life and hold his own if his blood is not pure, for rich, red blood is what strength is based upon. When you see a strong, vigorous man, who never knows when he is licked, you may wager that such a man has coursing through his veins rich, red blood. Many people have thin, pale blood. They are weak, tire easily, become discouraged quickly, and sometimes feel like giving up the struggle. Such folks need Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery, which is sold by druggists in liquid or tablet form.

Send 10 cents to Doctor Pierce's Invalids' Hotel in Buffalo, N. Y., for a trial package of the tablets.

NIAGARA FALLS, ONT.—"I have used Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery at times for the past three years with wonderful results, and I take great pleasure in saying a word to boost the cause of 'Freedom from Illness.' I am a pressman by occupation, which is quite fatiguing and injurious to the system, but since taking the 'Discovery' business has no drawback for me. Three cheers for Doctor Pierce's medicine!"—WILLIAM H. DEMPSEY, JR., 32 Bridge Street.

Makes Chicago Kids' Paradise For an Hour

CHICAGO, May 25.—Cincinnati Dallas and other American cities have boasted of boy mayors, but it remained for Chicago to have a real boy Mayor to-day. He was Iver H. Wernes, a fourteen-year-old Boy Scout.

"Mayor" Wernes and his entire Scout administration suplanted the old regime at 10.30 o'clock this morning, and for one hour the city machinery was run entirely by the kids.

There was a kid Chief of Police, a kid Treasurer, a kid City Attorney, a kid Corporation Counsel, and so on down the line.

And in this brief space of time some startling reforms were inaugurated and some remarkable policies mapped out.

J. Burdette Hatch, who supplanted Charlie FitzMorris as Chief of Police, promptly abolished the curfew law.

Earling Dorf, who took Peter Mortenson's place as Superintendent of Schools, cut the school hours to two a day and extended the summer vacation to six months, with a month's holiday at Christmas time.

An appropriation of $100,000,000 was voted by the boy council for municipal playgrounds, the maintenance of a free circus and for the reclamation of twenty miles of lake front for free bathing beaches.

It was decided to set apart Grant Park for a permanent camp for Boy Scouts, and to engage Indian experts at $1,000,000 a year to teach the Scouts how to make fire by twirling sticks and other arts familiar to the red man.

Consternation ran riot in the City Hall as the heads of departments were thrown out of office, and the Boy Scouts took possession of the building.

The inauguration of the new regime was heralded by a grand review, band concert and a parade through the loop.

The steel trap was invented in 1704.

The average price for passenger automobiles, taking the output of all the American makers, is 2,710 for the 1921 car. Last year the average was $2,490, in 1919 it was $2,200, and in 1918 it was $1,950.

A French technical journal is offering 25,000 francs as a prize to anyone who will produce fuel that will be cheaper than gasoline. The substitute must produce horse-power and mileage without making it necessary to modify existing motors.

WAR VETERANS WOULD CHANGE ORGANIZATION

PROPOSE SPLITTING ONTARIO INTO THREE DIVISIONS

BRANTFORD, May 25 (Canadian Press).—At this morning's session of the convention here of the Ontario Command of the G. W. V. A., it was decided to ask the Dominion Association to amend the constitution so that Provincial Executives might be formed of the president, two vice-presidents, representatives to the Dominion Command, and five men chosen by the convention in the annual meeting.

This would reduce the executive from 16 to 9, and would be a move toward economy.

Comrade Rawlinson, Toronto, declaring that the Association must be filled with "dry rot" when only a minority of branches were represented at the convention, called for a division of the Province—West, Central, and East—for one central organisation could not handle the work properly.

An invitation to meet in Belleville next year was extended by Mayor C. E. Hanna of that city.

COLLIERY MEN AGAIN OBJECT

DO NOT WANT COAL COST SHEETS PUBLISHED.

OTTAWA, May 25 (Canadian Press).—Further objection to the placing of cost sheets in the hands of the special House Committee on Fuel Resources came this morning when the Committee took up the examination of the coal operators.

Representatives of the operators in some cases had not the cost sheets ready. Others objected to giving details of costs and profits unless all their competitors did the same.

John Mackie, representing the Hillcrest Collieries, did not object to the Committee getting all the details, but he wanted these figures kept within the Committee, and not published.

The calling of the Hillcrest, Rosedale, and Brazeau Companies did not cover the Alberta situation.

Dr. Cowan moved that nothing be accepted as evidence unless it could be made public.

This was seconded by J. C. Douglas, Cape Breton South.

There was considerable protest from these and other members against the non-production of the papers called for by the Committee.

SAIL BOAT FROM TORONTO WITH 8 ABOARD MISSING

LEFT FOR HAMILTON AND NO WORD RECEIVED OF WHEREABOUTS.

TORONTO, May 25 (Canadian Press).—Life savers were asked today to search the Lake for a party of eight Toronto people who left for a trip in a sailing boat to Hamilton, and who have not arrived home nor sent any word of their whereabouts.

Salvation Army Bandman's Testimonial in Favour of Dr. Henddrson's Herb Tablets

Mr. Russell Reeve, 23 Cornhill St., Chatham, Ont., says:

Gentlemen: Just a few lines to thank you for the wonderful benefit I have received from Dr. Henderson's Herb Treatment. For 25 years or more I have suffered from Catarrh of the head, brought on by going under the water too much. I had a very disagreeable discharge from my ear, which was very annoying as well as loathsome. I had tried several different treatments that were recommended to me, but they did not appear to help me. I purchased a box of your Herb Treatment and after using it for a time the discharge had ceased and it has never bothered me for over a year. I am certainly grateful to your agent for ever selling them to me. You can use this letter in any way that you choose for the benefit of others.

Dr. Henderson's Herb Tablets are not a "Cure all." It is simply a combination of herbs, roots, barks and juice of fruits that act directly upon the important internal organs, aiding them to perform their functions properly and thus to expel wastes and poisons from the system. In this natural way the body is given a thorough internal cleansing and then the forces of Nature can act vigorously and freely in rebuilding and restoring the affected parts. Try a box and watch the results. Price 25c., 50c. and $1.00 per box at WARNE'S DRUG STORE, Peterborough.

MAY THEY NEVER MEET.

Courtlandt Bleeker, at a dinner in Bar Harbor, deplored the tendency toward immodesty that still persists in women's fashions. "However," he said, and as he spoke he raised on high his sparking glass of ginger ale, "however, we can always hope for the best, and so, ladies and gentlemen, I offer the toast: 'Here to the low neck and short skirts—may they never meet.'"

"IT'S GREAT," SAYS THIS TORONTO MAN

CURRAN SAYS HE FEELS LIKE A BRAND NEW MAN SINCE TAKING TANLAC.

"I feel like a brand new man and all my friends know what I think about Tanlac, for I have told them, but I am glad to make this statement for the benefit of others," said George Curran, 226 1-2 Sumach St., Toronto, recently.

"My stomach was in such a condition that every morning I would just choke and gag for a long time, and could not retain a thing I ate for breakfast. In fact I was sick at my stomach all the time, had no appetite at all, and was so weak and worn out I just had to drive myself at my work. I had headaches when it seemed that I simply could not endure it, and the back of my head hurt awfully. I felt worse in the morning than on going to bed at night for my sleep was restless and broken, and seemed to do me no good.

"But Tanlac helped me right from the start, and now I am eating like a bear and everything seems to give me strength and energy, instead of making me sick like it used to, and I have gained several pounds in weight. I sleep well too, and all those aches and pains have left my head and neck, and I feel just fine. Tanlac is simply great; that is the only way to express it."

BAPTIST YOUNG PEOPLE'S UNION

here very effectively, accompanied by Mr. F. Waldon, and Rev. Mr. Webb commented on the co-operation shown by the different churches of the city in the work of Miss E. Webber, and her committee, by the presence of Miss Eastwood as soloist, and of Mrs. Dorothy Allan Park and Mr. F. Tattersall at the evening service.

The Keyword.

An address by Rev. Geo. T. Webb, D.D. of Toronto, a brother of Rev. J. R. Webb, on the keyword of the present convention, "His Dominion," was delivered in a masterly and wonderfully eloquent manner. "Truer religion is life relating to God and expressed in Christ-like service and we may speak of the Kingdom of God and of the Democracy of Jesus and we may phrase our terms, His Dominion ,and feel satisfied in our phrases, but, my frends, it all means nothing and less than nothing unless we recognize His Dominion actually and really and give Him a place of domination in our lives. Is this convention gathered to enlarge the Dominion of the Lord Jesus Christ? Is the union from which you come actually set in its programme for the purpose of intensifying the dominion of Christ? The words become meaningless and worse than meaningless unless every one of us will give Jesus Christ a larger and fuller domain in our daily lives," and "it has become an obligation which is laid upon us all to make of ourselves the biggest and the best that we possibly can in a spiritual way to be worthy of an acceptable offering to Him."

Automobile Trip.

The Automobile Association, owing to the holiday, was unable to fulfill its complete programme of cars for a motor trip around the city, but, with the co-operation of the members of the three Baptist churches, Gilmour Memorial, Park street and Murray street, enough motors were supplied to give all the delegates a chance to view some of our sights. This ride was preceded by a photo of the assemblage taken in front of the church by the Artcraft Photographers, and was followed by a banquet prepared and served by the ladies of the Baptist churches of the city in the basement of Murray street church, where inviting-looking tables with pretty floral decorations and quantities of good things to eat were laid in rooms gaily hung with bright flags. Here the delegates gathered for a very jolly hour, where songs, speeches and yells interspersed the serving of a heartily enjoyed supper.

Evening Session.

The concluding session of the convention took place last evening with a crowded church. Introduction of new officers was accomplished, and Rev. Mr. Bremner, of Galt, who has lately returned from a trip to the Orient, extended greetings from the Koreans, and appealed for the prayers of those in the home fields for them and for the starving Chinese in the famine districts.

Rev. J. L. Sloat, of Niagara Falls, gave a splendid talk on the need in the Church for helpers for those who are starving for food, for mental and physical health and for spiritual enlightenment, both in our own land and in the war-stricken countries of Europe, pointing to Jesus as the inexhaustible storehouse for all the riches of spiritual life.

Rev. C. H. Schutt, of Toronto, spoke the closing coronation address, making a strong appeal to the young people to be witnesses for the Saviour in every possible way, and for fresh consecration to His cause.

A notable feature of the closing programme of the convention was the beautiful solo contributed by Mrs. Dorothy Allan Park, her lovely voice being accorded such enthusiasm as to bring her back to repeat her song, "Hark, Hark my Soul," and the instrumental selections given by Mr. Frank Tattersall. An organ number, "Fantasia de Concert," on "O Sanctissima," was his first number, one which held the entire church spellbound while the faint little minor harmonies swelled out into a glorious diapason of crashing chords, and died away again to a far-away murmur. The applause was so loud and sustained that Mr. Tattersall was obliged to reply with a piano number, which again called forth repeated encores. Two Paganini Lizst Etudes were his contributions on the piano to the enthusiasm which greeted his wonderfully artistic playing.

A few words of appreciation from the new president, Rev. N. S. McKechnie, of London, on the musical programme, and the general reception accorded the meeting by the churches and citizens of Peterborough, brought to a close one of the most successful conventions ever held by the Baptist Young People's Union.

A gift of $25 was made by the local Union to the treasury of the Convention at last night's session.

CHEESE PRICES AROUSE INTEREST

The farmers in Peterborough county are likely to follow the prices paid for cheese this season with unusual interest. The rivalry centres largely around the prices being paid on the Peterborough Cheese Board, as compared with the prices realized by United Dairymen Co-operative, Limited. Last year it was claimed on the Peterborough Cheese Board that buyers for Western Canada frequently bought cheese and were able to pay higher prices for it than the exporters at Montreal could pay at the Montreal auctions of United Dairymen Co-operative, Limited. This year the situation has changed as United Dairymen Co-operative, Limited, is holding sales at Toronto as well as at Montreal.

Last week the local Cheese Board had its first sale, and the price paid was 15 9-16c. The day before United Dairymen Co-operative, Limited, sold some Peterborough County cheese in Toronto at 16c. As there were certain selling charges in connection with the Toronto sale, which did not apply to the Cheese Board, the two prices approximated the same. Later, however, United Dairymen Co-operative, Limited, sold the cheese from two other factories in Peterborough County, in Toronto at 16 1-8c. These two factories did better by fully an 1-8th of a cent a pound by selling through the Co-operative Company than they would had they sold on the Cheese Board. As the head office of United Dairymen Co-operative, Limited, is in Peterborough, and it has a considerable number of shareholders in this county who are organized into a local of the company, the interest being taken in the sales is all the more keen on that account.

CAMPBELLFORD LACROSSE TEAM

game Brinkman left his goal and attempted a long pass across the field. It was intercepted by Jacobs, who flopped the ball into the empty goal.

The game was clean and, with the exception of the second period, was decidedly fast. Pete Thomas got a nasty tap on the nose, but a doctor declared that it wasn't broken. The Campbellford team is well balanced, experienced, shifty and has plenty of speed. Their centre field is just as good as their defence and home. Edwards and Hart are a useful tricky pair, and the team as a whole made a good impression upon the crowd, especially on those who are interested in the local district teams. Havelock has a young team that will give a good account of itself. H. F. McNicholl, who accompanied the team, stated that some of the best players were unable to get away for this game, but that they will be out in the League fixtures. Holmes is a fast, clean player, and with the Brennans and Wright boys, and Copp and Hooper, the team shapes up well.

The Concert

The Play which was put on in the Opera House on Monday and Tuesday evenings was a huge success and many were turned away. It will be repeated on Friday evening. The play, which was composed by and under the supervision of Mr. and Mrs. Cowell, was called the "Tipsy Maid" and eighty two children and young people took part. All were dressed in gorgeous costumes and every act brought down the house. The main characters of act one were Robin Hood taken by L. J. O'Brien, Little John which was very ably taken by Roy Miller. The monk represented by Carl Maguire, the Princess by Miss H. Cowell, Pretty Alice by Miss Ruth Carnahan and the Old Woman by Chas. English. The "Old Woman" was especially good.

Between acts the Gipsy Girls sang a chorus "Come Away Fair Maidens", which was very well received.

Act two consisted of a very beautiful camp fire scene, in which all the gipsy camp is collected around the camp fire. After a gipsy chorus Robin Hood called upon Wanda (Miss Beatrice Mitchell) for a song "Bunny Rabbit", upon Criselda, (Miss Eleanor Ferris) for a recitation, upon Jane (Miss H. Cowell) for a song "Merry Sunshine" upon Dolly (Miss Sutton) for a song "Piggy Song" upon Gipsy Nell, (Miss Amie Govan) for a recitation and upon Unita for a song (Mr. Nobody). Four of the young Gipsy girls then sang a very beautiful quartette "The Birdies Ball". Gipsy Joe (James Benor) sang a solo which was well received. The Gipsy Queen (Miss M. Burleigh) then sang a very beautiful song "Come to the fair". Every number of the act was heartily encored.

The milkmaids song came next. A large number of Gipsy Maidens took part and the effect was charming. This piece once took first prize at London. The Morris Dance by the Gipsy Maids was also very beautiful

The last act was considered by some to be the best. It ws certainly very beautiful and consisted of a charming May Pole scene. Miss Georgie Davidson was the queen and was attended by two wee sailors and two little maids and followed by many lovely little girls, carrying baskets of beautiful roses. They all wound the Maypole in time to music which made a delightful scene.

The last scene was the tableau where Master Grant Morrison sang one verse of "Our Prince" and all sang "O Canada". A flag was then raised which revealed a figure of Brittania (Miss Mae Chaplin) flanked by the little sailors and all sang "Rule Brittania". The audience then stood for "God save the King".

The concert was a big success and will be repeated on Friday evening.

The Races

The races at the celebration yesterday were one of the main attractions. In the Free For All four horses were entered nd "Hossier Boy" property of James Thomas came first time being two minutes 27 seconds; "Capt Peller" property of J. Schooley, Peterboro, came second time 2 minutes 24 1-4 seconds, and "Swift Lion" came third, time 2 minutes twenty-five seconds.

Four horses were entered and "City Limit" owned by Mr. Elmhirst of Lang, Ont., came first, time 2 minutes, 30 seconds; "Bertie Wilkis" owned by Mr. Goheen, Peterboro, came second time; two minutes and 3 1-4 seconds; "John R" owned by Mr. Haggerty ,Frankford came third time, 2 minutes 34 seconds.

2.40 Trot or Pace

The races were exceptionally good and in the opinion of Mr. R. J. Hewitt of Brighton, official starter, they were the best races that could be seen between Toronto and Belleville. Judges were Dr. Hancock, Colborne, Mr. Dunlop Frankford, Mr. J. A. Anderson, Campbellford. Timers were Thos. McCook, D. A. Owen, J. Battisby, Campbellford.

THE PETERBOROUGH MALE VOICE CHOIR.

Last Friday evening a meeting of the members of The Peterborough Male Voice Choir was called and seventeen members assembled at the Y.M.C.A., to discuss the invitation to attend and give a concert at the Muskoka Chautauqua Assembly on Dominion Day or Civic Holiday. After the pros and cons had been discussed and aired by the members, it was thought advisable, owing to the difficulty of getting the Choir together during the hot weather, for practice, and many of the members being on holiday at these times, that the invitation should not be accepted, much as the members would have liked to take the trip to this Assembly this year—the first in this direction of a Canadian Chautauqua. It was therefore settled that no practising be done until the fall, when it is hoped the ranks of the choir will be filled up to the number of seventy-five or eighty with charter members and new ones. Intimation will be given in due season anent the first practice.

RUPTURE RELIEF

RETENTION NOT INFLUENCED BY AGE, SO REPORTS VISITING EXPERT.

Rupture is not a tear in the abdominal wall, as commonly supposed, but a stretching of a natural opening. J. Y. Egan, 1057 College street, Toronto, the long established Canadian Rupture Appliance Specialist, will visit Peterborough, Empress Hotel, Saturday and Sunday (all day and night), 2 days only, May 28 and 29.

The "Curatrus", the new surgical invention, as now used and prepared to order for men, women and children, not only retains rupture perfectly, affording immediate and complete comfort, but is intended to assist nature in her work in the shortest time known and at small cost. These new surgical appliances have received highest approval wherever shown, and are designed in accordance with the principles laid down by the world's text book authorities on this subject; producing results without harmful ready-made old-fashioned foreign trusses. Mr. Egan has testimonials from our own section for inspection. Free demonstration and examination of samples. Now is the time to make yourself safe and comfortable for your daily work. PETERBORO LACROSSE TEAM WON HOLIDAY GAME AT HASTINGS

Jim Skinner, who is managing the Peterboro Intermediate Lacrosse team, got a lot of encouragement out of yesterday's win from Hastings at Norwood's holiday celebration. Leading at half time by 4 to 3, Peterboro notched two more before the final whistle, in the meantime holding the Hastings' bunch scoreless. Those who accompanied the local team report that it was a fast clean game capably handled by Alex. Kempt, who had no penalties to hand out. From all accounts, Hastings trotted out a team that should have been entered in the intermediae group. They had intended to break into the game again but felt that they would stand slight chance against the Campbellford aggregation.

Few of the Peterboro veterans were in yesterday's line up, but the youngsters handled themselves well. Harry Goodfellow backed into the nets and playing his first game in goal, gave a good account of himself. Elmer Brown and Johnston, on the defence, with H. Scriver, who played goal last year, and S. Rosenfield, presented a stout resistance to the Hastings' home, and Tudhope, Lawson, Gene Donovan and Nattress kept up a lively attack. Jack Creighton was coach, but Todd, George Mein, and some of the other players of last year, were missing.

The teams were as follows:

Peterboro Goal, Goodfellow; point, Scriver; cover Rosenfield; 2nd defence, Brown; 1st defence, A. John; centre, H. Tudhope; 2nd home, K. Mein; 1st home, J. Lawson; outside, Nattrass; inside Donovan.

Hastings: Goal, J. Gould; point, N. Scriver; cover, N. Revard; 2nd defence, B. Scriver; 1st defence, Art Scriver; centre, F. Scriver; 2nd home, B. Clapper; 1st home, B. Richardson; outside, W. Tait; inside, H. Rogers. Subs., H. Dodd and A. Lemoire.

RUSSIA IS SHORT OF FOOD; GOV'T. PLAN A FRECKER.

Conditions Worse Now Than Any Time in Nation's History.

BERLIN, May 24. — Lenine's abandonment of government control of foodstuffs came too late to relieve the situation in Bolshevist Russia, say letters received in Berlin from a family which has lived in Petrograd throughout the Bolshevist regime.

"The conditions are worse for us than they were when food was issued on casrds," one letter states. "We are told now thta we may buy food, and the peasants are told they may sell food without violating government regulations. But there are no food shops. And the peasants about Petrograd have little food to sell. They don't want paper rubles.

"They even refuse all sorts of manufactured articles in exchange for what little food they may have. They are afraid to give it up, as they are not sure thta they can get another crop the coming year.

"The Petrograd district is so sterile that little can be produced in normal times. Transportation is so bad, and the peasants in the grain districts have been so badly treated by the Bolshevist requisitioning parties, that the Government simply couldn't continue the small rations it was issuing on the cards. So it told us to do for ourselves a job which it could not accomplish with all its power and military force.

"The re-establishment of free trade and the announcement that Government restrictions have been reduced will not put food into cities which have no supplies, which have no adequate railway connections with grain districts and no means of reconciling peasants, who attribute most of their troubles to the two great cities in Russia and want to starve them out."

DOMINION Tires

The King of the Road

ALL DOMINION TIRES are GOOD Tires. All Dominion Tires are popular because of their serviceable treads, their superior quality and workmanship.

But—if there can be one tire in all Canada that is the national favorite, this tire is "NOBBY TREAD."

Everybody likes "NOBBY TREAD"—the proud possessor of a lordly limousine as well as the happy owner of a Ford, Chevrolet, Overland, Gray-Dort or McLaughlin.

The big, tough, long-wearing, springy nobs are proof against punctures, blow-outs and road-cutting. They simply wear and wear and wear. And when your speedometer gets up in the thousands of miles, you begin to appreciate the sound economy as well as the easy comfort of these famous DOMINION TIRES.

The big nobs, however, do not account for all this popularity. It is the workmanship—the perfect materials—the faultless construction throughout—that make "NOBBY TREADS" the KING of the road.

When you consider their greater mileage, their wonderful durability, their freedom from ordinary tire troubles and their greater ease and comfort in driving, "NOBBY TREADS" are sound economy, no matter what size or make of car you use.

There are DOMINION TIRES for every car, for every purpose, business and pleasure. The Dominion Tire DEALER will show you the different treads and explain the special features of each. He also carries DOMINION INNER TUBES and DOMINION TIRE ACCESSORIES. Have a tire talk with him—he knows.

PETES START LEAGUE SEASON WITH A WIN

BEAT COBOURG HANDILY IN GAME FEATURED BY GREAT WORK OF PETERBORO INFIELD AND THE CLOUTING OF ROSS AND HARRISON.

Manager Solomon's Petes got off to a flying start in the 1921 Central Ontario League race yesterday, when they invaded Cobourg and beat Slick Mulhall's Lakeshore crew by 9 runs to 4 before a grand crowd, which included several hundred Peterborough rooters.

The Petes played errorless ball and swung their war clubs to good effect, the thirteen hits including a homer and five doubles. "Hap" Harrison did the Babe Ruth stunt, meeting one of Ecobichon's benders and zooming a long homer into the lake. Harrison also had a double to his credit. Bob Ross didn't get any homers, but the Petes' backstop hung up the nice little record of five clean hits, three of them doubles, in five appearances at the plate.

"Lefty" McElroy was Manager Solomon's pitching selection, and although the southpaw's control was not of the best, he got by in good style, except in the fourth, when three complimentaries were bunched with two doubles to give Cobourg their quartette of runs. McElroy has a world of stuff and when he gets a little more work under his belt, will be a tough proposition for any of the clubs in President Kimmell's circuit. "Hap" Harrison pitched the last three innings in impressive style, fanning six men He had plenty of smoke on his fast ball and held Cobourg scoreless, striking out the side in the ninth. When McElroy, Rose and Harrison round into shape, the Petes' pitching staff should not cause Manager Solomon any worry.

Ecobichon, the young left hander who was with the Bohunks here last year, was selected to do the Cobourg gunning, the Lakeshort crew figuring that southpaw pitching would stop the Petes. The Peterborough boy loked mighty good at times, but he was combed for thirteen hits, while he passed five men and hit a couple more. The clouting of Ross and Harrison and Murray, who got ten hits between them, provided a warm reception for the youngster in his Central League debut.

The Petes' defensive work was big league quality yesterday. The infield fairly sparkled all afternoon. Murray, Cherrett and Ray Rose all contributed spectacular plays, while Hap Harrison loked after first base in great style. Bob Ross, besides coming through with five hits, caught faultlessly, while the outfield did all they were called upon to do.

The crowd was so big that the right field was invaded and ground rules had to be adopted, a hit into the crowd counting for two bases. This accounts for the large number of two-base hits, most of them being flies that would have been easy outs on any regular ball park. The two that Ross hit to right field, however, would have been good for doubles anywhere.

A parade of the teams, headed by the Cobourg Concert Band in kilts, preceded the game.

A running one-handed pick-up by Murray, Cherrett's fast play on Drumm's neat hit over second, Rose's grab of a drive deflected by McElroy and Pinnette's catch of Turpin's long fly to left, were among the features of the battle.

First Innings.

Peterborough — Cherrett walked and worked the delayed steal on Tyson. Murray fanned. R. Rose hit to Ecobichon and Cherrett was called out at third by Base Umpire Duncan, Manager Solomon vehemently protesting the decision. Ross singled to right, Rose going to third. Ross was caught between first and second on the play, and while the Cobourg infield chased him, Rose scored Ross eventually reached second safely. Harrison doubled to left centre, scoring Ross. Holyman fanned. Two runs.

Cobourg—Skitch walked and went to second on a wild pitch. Butler missed three. Drumm rolled to Harrison, Skitch going to third. Tyson drew a pass, but died stealing, Ross to Ray Rose, a perfect throw.

Second Innings.

Peterborough—Lowe was safe on Boundy's miss, but was doubled on McCarney's attempted sacrifice, which resulted in a fly to Ecobichon. The latter threw out McElroy.

Cobourg—Higginbottom rolled to McElroy. Boundy walked. Dick Turpin lifted one to Murray and McElroy tossed out McDonald.

Third Innings.

Peterborough — Cherrett fanned. Murray beat out an infield hit and stole second. Ray Rose was hit. On a double steal, Skitch lost Tyson's throw and Murray scored. Ross doubled into the crowd in right, scoring Rose. Harrison boomed a homer into the lake, scoring Ross ahead of him. Holyman was safe on Boundy's error and was sacrificed to second by Lowe. McCarney rolled to Higginbottom. Four runs.

Cobourg— Ecobichon doubled to right centre. Rose made a nice play on Skitch's smash, which McElroy knocked down, Ecobichon going to third. Butler rolled to Rose, Ecobichon being held at third. Cherrett went over behind second for Drumm's fast one and got the runner.

Fourth Innings.

Peterborough—Cherrett was safe on Turpin's miss and went to second on Ecobichon's bad throw. Murray fanned. Ray Rose walked. Ross doubled to centre, scoring Cherrett, but Rose was caught at the plate trying to score on the play. One run.

Cobourg—Tyson rolled to Murray. Higginbottom and G. Turpin walked and advanced on a passed ball. Dick Turpin doubled to left, scoring the pair. A wild pitch put him on third. McDonald was hit and stole second. Skitch's fly to right went for a double in the crowd and Turpin and McDonald scored. Butler hit to Murray and Skitch was caught at third, Murray to Cherrett. Four runs.

Fifth Innings.

Peterborough— Harrison flied to Butler in deep centre. Ecobichon threw out Holyman. Lowe was hit, McCarney was safe on Dick Turpin's miss of his son's throw. McElroy walked, filling the bases. Cherrett fanned.

Cobourg—Drumm beat out a slow one to McElroy. Tyson hit to McElroy, who threw to second to force Drumm, but Umpire Duncan called him safe. It was a raw decision. Higginbottom sacrificed. G. Turpin hit to McElroy and Drumm was caught going home. D. Turpin walked, filling the bases. Ray Rose threw out McDonald.

Sixth Innings.

Cobourg—Murray tossed out Ecobichon. Skitch doubled to right. Butler flied to McCarney. Drumm rolled to Cherrett.

Seventh Innings.

Cobourg—With Harrison pitching for the Petes, Ray Rose went to first and Holyman to second, Pinnette taking left. Cherrett threw out Tyson. Higginbottom doubled to the crowd in right. G. Turpin fanned. Pinnette made a fine catch of Dick Turpin's fly to deep left.

Eighth Innings.

Peterborough — Cherrett bunted safely. Murray doubled to left, and on trying to make third, found Cherrett there. The latter dashed for home but was tagged out, Murray reaching third. He scored on Ray Rose's sacrifice fly to centre. Ross singled to right, his fifth hit in a row. Harrison drew a pass and Holyman singled through short, filling the bases. Lowe lifted one to Ecobichon. One run.

Ninth Innings.

Peterborough— Lornie Rose, batting for McCarney, walked, but was caught off first. Pinnette singled over second. Cherrett flied to Higginbottom. Murray singled, but was forced on R. Rose's tap to Higginbottom.

Cobourg—Drumm struck out. Tyson singled to centre. Higginbottom's fly went into the crowd and gave the batter a double. G. Turpin and Dick Turpin both fanned.

OSHAWA HERE SATURDAY FOR THE LEAGUE OPENER

The local Central Ontario League season will be opened on Saturday afternoon when the crack Oshawa team will clash with the Petes at Riverside Park, the game being called at 3 o'clock. Oshawa are already claiming the Central Ontario League flag this year and their win over Belleville yesterday shows them to be dangerous contenders for the title. The Petes got away to a good start two yesterday, by winning in Cobourg and the many fans who were in the Lakeshore town are elated over the way the Solomon crew handled themselves. Saturday's game will be a real battle every foot of the way and the indications are that a record crowd will see the opening of the League season. The hundreds of fans who motored to Cobourg yesterday showed that the fans are solidly behind the Petes and every body will be out on aSturday. Jack Rosevear of Port Hope will be the umpire-in-chief for this game.

AT THE THEATERS

AT THE ALLEN.

TOM MOORE TELLS AN ENGLISH JOKE.

Tom Moore, having a touch of Ireland in his blood, is never content to pass an hour without enlivening it with some funny tale. The Goldwyn star, who comes to the Allen Theatre for 3 days, beginning Thursday, in his new comedy, "Made in Heaven," told one about two Englishmen, both of them half seas over with good Scotch. They were drinking at the bar and one of them turned to the other and said: "I-I say, er—deah old thing, I say. Now did you ever, old deah, I arsk you, did you ever in those jolly old days at Oxford happen to know a perfectly ripping chap named — Wilkin-shon-shon-s-son. Eh? Now did you evah?"

The other thought deeply, albeit a little unsteadily, then made reply:

"Should shay sho, sweet old pet! Knew'm well. R'ember him perf'tly. Why I was brought up with him! Fr'm boy 'ood! Jolly keen he was too, old pippin. Toppin' sh-sh-shap —chap!" The speaker paused a moment, still unsteady, then went on, "But tell, deah old pet, wha' wash his name?"

The first Englishman looked at him vacantly, stupidly — then, "Who?" he said.

PROHIBITION GIVES EXCUSE FOR VERY CLEVER FARCE COMEDY.

No matter how they stand on the "wet and dry" question, it is promised that everyone will agree that the Volstead Act is entitled to credit for having made possible "Going Through the Rye," which comes to the Allen Theatre on Thursday, and which is called "the funniest farce since prohibition." It is the latest of the new two-reel Christie comedies featuring Bobby Vernon, with Vera Steadman playing opposite.

The plot hinges around a rival sending Vernon a bottle of rye, carefully disguised. On the way to the wedding with the "present" he breaks it, leaving the odor of liquor on his clothing and starting the law enforcement officers in pursuit. A clever element is introduced with a "rum hound," a dog, who follows the groom-to-be and adds a large portion of the comedy element.

Vernon makes an unusual effort to save himself by borrowing a pair of handcuffs from a policeman and chaining himself to his affianced, but they are both dragged off to the police station, and there follows one of the funniest marriage ceremonies in the history of pictures.

PRINCE OF WALES SENDS PHOTOGRAPHS.

Mildred Harris, who will be seen in "The Woman in His House" when that Associated First National produced is seen at the Allen for the last time to-night, has received a set of photographs of herself from the Prince of Wales. These were taken in California on the occasion of the future British monarch's last visit to the United States. Mildred Harris was officially presented to the Prince at a reception at San Diego and the night before his departure for the Antipodes was one of the six favored ones who fox-trotted with His Royal Highness. It was while en route to Coronado from the San Diego reception that His Royal Highness espied Mildred aboard the official ferry and sent his royal photographer with a request that she pose for a number of pictures for his private collection. From Australia, where the Prince was going, he promised to send Mildred a set of these pictures. They came with the compliments of young Edward.

AT THE CAPITOL.

MOST POPULAR OF BOOKS VISUALIZED IN SPECIAL FILM.

"Black Beauty," Famous Classic, Makes Unique Motion Picture.

Still popular after running through scores of huge editions since its first mighty bid for enduring fame more than forty years ago, "Black Beauty," by Anna Sewell, is establishing a record in another field of human interest. After forty years, "Black Beauty" 'ranks eighth in popularity among the world's books. At the beginning of its career in motion pictures its appeal to the public promises to be even stronger than the one it made through the printed page.

Extraordinary difficulties were faced and overcome in visualizing "Black Beauty", but those which at first were looked upon as the greatest turned out to be the least. The first question raised was, "Can horses be trained to perform exactly the action of Anna Sewell's book so that the story in pictures can be accurately and faithfully told?"

After long continued and patient experiments, it was found that for the most part no training would be necessary, as all the action of horses in the wonderful book is natural to them at certain times under certain circumstances. The fact that the action is natural spontaneous, is n important apart in the greatness of Anna Sewell's immortal work. The filming of this action, therefore, became largely a matter of time and patience, and complete success was attained at last.

The problem of presenting "Black Beauty" as a screen drama of the strongest possible appeal, with a gripping, thrilling story, ws more baffling. Mr. and Mrs. George Randolph Chester, who prepared the screen version, were unwilling to take any liberties in altering the text or changing the form of a work regarded with reverence by millions of readers. The problem was pondered for weeks before the inspiration came.

In the story as originally written a number of human characters are mentioned, and dealt with in the "Autobiography of a Horse" 'in their relation to the equine characters. It is related how George Gordon met death in the hare hunt, but the consequences of this tragedy in the lives of the humans were, of course, unknown to Black Beauty. Squire Gordon drove Black Beauty to town and back, under great difficulty and danger, on "a stormy day." Black Beauty told of the trip and its adventures, but could not tell why the trip was taken, for he did not know except that it was "on business."

Mr. and Mrs. Chester, in preparing the screen version of "Black Beauty", have told this human story, intense and compelling, in scenes alternating with those of "Black Beauty's Story.' 'The 'Indoor Story' never conflicts with nor overlaps the "Outdoor Story" which Black Beauty tells.

The result is Anna Sewell's story as she wrote it, in pictures, and in addition the strong human interest story of Jessie Gordon, Harry Blomefield and the other persons in the book.

LAKEVIEWS, HAMILTON'S AND CRESSMAN'S HOLIDAY WINNERS

Lakeviews won from St. Peter's by 10 to 4, Hamilton's defeated Y. M.C.A. by 4 to 3, and Cressman's trimmed Westclox by 18 to 6, in the holiday baseball bill at Riverside Park.

The Juvenile teams put up a scrappy battle, both Shaughnessy and Sheehy pitching well, the latter getting ten strikeouts. LeBarr the Lake view first baseman took sixteen chances without a sling.

Lakeviews led all the way, but were given a scare in the seventh when St. Peters' did some nice hitting, and scored three runs. They also looked dangerous in the ninth, but one run was the best they could get of two singles and a double, Sheehy slamming for the extra base.

The box score:

Cousins fans Eleven

It was good baseball throughout the after-dinner game, with Kirn and Cousins working in fine style against the batters. Hamilton's flinger whiffed eleven, retiring Butcher, Fitzgerald and Kirn on strikes in the second. Hamilton's got a brace of counters in the second after two were gone. Three singles in a row gave Y.M.C.A. a tally in the third and timely hitting including a two-bagger by Seely gave them two run, and the lead in the sixth. Hamilton's came right back with the willow, and a wild throw home allowed them to score twice. In the last half for the Y.M.C.A. Cousins fanned Seeley and Pogue. McWilliam ingled only to be left stranded when ousins took Butcher's grounder.

Cressman's Finish Strong.

With Bartley pitching a strong game and his support, faultless, Cressman's had gradually drawn way from Westclox until at the fifth the store nine were leading by 7 to 1. In their half the clockmakers went after Bartley, five singles, a hit by pitcher and an error giving them five runs.

Everything went badly for Westclox in the seventh. Fifteen batters faced Herb. Wolff. Five of them hit safely, two were passed and one was hit. This mixture, with poor fielding resulted in eleven runs for Cressman's.

Westclox did not get an extra base hit. Cressmans' got four of them, Hunter getting two doubles, and Wade and Bergoine one apiece. In the sixth, Bergoine doubled to deep right, and Head went one better by tripling to the bushes in right.

LINDSAY BY 5 TO 4 SCORE DEFEATED PORT HOPE.

LINDSAY, Ont., May 24.—Lindsay Greybirds won their opening game in the Central Ontario League to-day by defeating Port Hope by 5 to 4. It was good baseball all the way, with clever pitching by both twirlers. Port Hope led until the ninth, when Lindsay scored two runs, winning the game. HEARTBURN LIVER TROUBLE

When the liver becomes torpid and inflamed, it cannot furnish sufficient bile to the bowels, thus causing them to become constipated.

The stomach is also affected. In the case of heartburn there is a gnawing and burning pain in the stomach, attended by disturbed appetite, caused by great acidity. Whenever too much food is taken it is liable to ferment, and become extremely sour, vomiting often occurs; and what is thrown up, is sour and sometimes bitter.

Other liver troubles symptoms are pain under the right shoulder, yellowness of the skin and eyes, floating specks before the eyes, coated tongue, bad taste in the morning, foul breath, water brash, jaundice, constipation, etc.

Keep your liver active by using Milburn's Laxa-Liver Pills and you will have no heartburn or other liver troubles. Being purely vegetable they do not gripe, weaken or sicken like the old-fashioned purgatives generally do.

Mrs. Mary Strome, Glasnevin, Sask., writes: —"I have used Milburn's Laxa-Liver Pills, and they have cleared me of heartburn and liver trouble. I don't think they can be beaten by any other medicine, and I can highly recommend them."

GORDON CUP FINAL RESULTED IN TIE

TEAMS BATTLED FOR OVER TWO HOURS—THE LINE-UP.

After two hours and fifteen minutes' play in the Gordon Cup final at the Oval yesterday afternoon, Canadian Generals and Caledonians limped off the field without having reached a decision for final honours. Each team had scored one goal in the ninety minutes of play, and three periods of overtime failed to return a winner. To-day four of the Caleys are under the care of doctors, and other players are limping from injuries received during the game. Information from the camp of the Caledonians to-day was to the effect that it would be impossible to send the team into action again this week. It was said that the team might be in condition to take the field early next week. Canadian Generals, too, suffered, but their casualty list was lighter than that of the Caleys. Throughout the game there was no evidence of deliberate attempts to injure players, and it was apparent to players and spectators alike that the injuries received were accidental, and one of the risks of the game.

1,500 Spectators.

It was estimated that fifteen hundred persons saw the contest. This constitutes an attendance record for Peterborough. The pitch was surrounded by a dense crowd of spectators.

It was a well-played game, replete with combination plays and individual work. Caleys scored the first goal from a penalty kick, Wright in goal taking the kick that beat Griffin. This score came at an opportune time for the Caleys, as their halfback division was showing signs of slowing up. Moir in centre was playing against doctor's advice, and Morris was handicapped by a leg injury. The Canadian Generals were having an edge on the play, and their supporters were confident that the Caley's defence would sooner or later break down.

Half-time came without further scoring. After the rest, the Canadian Generals took the offensive, and finally, from a scrimmage in front of Griffin, the ball was shot between the posts by Parkins, and the teams were tied. The players of both teams gave everything they had for the remainder of the half, and in the overtime periods, but could not break the tie.

The Teams.

Caledonians — Wright; McMullen and Ralston; Morris, Moir, and Brown; Burgess, Hannah, Calder, Dingwall, and Anderson.

Canadian Generals — Griffin; Mason and McDonald; Williams, Turner, and Mann; Maunders, Hotston, Parkins, Gash, and Bartley.

Referee—Hallworth.

CLOSE GAME IN THE JUNIOR SCHOOL LEAGUE.

On the Queen Mary School grounds on Monday evening, another closely contested game of baseball was played between the Juniors of the Queen Mary and South Central Schools. At the end of the fifth innings, which constitutes a junior game, the score was a tie—3-3. In the sixth innings the Queen Mary team succeeded in getting the winning run.

The score by innings was as follows:

South Central ..... 0 1 1 1 0 0 — 3
Queen Mary ..... 3 0 0 0 0 1 — 4

Mr. Alex. Kay's umpiring was, as usual, very satisfactory to the competing teams.

BELLEVILLE LOST TO ASHAWA

OSHAWA, May 24.—In the opening game of the Central Ontario Baseball League played here this afternoon, Oshawa defeated Belleville 1 to 0. Danty pitched for Oshawa, allowing Belleville only three hits, while Oshawa collected six safeties off Fred Goyed. Both twirlers were in fine form, and it was not till the seventh inning that the locals sent in the winning and only tally of the game. Danty had nine strike-outs and Goyer six. The teams:

Belleville—Weir s.s., Meagher 1b, Ross s.f., W. Mills c., Goyer l.f., H. Mills 1b, Williams 2b, Symonds r.f., Fred Goyer p.

Oshawa—Gifford s.s., Fair 3b, Rowden 2b, Dobson r.f., Belding c., Patton c.f., Wilson 1b, Legge l.f., Danty p.

ON THE RIGHT TACK.

Hayseed said to a neighbor:

"I was very much troubled with these winged thieves, for they made terrible havoc among my corn. I ut scarecrows up till I was tired. Then I took my gun, loaded it with powder and shot, and you should have seen the quantity I brought down! But the next morning my boy rushed indoors and yelled:

"'Dad, hundreds of birds in the corn aagin!'

"I grabbed down my gun, put in the powder, but couldn't find any shot, so I thrust in a handful of tacks, and off I ran. Getting to the corn, I yelled pretty hard, and up flew the birds into a tree. I fired, and, would you believe me, all the birds were nailed to the tree with their wings flapping as if flying."

The neighbor stood aghast, and the farmer continued:

"Struck with the sight, I stood watching them, when—I could hardly believe my eyes —the blessed things pulled up the tree by the roots and flew away with it."—Answers.

JAUM TRACKERS DISPLAY SKILL

INDIAN NATIVES TRACK BEAR AND PANTHER TO HAUNTS TO BE KILLED.

The village of Jaum stands alone and isolated amid the wilds near a pass through jungle clad hills which was a famous haunt of thugs in days gone by. There were some extensive jungles in the neighborhood which were the haunts of both wild men and wild beasts. Occasionally a tiger visited the place, coming from more distant jungles while there were plenty of bears and panthers besides pigs and an abundance of small game. Jaum was remarkable for the skilful trackers of the tribe of Ahnds who lived there, and who were always ready to accompany me in pursuit of game. They had a wonderful aptitude for marking down animals. This was not done by tracking only. The trackers would be out before dawn, and when the sun tinged the eastern sky with pink, like the wing of a flamingo, they would be posted in likely places from which they could observe the prowlers of the night returning to their lairs.

The panther and the bear, impatient of the heat, would make for some suitable spot at the first streak of dawn, and the tracker would follow the animal and mark it down in the shade of bush or rock. The first bear marked down for me in this manner had lain down for the day in a clump of bushes on the side of a hill. Here he slept soundly while a cordon of beaters surrounded him on three sides from below, while I took up a position on the crest of the hill above. On a given signal there arose a burst of yells from the beaters, and the unfortunate Bruin, hounded from his lair, lumbered grumbling up the hillside and emerged from cover close to me. This bear was one of several brought to bag in the same manner. But is was better to track the animals.

Track Across Rock

hTe Ahnds o Jum would track a bear across solid rock. The long and the plantigrade feet will, at any rate, leave a track where a little soft earth or detritus has gathered in the hollows. I followed a bear in this manner one day with the men of Jaum. We traced him by the writing on the earth, scratched surface, broken glass and other indications to a jungle filled depression where there were unsavory but unmistakable evidences of his presence At length a hairy form appeared and Bruin rushed out and hurried up the side of the hill, whereupon a shot from the old 500 brought him to a standstill.

Hard to Follow Panthers

Panthers are more difficult to track. Silently they stalk with velvet footfall leaving no impress except where the surface of the ground is soft enough to take the pug of pussyfoot. There is romance in the panther's track. On what errand is he bound? Perhaps he is a midnight murderer such as one I had to do with thirty years ago He would prowl around the villages at night and carry off children sleeping on the threshold of the huts. It would be dark as the mouth of Acheron, night watching, spinxlike starred with eyes, no other eyes could see; none save those burning orbs which gleamed like glow-worms in the gloom. A swiftly moving form, a gurgling cry, and the child was gone from the very bosom of its parents. No sign till morning, and then tracks and a few drops of blood, a rag and a raven tress hanging on a thorn bush a few ghastly fragments, two little hands with yellow palms upturned as though in mute appeal for vengeance. That was all to denote the visit of the Terror by Night. Or one might follow the tracks and find the little mangled corpse hanging in the fork of a tree.

Traced By Vultures

But at Jaum there was no man eater. A panther there was when I first encamped in the neighborhood. I tracked him by circling speck in the sky, vultures which from their empyrean domain had seen the carcass of a buffalo killed in the night. I rode to the spot before the discovery of the Ahnd trackers, and the attempt to trace the direction taken by the beast on the stony hillside was of no avail. So I had a screen of branches constructed against the side of the hill and took up a position behind it at dusk. It was a dark night and I went to sleep. But soon after the moon rose at 10 o'clock I awoke with an indefinable feeling, often experienced of the proximity of a beast of prey. Something was tugging at the carcass, and just then the round round head of the panther, with masticating jaws, appeared over the back of the hill, and then bent down again to resume the feast But when it reappeared, only some four yards off, which surely pointed to a lack of the powers of scent in this animal, for it did not detect my presence, it received a charge of buckshot in the head and fell alongside the carcass of its victim.

CAGED GIRL MAY BE AN HEIRESS

She Was Kept For Sixteen Years Within an Enclosure of Wire

SARATOGA SPRINGS, N.Y., May 25.—Hundreds thronged the vicinity of the "mystery house", near Round lake, where Miss Jessie Hall, 31 years old, was discovered by William Hennessy, a humane officer, in a cell-like room. According to Mr. Hennessy, the childlike woman has been a prisoner for sixteen years in a small room located in one of the darkest corners of the dwelling. Heavy wire screening extended from the floor to the ceiling at all exits.

Sunlight was shut off with heavy barred windows and doors, which were covered on the outside with wire netting. According to information obtained by authorities, the mother, Mrs. Catherine Hall, aged 70 years, has been her daughter's jailer.

A small brass key tied to one of the strings of an apron worn by Mrs. Hall, the authorities believe, may lead to an unravelling of the mystery. This article, Mr. Hennessy believes, may be the key to a treasure chest hidden about the little farm of thirty acres or in the recesses of the house. From further investigations it was ascertained the imprisoned woman was an heir by her grandfather's will twenty years ago, which bequeathed her and her sister $5,000 each. No one in the vicinity recalls seeing the prisoner since that time or do they recall Mrs. Hall ever spending much money. It is understood the authorities will institute a thorough search of the premises in an effort to locate the supposed hidden treasure.

The house has a tumbled down appearance, sits back from the roadway about fifty yards, and has an air of mystery enhanced by heavy overhanging branches of many trees

County Judge L. B. McKelvey appointed Dr. J. L. McElroy of Johnsville to examine the mentality of the entire family.

JAP CROWN PRINCE MIXES WITH CROWDS

LONDON, May 25. — Crown Prince Hirohito of Japan has enjoyed aweek in London crowded with experiences such as none of his ancestors ever knew, and which only a few years ago would have been regarded as impossible for one of his imperial line, with its traditional status of semi-divinity. He has shaken hands with many people, posed before cameras like any celebrity of polities or the stage, driven about crowded streets in a motor car without an escort, and inspected museums and art galleries, elbow to elbow with the general public.

Outside Windsor Castle on Wednesday the Japanese Crown Prince and the Prince of Wales were surrounded by a curious crowd and could not move until the police pushed the people away. Both took the incident cheerfully. After a three-day state visit in Buckingham Palace, Prince Hirohito moved to Chesterfield House, where Colonel Edward M. House, as the representative of President Wilson, was the guest of the government during his first official visit to England after the United States entered the war. The Japanese court sent word that the prince's visit was principally for study, intimating that his father would appreciate it if there should be no more formal functions than necessary.

The prince's constant attendant is Viscount Chinda, Japanese Minister of Foreign Affairs and formerly Ambassador to Great Britain, who is well known in the United States, where at one time he was also Japan's Ambassador. Viscount Chinda has an anxious position, because he is responsible for Prince Hirochito's welfare during his tour. According to old-time Japanese traditions, it would be Viscount Chinda's duty to commit hara-kiri should any misfortune befall his charge.

At the close of the Lord Mayor's luncheon to the prince the Lord Mayor announced there would be no speeches. Hirohito, nevertheless, promptly rose and said he could not leave without expressing his thanks for the entertainment, delivering a brief speech in Japanese. It has been a great week for the Japanese colony in London. Many of its members appeared in native costume wherever they had a chance to get a sight of the prince. Some commented it was the first time Japanese had ever seen an heir to the throne in silk hat and frock coat.

VOL. XLIX No. 122 PETERBOROUGH, THURSDAY, MAY 26, 1921 PRICE THREE CENTS

$1,000 REWARD FROM ONTARIO FOR GARFIELD

WILL APPLY TO OTTAWA FOR POSTPONEMENT OF HANGING —REV. GAETZ GIVES HIS VERSION.

EXPLAINS HIS ACTIONS

TORONTO, May 26.—(Canadian Press.)—The Provincial Government announced to-day that a reward of one thousand dollars would be paid for the capture of Norman Garfield.

The Attorney-General will make application to Ottaaw for postponement of the date of hanging, which was set for June 2.

Minister Tells Story.

WOODSTOCK, May 26.—(Canadian Press.)—Rev. Mr. Gaetz was interviewed this morning concerning the action he took yesterday when he witnessed Garfield go out the door of the jail, without following him and giving the alarm to the people who were across the road in the park. Mr. Gaetz said: "I was not Garfield's guard. It was not my place to follow him out on the street and give the alarm. In fact after Norman knocked me back I had not fully recovered before he had unlocked the door, was outside and had slammed the gate shut again. I did what I thought was my duty and ran back to find the guard, for whose safety I was concerned. I did not know what might have happened to him. When I reached the stairs I yelled to him, and hearing his voice above went to him. I found the cell key in the door, unlocked it and released the imprisoned man. I think I took the proper course and believe the jail officials will bear me out in the action I took."

"I believed Norman Garfield's story that he did not intend to kill Ben Johnston," was Rev. Mr. Gaetz's answer to a questeion as to why he had interested himself so much in trying to secure a reprieve for a man convicted of murder in the first degree.

"I thought him guilty of the lesser crime of manslaughter, but surely not of murder."

AMMUNITION MADE IN U.S. CAPTURED

SMOKING RUINS TO-DAY MARK THE SITE OF DUBLIN'S CUSTOM HOUSE

DUBLIN, May 26. — (Canadian Press.) — Smoking ruins to-day marked the site of the historic Dublin customs house, which was burned yesterday afternoon by a raiding party of civilians. During the night sudden bursts of flame in a twisted chaos of stone and steel, lighted up the scene, about which British armed forces kept vigilant guard.

Fifty men, arrested by the Crown forces after a pitched battle in and about the building, spent the night in various prisons in the city, and the bodies of upwards of a dozen persons killed during the struggle, reposed in the morgues. It was believed that some of the raiders perished in the fire they kindled. The exact number of wounded had not been learned early to-day.

Archives of an almost priceless character were destroyed in the flames. It was said here to-day that the destruction of no other building in the city would have caused as great a loss to the Crown officials.

VETERANS ASK CO-OPERATION

G.W.V.A. CONVENTION LAMENTS DIVERGENCE OF OPINION AMONG EX-SERVICE MEN.

SHOULD WORK TOGETHER

BRANTFORD, May 26.—(Canadian Press.)—The G.W.V.A. Provincial Command placed itself on record this morning as in favor of co-operation with other veteran bodies. The resolution lamented "the apparent divergence of opinion existing among ex-service men" and at the same time wished to assure other ex-soldiers' associations that the G.W.V.A. would be pleased to have their co-operation in all matters that make for the betterment and advancement of ex-service men and the dependents of fallen comrades.

Resolution was passed requesting that Imperial pensions to soldiers residing in Canada be paid at par value and that Imperials who came to Canada since the war and attending D.S.C.R. hospitals should receive Canadian rates of pay. The resolution also urged standardization of pay and allowances of ex-service men undergoing treatment, or training under the D. S, C. R. without regard to former rank.

RESTRICT ALL IMMIGRATION TO FARM HELP

SO HON. MANNING DOHERTY TELLS MR. TOOMS IS ONTARIO GOVERNMENT'S POLICY.

CHOOSING CAREFULLY

Replying to the query of T. Tooms, M. P.P., West Peterboro, Hon. Manning Doherty, Minister of Agriculture declares that the Ontario Government is choosing prospective emigrants to Ontario very carefully, in order to alleviate the shortage of farm labor without aggravating the unemployment situation. The letter, which follows, is self-explanatory:—

Toronto, May 23, 1921

Dear Mr. Tooms,—

I beg to acknowledge yours of the 20th inst., in regard to immigration so far as it affects the Ontario Government. I beg to assure you that instructions were given several months ago to all officers of this Government connected with immigration work to carefully select all intending emigrants and accept only those who had had farm experience and of course also experience in domestic service. This policy has been strictly carried out and all immigrants coming out to this Province through our organization have been looked after in this Province by our own officers and placed directly on farms. The advertisement of which you speak was placed in papers in the British Isles last year but at the present time the Province is carrying very little if any advertising on this matter in the press of the British Isles. You may rest assured therefore that while we are doing what we feel justified in doing to relieve the shortage of experienced farm hands which has existed in the Province in the past, every care will be taken not to in any way aggravate the unemployment situation.

While this is true with respect to the operations of the Ontario Government, I would point out that there are other Governments which are concerned with the immigration problem. The clipping which you forward refers to immigrants securing admission to Canada on their mere statement that they are farm laborers. This is a matter which has to do with the operation of the regulations governing the admission of immigrants to this country, and these regulations are of course matters of Federal adminstration. Then, too, the Imperial Government had a scheme under which ex-service men were given free transportation to any of the Overseas Dominions if they desired to emigrate to take up farming. It has been reported to me that men have been sent out under this plan who have not turned out very well. This scheme, however, was discontinued a few weeks ago and therefore will not be a factor in future immigration.

Yours very truly,
(Sgd) Manning W. Doherty,
Minister of Agriculture.

BRITISH TROOPS OFF TO SILESIA

FOUR BATTALIONS LEAVE RHINE AREA TO-DAY.

LONDON, May 26.— (Canadian Press.)—Four battalions of British troops on the Rhine began their advance to upper Silesia to-day to reinforce the Allied troops already there. The transfer is expected to be completed by the end of the week. It was semi-officially announced to-day that additional forces of four battalions of British troops, totalling some five thousand men, will be sent to the disturbed area. The source from which these additional troops will be drawn was not disclosed.

NICOLA, B.C., SOLD TO BRITISH CAPITALIST WHO WILL RE-BUILD IT.

NICOLA, B.C., May 26.—(Canadian Press.)— The town of Nicola has been sold to Major Charles Sydney Goldman, former member of the British Parliament and well known South African capitalist. It is shortly to be converted into a model English town, a perfect village green to replace the present business section.

AUTO SOCIETY ON UP-GRADE

MEMBERSHIP IS OFFICIALLY PLACED AT 152, THOUGH THOUGHT IN EXCESS OF THAT FIGURE.

BIG MEETING LAST NIGHT

The resuscitation of the Peterborough Automobile Association continues, and with a largely increased membership the Association has definitely embarked on an active career hat promises to benefit every motorist in the County.

The membership is reported at 152, but there are some members not officially recorded. The Association has gone ahead by leaps and bounds, and doubting Thomases have been convinced that there is a world of work for such a body, and, once interested, have given every encouragement.

In the absence of President Robert Cotton, Vice-President Reg. H. Turner was in the chair at the largely-attended meeting held in the Chamber of Commerce Rooms last night.

An interesting discussion centred about the deplorable condition of the railway crossings in this city, and suggestions were made for improving the roadway at these points. The discussion culminated in a resolution to the City Council calling their attention to the crossings, and urging that the railways be spurred into action by the city.

Road Signs.

The Association considered the placing of road signs on the roads leading into Peterborough, but as the Ontario Motor League has a service established to place signs, the O. M. L. will be advised that signs could be placed to advantage about this city. The Association decided that suggestions as to the advantageous placing of signs could be asked for by the secretary, and accordingly any suggestions that the general public may feel called upon to offer will be welcomed by L. Frazer, secretary of the Chamber of Commerce, and will receive immediate attention.

Boost the Convention City.

On 24th May the Association placed cars at the disposal of the Baptist Young Peoples' Convention in this city and on 1st June, from 3.30 to 4 p.m., automobiles will be supplied to drive the Knights of Columbus delegates from the Rooms to the George Street Wharf.

Letters from the Ontario Motor League and Hon. F. C. Biggs, both, from their tone, implying interest in the suggestion for permanent auto markers with interchangeable date sections, were read by the secretary. The O. M. L. executive committee will consider the suggestion, the letter assured the Association.

Badges Soon.

In a few days the Peterborough Automobile Association badges for placing on the radiator will be received and sold to the members for 50 cents.

The device is the O. M. L. official badge, with the name Peterborough on the bottom, and they are said to be very attractive—certainly every car bearing one will be an advertisement of this city.

Traffic Regulations.

The committee, composed of President Cotton, Ald. R. N. Jones, and Secretary Frazer, appointed to suggest revisions to the city's traffic regulations, reported that in all probability when the regulations were fully gone over, important revisions would be called for.

The Association Picnic.

No definite date has been fixed for the picnic to be held at Chemong, the secretary still awaiting word from the Hon. Mr. Biggs, whom the Association hopes to have on that date as chief drawing card.

WOODSTOCK AUTHORITIES HAD BEEN WARNED THAT MURDERER WOULD TRY TO MAKE ESCAPE

Why Did No One Intercept Him?

THIS IS THE QUESTION WHICH IS BEING ASKED IN WOODSTOCK TO-DAY.

WOODSTOCK, May 26.—(Canadian Press.) — Very much interest centres in the actions of Rev. Mr. Gaetz, Garfield's spiritual adviser, who was brushed aside in the jail corridor by the prisoner when he was escaping. The question is now asked, "Why didn't Mr. Gaetz follow Garfield out to the street and then sound an alarm?"

Baseball players and others were just across the street and could possibly have intercepted Garfield in his escape.

The family of Elmer Hossack witnessed Garfield take the car, but at the time thought another member of the family was just going for a ride.

POLICE GROPE BLINDLY WITH NO CLUE LEFT

SEEN DRIVING NORTH

WOODSTOCK, May 26.—(Canadian Press).—Norman Garfield, escaped convict, is still at large to-day The authorities are just as much in the dark as they were last night. Not one trace of Ben Johnston's murderer has been heard outside of a report from Hickson, seven miles north of here, that he had passed through that village shortly after his escape in a Ford car, stolen from E. Hossack, who lives two blocks from the jail.

This morning Sheriff McGhee and jail officials would not discuss the case, but preferred to wait until after the arrival of W. W. Dunlop, Inspector of Prisons, who is expected at noon. Following the arrival of the official an investigation will take place.

It was pointed out that at the time Garfield escaped from the jail Guard Ball was the only official of the jail present. He let the minister out of the cell and after Garfield had locked Ball in, there was no official to bar his way to liberty. Gaoler Robley and Turnkey Clark were both away at supper at the time.

Police Chief Moore to-day resented the attack of the London police that they were not sent word of the escape for two hours after it occurred. The chief states that it was the Sheriff or Jail Officials that should attend to this. However, the Chief points out that they did every thing in their power. He was at the jail ten minutes after the escape and was soon on the road after the fugitive.

It was learned that the jail officials had never regarded it as necessary to strip Garfield of his blue serge suit and he was allowed to have his peak cap in the cell. He was under the care of two guards, who worked twelve hour shifts. He made his getaway, therefore, in complete civilian attire.

EVEN PRISONERS HUMAN.

CHICAGO, May 26.—Judge Landis ordered United States Marshal John J. Bradley to find more spacious quarters for seventy-one Government prisoners now held at the Cook County jail, awaiting trial.

The order followed the testimony of Stanley Heinz, a defendant in a perjury case, that he was compelled to sleep in a small cell with three other men. He said there were only two narrow bunks in the cell and two of the men had to sleep on the floor.

"Something must be done," Judge Landis told the marshal. "A prisoner of the Government is human, even if he is accused of some crime."

WHIST DRIVE.

THE LADIES' AUXILIARY OF CALEDONIAN CLUB WILL HOLD A WHIST DRIVE IN THE WOODMEN OF THE WORLD HALL ON FRIDAY EVENING, MAY 27TH, AT 7:30 P.M. SILVER COLLECTION. TICKETS FOR HE PRIZE DRAWING WILL BE DRAWN SAME EVENING. REFRESHMENS. 1d123 1663

GARFIELD'S FRIENDS PLANNED TO RESCUE HIM DURING TRIAL BUT THIS PLAN WAS LEARNED OF AND FOILED.

NOTICE OF ESCAPE DELAYED 90 MINUTES

LONDON, Ont., May 26.—(Canadian Press).—London detectives two months ago sent a warning to the Police of Woodstock that friends of Norman Garfield would likely make an attempt to assist him to escape from the Oxford Jail. The warning was the result of information secured here, and it was deemed of sufficient importance to cause the local police to pass it on to the Woodstock authorities.

It was known that Norman and Denton Garfield were members of a well organized gang of crooks and gunmen, said to be numerous and to have plenty of money. The plan as revealed to the police at the time of the trial was to attempt to rescue the prisoner while he was being conveyed to and from the Court room, and the escape was to be effected by means of automobiles waiting on the outside. As a result of the warning sent from London, the Woodstock police took especial precautius thus making it impossible to carry out the attempt.

Detective-Sergeant Robert Egelton of London, was in the Court room the day the prisoner was sentenced, and he stated then that unless every possible precaution was taken, Norman Garfield would not be long a prisoner in the jail. Detective Egleton declared him to be a most desperate man, and when once he made up his mind that he had all to gain and nothing to lose by the attempt, it was certain that he would take any chance to avoid the glows.

Though Garfield escaped at 4.45 yesterdy afternoon, it was not until 7.15 that a telegram was received here by the police notifying them of what had occurred.

CHIEF THOMPSON'S PLAN OF ACTION IN WINDSOR TO STEM TIDE OF THIEVING

In accordance with a new plan of campaign mapped out by Chief of Police Thompson for protection of homes in the west end of Windsor that have been systematically robbed recently, a number of officers in plain clothes have been placed at various strategic points with instructions to halt everybody after a certain hour at night, and unless they can offer satisfactory explanations for being out at such an hour are to be locked up. The order includes automobiles as well as pedestrians. Saturday night more than a score of machines were stopped and those driving them subjected to stiff quizzing. Since the inauguration of the new plan, no thefts of any kind have been reported to the police.

WHOLESALE TAILORING

SEMI-READY SPECIAL ORDERS MADE TO MEASURE.

A custom-tailored suit for $30—guaranteed to be of Semi-ready design, and cut and finished after the receipt of the order at the factory—draws special attention to the custom service of the Semi-ready store.

Besides the special value at $30, samples of suitings of more extensive worsteds, cheviots and serges are shown. The prompt four-day schedule at the shop warrants a certain delivery, and a fit to satisfaction is always asured by Thornton Bros. who alone have the genuine Semi-ready Tailoring in this city.

MUSICALE WAS A BIG SUCCESS

The musicale given under the auspices of the Home and School Association of King Edward School last evening was very successful. There was a good crowd, who seemed to enjoy the very pleasant evening provided Mr. A. A. Fowler made a very efficient chairman. Several fine readings were given by little Mildred Lloyd of Belleville, the clever child elocutionist., the Hawaiian quartette rendered a well-received number, vocal solos were given by Miss Doris Pilling and Mr. Barton, little Ashton Fife recited, and instrumental selections were rendered by Mrs. W. Evans, Mrs. Moncrief, Mrs. Massey-Cooke, and Miss Norma Moore. A hearty vote of thanks to the several performers for the excellent programme provided by them was moved by Mrs. Wm. Watt, president of the Association, and seconded by Mr. Polton.

FINANCIAL AND MARKETS

NEW YORK, May 26 (Canadian Press).—There were a few exceptions to the higher trend of prices at the broad and active opening of to-day's stock market, yesterday's belated rally showing numerous extensions.

Steels, equipments, investment rails, and Mexican and domestic oils featured the advance. Pressed Steel Car soon rose 2 points, Crucible Steel gained 1 3-8 points, and Great Northern and Northern Pacific made 1 point gains. Similar improvement was shown by Mexican Petroleum, Central Leather, and Pierce-Arrow Preferred. Baldwin Locomotive opened at a slight recession, but immediately rebounded, and Leather and Tobacco issues were tractionally higher. Rubber Specialties and European oils comprised the few backward stocks.

Rails led the list to higher and broader ground during the morning. The buying of those shares at gains of 1 to 2 points was stimulated by recent statements of earnings showing a marked improvement, especially among the Pacifics and coalers. Shippings moved forward with transportations, and many of the steels and equipments increased their early gains. The advance also comprehended most of the popular oils, motors, and prominent miscellaneous issues, including metals, textiles, and utilities. Rubber shares were the only reactionary issues showing further losses on adverse trade conditions.

Call money opened at 7 per cent.

TORONTO.

TORONTO, May 26 (Canadian Press). — Trading on the Toronto stock exchange this morning was extremely dull, and price changes recorded during the session were generally insignificant. Riordon was slightly firmer, and made a partial recovery. The high mark was this stock this morning was 10, with the close 1-2 point lower for a net gain of 1 3-4. Mackay was strong throughout, gaining 1 at 75. F. N. Burt lost a point at 111, while Brazilian lost 1-4 in heavy trading, and Toronto Railway forfeited a similar amount.

CHICAGO GRAIN.

CHICAGO, May 26 (Canadian Press).—Wheat underwent decided setbacks in price to-day owing chiefly to reports of rain in the west and to word that liberal shipments on the way here from other market centres would arrive in time to fill deliveries due on May contracts.

The May option in particular was without support, and at one time showed a decline of more than 10 cents comnared with yesterday's finish.

Business in May contracts, however, was very small, July taking almost the entire bulk of the trading. Initial quotations, which varied from 1 cent to 6 cents lower, were followed by further setbacks, and then something of a reaction, July keeping all the while inside of moderate limits.

Corn sympathised with wheat weakness. After opening 1-2 to 1 1-4 lower, the market sagged little further, and then made a slight rally.

Oats were easier as a result of better weather. The start was 5-8 to 1 3-4 down, and later upturns were rather feeble.

Lower quotations on hogs, as well as on grain, made the provision market drag.

FOREIGN EXCHANGE.

NEW YORK, May 26 (Canadian Press). — Sterling exchange heavy. Demand $3.02 5-8; Canadian dollars, 10 3-4 per cent. discount.

LIVE STOCK MARKET.

TORONTO, May 26 (Canadian Press).—Receipts were light, and trade steady. Quotations:

Heavy beef steers, $0.00 to $9.75; butcher steers, choice, $8.50 to $9.50; butcher cows, medium, $5.00 to $7.00; calves, $9.50 to $11.50; lambs, $15.00 to $18.00; hogs, fed and watered, selects, $9.50.

GARFIELD ESCAPES FROM HIS DEATH CELL

ESCAPE WAS EFFECTED IN COMPARATIVELY SIMPLE MANNER —MINISTER REMONSTRATED WITH GARFIELD.

WOODSTOCK, May 26. Canadian Press. Norman Garfield, the murderer of Ben Johnston, condemned to die on June 2nd, is to-night a free man. He made his escape from the local jail at 5:25 yesterday afternoon after overpowering his guard, securing the keys from his pocket, and then walking away deliberately through the jail corridors and out the front door, and away to freedom.

At a late hour last night the condemned man had not been located, although the country had been scoured by the police and auto parties for miles around.

The escape was effected in a comparatively simple manner, when it is considered that Garfield was a condemned man, under guard continuously.

The story, as told by the officials and others, runs as follows:

Rev. Mr. Gaetz, Garfield's spiritual adviser, was paying the condemned man his usual afternoon visit. About 5:20 the minister decided to go and called to the guard at the end of the corridor to come and let him out. Guard Ball went to the top of the corridor and making his way to Garfield's cell, unlocked the door and let the minister out.

They had retraced their steps only a short distance when the minister remembered leaving his hat in Garfield's cell. The guard went back into the cell and secured the hat.

Rev. Mr. Gaetz then walked down the corridor, leaving the guard standing just inside the cell door. He had reached the bottom floor, and was waiting for the guard to come down and let him out. Soon he he heard footsteps approaching through the corridor.

He looked around, and there just behind him was Garfield. He exclaimed, "Have you gone crazy, Norman?" The latter did not answer, but proceeded to the main door 15 feet away.

Here he took keys that he had taken from the guard and was in the act of unlocking the door qwhen the minister again approached him.

"Have you gone clean crazy, Norman?" he repeated.

The answer was "Stand back," and with a sudden swing of his arm Garfield pushed Mr. Gaetz away.

Before the minister could recover himself the murderer had unlocked the door and was away across the plot of grass in front of the jail and on into Victoria Park.

No one seems to have noticed him and nothing has been heard of him since. He was dressed in his civilian clothes and a cap.

It is thought he secured a motor car and made his escape from the city in it.

CROP CONDITIONS IN WEST ARE GOOD

WINNIPEG, May 25.—(Canadian Press.) — Conditions for growin gthe crop over the whole of the west during the past seven days have been ideal. All reports speak of the rapid growth of wheat that is already through the ground. Damage from frost appears to have been very local and has already been made u by the new growth. Some delay has been occasioned by the incessant rains, rendering the land unfit to work, but the drills were back on the job again by the 24th.

FINE WEATHER BRINGS OUT NUMBER OF HOLIDAY VISITORS.

Mr. and Mrs. Goodman, who spent over the holiday at McCleary cottage, returned to their home in Toronto yesterday, expecting to return here again in June to remain the season at this resort.

Some of the officials from Windsor, Ont., and staff of the new mine works back of Havelock, have taken the Skene cottage for the summer.

Big Time at White Hall Gardens

The largest crowd ever seen so early in the season assembled at the Trent River White Hall Gardens Dancing Pavilion on the evening of Victoria Day. Notwithstanding the counter attractions at Campbellford the Gardens took the crowd. At times the vestibule and entrances were impassable, many not being able to gain admission. A masquerade was advertised, but only a few appeared in costume. The floor was in excellent condition and the music splendid. Extra numbers on the programme were the balloon dance with streamers and showers of confetti, making a brilliant sight among the gaily-dressed dancers.

The Gardens cannot be surpassed for many miles around, where high-class music and the best of accommodation is provided.

ASK TWO YEARS IN PRISON FOR WAR CRIMINAL

GERMAN ACCUSED OF ILL-TREATING BRITISH CAPTIVES BEFORE LEIPZIG COURT.

36 SERIOUS CHARGES

LEIPZIG, May 25. — (Canadian Press.)— At the conclusion of all evidence for and against Corporal Heynen, Dr. Ebermayer, Bavarian lawyer, acting as public prosecutor in the case, asked the court to impose a sentence of two years' imprisonment. He took the general ground that the German military law does not permit guards to overcome the disobedience of prisoners simply by hitting them with rifle butts and argued that the ill-treatment of British captives proved against Heynen comprised 38 serious instances and three minor cases out of 47 indictments. Even if the refusal of the prisoners to work in the coal mines amounted to mutiny the accused was not justified in hitting them.

OLEO' DEBATE CUTS THROUGH PARTY LINES

HOPE OF PROROGATION THIS WEEK SLIPPED AWAY AS DEBATE DRIFTED ON AND ON

TOLMIE HAS NEW IDEA

OTTAWA, May 26.— (Canadian Press.)—The House discussed oleomargarine yesterday from afternoon till late in the evening, and as the debate drifted on and on, the hope of prorogation this week slipped gradually away. The debate at times was keen and cut straight through party lines. Since 1917, when oleo was first admitted, its importation and manufacture have been permitted from year to year. To-day's Bill, as introduced by Dr. Tolmie, Minister of Agriculture, proposed to continue its importation and manufacture indefinitely. But pressed from both sides of the House, Dr. Tolmie early in the debate intimated his willingness to make the Bill applicable again for one year only.

J. J. Denis ,of Joliette, eventually moved the six months' hoist, but his motion met with an overwhelming defeat. The vote was 130 to 33. The Bill was then read a second time without further division and went into committee.

An amendment by Donald Suthemrland, (Oxford South), to prohibit the use of milk, cream or butter in the manufacture of oleo, was defeated by a majority of 61. R. J. Manion, (Fort William), moved an amendment to permit the sale of oleo until March 1, 1923. This carried without division.

The bill as amended was reported from committee.

A NEEDED IMPROVEMENT.

The popularity of baseball this year and the fact that the games in the Central Ontario League will attract many hundreds of fans to Riverside Park should be sufficient inducement to the City Council to improve the approach to the park, which at present is in very bad shape. The construction of the Hunter street bridge has, of course, cut off the former entrance and it is necessary for people going to Riverside Park to descend a flight of steps and then pick their way across the gravel pit to the park gate. In the interest of sport and for the accommodation of thousands of citizens and visitors the city authorities should build a cinder path across the civic gravel pit or at least level off the ground sufficiently to make walking easy. The conditions are far from pleasant, and the aldermen can make many friends for themselves by deciding to provide a more comfortable roadway into the park than exists at present.

MOTOR ACCIDENTS.

That there should be two or three motor car accidents on a holiday evening should not occasion any surprise. The mystery is that the number of mishaps is kept down as low as it is when the circumstances are considered. With the roads congested with cars, many of them driven by motorists of little experience or with a paucity of judgment, tearing madly along through blinding dust, it is a miracle that there are so comparatively few accidents. Especially on a holiday there is far too much reckless driving The temptation to race other cars seems too strong to resist, and as a result the main roads are turned into speedways, along which cars are rushing at dangerous speed, around curves where a run off or a collision is a most likely happening. The regulations in regard to glaring headlights, like the speed laws, are being broken every night. On Tuesday evening there were dozens of cars on the roads running out of Peterborough equipped with lamps of blinding brilliancy and no attempt was made to dim them when other cars were met. Speeding, dazzling headlights, carelessness, these are three elements of danger that exist to too great an extent in motoring. Motorists who tear along a road at 40 to 50 miles an hour are a menace to themseves and everybody else, and there are far too many of them in Peterborough.

A BANDIT'S WARNING.

"Tell any young fellows for me to work—to work for a dollar a day, but for God's sake to keep out of trouble." The young man who spoke those earnest words to newspaper reporters was John Conley, the youngest member of the Toronto bandit gang who yesterday was taken to Kingston Penitentiary to commence his twenty year term. His message should be remembered by every man who may be Inclined to think that a life of crime and the spoils it may bring are to be prenot want to earn by toil. For a Young Conley tried the wrong way. He thought he could prey on society and by violence snatch from others the money he coveted but did no wan tto earn by toil. For a while he and his companions were successful, but the inevitable end came. And now two are serving long terms in the penitentiary and two others scarcely more guilty, but less fortunate, are awaiting the day when they will be taken out into the jail yard and be dropped into eternity. Conley has realized his mistake, too late to save himself, but he has left a message that may keep others from meeting his fate. The glamor and excitement of the bandit's life are gone and in their place is a deep conviction that work, even at a dollar a day, is infinitely better than crime.

About 2,700,000, or nearly 3 per cent., of the total population of the United States make their living from the automobile industry.

Early next July two of the leading exponents of direct action are to meet on the outskirts of New York to determine which of them shall be called champion direct actionist of the world. The one who wins will acquire great glory and, incidentally, more money than it used to take to set up a kingdom. The one who loses may get a black eye or so, but even he will pouch enough currency to justify getting his head knocked off, if need be.

Now, all this is interesting enough, and mildly exciting to boot, but the point is, why can't a prize fight be pulled off without all this preliminary conversation On Monday, Wednesday and Friday of one week Mr. Dempsey declares that he is a man-eater who proposes to bathe in Mr. Carpentier's gore. On Tuesday, Thursday and Saturday of that week Mr. Carpentier replies that so far as he knows Mr, Dempsey has never eaten anybody yet, and if any blood is to flow it will be Dempsey blood. Then on Monday, Wednesday and Friday of the next week Mr. Carpentier "issues a statement" (and, by the way, why is it that no public character, whether pug or president, ever does anything but "issue a statement" nowa-days?) to the general effect that he proposes to win the championship by superior mentality, to smite Mr. Dempsey's hip and thigh through his overwhelming cerebral predominance, or words to that general effect. Thereupon on Tuesday, Thursday and Saturday of that same week Mr. Dempsey retorts.

So it goes, while an army of press agents chronicle every word of these sanguinary prognostications and tells us, down to the smallest detail, what each embattled word-slinger ate and did with himself since the last bulletin was issued to a breathless public. If Dempsey yawns the world is rocked in the vortex. Does Carpentier eat an egg the word is flashed from Archangel to Antananarivo.

And do we read this piffle, we, the public, we who never expect to enter the squared circle—who, indeed, cherish the most lively hopes that we will never be called on to do so—we to whom the rne of conduct for prizefighters, as laid down by the late Marquis of Queensbury, is largely abrocadabra and the argot of the training camp the lingua franca of another world? Do we read it?

You bet we do, every man-Jack of us, every last line of it!—Montreal Star.

MEN KNOW WHY THEY WAIT.

In past periods of industrial depression, there has been more or less doubt in the minds of the majority of men as to what they were waiting for. Of course there was the usual talk about "confidence" as if "confidence" was entirely subjective and did not require things in which one could have confidence.

The condition to-day is decidedly different. Men do not know in very large measure, what they are waiting on. The view has been growing steadily and is now quite clear. Men are waiting until labour has adjusted itself, and particularly union labour, the labour that wants to hold closely to war time rates, plus the slacking and indifferent performance that came after the war. The labour that is making the most of the high costs that still rule is included under three heads, the United Mine Workers, the railroad unions and the unions in the building trades. Nothing is expected as to the United Mine Workers, as their scale is signed to April 1, 1922. The railroad wage matter is likely to be adjusted by regular procedure. The building trades labour matter is not making much progress. In some towns there is a contest for the open shop, which if attained will probably right matters, while in some towns the contractors are taking what they think is the easiest way, that way being contrary to the interests of the general public.

For many years the farmer has been quite out of sympathy with the labour unions. All the principles of labour unionism are repugnant to the philosophy of the farmer. The farmer cannot see the sense in the trades so separating themselves along the line that if applied to farming would mean one union for plowing, another for harrowing, another for planting, and so on. Of late the farmer's views as to unionism have grown stronger, as he attributes the high cost of the things he has occasion to buy chiefly to the labour unions, which among other things limit the hours of labour while the farmer works when the work is there.

The farmer is now indisposed to buy, except that he has been buying some luxuries. He knows what he is waiting on, prices dictated by reasonable performance of labour at reasonable wage rates.

The investor likewise knows what he is waiting on, a building cost that is in keeping with the nature of things, not a building cost predicted upon very high daily wage rates and very poor performance, when so many men outside the building trades are willing to work hard at reasonable wages.

Another thing men know they are waiting on is a further reduction in the cost of living, chiefly by way of retail store prices becoming adjusted to wholesale prices.

If the analysis is corect that men now know quite largely what they are waiting for, we have a decided advantage now over the condition that has existed in previous depressions. If we know what we are waiting for we should be able to discern when the period for waiting has ended. Business should improve quickly instead of sluggishly when the right time comes.—Exchange.

WISE AND OTHERWISE

Does anyone remember how people became successful before the days of correspondence courses and inspirational writers?

The yacht owned by the Stillman's, at present figuring in the much press-agented divorce case, is named "Modesty."

Would it not be better to introduce some sort of system into the bloodless preliminaries to the Dempsey-Carpentier bout by having Mr. Carpentier "issue a statement," say Tuesdays, Thursdays and Saturdays, Mr. Dempsey replying the following, the order to be reversed each week?

Messrs. Dempsey and Carpentier have, however, partly eliminated the necessity of sporting editors having to cudgel their brains over which story to feature. What each eats for lunch and how many miles each walks daily is the big story of the day.

PART OF KEENE ROAD IS ASSUMED BY COMMISSION

The Suburban Road Commission, whose activities have shown such good results on the improvement of the Lakefield and Chemong roads north of the city, has included the Keene road in its designated list and will work on it a distance of three miles in to Otonabee. Their plans call for a new bridge on the curve near Burnham's, about a mile east of Downer's Corners, replacing the old wooden bridge that has been used for many years.

LEGISLATION WILL CLINCH "DRY" VICTORY

FEDERAL CABINET TO PROTECT ONTARIO FROM ASSAULTS IN LAW COURTS.

HOW IT CAN BE DONE

OTTAWA, May 26.—It is rumored that this cabinet is considering the introduction, before the close of the present session, of legislation with the object of preserving the recent victory of the temperance forces in Ontario from an yassaults that might be made on it in the courts.

If the liquor forces wish to make a legal fight there are said to be two or three phases of the situation which they might regard as offering possibility of success, at least to the extent of perhaps a year's delay in the application of the bone dry legislation, particularly if they found any acquiescence on the part of the dominion government. There is the constitutional aspect, also the possiblity of technical irregularities, and finally the issue as to whether Ontario is a province in which there is a law "prohibiting the sale of intoxicating liquor for beverage purposes," the last issue arising from the native wine situation. One or two of these points are up for decision in the supreme court of Canada, having been raised in an Alberta case, legally known as Gold Seal versus Dominion Express Company. If the supreme court judgment in this case favors the liquor interests there is little doubt that similar issues would immediately be raised in Ontario and perhaps in other temperance provinces.

It is urged that the government might readily prevent any possibility of the will of the people as registered in the recent voting being thwarted even temporarily by, first, passing the necessary order-in-Council bringing into effect in Ontario the law against importation, and second, by passing a bill formally legalizing everything that has been done in connection with the referendum voting. The decisive character of that vote is being urged as a reason why no possible loophole should be left.

LOVE!

By KATHERINE MOORE

LEONARD COMPLIMENTS ME.

Chapter 60.

I had to do more thinking during these ghastly days than I had ever imagined anybody did in a whole lifetime. I always thought of tragedy as being a name given to a class of very disagreeable plays, but I never guessed that people could live tragedy day after day in their own lives.

I thought that marriage was an easy, straight forward, sort of business. When one fell in love that was the end of all one's troubles, and one just went along each day supremely happy.

As I look back now, I realized how immature my seasoning had been. But my love for Leonard was not a fair-weather love. If married life had difficulties and disappointments, then I would have to meet them bravely. I felt that my love for Leonard would be a poor, cold kind of love if it only lasted while everything was going well. Surely my love was deep and strong enough to live through a bad storm. "For better or for worse"—the words would project themselves over and over again into my thoughts.

No, I did not intend to abandon my half of that sacred contract.

My mind searched for every possible weapon of defense. I kept the home immaculate and attractive. The most troublesome task was not too great for my love to accomplish.

Also I was extremely mindful of my personal appearance. No feminine coquette could have been more dexterous than I. I tried to wear bright colors and to be always my most attractive self, and if possible stir Leonard from these terrible fits of depression which seemed to be crushing the spirit out of him more and more each day.

One night when I had not expected him home until very late, I had slipped into a simple white silk frock. It was rather old and I seldom wore it, but to-night Leonard would not be home and it did not matter. I was terribly tired. Everything was an effort without the stimulus of his presence near me.

The day before I had bought two wonderful red roses when I had been down town marketing. I wanted them to place in the tall, slender, individual rose vase on the hall table.

As I came from the dining room I stopped and looked at them. Yes, they would hardly last another day, to-morrow I would have to throw them out. So I pulled one from the vase and dried the stem on my handkerchief, I stuck it in the front of my dress and fastened my diamond bar pin through some of the green leaves.

I don't know why I did it. Perhaps I was lonely.

At 10 o'clock I was surprised to hear Leonard's footsteps on the piazza and then the jingle of his key in the lock.

He came in looking tired and pale and dropped exhausted into a chair at my side. I felt my blood run warmly through my veins. Leonard always stirred me curiously.

"Have you been out somewhere?" he asked, looking at me closely.

"Why, no—only this morning to do the marketing," I answered a little surprisedly. Was Leonard framing suppositions of Alvah Fairchild again, I wondered.

"You seem rather dressed up," he explained awkwardly. "I like it—you—you look wonderful," he jerked out.

"It must be the rose," I said bending my head forward and trying to hide my face in its blood-red depths. 'It's one from the hall table, but they're nearly done for now," I added trying to appear natural.

"I didn't notice it on the table. I like it better on you," Leonard said slowly.

I could not get to sleep for the longest while that night. A woman can understand and forgive an injury even better than she can endure being ignored. Was I foolish to be just a little happy?

RAIN BENEFITS SPRING CROPS

FALL WHEAT AND RYE LOOK WELL—CROP REPORT.

The following is a summary of reports made by the Agricultural Representatives to the Ontario Department of Agriculture:

Crops of all kinds were in need of rain of late, and the week end precipitation was very helpful.

Frost on the first two nights of last week did considerable injury to newly set out tomato plants in Essex, and also to some fruit blossoms and early vegetables in other counties, although the damage relatively is not serious.

Both fall wheat and rye are looking fairly well. Brant reports that the latter is beginning to shoot into head.

Seeding of grain is completed in most parts of the Province, and some of it is now showing up nicely. Planting of corn, early potatoes and roots are now being proceeded with. Tobacco plants are being set out in some of the Lake Erie counties.

Lincoln estimates that the loss to peaches in Clinton township by leaf-curl will be about 50 per cent.

Dundas says that some farmers are speaking of planting sunflowers with corn for silage.

Bees have come through the winter in fair condition, and are now building up well.

Waterloo reports a considerable number of heavy cattle of No. 1 quality, but adds that in only a few instances will the owners make money on them, owing to the comparatively high prices paid for the animals last year.

nterest in Horses.

Wellington says: "More interest has been shown in horses this year, and stallion owners everywhere are looking forward to a prosperous season. Good teams of geldings will sell from $400 to $500. Percheron horses are becoming more popular in the county, and a number of good Percheron stallions are appearing on the road this season where there have been none before."

'Good horses are being brought into the Port Arthur district and are selling at from $350 to $550 a pair.

Lennox and Addington states that two carloads of live stock were shipped during the week, the largest run being hogs and calves.

The market for bacon hogs has not been so low for years, prices quoted being from $8.50 to $12 a cwt., chiefly around $10, live weight.

Fifty young pigs chiefly from four to six weeks old were offered for sale on the Napanee market recently at $10 a pair.

Huron is of the opinion that "the bottom has fallen out of the butter market." Prices in the Province range from 23 to 35 cents a pound for butter fat. A creamery in Elgin is purchasing milk at $1.75 a cwt., and in Brant as low as $1.40 and $1.25 at the farm has been paid.

Cheese sold on the Perth Board (Lanark) at 15 1-2c. a lb., on Thursday ,and for 16 1.6c. at Stirling.

Certified seed potatoes are bringing $2 a bag at Port Arthur, but with little demand.

Hay varies greatly in price, ranging at from $25 to $27 in Northumberland to as low as $10 in Elgin. Nothing is said as to quality.

Dundas remarks that some of the experienced farm helpers brought out from the old country by the Ontario Immigration Branch, are giving much satisfaction.

VOICE OF THE PEOPLE

Editor of The Examiner.

Sir,—With reference to an editorial headed 'The Fish Supply," calling the attention of Mr. McDonald, of East Peterobrough, and myself, also certain local organisations to look after Peterborough's interests, with regard to the large supply of fry to be distributed in the waters of Ontario. I would like to say that the fish supply in local waters has not been overlooked by myself during my short tenure of office; in fact, the fish and game for this district has received quite a lot of my attention. As I am sure, if you care to look up the history of the Department, Peterborough's waters were never before so liberally restocked. My first season, 100,000 bass fry were placed in Clear Lake and Stoney Lake, also 100,000 pickerel. This year, 200,000 pickerel have already been placed in Stoney Lake, a similar quantity of bass fry will be placed in these waters in June. Round Lake at Belmont, East Peterborough, is also to get 100,000 pickerel. Ouse River, near Indian River, 10,000 speckled trout, and a large quantity of bass, the Deputy Minister informs me, will be put into the Kawartha Lakes. So far as the local organisations are concerned, I have worked with them on my part; if any have been overlooked in recognition, that is their business. T. Tooms is the people's representative in the Provincial House. This should be well known to those taking an interest in public affairs. Last year Mr. Brownscombe, for the Stoney Lake Cottagers, gave me information. This year I took application forms, which were endorsed by myself, to the Board of Trade who this year supplied the necessary information. Forms were left by me, signed by myself, with the same organisation to apply for a further supply of speckled trout for Peterborough, and in Monday, 23rd May, issue of The Examiner, you announced the results of this action—30,000 speckled trout fry. Your report states "by the efforts of the Board." My report is by the joint efforts of the Board and the local member, who took the initiative in this matter.

I think the suggestion that we are backward in advancing our claim, in face of these facts, is mal apropos. As to the fish hatchery, I have pressed Peterborough's claims, and the Minister is to come and look over the waters this season for a suitable place. This is where the local organisations may be of service, to suggest a suitable location. What will not secure hatcheries or fry is the taking of fish out of season, as stated by Mr. Coffey, of the Fish and Game Department. I do not think the County of Peterborough is as bad in that manner as Mr. Coffey is reported as saying. I am not out for cheap advertising. Action, not noise I try to make my forte. Anything I have heard of or even hinted has been taken up by myself with reasonable results. Peterborough is not considered backward in her own claims, whether it be sport or public utility. The people know my record, and I trust the people. The Examiner, I am sure, does not mean that I, any more than anyone else, have been backward, but neglect by someone or somebody is suggested; so it is only right that the people should know what has been done in this matter.

T. Tooms,
West Peterborough.

110 WORDS WRITTEN ON GRAIN OF RICE EXCELLED.

British Penman Put in Compass of Penny More Things Than Would Fill Several Pages.

MANCHESTER, England, May —Referring to an Arab now visiting Cairo, who has written 110 words from the Koran on a grain of rice, The Manchester Guardian recalls an English penman of equal skill.

Peter Bales, as is learned from Holinshed's Chronicle, put in the compass of a silver penny more things than would fill several ordinary pages, and presented Queen Elizabeth with the manuscript set in a gold ring and covered with a crystal, together with a magnifying glass so powerful that the Queen could decipher the manuscript, "which she held on her thumbnail and commended the same to the Lords of the Council and the Ambassadors."

Bales subsequently issued a challenge "to all Englishmen and strangers" to write, for a pen of gold of $100.00 value, in all kinds of hands, "best, straightest, fastest," and most kinds of ways, "a full, a mean, a small, with line and without line; in a slow set hand, a mean facile hand, and a fast running hand," and, further, to write "truest and speediest, most secretary and clerk-like, from a man's mouth, reading, or pronouncing, either English or Latin."

Another writing master, David Johnson, accepted the challenge and the contest opened on Michaelmas Day, 1595, before five judges and a hundred spectators. Bales was adjudged the winner in all three sections, though the competition in "writing sundry kinds of fair hands" proved a near thing for him.

He gained points for the beauty and "most authentic proportion of his Roman hand," but Johnson scored more points in court hand and in "bastard secretary" hand.

Bales, being then on his mettle, presented his "masterpiece," composed of "secretary and Roman hand four ways varied," and offered to forego all his previous advantages if Johnson could better it. This proved impossible, so Bales carried off the gold pen, and had it painted and set up for his sign.

Corn Enders

The old sort—and the new

Corns used to be treated by fakers.

But science has found a better way to treat corns. And millions have adopted it.

The modern way is Blue-jay—liquid or plaster. A famous chemist perfected it. This great surgical dressing house prepares it.

Blue-jay is applied by a touch. The corn pain ends instantly. Then the corn is gently loosened. In a little while it comes out.

It is folly to pare corns or to treat them in unscientific ways. This new way is ending some 20 million corns a year. It will end yours any time you let it.

Prove this tonight.

THE NORWOOD CELEBRATION

LARGE CROWD PARTICIPATED IN HOLIDAY EVENTS—PERSONAL MENTION.

NORWOOD, May 26.—The celebration on Victoria Day, under the auspices of the 40th Northumberland Chapter of the I.O.D.E., and the Norwood Band, proved to be quite successful. The weather wis ideal in every respect, and a fair crowd was in attendance, although many had taken advantage of the holiday to visit other places, or to spend the day fishing.

The booth, which was in charge of the I.O.D.E., was well patronised by young and old. At 1.30 o'clock the athletic sports began. These were followed by a lacrosse match between Peterborough and Norwood —the former team being the winners.

The baseball match between Norwood and Lakefield was an interesting one, especially during the latter part of the game. During the first few innings Norwood made six runs, but Lakefield failed in making any. Then the tables turned, and in a very short time Lakefield made five runs. At this stage, excitement was running high, for at times it appeared as if Lakefield were going to run up the score very much in their favour. However, in the eighth innings Norwood made four, and as Lakefield did not succeed in increasing their runs in the ninth, the game wound up with a score of 9-5 in favour of the home team.

The referee was Dr. Gibson, of Lakefield, who performed his part in a fair and creditable manner.

Evening Programme.

In the evening an excellent programme of solos, duets, and recitations was given by three artistes from Toronto.

Some of the selections sung by Mr. Albert Dyer were "Friend of Mine," "Keep on Hopin'," "Come to the Fair, Mairi, My Girl," "Three for Jack."

Mr. Dyer has a wonderfully good voice, and puts much v'm and his whole heart into the rendition of his songs, which were heartily encored.

Miss Brisbane's voice is strong and sweet, and all were delighted with her singing of "The Venetian Carnival," "Irish Lullaby," "The Hilltop," also her encores.

Miss Parsons is a most superior elocutionist, and charmed her audience by the manner in which she recited "Alaska," "The Stovepipe Hole," "The Cattle Thief," "The Wee Penny Whistle of Sandy McGraw." Her encores were exceedingly catchy, and amused all.

The duets by Mr. Dyer and Miss Brisbane, "A Paradise for Two" and "The Bells of St. Mary's," were decidedly well rendered.

Rev. A. J. Terrill occupied the chair during the evening.

The proceeds from the concert amounted to nearly $80.00.

Personal Mention.

Mrs. Tim Coughlin, of Hastings, was in town on Tuesday.

Mr. Dave Webster, of Lakefield, spent Victoria Day in Norwood.

Miss Running, of Peterborough, visited this week at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Oliver Buck.

Mr. and Mrs. Arc'e Hawthorne, of Warsaw, were visitors in town on Tuesday.

Miss Dodge, of Lakefield, was in town this week.

Miss Jean Buck of Peterborough, was home for the holiday.

Mr. and Mrs. J. Thompson visited the latter's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Hugh Robb, on Victoria Day.

Miss Bennett, of Peterborough, spent Tuesday at the home of Mr. and Mrs. O. Buck.

Mr. and Mrs. Harry Wildman, of Peterborough, were guests of the former's brother, Mr. Willon Wildman, this week.

KAWARTHA.

"Kawartha" to the Indian means "bright waters and happy lands." The Kawartha chain constitutes one of the most popular of Ontario's summer playgrounds. The lakes are six hundred feet above the level of Lake Ontario, and the climate conditions are most agreeable and healthful. Every form of outdoor recreation may be indulged in, there being unlimited opportunities for sailing, canoeing and motor-boating, for bathing and for fishing. Bass, maskinonge and salmon trout are caught in the large lakes, while there is good fishing for speckled trout in the smaller lakes in the district. The region is easy of access, being within 125 miles of Toronto on the Grand Trunk Railway system. Write for illustrated descriptive literature to any Grand Trunk Ticket Agent or C. E. FATHER MINEHAN REVIEWS SOCIAL SERVICE CONVENTION IN PETERBORO

Readers of the present writer's weekly contributions are prepared for, and I believe appreciate, occasional interruptions of a timely character. Believing that the annual meeting of the Social Service Council of Ontario is of sufficient importance to justify a break in the series of theological discussions we are having, it has been deemed advisable to devote to it this week's portion of alloted space.

The selection of the place was fortunate. Peterborough is big enough to be a city without relinquishing intimate touch with the surrounding country. The result is that it has no slums within, and no fringe of shacks on its borders. On the contrary, its streets melt into charming vistas of rural scenery. In this respect it is highly favoured, being situated in the midst or one of the finest and most picturesques stretches of farming country in Ontario, with the waters of the Otonabee River dashing through it and those of the Trent not far way, whilst within easy reach northwards are the famous Kawartha Lakes, almost rivalling Muskoka's waters in picturesqueness, though inferior in extent. The expression "dashing through" conveys the idea that the waters with which Peterborough is abundantly blessed have rapids and falls which are productive of both "sweetness and light," to use Matthew Arnold's famous phrase. The idea is realized in fact, for Peterborough is so plentifully supplied with electricity developed from her tumbling waters that in broad daylight her electric lamps are aglow on some streets. The question of the peak of consumption evidently does not trouble this fine rural and industrial centre.

Very beautiful did Peterborough look in robe of magic green woven by the deft and delicate fingers of spring. This season evidently loves this city of pretty homes, wide and well planted streets, and picturesque and tastefully kept parks. To see these alone simply repaid a considerable journey.

But Peterborough's people are as hospitable and interesting as its appearance is attractive. The delegates of the Social Service Council of Ontario were welcomed on behalf of the city's Mayor by one of those "rare birds," a poetic member of the City Council. In larger centres civic fathers are usually acquainted with wood in the doors and ceilings of chambers and lodges and chairs of state, but not very much in its growing form, the result being that their speakers like their surroundings are kiln-dried, whereas the Peterborough representative's address of welcome breathed the love of Nature and its beauty begotten of intimate acquaintance. That this acquaintance does not detract from keen appreciation of practical issues was demonstrated by the eminently business welcome given by the President of the Peterborough Board of Trade.

After such a welcome amidst scenes so inspiring the delegates of the Social Service Council of Ontario could not fail to have a successful annual convention. The first session was presided over with customary dignity and efficiency by the Bishop of Toronto, who, for years has filled the President's chair with much acceptance. In this opening session important committees were appointed, the relation of the Social Service Council of Ontario to the Dominion Council of which it is a unit outlined in a very illuminating address by Dr. Shearer, General Secretary of the larger body, and an excellent report of the action of the Provincial factor regarding motion pictures and theatres given by Mr. Henderson, Chairman of the committee appointed for this purpose. The results achieved in this one sphere of social life, (so fraught with opportunities for good and ill and unfortunately leaning under present conditions much more to the latter), during the past year when its efforts for betterment have as yet but time to begin to tell, would of themselves more than justify the existence of the Social Service Council of Ontario.

But Tuesday's strenuous programme showed that interest in wholesome shows and amusements was but one of many social questions in which this body is vitally interested. Child welfare, under which head came mothers' allowances, justice to the child born out of wedlock, juvenile courts, child desertion, occupied a whole forenoon and brought out addresses of outstanding merit. All these, be it remembered, are subjects of actual or pending legislation actively promoted by the Council.

In the afternoon industrial life and community problems formed absorbing themes. The workings of the Minimum Wage Law, recently enacted in Ontario, largely through the efforts of the Social Welfare Council, and the manner in which the problems of community are being investigated with a view to their solution, were the themes of addresses and discussions which must have been a revelation to those who regarded the Social Service Council as a "holier than thou" kind of "uplifting" agency. Indeed, one of the most notable features of the meeting was the abence of any such spirit. Poverty, joylessness, the need for healthy recreation, the importance of a living wage, the enriching of rural life—these and similar themes were the concern of the delegates. The keynote of all their efforts was the supreme importance of constructive work, of fighting the unwholesome by multiplying the wholesome. The community cannot have too much of this kind of uplifting.

Two evening sessions, intended particularly for the public at large, were held. In the former the retiring Chairman of the Board of License Commissioners for Ontario explained the workings and drawbacks of the Act administered by the Board over which he presided in a manner which won universal confidence, and showed how much more easy the position of his successors will be under new conditions. He was followed by Dr. Pidgeon, the new President of the Ontario Social Service Council, whose address on "Citizenship" in its breadth, idealism, and sanity, demonstrated his fitness for the position to which he was enthusiastically elected.

The features of Tuesday evening's public meeting were an explanatory address by the very efficient General Secretary of the Ontario Council, and another by the Premier of this Province. The reception given to the present head of the Provincial Government was a sterling and well-deserved tribute to his standing amongst social students. One of the qualities which has won their affection as well as admiration was strongly in evidence on that occasion, namely, his frankness. He did not hesitate for a moment to ascribe to the preacher who had "one eye on the city and another on heaven," a large amount of responsibility for the unhealthy exodus from the farm to the city. With one of his sentences we venture to disagree. He declared that one native-born Canadian was worth any five emigrants, no matter whence they came. The late Sir John Macdonald was born in Scotland and we maintain that even the U.F.O. never produced a son five times as great as Sir John. If the present Premier's dry record were not so outstanding we would be tempted to attribute this statement to hilarity producing concoctions. At the same time we cordially agree with the sentiment that any nation's best assets ought to be the children of its own soil. The exhilarating atmosphere of Peterborough must be held responsible for this slip, otherwise Premier Drury's address was in his best vein and suitably crowned the most successful annual convention the Social Service Council of Ontario has had.

Dunlop Cord and Fabric Tires Are Now Made by the Same Unbeatable Process

This Dunlop Process Has at One Sweep Added 20% More Mileage to Fabric Tires

DUNLOP

Means BIG Mileage

Here's What Private Car Owners Say:—

"The set of Dunlop Cord Tires, 36 x 4½—two Traction and two Ribbed—have given entire satisfaction. I have run them continuously on my Cadillac car, and have taken a trip from Winnipeg to Toronto and return, and they have now covered in the neighborhood of 20,000 miles and are still in good shape."—A. C. Turner, Winnipeg, Man.

* * *

"Would say I have been using your Traction Treads on both my big seven-passenger Steam "White" cars, and on my National and Fiat Gasoline cars, and must say I've done some fearful travelling, over 18,000 miles, and no rim cuts so far, and I believe they'll go 15,000 miles more."—M. N. Lenning, Esk Bank, Sask.

* * *

"I may say that I have had four Dunlop Cord Tires on my car, which have gone approximately 22,000 miles, and I may state that I am just putting on four more 32 x 3½ (Straight Wall) Cord Tires of your make."—A. J. Barr, Ottawa, Ont.

Here's What Truck Owners Say:—

"My first set of Dunlop Traction Tread Cord Tires, size 35 x 4½, bought in June, 1919, have been used continually on a Studebaker truck, and have run 18,000 miles. They are still in good condition. Being perfectly satisfied with the service received from Dunlops, all my cars are now equipped with Dunlop Cords."—Forbes the Mover, Hamilton, Ont.

* * *

"A 34 x 4½ Dunlop Traction Tread Fabric Tire which I have equipped on one of my Ford delivery trucks, used for general cartage work, is now completing its third consecutive season and has never yet been off the rim. During this time the car has made many hard trips, including about twenty-five trips to Plattsburg, N.Y., and one trip to New York City, as well as several trips into Ontario and other points, which necessitated encountering roads of all descriptions. The total mileage, I estimate, is well over 20,000."—R. Clark, Montreal, Que.

* * *

"The tire which I brought back to be re-treaded ran 23,000 miles. We used it on the back wheels of our Studebaker truck for the first 1,200 miles. This tire was not changed for nine months, and during that time needed practically no air, which speaks well for your tubes. I cannot speak too highly of Dunlop Tires for the delivery business. We deliver for thirty stores, and each of our cars covers about fifty miles a day, and has to keep running all the time."—The Independent Messenger, Parcel and Store Delivery Co., Ltd., Calgary, Alta.

Dunlop Tires, Both Cord and Fabric Construction, are Giving Phenomenal Results.

Big Tire Mileage is here to stay. Just as we predicted in 1912 that the Anti-Skid Tire would become standard, so we now predict that Big Tire Mileage will be among the things every motorist will consistently expect from now on.

The tire manufacturer who has to apologize for "short life" in his product will be automatically eliminated. Cord Tire construction made possible the coming of a tire that refuses to quit until many thousands of miles have been clicked off. The Cord Tire is now universally accepted as the master choice.

And Dunlop Cord Tire is now the most popular. "Dunlop" is at top form, but don't forget that while we are turning out Cord Tires --- "Traction" or "Ribbed" --- which seem almost uncanny in their ruggedness, that a great number of motorists still use Fabric Tires. These motorists wanted more mileage than Fabric Tires were usually expected to give. That set us thinking. We wondered why certain Cord Tire principles could not be applied to Fabric Tires.

We experimented and were amazed at the find. It was that we could at one sweep add 20% more mileage to Dunlop Fabric Tires and make them last longer than Fabric Tires were ever known to last. Result: Dunlop "Cord"-built Fabric Tires are giving some other makes of Cord Tires a run for their money at, of course, much lower first costs.

Dunlop Cord Tires are outdistancing any other Cord Tire made, no matter at what price the tire sells. The stories told here prove all we claim. We have hundreds more like them. Note the remarkable distances covered and the splendid average for all parts of Canada on all makes of cars.

Here's What Dealers Say:—

"During the past season we have used many sets of Dunlop Fabric and Cord Tires as equipment on our cars. Our experience has been extremely satisfactory. There have been no complaints from any source. On the other hand, our customers frequently remarked on the fine results and big mileage obtained from Dunlop Tires. We are expecting to use your make as equipment on a much greater scale during the coming season."—The Crompton Car Company, Limited, Toronto, Ont.

* * *

"We have found the Dunlop Cords giving wonderful service and running up fine mileage records, especially on cars subject to overloading and hard usage. We have many satisfied customers who will use nothing but Dunlop Traction or Ribbed Cord Tires."—R. E. McMorran, Victoria, B.C.

* * *

"We can conscientiously recommend Dunlop Traction Treads to all our customers, as both we and they honestly believe that no other tire on the market is giving like service and mileage. Adjustments asked for during the past eighteen months have been practically nil, while the mileage has been exceptionally high for this part of the country. We have tried them out against opposition makes and the result has always been in favor of 'Dunlop.'"—Hargett's Motors, Limited, Mission City, B.C.

Here's What Livery and Bus-line People Say:—

"We are today sending you a 32 x 3½ Dunlop Ribbed Cord Tire that we have just taken off a Dodge Touring Car, having run over 23,341 miles, according to our records. We consider this a mighty fine record, and, in fact, is better service than we have been able to secure from any other make of tire."—Empress Auto and Taxi Co., Victoria, B.C.

* * *

"You cannot help being interested in hearing of the long mileage I received from a Dunlop 37 x 5 Traction Tread Cord Casing. The tire referred to I put on the rear of one of my Packard cars around November 1st, 1919. After running 11,000 miles on the rear, I changed it and put it on the front. It delivered 19,000 miles on the front wheel, making a total of 30,000 miles, all told, and it was only a short while ago that its usefulness ended. I am glad to say, unsolicited, that the average mileage of all Dunlop Tires has been around 12,000 to 15,000 and 18,000 miles, by which you can see they have proved eminently satisfactory."—The Packard Motor Livery, Toronto, Ont.

* * *

"I have been using Dunlop Cord Tires for the last fourteen months, and have about twenty-seven Dunlop 35 x 5 and 37 x 5 in use on my Cadillac cars in city and country livery business. I have as yet to have one not stand up. Some are still running and have gone 25,000 miles, and I look for a few thousand miles more."—Maple Leaf Auto Livery, Winnipeg, Man.

And We Have Them All, from the Minutest Accessory to the Most Important Necessity

JUNE IS ALMOST HERE. The first month of Summer in which many will spend happy, busy days preparing for weddings. Much of the arduous preparation may be left to the service of this store. We have thought ahead and have gathered in every department the most beautiful essentials of the trousseau — gowns, dresses, hats, lingerie, linens and everything that a bride will admire and desire has been arranged in a charming selection of the most recent fashions. Just a few of the many suggestions that we can offer you are mentioned below.

Silken Fabrics

For the Bridal Dress or Gown

Silks and satins, all soft and shimmery, some white, some ivory and myriads of colors in dainty tones that gradually die away to sombre navy blue. It will be here, whichever shade has captivated your fancy.

Charmeuse in a delightful quality and in an ivory shade is 40 inches wide and comes at $4.75 yard. White Pussy Willow in the same width and a fine grade is $3.75. An ivory duchess satin that is a yard in width is $3.50 a yard. A white crepe de chine in the 40-inch width is $3. A wash satin in an exceptionally heavy (16 mumme) weight sells at $3 a yard.

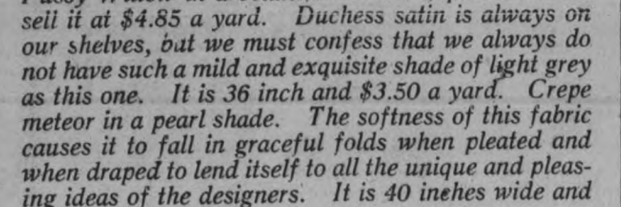
There is a decided leaning toward grey for nuptial occasions in the lighter tones, so we present Pussy Willow in a beautiful shade of platinum and sell it at $4.85 a yard. Duchess satin is always on our shelves, but we must confess that we always do not have such a mild and exquisite shade of light grey as this one. It is 36 inch and $3.50 a yard. Crepe meteor in a pearl shade. The softness of this fabric causes it to fall in graceful folds when pleated and when draped to lend itself to all the unique and pleasing ideas of the designers. It is 40 inches wide and the price is $4.

A Miscellaneous Assortment of Colors and Prices in Forty Inch Charmeuse Satin

At $4.50 a perfect shade of Copenhagen blue. At $4.75 navy, taupe, seal brown and turquoise. At $4.85 jade green, flesh, cerise and maize. At $6.95 turquoise, coral and navy. At $8.75 crepe charmante in a soft coral tone.

Shapely Footwear That One Can Admire for Its Appearance and Bless for Its Comfort

In a trousseau you would expect to find just such slippers. They are novel, they are elegant and yet the prices are not out of the way.



One pleasing model is of black satin with straps that cross at the instep. The heels are Louis pattern and satin covered. Priced at $11. A grey buck model has an attractive appearance. They come at $10 and have two straps that fasten with buttons. The heel is Cuban and the receding toe is perforated. Then there are pretty styles in patent pumps priced from $8 to $11.

In white we are showing a two-strap slipper of cornado cloth. It has a high Louis covered heel and turned sole. Priced at $6.50. A pump of sea island duck has a covered Cuban heel and medium vamp. Price $5.50. A white buck Oxford with brogue perforations is unusually handsome. Priced at $11.

Lingerie

As Pretty as Lace, Georgette, Satin and Crepe de Chine Can Make It

White or shell pink wash satin demurely trimmed with lace, ribbon, georgette and floral garnitures —Oh but they are lovely, and especially those that are daintified with shirrings and tucks.

A skirt of pink habutai has a ten-inch accordion pleated flounce with hemstitching both top and bottom. It is relieved by a pale blue knotted and bowed ribbon on the side. Price $6. Another skirt is of white wash satin and has an eight-inch flounce formed of alternate rows or groups of tucks and insets of lace insertion and finished with a frill of lace. Price $10.

A casing of plain net run with pink ribbon goes around the yoke and shoulders, and also appears on the lower edges. Priced at $9.50. Unusually lovely is this envelope at $8.95. It is of pink crepe de chine, and the top is of pink georgette, hemstitched on; a two-inch pale ribbon embroidered with pink and green French knots is stitched on the georgette and goes all-around, and the shoulder straps are of ribbon too. Beneath all this are two rows of shirring.

A double row of filet finishes the neck and is run with ribbon and wide filet forms a small sleeve. A floral embroidered garland appears in front.

ALD. WHITEHOUSE SUGGESTS INEXPENSIVE IMPROVEMENT TO EAST APPROACH TO BRIDGE

WOULD BUILD UP ROAD TO TURN SOUTH-EAST SYMMETRICALLY WITH THE SLIGHT BEND IN HUNTER STREET AT THE BURNHAM STREET CORNER—CONCRETE WORK MAY BE FINISHED THIS WEEK.

SURFACE CHIPPING SPEEDS UP

To Alderman Whitehouse is credited the suggestion of an alteration to the east approach of the Hunter street bridge, which it is declared would greatly improve its appearance and increase its convenience to traffic at only a trifling cost. According to Alderman Hamilton, chairman of the Bridge committee, Alderman Whitehouse proposed building up an approach that would curve to the south toward Burnham street, symmetrical with the sweep of the junction of the bridge and Hunter street east. This bifurcation of the Ashburnham approach would form a triangular plot with Burnham street immediately in front of David Conroy's house as the base and the two curving approaches to the bridge, one leading to the north-east on Hunter street and the other toward the south-east as the two sides. Traffic moving south on Burnham street would follow the proposed additional approach, and the rest of the traffic going straight east or to the north would keep to the present roadway. This plan would include a central plot between the approaches and Burnham street that could be seeded with grass and beautified with flowers. There is no pretense that this additional approach is necessary, but Ald. Hamilton regards it as a splendid idea that should receive the cordial approval of the residents of Ashburnham. The filling could be easily made with ashes, and finished with a top dressing for the central plot.

Ald. Whitehouse's suggestion would certainly enhance the graceful lines of the east approach, and its general effect should harmonize and set off the park into which the property at the south-west corner of Hunter and Burnham streets will be converted if the City Council's plans are carried out.

Last of Cement Work.

Ald. Hamilton told the Examiner he had counted on having the cement work wound up this week. There remains a strip of sidewalk on the north side of the bridge in front of the Quaker Oats building and also the railing on both sides of the platform to the Quaker Oats company's warehouse. Fred Christie informed Ald. Hamilton that yesterday's early rain and continued threatening weather all day had interrupted the cement pouring, but in spite of the loss of a full day he expected to complete this detail by the end of the week.

The Granite Finish.

In the meantime four compressed air chippers have been set up and are progressing at an accelerating rate that is said to be rapid. This is quoting Mr. Christie and is not intended in any sense to question his estimate of the speed at which this finishing touch is being performed. As the outer surface of cement is removed, revealing the chipped granite the difference in the appearance amply justifies all that Frank Barber contended when he pleaded with the Counci not to abandon the gray granite finish. Ratepayers and other citizezns who did not comprehend this phase of the almost forgotten debates in Council may now see for themselves both the concrete and granite finishes. If they are sufficiently interested in this matter they shoud visit the bridge before the chipping is completed. With the removal of the outer layer of concrete the granite effect is brought out so vividly that to the average person the bridge would seem to have been built of granite blocks. This is particularly noticeable in the panels and will stand out just as prominently in the railing and other surfaces. And the difference in appearance thus achieved may prompt most ratepayers to admit that the extra cost was money well spent.

The Lamp Standards.

One of the compressed air chippers was working yesterday on the four pillars and standards that have been erected for the bridge lamps.

Mr. Christie remarked that when some of the engineers and contractors first saw the plans for these standards they believed them to be too high. That was a first impression. Now Mr. Christie considers them to be admirably proportional to the rest of the bridge. This little tribute from the city's representative on the job is due to Paul Bragdon, the architect and designer whom Frank Barber engaged to prepare the profile and general lines and design of the bridge. When the lamps are placed in position they will heighten the imposing massiveness and flowing gracefulness of the structure, which has indeed cost a great deal of money, but which, as its finished appearance becomes more and more observable, impresses the public as a splendid work and a useful one that arouses a sense of gratification and pride when the cost and the resultant taxes are not too present and distractive a memory.

Additional Lamps.

At the office and warehouse platform approaches from the bridge, the Quaker Oats Company may erect two sets of two lamps where the railing turns in towards the factory. At the four corner pillars electric wire connections have been set in the concrete, and it is understood the Quaker Oats company will have a design for lamps to be prepared by Mr. Bragdon. If this prospective adornment materializes the four lamps in front of the Quaker Oats factory will add a pleasing effect and will come as a gratuitous decorative fillip to surprise the City Council.

GROUND HOGS ARE VERY NUMEROUS

Farmers complain that woodchucks or commonly called groundhogs, are more plentiful this season than they have been for years. In some loalities they are naming a certain day for farmers to try to exterminate them. A few can be shot by constantly watching for them, and a good dog will soon make short work of them if he can get them far enough away from the hole. However, the surest way to get them is to poison them, and if you go to Lynch's drug store, 368 Hunter street, and get a bottle of CARBON BISULPHIDE, they will give you instructions how to use it. 4d26 28 1 3

FLAYS DRUNKEN SPEEDER.

Judge Sentences Harrigan, whose Car Killed a Man, to Prison.

DETROIT, May 26. — John Harrigan, manager of the Magnus Manufacturing Company, was sentenced to Jackson Prison for from five to fifteen years, by Judge William H. Heston.

He was convicted of manslaughter by a jury for driving his automobile while drunk, and running down three laborers at work on the tracks of the Detroit United Railway. One man was killed and two others were badly injured. Harrigan did not stop after the accident, and was arrested later at the factory.

Despite the plea of his counsel that he had been recently married, and was a good type of progressive young business men, Judge Heston denounced him in passing sentence.

You are one of these reckless speeders who have no regard for law or order," he said. "You seem to think that the streets were laid out and paved as a speedway for your benefit. Your own lips admit you are guilty of driving thirty-five miles an hour, breaking the speed law, that you broke the law again while drunk. After striking these men down you showed no disposition to help them."

The Peterboro Lift Lock Receives A Lot Of Attention From Visitors

The Lift Lock, which languishes in a sort of forgotten solitude during the winter months and doesn't attract any too much attention during its busy season, is at last coming into its own. No less a person than Mr. Henry Ford has incorporated it into a number of his advertisements of cars, perhaps as a sort of comparison of a thing which has only one exact duplicate of its sort in the world with a conveyance which is known and found in every corner of the civilized world. The Toronto Star Weekly, in the junior section, had some verses about our Lift Lock in a recent issue, and sightseers in the conventions held here in such quantities already this year seem to yearn to visit this massive machine. One of the pilgrims asked if it was the public bathhouse of Peterborough, but most remarks are not so flippant, and its picture, in all its stony glory, appeared on the cover of the programme of the B.Y.P.A. convention in the Baptist Church on the 24th of May. If, when advertising, one must have the goods, we certainly live up to this requirement where our unique Lift Lock is concerned.

Children Interested in Competition

The children in the schools of Peterborough are very much interested just now in the competition recently instituted by the Ontario Safety League. The classes, divided into two sections, one under 13 and the other over that age, are to submit a picture of a fire or accident and the best way of preventing a fire or an accident. These will be adjudged by Mr. Geo. A. Reid, Principal of the College of Art of Toronto, and the awards will be made on the 10th of June. The list of prizes includes one of $20, one of $10, two of $5 each, five of $2 each and 50 of $1 each, making the contest distinctly worth entering.

Mr. Edward Abbey, the manager of the new Capitol Theatre, has also announced a competition to close on Friday evening, for the best drawing of the horse so dearly loved by all child readers of "Black Beauty," that famous animal whose trials and tribulations have done so much to prevent cruelty and misuse of our faithful friend of the equine kingdom.

Peterboro As A Convention City

Visitors to Peterborough on recent conventions can hardly have any cause to complain of the treatment accorded them by the churches and citizens of the city. A royal welcome has been extended each of the three recent gatherings and everything possible done to make them feel at home and in the midst of friends. The Young People's Union, which gathered from all over Ontario and Quebec on Monday and Tuesday last, with over 400 from out of town on the register, was one of the jolliest meetings held here in some time. The young men and women were a happy, bright-looking lot, but very serious when engaged in the church on the business which brought them here. A civic welcome, a beautifully-served banquet, a church decorated with lovely spring flowers, music from a full choir and some of the finest soloists to be found in the two Provinces, the best of billeting arrangements, motors for a sight-seeing excursion, a special train from Toronto and special street cars provided half an hour earlier than the ordinary schedule to enable them to catch it, were some of the conveniences provided for the Baptist Young People's Union, the local branch of which added a gift of $25 to the coffers of the Inter-Provincial convention, towards the expnses of the delegates. Every one seemed to have a good time, even the enthusiastic member who attended every session with his two little girls. These were very well-behaved little ladies, and slept quietly through the evening service, with their heads on their daddy's lap. One distinguished herself during the afternoon session by loudly exclaiming, "No, no," when some debatable point was brought up, not explaining, however, just how she differed from the reverend speaker.

The Summer Fair

Preparations for Father Phelan's Summer Fair, which takes place at the Exhibition Grounds on June 9th, are progressing with much enthusiasm among the ladies of the city. A fine day's programme is anticipated, with baseball and football in the afternoon and a band concert in the evening. The dining-room is in charge of Mrs. Gus. White, the Young Ladies' Sodality has charge of the ice cream both, Mrs. James Daly and Mrs. J. V. Gallivan will superintend the running of the country store and Miss Annie Simons will operate the fish pond for the kiddies.

OUR CANNED FRUITS
are always a treat. They are far superior to ordinary goods of this kind. For they are canned where they grow and when perfectly ripe. The best of cane sugar only is used in preserving them. The result is fruit with all the natural flavor. Try a can of your favorite and you'll like it better than ever.

Good Housekeeping Hints

Canning Baked Beans

I always bake a large pot of beans with pork, because they are best when baked in quantities. But my famiy is small, so I tried canning some of the beans. I put them while hot into a clean, hot jar with a small piece of pork in the top. I partially sealed the jar and sterilized it for two hours, according to the cold-pack method. It proved such a success that now I can at least one jar of these at each baking. They keep well and taste just as good as when baked, and prove a most valuable addition to my emergency shelf.

To Store Jars.

At last I have solved the difficulty for the woman who has a light cellar and yet wishes to keep her jars of products from fading as beets and carrots and some fruit do when exposed to the light. The shelves for storing canned goods are under the stairs in the cellar. Instead of a door there is a window-shade which rolls up or down, in front of the shelf. It is attached to the top shelf, and it rolls very easily. This is much better than a hanging cloth or curtain of any kind, as once rolled up it is out of the way.

Save Oatmeal Cartons

Many housewives, no doubt, have been at a loss for a sure way to keep the light and dust away from jars of canned products. I happened to think of the round paper containers that oatmeal is packed in. Just the thing! The jars slip in easily, and the cover fits snugly. To save space the jars can be packed on on top of the other, after being placed in the cartons.

To Prevent Stained Fingers

I always have great difficulty in keeping my hands and fingers from becoming badly stained when preparing fruit for canning. But I have solved the difficulty with the aid of my box of paraffin. Melt a little paraffin, and when cool enough, dip the finger-tips the depth of the nails into it. It will at once form a coating which protects the nails from fruit-juice.

New Pickled Beets

When you are pickling beets this summer, try using sweet cider instead of vinegar. Boil the beets until tender, remove the skins, and cut them into thin slices. Boil the sweet cider with salt, allspice, and pepper to taste, for fifteen minutes. Strain into the jars, covering the beets, and leave to cool. Seal and keep in a cool place. You will be delighted to find how sweet and fresh they taste when served.

Home-Made Canning Rack

As I did not have a modern canning outfit last summer, I made one myself that served admirably. Buy enough coarse window-wire to fit in to the wash-boiler and to allow for bending down the ends to make legs. Put tiny blocks of wood under the middle to keep the wire from sagging. With my fireless cooker hook for lifting out the jars, my outfit was complete.

Rhubarb in Combination

In doing my canning last summer I found that very often after filling the jars with fruit there was still a little left over, yet not enough for even a pint jar. I thought of the rhubarb which was growing out in my garden and decided to use that in combination with the left-over fruit. The result was delicious, and the rhubarb cooks so quickly that it was just what I needed. This year, I am going to put up a good many cans of raspberries, cherries, huckleberries, and other fruit in the proportion of one-third fruit to two-thirds rhubarb. In this way I have variety.

Sample Jelly Jars

Save and wash carefully all the small jars in which cold cream, vaseline, cheese, marmalade, et cetera, have been packed. Then you can fill them with samples of the various kinds of jellies, marmalade, conserve, chow-chow, pickles, et cetera which you desire to sell. The purchaser may then have a taste before making this selection and you may thus secure satisfaction as well as an order.

Canning Left-Over Soup

When serving soup at dinner there is often some left over. I always fill clean hot jars with the soup and sterilize it for 90 minutes in boiling water. Now when unexpected company arrives, I never worry about the consomme with which to begin a meal.

Sharp Edges on Jars

I have often been annoyed by sharp or rough edges around the rims of jelly-glasses, and fruit-jars, and the bottoms of crockery ware. I now keep a piece of medium sandpaper or emery cloth in the kitchen with which I quickly rub off the offending rough or sharp places, leaving the articles surprisingly smooth and saving my hand any little cuts and scratches.

Save Money by Canning

Any woman can save money by canning her own fruits and vegetables. When I raise the fruits and vegetables in my own garden, I find the cost of canning is merely nominal and the profit much greater, but even when I must purchase them, I still consider it a money-saving proposition. The only thing that I had to buy last season was corn. One hundred ears cost $2.25, and after discarding some that were wormy and reserving enough for the day's dinner, I obtained fifteen quarts solidly packed. This made the cost between fifteen and sixteen cents a can, but they contained so much more than the cans one can buy at that price that I consider it very cheap. For tomatoes I paid fifty cents each basketful, and each basket averaged nine quarts, a cost of about six cents for each quart jar, when the ordinary tin can of tomatoes cost from sixteen to eighteen cents a can. The sugar for three and one-half gallons of peach syrup, which was made from peach parings and culls, which otherwise would have been thrown to the chickens, cost less than one dollar. I used this as a substitute for maple syrup, which two years ago cost $1.65 a gallon and is undoubtedly much higher now. Do you wonder that I consider home canning profitable?

Myopic Persons

A recent lecture by Dr. F. W. Eldridge-Green in London advances the theory that short-sighted (myopic) persons should avoid any exercises that involve lifting, which tend to increase the pressure within the eyeball, thus making the myopia worse. All exercises should be performed in an erect position. Sports like baseball, golf, tennis, fencing, running, archery and swinging Indian clubs are all right, but boxing must be avoided.

Heredity is claimed to be the principal cause, with contributing factors in measles, whooping cough and bronchitis. Children with a tendency to myopia should have especial attention when suffering from these diseases. The light should be arranged so that the eyes need not be directed downward, and the head kept raised as much as possible.

THE MAN WHO SAVES.

He erects a bulwark against sickness or adversity.

He builds a bridge to the better job.

He takes in hand a tool to grasp opportunity.

He sets up a ladder to climb in the world.

He gains control over money and things.

He trains himself for growing responsibility.

"Indwelling"

And if thou couldst empty all thyself of self
Like to a shell dishabited,
Then might He find thee on the ocean shelf
And say: "This is not dead."
And fill thee with Himself instead.

But thou art all replete with very thou
And hast such shrewd activity,
That when He comes He says: "This is enow
Unto itself, I trow. Best let it be.
It is so small and full, there is no room for Me!"

MAN GIVES WIFE GLYCERINE MIXTURE

She had stomach trouble for years. After giving her simple buckthorn bark, glycerine, etc., as mixed in Adler-i-ka, her husband says: "My wife feels fine now and has gained weight. It is wonderful stomach medicine." Adler-i-ka acts on BOTH upper and lower bowel, removing foul matter which poisoned stomach and which you never thought was in your system. EXCELLENT for gas on the stomach or chronic constipation. Guards against appendicitis. The impurities it brings out will surprise you. McDermid & Jury & E. L. Payne.

Toe Chestnut Tree

The old horse chestnut tree in the garden is covered with pyramidal cones of creamy blossoms. Away down in its trunk is a deep furrow where a tiny seed had lodged, and now green leaves are shooting forth from the long fissure. Bats live in this tree in the torrid weather and chipmunks whisk their frolicky way in nutting time, chopping off the green covering of the chestnuts with their sharp little teeth and carrying the nuts in through a hole in the roof to their winter home, where, many a cold night, one may hear their tiny feet scampering back and forth overhead.

The three little robins who were hatched out in the old nest on the back verandah, have flown away. They emerged from the pretty blue eggs as the ugliest of long-necked, raw-looking little birdlings, with insatiable appetites. Now they have developed fuzzy little feather coverings and a faint orange coloring on tiny dappled chests. One sat in the sun to-day and cheeped for his mother to hurry up with his dinner. This lady was making sidelong prods at the lawn in search of unwary worms, while her baby sat cuddled up near a bed of valley lilies, his tiny bright eye fixed suspiciously on an interested onlooker, who came to the conclusion that he must be of the male persuasion, because of the fuss he made over the inadequacy of the worm provided by his parent for his mid-day meal.

REPORT MANY CASES OF RHEUMATISM NOW

Says we must keep feet dry; avoid exposure and eat less meat.

Stay off the damp ground, avoid exposure, keep feet dry, eat less meat, drink lots of water and above all take a spoonful of salts occasionally to keep down uric acid.

Rheumatism is caused by poisonous toxin called uric acid, which is generated in the bowels and absorbed into the blood. It is the function of the kidneys to filter this acid from the blood and cast it out in the urine. The pores of the skin are also a means of freeing the blood of this impurity. In damp and chilly, cold weather the skin pores are closed, thus forcing the kidneys to do double work, they become weak and sluggish and fail to eliminate this uric acid which keeps accumulating and circulating through the system, eventually settling in the joints and muscles causing stiffness, soreness and pain called rheumatism.

At the first twinge of rheumatism get from any pharmacy about four ounces of Jad Salts; put a tablespoonful in a glass of water and drink before breakfast each morning for a week. This is said to eliminate uric acid by stimulating the kidneys to normal action, thus ridding the blood of these impurities.

Jad Salts is inexpensive, harmless and is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia and is used with excellent results by thousands of folks who are subject to rheumatism.

Wedding Symbols

The custom of using orange blossoms as bridal ornaments is supposed to have been brought to Europe by crusaders from the East, the Saracen brides being accustomed to wear orange wreaths at their marriage, but objection has been raised to this by saying that although the orange tree was brought to England as early as 1290, it was long before it was cultivated, even in greenhouses. A second theory says that orange wreaths became so popular, not only because of their wonderful scent, but because they were rare and costly and so within the reach only of the noble, thus indicating the high rank of the bride. A third idea is that the custom had its origin in Spain, where oranges have been cultivated for centuries, the fashion spreading to France, and, by means of French millinery, thence to other lands.

The very latest idea in wedding rings is to have them carved or chased with an appropriate emblem, and the symbols for the month in which the wedding takes place have been arranged as follows: January, snowdrop; February, almond blossom; March, violet; April, tulip; May, pansy; June, bridal rose; July, lily; August, pond lily; September, daisy; October, maple leaf; November, oak leaf; December, holly.

Art

We're made so that we love
First when we see them painted, things we have passed
Perhaps a hundred times, nor cared to see;
And so they are better, painted—better to us,
Which is th same thing. Art was given for that;
God uses us to help each other so,
Lending our minds out.

THE CAUSE OF SICKNESS

ALMOST ALWAYS DUE TO WEAK AND IMPROVERISHED BLOOD.

Apart from accident or illness due to infection, almost all ill-health arises from one or two reasons. The mistake that people make is in not realizing that both of these have the same cause at the root, namely poor blood. Either bloodlessness or some other trouble of the nerves will be found to be the reason for almost every ailment. If you are pale, suffer from headaches, or breathlessness, with palpitation of the heart, poor appetite and weak digestion, the cause is almost always poor blood. If you have nervous headaches, neuralgia, sciatica and other nerve pains, the cause is exhausted nerves. But run-down nerves are also a result of poor blood, so that the two chief causes of illness are one and the same.

If your health is poor; if you are pale, nervous or dyspeptic, you should give Dr. Williams' Pink Pills a fair trial. These Pills act directly on the blood, and by enriching it give new strength to worn-out nerves. Men and women alike greatly benefit through the use of this medicine. If you are weak or ailing, give Dr. Williams' Pink Pills a fair trial and you will be pleased with the beneficial results that will speedily follow.

If your dealer does not keep these Pills you can get them by mail at 50 cents a box or six boxes for $2.50 from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

WAS SUFFERING FROM INDIGESTION
NO FEAR OF PAINS NOW

Indigestion is one of the worst forms of stomach trouble, and many people suffer terribly after every meal they eat. The rising and souring of the food, pains in the stomach, heartburn, water brash, belching of wind, vomiting shortly after eating, etc., are some of the symptoms.

There is no need for any person to be troubled with indigestion, dyspepsia or any other stomach trouble if they would only take Burdock Blood Bitters, which contains a combination of nature's roots, herbs, barks and berries; a combination that cannot help but put the stomach right.

Mr. H. H. Collins, Norton, N. B., writes:—"I was with the overseas forces for four years and two months, and in October, 1916, I was unfortunate enough to be wounded and taken prisoner. I was a prisoner for 2½ years, and the food they gave us was not good, at times, and after a few months I found I was suffering from indigestion. When I came home in July 1919, I was nearly a wreck. I was told to use Burdock Blood Bitters. I did so and found great relief, and can now eat without fear of pains and sickness. I would recommend B.B.B. to all who suffer from indigestion."

Burdock Blood Bitters has been on the market for over forty years, and during that time has made a reputation second to none for relieving all stomach troubles. Manufactured only by The T. Milburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.

NEXT SATURDAY'S GAME HAS LOCAL FANDOM EXCITED

CLASH BETWEEN OSHAWA AND PETERBORO WILL OPEN CENTRAL ONTARIO LEAGUE SEASON HERE—SOME BASEBALL GOSSIP

It is a long time since the Peterboro fans were so excited over a ball game as they are just now over the clash between Oshawa and Peterborough at the Riverside Park on Saturday which opens the local Central Ontario League season. The game is called for three o'clock, and all indications point to a record crowd.

It is expected that G. N. Gordon M. P., will pitch the first ball. Mayor McIntyre will participate in the opening ceremonies, which will be brief.

The Oshawa team after putting Freddy Goyer and his Belleville crew away on the holiday are more than confident that the Central League pennant is theirs, and that playing out the schedule is a mere formality. They have a new battery up in the automobile town, a pitcher named Dainty, who hails from Chatham, and formerly from the land of Uncle Sam, and Belding a new catcher. The pitcher is a left handed bird with a wicked turn of speed, who held Belleville to three hits on Tuesday and Oshawa reports indicate the gang from Secretary Nott's town expect that the gentleman from the west will only have to toss his glove out on the mound to beat the Petes. Manager Solomon's crew have been up against good pitching before, and they are not worrying any about the prowess of the Oshawa Southpaw. They claim that at least he'll know that he has been in a ball game.

It should be a scrappy battle, one of the best on the list for the year, and every fan in Peterboro and the district is counting on being among those present when Umpire Jack Rosevear of Port Hope, calls "Play Ball."

this year promises to be a corker. The opening games showed that the teams have strengthened up in great style. Lindsay have a pitching phenom., Oulette, who fanned seventeen of the Port Hope crew. The Ontarios uncovered a good twirler in the person of Deer, formerly of the Lake Shore League, Toronto. Oshawa have a new battery; Cobourg a new pitcher and Belleville have all of last year's team intact, and in addition have a new second baseman who is said to be a real ball player. The fans around the Central Ontario circuit will see some rare ball this season.

Cobourg came through with the record at least on Tuesday, when they trotted out father and son in their infield. The veteran Dick Turpin played first base, and his son cavorted around the short field. The big fellow can still hit, but his fielding is very bad. The role of pinch hitter should be Dick's from now on.

No mistake, Jake Solomon is the biggest drawing card in the Central League. They bill the Petes' manager like a circus in some of the league towns. Down in Cobourg the other day they had bills out which read as follows:

"The Concert Band, the Ball Game and Jake Solomon—all for 25c."

They are still talking about "Hap" Harrison's home run down in Cobourg. "I went to Toronto to see Babe Ruth," said one Cobourg fan, "but what's the use. We've got a Babe Ruth right in our own league."

Louis Yeotes has hung up an advertising sign in left field at Riverside and the Peterboro player who drives the ball against it can have five dollars worth of cigars at Mr. Yeotes' expense.

LACROSSE NOTES

Harry Tudhope, convenor of the local junior group, has called a meeting to be held in Hastings on Saturday. The schedule of games will be drawn up, including teams probably from all this district, Peterborough, Hastings, Havelock and Campbellford.

A meeting of the local juniors will be held to-night at the Y.M.C.A. to arrange for getting sweaters and to talk over prospects. About twenty juniors have been turning out lately and most of them are decidedly promising boys. They are taking to the game with enthusiasm and showing an adaptability that is surprising and encouraging to Johnnie Sutherland, who is managing the youngsters.

Campbellford plays a return exhibition game in Havelock on June 3 and although nothing is at stake, it will be a battle. There is all kinds of rivalry in this district, and especially between these two eastern teams. They would be well advised to call in an outside referee. Dick Cole gave general satisfaction in Campbellford, but some of the railway town boys were heard saying, "Wait till we get them in Havelock and we have our own referee."

These games are only for fun and should be played in that spirit.

Peterborough will have its work cut out in the district games. The veterans are more than willing to step out and let the younger players fill up the team. In fact Bert Todd, Lou McCoy, George Mein, Ed Dillon, Jack Creighton and the rest of them have been turning out simply to keep the game alive and give it a fresh start. And most of the youngsters want to play on the home team. Campbellford has some old timers, including Jack Nesbitt, Tom Thomas, Jim Kerr and others who know all the fine points.

Jim Skinner, manager of the local intermediates, insists on clean play and a strict interpretation of the rules which are designed to eliminate the rough stuff that was one cause of the decline of lacrosse. In other days it was not so. Recall the Peterborough defence composed of Bill Meagher, Bill Crowley, Harry Morgan and Ed. Dillon. In one game which Sergeant Detective Meagher recalls, Giddy Burt, of Port Hope, was being exhorted by his field coach to "go in on them," to which Burt replied, "not on that bunch of murderers."

TOM MOORE DOES REAL COURTING IN FILM

"Made in Heaven" is the title of the next Goldwyn picture, coming to the Allen Theatre for 3 days, commencing to-day. Everybody knows the rest of that— "Marriages are made in Heaven." The title tells the tale of one of the most romantic love matches that ever took place in fildom—that of Tom Moore, the star of this picture, and Rene Adoree, who plays his little Irish sister in the story.

Mr. Moore had known Miss Adoree for only a few days when director Victor Schertzinger noticed something was wrong with his usual sunny smile—it took a more ardent meaning when he looked at Rene Adoree. The next thing that happened was the visit of a newspaper interviewer, who spread the news broadcast that the two were engaged to be married. Movie fans may have a real glimpse of the romance of Tom Moore and Rene Adoree, for it was on the Goldwyn stage, under the eyes of the entire company and the director, that Tom Moore did his courting. Whether the title had anything to do with their marriage or not, is a moot question.

WORKED 'EM SO HARD, THEY BELIEVED HIM SIMON LEGREE

"Going Through the Rye," the latest two-reel Christie Comedy, featuring Bobby Vernon, at the Allen Theatre to-day, is the first work of Harold Beaudine as a director. He is so eaxcting in his work, both in quality and hours, that officials of the company have nicknamed him "Simon Legree." Apparently so well has the application fitted that during the making of this picture a number of extras believed that it was his right name and they frequently addressed him as "Mr. Simon." His first picture is said to show the hard work he put on it.

During the latter part of the production, "Made in Heaven,' the star, Tom Moore, worked his company night and day so that he might be married and go off on his honeymoon. During the interval of production Moore announced his engagement to Rene Adoree, a dancer, who is a member of the cast of "Made in Heaven." The picture, a Goldwyn offering, will run for 3 days at the Allen Theatre, commencing

AT THE REGENT.

SHIRLEY MASON IN "GIRL OF MY HEART"

"Abandon hope, all ye who enter here!"

This warning, scribbled on cardboard and tacked on the gateway of an orphanage by one of the little inmates, starts the action in "Girl of My Heart," which William Fox is presenting at the Regent Theatre to-day, with Shirley Mason, as the star.

"Girl of My Heart," adapted from Frances Marion Mitchell's novel, "Joan of Rainbow Springs," tells the story of Joan ,a little waif, who was ousted by the trustees of the orphanage for writing the foregoing sign ,and sent to the guardianship of an old woman—whose constant abuse caused her to run away. How she accidentally met a young Southerner, whom she preevnted from taking his life because of ill health, his subsequent experiences as this man's adopted sister and with his old maid aunt; and her development from adopted sister into sweetheart —all this and more is told in what is described as an exceedingly dramatic story. Indian life figures very largely in the tale.

Shirley Mason as little Joan is said to give a most charming impersonations. Others in the cast include Raymond McKee as leading man; Martha Mattox, Al. Fremont, Calvin Weller, Hooper Toler and Cecil Vanauker. Edward J. LeSaint staged the production.

AT THE CAPITOL.

To-night the Capitol offers a remarkable picture and vaudeville program — the remarkable picture, "Black Beauty," and The Musical Thornburgs.

Horses have been supplanted by the telephone, as well as by the automobile. Millions of readers of "Black Beauty," the tremendously popular "Autobiography of a Horse," by Anna Sewell, will remember John's wild ride on Black Beauty to summon the doctor when Mrs. Gordon was at the point of death. The physician would be called by telephone to-day.

Yet, with "the passing of the horse" from many fields of former service, since Anna Sewell wrote her wonderful book more than forty years ago, "man's noblest friend" still holds a firm place in the heart of humanity, and 'Black Beauty" holds eighth place among the world's most popular books.

In preparing the motion picture version, to visualize "Black Beauty" as a Vitagraph all-star special production, Mr. and Mrs. George Randolph Chester labored long and earnestly to insure the faithful and accurate presentation of Anna Sewell's story, as she wrote it, on the screen.

"Black Beauty" will be shown at the Capitol Theatre to-night.

In the picture play, as in the story, Squire Gordon, Jessie Gordon, Harry Blomefield and all the other humans in the book, appear in the dress of the early seventies, the period in which the action was laid. There are not telephones, no electric lights, no automobiles. In this respect, as in all others, the picture version has been kept true to the story as told by Anna Sewell.

Without in any way encroaching upon the original "Black Beauty" story, the Chesters have added the thrilling human romance, going on indoors while Black Beauty was living in the outdoor story. The result is one of the most appealing picture dramas ever produced.

The usual Saturday matinee at 2.30 p.m.

There will be a special Saturday morning matinee for the children at 10 o'clock, when the one price, 10 cents, and this will include the amusement tax, admits a child.

Carr, Home Economis ton the staff of the Canadian Edist on the staff of the Canadian Edford, is giving a very interesting demonstration of electric appliances at the Turnbull Company's store today, to-morrow and Saturday. The electric ovenette is the special feature of the exhibit. This convenient article will do anything that a regular stove oven will do, if used on top of an electric table grill attached to an ordinary light socket. It will roast meat, bake potatoes, cook pies, biscuits and muffins, not all at the same time, of course, but just as effectively and efficiently and perhaps more so than the average bake oven. There is something rather fetching in the idea of being able to pop a pie into one of these ornamental-looking affairs on top of an ordinary table and see it emerge spicy and fragrant ready for the consumption of a hungry family. No extra wiring is needed for this appliance, which is a big consideration in the list of its attractions. Grills, percolators and warming-pads are also demonstrated by the young lady, and immersion heaters, these handy little articles which are so useful for sterilizing purposes in the doctor's or dentist's office, or for heating milk for the baby that does not want to sleep in the dark night watches. Miss Carr will also give any desired information relative to the best method of operating electric ranges.

POISON IN LICORICE CANDY.

CHICAGO, May 26. — Licorice candy made of lampblack and sweetening substance and sold to the retail trade at less than ten cents a pound was responsible for the death of one child and the poisoning of thirteen others. It was said that all of the children purchased licorice candy at the same shop. The keeper admitted that he had been selling large quantities of the candy to the children of the neighborhood, but said he had received no previous complaints concerning it. He added that he had purchased the candy from a wholesale house at a low price.

Sir Alfred Mond, first commissioner of works, and known throughout the world as the nickel king, is the new British minister of health. Sir Alfred is owner of the Westminster Gazette, one of the most important of the London evening papers, and is chairman of the Mond Nickel Company. He is noted as a writer and his articles on political and economic subjects have been widely read.

Based on the records of death in former years, it is estimated that 800 persons now walking the streets of New York City will be killed by motor vehicles before the end of 1921.

M MERCANTILERS THIS EVENING.

Barrie's promise to redeem themselves when they play Westclox in a Mercantile League game at Riverside Park, this evening at six o'clock. The fur-trimmers will have Al. Doughty on the firing line, and Roy Dixon will play first base, allowing Nicholls to work at short. Scotty Galbraith has returned to town and will play against Westclox. With an even break in luck, Barrie's should give a good account of themselves. The clock-makers will trot out the strongest team available.

CUP GAME MONDAY.

Nicholls Oval on Monday evening is to be the scene of another struggle for the Gordon Cup. Caledonians and C.G.E. have been ordered to play next Monday evening, in an attempt to break the tie. A monster crowd will witness the game.

CALDER TOOK A WALK.

Talk about the old fighting spirit. Billy Calder, who labors on the forward line of the Caledonians, walked in from Kendry station to town to take part in the final game on the holiday.

KING EDWARD OR QUEEN MARY

King Edward and Queen Mary seniors promise a lively game in the Public School League to-morrow afternoon. Queen Mary boys have an unbroken string of victories, and King Edwards have lost only one game. A win for King Edward will tie up the series, and a victory for Queen Mary will make them repeaters for championship honors, they having captured the honors last year.

ONE AMERICAN LEFT ON TEAM

HOYLAKE, Eng., May 26.—Fred J. Wright, Boston, became America's last hope for the British amateur title at the end of the fifth round of the championship here yesterday.

Wright survived the round by beating the veteran Britisher, John Ball, 4 up and 3 to go, but his last remaining team-mate went out of the play when Dr. Paul Hunter fell before Bernard Darwin, 2 up and 1 to go.

British hopes, which slumped visibly in the early rounds when the Americans were sweeping everything before them, rose almost to the point of jubilation at the end of the fifth round. The burden which falls upon young Wright, to carry the American colors through to the finals, is considered almost hopeless.

British opinion was free to admit that the fates of the draw had dealt a cruel blow to the American cause. The first break of the bad luck came when Chick Evans and "Bill" Fownes had to battle each other, and it was repeated when Fownes had to play his team-mate, Wright.

In a degree, not as marked, however, the British team suffered the same effects of the draw when Cyril Tolley, the British champion, had to fall before a team-mate, J. B. Beddard.

Ball, who is a member of the Royal Liverpool Club and who has virtually lived on the golf course since it was laid out, is the idol of local golfdom. He is 58, but has won the British amateur title seven times. On exhibition in the clubhouse is a large gold cup dedicated to his golfing exploits. After Tolley's defeat in the morning Ball had been heavily favoured for the title by the British enthusiasts, and it was with keen regret that they witnessed his elimination in the fifth round.

F. J. Wright, of Boston, defeated W. C. Fownes, jr., of Pittsburg, 3 up and 2 to play.

Dr. Paul Hunter, of Los Angeles, defeated F. E. Pegler, Sheffield and District, 2 up.

B. Darwin, of Woking, beat Harry Braid, of Walton Heath, 5 up and 4 to play.

LIKE A LOCOMOTIVE WITHOUT ANY STEAM

IS THE HOME WITHOUT DODD'S KIDNEY PILLS.

Sasaktchewan Woman in Recommending Dodd's Kidney Pills Says That What They Have Done for Her They Will Do for Others.

Richdale, Alta., May 25th.—(Special).—"It seems to me that a home without Dodd's Kidney Pills is like a locomotive without steam." So says Mrs. G. H. Knopp, a highly-respected resident here.

"The kidneys need something to help them do their regular work," Mrs. Knopp goes on to explain. "Dodd's Kidney Pills will do all this. I rejoice to say that the good they have done me and my family they will do for others. Just give them a trial."

The work of the kidneys is to strain the impurities out of the blood. It is necessary work if the body is to be healthy. It is trying work, for the kidneys are constantly in contact with the seeds of disease.

Women who have kidney trouble should ask their sister women just what Dodd's Kidney Pills have done for them.

FISHERMAN FISHED OUT OF THE LAKE

Mr. J. G. Jopling, of Toronto, is visiting at the home of Mr. G. J. Jopling, of Bridegnorth. Mr. Jopling, although three score years and ten, is an enthusiastic fisherman and a lover of mud pouts. This morning, while out on the bridge, rather than lose a good, fat "chub," he took a back somersault into the lake, but was fished out by his companion, a rising chiropodist, good at "manipulating."

OTONABEE TAKES THE SECOND OF ITS ANNUAL TOLL; JOSEPH FALLON DROWNED AT "JACKS"

ONLY A FAIR SWIMMER, COLD WATER BELIEVED TO HAVE AFFECTED HIS HEART AND CAUSED CRAMP.

UNABLE TO RESCUE HIM

The second drowning falality on the Otonabee river, this year occurred at 7.45 last evening when Joseph Fallon, 26 years old and an employee of the Peterboro Lock Co., was drowned in ten feet of water at "the Jacks", the common name for the swimming hole on the river at the foot of Dublin street.

He with Earl Cadigan also employed at the Lock Works and living at the King George Hotel, Simcoe street, had been in swimming only a few minutes. It was the first time either of the young men had been in this year and the water being still cold it is believed that Fallon's heart which is said by his friends to have been weak, was affected or he was seized with a cramp. Another boy accompanied them, Ernest Cullum, 326 Water street also working at the Lock Works but for lack of a bathing suit did not go in with the other two. He was waiting for Cadigan to come out to borrow his suit.

Fallon was just a fair swimmer, according to Cadigan but was anxious to go swimming. He coaxed the two youths all day at the factory to go with him they said and they consented. They left Fallon's home about 7.30 p.m. they thought and he had only been in a short time when the drowning occurred. Fallon seemed to be swimming very well last night, the two companions stated and struck out boldly when he first went in with the remark, "Gee! The water's fine". After swimming about he challenged Cadigan to a race in from where they were 30 or 40 feet from the shore They started off. Cadigan swimming strongly reached the shore, Fallon coming along about 10 or 15 feet behind. Cullum was standing on the wharf and he saw Fallon throw up his hands and sink under the water Just as Cadigan reached the shore. He never came up and Cadigan being, so he said, a poor swimmer and unable to dive feared to go in after Fallon. Two young boys on the bank above also saw the young man go down and sounded the alarm.

The pulmotor and Chief Newhall and several men were shortly at the scene of the drowning and dragging for the body began at once. At 8.10 it was recovered by Detective Meagher, P. C. Naples and J. S. Clarke who were dragging from a skiff practically where Cullum said Fallon sank. Al efforts at resuscitation failed but the police with respiratory exercises the firemen with the pulmotor and Dr. Yelland fought for 20 minutes with some glimmer of hope. The body was immediately removed to Lane and Eano's Undertaking Parlours.

Joseph Fallon lived with his aged grandmother, Mrs. Michael Fallon and an uncle, Michael Fallon at 277 1-2 Park street. Since his parents died when he was four years old, his grandmother cared for him and was prostrate with grief when Rev. C. J. Phelan informed her of the sad drowning last night. This morning she told the Examiner she did not want "Joe" to go swimming for he was not very good in the water and his heart was weak. On Monday morning he wanted to go but she refused to call him in time. She protested vigorously against him going last night and her last words as he went out the gate were "Be careful Joe you don't get drowned." With a hearty laugh he promised to be careful and wished her goodbye. He always said "Good-bye grandma", when he went out", Mrs. Fallon said.

Joseph Fallon had been employed at the Lock factory for eight or nine years and was very popular with his fellow workers. His warm friendly manner and upright character endeared him to a large number of friends and the sad news of the drowning tragedy caused a pall of gloom over the entire factory to-day, where he had been for so long a faithful employee.

The funeral will take place from Lane and Eano's Undertaking Parlours, to-morrow morning to St. Peter's Cathedral and thence to St. Peter's cemetery.

CRAIG DOUBLE VALERA'S POLL

PREMIER DESIGNATE OF ULSTER POLLS 30,000 TO REPUBLICAN LEADER'S 16,000.

UNIONISTS ARE LEADING

BELFAST, May 27. — (Canadian Press).—Sir James Craig, Premier designate of Ulster, who polled almost thirty thousand votes in the elections for the Northern Irish Parliament, established a record for ballotting in Ulster. His nearest competitor, Eammon De Valera, Republican leader, received approximately sixteen thousand votes.

Unionists have done better in the elections than they anticipated, the Sinn Feiners worse than their prophets predicted, and the Nationalists no more than they looked for. The Unionists are therefore the only party in Ulster to-day not disappointed. The Unionists expected to win 34 of the 52 seats, including those for the University, which will be decided Saturday. They will probably get nearer 40 seats.

ARMOUR'S HILL FOR MEMORIAL

MOST APPROPRIATE SITE FOR PETERBORO'S TRIBUTE TO THOSE WHO FELL IN GREAT WAR.

PROPERTY COSTS $3,000

Edward Courtney ,one of East City's thoughtful citzens, refers to an article which appeared in the Examiner some time ago, with regard to the attractions of Armour's Hill as a site for the proposed War Memorial. As he says, there is no finer site in the city or district for such a purpose. The view is wonderful. The whole length of the city lies at the feet of this lofty hill with the "tumbling waters" of the Otonabee river at its base. On a clear day, one may see the plains of Rice Lake, the townships of Otonabee, of Douro, Smith and Monaghan.

This Memorial would commemorate the memories of the lads who came from every part of the town, and if they ever come back to the homes they loved so well, what could be more suitable than an elevation which commands every vista of the town lying at its feet.

A hill like this, which is absolutely unsuitable for any other purpose, would be ideal as a site for a Memorial. Thirty acres of property for the small sum of $3000, made pleasant by well placed shrubbery, and well-planned driveways, the water mains near at hand in the school property, a small outlay would be more than repaid by the results that might be attained. If the people who were responsible for the placing of Brock's Monument on the top of Queeneston Hights, had faltered in their purpose, what an immeasureable loss would have been entailed to future generations, who have gazed up at the lofty towering pile and remembered what it stands for in the annals of Canada's glory. The people of Trenton have set us an example with their ancient cannon on the top of their small mountain, and if some of our citzens would take the time and trouble to walk over to East City, and view Armour's Hill with a prophetic eye as a site for a War Memorial, there would be more converts to such a worthy cause.

WILL EXPLODE ABDUCTION OF GIRL MYSTERY

"SOLUTION" WILL BE AS ASTONISHING AS FINDING OF MISS LEE, IT IS FORECAST.

MAY COME LATE TO-DAY

PALMERSTON, May 27.—(Canadian Press).—The conclusion of the mysterious finding of Miss Edna Lee, of Listowel, in the Nairn homestead lane last week will be learned late to-day. While Inspector Boyd remains reticent as to what the conclusion is, it is understood the mystery has been exploded and in a manner that the outcome will be just as astonishing as was the discovery of Miss Lee. No arrests will be made, no confession is looked for, no unearthing of a writer of anonymous letters; in fact there will be no direct action in the affair but merely a statement from the Provincial Police Department through Inspector Boyd. What the statement is can only be conjectured. It points entirely in one direction, and it is felt that the announcement will bring forth pity on all sides instead of censure.

IS THREATENING TO SUE THE SYNOD OF NIAGARA.

HAMILTON, Ont., May 27.—Rev. E. J. Etherington, former rector of St. Thomas Church here, is threatening to sue the Synod of Niagara for the recovery of about $400 per year, which he claims he is entitled to, in view of the fact that he is incapacitated for work, and is without a parish. Mr. Etherington's case was discussed at the Anglican Synod here, when many of the delegates sympathized with his claim that he was entitled to receive benefit from the superannuation fund. The matter was not disposed of, as Bishop Clark asked that action be deferred until later, and this was agreed to.

SEVEN OF THE PINES IN ST. JOHN'S CHURCH GROUNDS DEAD AND GONE

SUCCOMBED TO THE DESTRUCTIVE EFFECTS OF TIME AND THE WEATHER AND HAD TO BE REMOVED—OTHER CHANGES TO THE GROUNDS AND CHURCH.

Seven of the pines that have crowned St. John's Hill and towered above the stately old church have been cut down and uprooted. Their removal will be deeply regretted by the congregation, and also by the citizens in general, who regard St. John's with pride and as a community possession of never failing beauty. On the north and east side of the church the clump of pines had formed a lofty background to one of the loveliest scenes in Peterborough, and for so long had stood out in the setting of the church that they seemed an indispensable part of it. Change and decay had overtaken them, and they had been left standing a long time after they had become lifeless trunks and branches. Mr. Frank Wise has charge of the improvement to the grounds, which include the removal of the fence on the north side, and the re-grading of the lawn which, when completed, will slope easily down to the Brock Street sidewalk. On Hunter Street the stone retaining wall is being re-capped and re-pointed; and parts of the grounds are being re-graded and improved, that is, if it is possible to paint the lily. Mr. Wise has four men engaged at this work, which is being carried out under the supervision of the grounds committee, composed of Robert Fair, chairman, J. J. Howden, Roland Denne and Achilles Turner

The alterations to the church itself are mostly the re-building of the cornices and other changes that time has made necessary. Wm. Barry is the architect on this work, and Ald. R. Jones the contractor. The cornice edge of the roof on the west side has been torn away, to be re-built, disclosing two other roofs that mark different stages of the enlargement of the church. The first was erected over the original nave outlined by the interior pillars. When the side aisles were added a new roof was laid over the entire structure. This proved too flat, and a third roof, with sharper pitch, was constructed. An interesting discovery made by Mr. Barry and Ald. Jones is an old wooden eave. It is eighteen inches wide and twelve inches deep, and was laid on top of the stone wall, so that the scooped out trough fell just beneath the edge of the roof to catch the water. This wooden eave trough is seventy fee long and in one entire piece with a single splice. Parts of it were punky and decayed by the dripping of many years' rains, but there were long sections almost as firm and strong as when this primitive trough was set in place.

BELIEVING GARFIELD IS HIDING IN TORONTO, THE POLICE BAR ALL EXITS

MAN ANSWERING MURDERER'S DESCRIPTION SEEN IN TORONTO LATE LAST NIGHT—WOODSTOCK AUTHORITIES HAVE INFORMATION INDICATING THAT FUGITIVE HEADED TOWARD TORONTO LAST EVENING.

PROVINCIAL INSPECTOR INVESTIGATES ESCAPE

(From a Special Correspondent.)

GEORGETOWN, Ont., May 27.—(Flash.)— Man apparently Garfield arrested here this afternoon.

Chief of Police Melville is absolutely positive he has arrested Norman Garfield, murderer, who escaped from Woodstock jail earlier in the week. A young man now in custody answers to the description of the missing bandit. He was captured at Stewart Town shortly after noon to-day by a man named Appleby.

"What makes you so confident you have Garfield?" asked the Examiner.

"He corresponds to the description of the murderer sent out broadcast over the province," replied Chief Melville.

"Was he wearing tan boots?" "No, black boots."

"But Garfield was wearing brown boots, according to reports from Woodstock," reminded the reporter.

"Yes, but a store had been broken into in the meantime and this man has got a new outfit of clothing," said the police officer.

"What is the charge against him?" "He is arrested as a suspect."

"Are you keeping him there overnight?' "No, we are leaving for Woodstock b ymotor car at five o'clock. That's all I can tell you for the present, but we are absolutely sure this is our man," declared the Chief.

WOODSTOCK, May 27.—(C. P. 2.30 P.M.)—The police at Georgetown this afternoon arrested a man whom they think is Norman Garfield. He gave the name of Thomas Robertson and he refuses to talk. He is the same that purchased a hat and shoes at Milton last night. The man arrested tallies with the description of Norman Garfield, dressed in a dark blue suit, sallow complexion, balck boots. In his pocket he had money. W. C. Killings, ex-Chief of Police, went to Georgetown this afternoon to identify him.

TORONTO, May 27.—Canadian Press.)—Believing that there is a possibility that Norman Garfield, the escaped Woodstock murderer, may be in hiding here, all exits from the city are being carefully watched by the police. One clue that is being followed was furnished by a night watchman at the city's quarry. A man, said to answer Garfield's description, called there last night, asked for food and slept there for the night. He had breakfast and departed at five o'clock this morning.

WOODSTOCK, May 27.—(Canadian Press.)— Norman Garfield is heading for Toronto, according to the belief of Chief of Police Moore this morning. The Chief has received information to the effect that a man answering accurately Garfield's description was seen in Milton last night at eight o'clock. The story is to the effect that at six last evening a man was seen near the village of Ash, who inquired where he could secure a freight train to take him north. The direction was given, but a little while after the stranger asked for a lift from the driver of a buggy. He only rode a short distance ,however.

About eight o'clock the same man, dressed exactly as Garfield was, entered a store at Milton and purchased a green Fedora hat and two collars. He then quietly left the store and was seen heading for the village of Ash.

Inspector William Greer, of the Provincial Police Department, is investigating the circumstances surrounding the escape of Norman Garfield from the Woodstock jail on Wednesday, under the direction of General Elliott, Commissioner of Police. Garfield owes his freedom to Death Watch Robert Ball, who failed to comply with the strict regulations in the handling of murderers, and disobedience of the orders of Chief Turnkey Robley. Ball's father-in-law. Ball carried the key of the front iron gate, which Garfield opened, in his pocket, when it should have been lying in the desk in the jail office. The prisoner snatched this key from the guard when he overpowered him. The death watch also disobeyed Turnkey Robley's orders when he permitted Rev. Gaetz to enter the death cell with only one guard present, himself. The question the police are trying to solve is, who told Garfield that Ball had the key of the front gate in his pocket? Did he see the key in the pocket or was he tipped off?

In the lower corridor, near the door, Harry Cole, a one-armed Ingersoil man, and a brother-in-law of Ball's, was sitting in the jailer's office and was there when Garfield raced down. Why he was in the office the police have yet to learn. Ball told the police Cole came to see him, but thought he had gone before Mr. Gaetz came downstairs. While Mr. Gaetz was in Garfield's cell, the condemned man could hear voices in the jailer's office and asked Mr. Gaetz who it was. He was evidently figuring on his escape at that time. The police are also puzzled why Mr. Gaetz did not call on Cole for assistance when the prisonet came to the front door.

GARFIELD IN MILTON

(From a Special Correspondent)

MILTON, Ont., May 27.—Great excitement prevails here to-day over the fact that a stranger answering in every detail the description of Norman Garfield, the escaped murderer as given by the police, was here last night about 8 o'clock. He was a perfect stranger to everybody who saw him. All declared he was Garfield. He passed down Main Street walkin~ quite briskly. There is a sympathetic wave here in favor of the condemned man an account of his brother's evidence being the means of sending him to the gallows The stranger had a downcast look and appeared exactly like a man who was hunted. No trace of him can be found up till noon to-day. He may have been heading for Toronto.

THOUGHT HIM IN GUELPH

(From a Special Correspondent)

GUELPH, Ont., May 27.—A section of Guelph this morning was frightened into believing that Norman Garfield ,the escaped murdered from Woodstock Jail, had visited this city last night. A man answering the description of Garfield arrived at the G.T.R. station on the train that reaches here at 5.30 p.m. He was attired in blue suit and immediately on arrival entered the Station lavatory and commenced to undress. From a grip which he carried he took out a complete change of clothing including underwear and it was while he was in his underwear that he was seen by a station employee. A few minutes later the man left the station attired in a suit that was decidedly the worse of wear. The police were not notified of the incident until this morning and the man, who ever he was, is not to be found to-day.

ELLIS CONDEMNS METHODS

(From a Special Correspondent)

WOODSTOCK, Ont., May 27.— "All men under the sentence of death should be kept in Provincial Penitentiaries and not in County Jails". Arthur Ellis, official hangman told the Examiner here this afternoon in an interview. "Had Garfield been in Kingston, ' would never have escaped," stated Mr. Ellis.

"I have always contended that county jails are not built or adapted for keeping condemned men and Garfield's escape proves it. His escape was easy. If he had been in Kingston under proper guards no such thing would have happened."

"The transfer of condemned men to Federal prisons would eliminate the sentiment that is created for convicted men by local conditions and people. Garfield would have been removed from all this sentiment that has been shown here."

Ellis visited Sheriff McGhee this afternoon. "It is not June 2 yet," Ellis commented. "Garfield may be caught before that time."

Ellis came to Woodstock to supervise the erection of the scaffold. He came on Thursday, but Garfield walked out Wednesday.

Church Extension Movement.

The report of the committee on church extension movement which was appointed a year ago, the direct outcome of which was the organization of the Social Union of the Methodist hurch, which took place here on Wednesday evening last, was read by Rev. M. W. Leigh, of Fraserville. A social survey was taken in the south-western part of the city by ladies interested in the work, and, out of 50 homes visited, it was discovered that only 38 out of the 221 inmates therein attended Sunday school. It was recommended that consideration be given to the building of a church here as soon as possible, also to the construction of a larger and more suitable edifice on the site of the present Mark street church in East City. The new Social Union will have these matters under its jurisdiction.

The pastor at Apsley announced the holding of a bazaar in that district on July 1st, and Pontypool is having its annievrsary on the 5th of June, with a baseball game, banquet and concert on the following Monday, to which all interested Peterborough people are invited.

A hearty vote of sympathy was tendered by the meeting to Rev. S. F. Dixon of Lakefield, and Rev. Simon Cruikshanks, of Peterborough, on bereavements suffered by them during the past year.

CAN BE ABUSIVE OVER 'PHONE, BUT ONLY ONCE.

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo., May 27. — Telephone subscribers have a right to use abusive language at least once to telephone operators when connections are not satisfactory. The State Public Service Commission so ruled yesterday in ordering the Carlow Telephone Telephone Company to restore telephone service to George H. Oxford, Davies County farmer. Oxford's telephone had been removed, following an altercation with a young man in charge of the exchange at Carlow.

In making the ruling the Commission stated that a single instance of use of abusive language was not ground for discontinuance of service.

TWENTY-CENT EGGS AT CHICAGO NOW.

CHICAGO, May 27.—Fresh eggs quoted at 41 cents a dozen wholesale May 19, 1920, had dropped to 20 cents a dozen by May 19, this year, according to figures made public here by the Chicago Mercantile Exchange; butter and cheese, the figures show, have declined similarly.

EA-CHIEF ARRESTED.

Suspected of Robbery of Train Twelve Years Ago.

CARBONDALE, Pa., May 27. — Frank J. O'Boyle, former chief of police, was held in jail here pending an investigation to determine whether he is the man who held up a train near Omaha, Neb., twelve years ago and later escaped from Leavenworth penitentiary.

Fingerprints and measurements of the former chief were sent to Leavenworth officials.

O'Boyle was arrested by police and state troops here. He declared he can establish an alibi. He was said to have been under investigation four years ago, when police sent a description to Leavenworth. The fingerprints did not tally, and there were other discrepancies.

NORMAN GARFIELD IS STILL AT LIBERTY

CAR FOUND NEAR DUNDAS MAY BE THE ONE STOLEN BY GARFIELD WEDNESDAY

AUTO SEEN TO DASH ALONG ROAD AT TERRIFIC PACE, ABOUT 7:30 WEDNESDAY NIGHT, SWERVE, AND CRASH INTO SAND BANK, THE DRIVER JUMPING AND RUNNING TO NEAR-BY WOODS.

TOLD GAETZ ONCE HE MIGHT TRY ESCAPE

(Exclusive to the Examiner.))

WOODSTOCK, May 27. — Has Norman Garfield condemned murderer, who escaped from Woodstock jail, made a successful get-away across the border at some point on the Niagara River?

This is the question the police are asking.

Chief of Police Moore has received information that the automobile stolen here supposedly by Garfield, has been recovered five miles east of Dundas, and it is the recovery of the car in that locality that leads the police to believe that Garfield is making for some point to cross into the United States.

The information of the recovery of the car came from the Chief of Police at Dundas, who reported that it had been recovered yesterday afternoon at a lonely spot about five miles from Dundas.

A farmer residing in that locality reports that about 7:30 p.m., a car dashed by his home at a terrific rate of speed. His family rushed out on to the road and watched its progress for some time. At a point some hundreds of yards from the house the driver of the car suddenly turned the machine into a sand bank and dashed off at a brisk pace down the road ,and was soon lost in the sparsely settled country.

The car when found had a flat tire and the gas tank was empty. It also showed the drive it had been given.

There is no doubt but that this car is the one taken by Garfield; in fact it bore the number carried by the car stolen here. That Norman Garfield made a detour to reach the spot where the car was found is borne out by the fact that he left Woodstock travelling north and when last seen had passed through Hickson. Then it is thought that he took a detour, passed around Paris, Brantford and Dundas, and landed at the point where the car was found, out of gas, and compelled to abandon the car.

The police are of the opinion that he then made his escape to Welland and then on to the river, where possibly he escaped across the river in a rum runner's boat, and safely out of the country. Then again he may have caught a train and headed for Toronto.

WOODSTOCK, May 27.— (Canadian Press.) — Though Norman Garfield, the murderer who escaped from the Woodstock jail Wednesday, is still at large, at least one clue has been found which may be worth following up. One report of the murderer's escape was to the effect that he had stolen a Ford car near the jail. Last night the police received word that the same car had been found five miles east of Dundas. The car, a Ford, has been run into a sand bank, was short of gasoline and had a flat tire. People who gave information to the Dundas police said that about 7.30 Wednesday night a car dashed along the road by their house at a terrific speed. They followed its course for some distance when it was suddenly seen to swerve and land in a sand bank at the side of the road.

Following the ditching of the car, the driver jumped and raced down the road and was soon lost in the neighboring woods. The car had evidently been driven about seventy or eighty miles. If it was Garfield he had made a detour around Paris and Brantford, for when he left here he was said to be travelling in a northerly direction.

The car number is 98-171. The find was made in a sparsely settled part of the country. Fifty constables who were sworn in the course of the day are back in town. Although all roads are watched leading out of Woodstock and the cordon is as complete as can be expected, no trace of the murderer has been found. The Chief, who is assisted by Provincial constables, stated that he kept in constant touch with outside points and that the vigilance of the officers around Hamilton and London is of the sharpest.

Rev. Wilfrid Gaetz, who saw Garfield coming down the stairs after he had left him in his cell, was ill last night after the grilling questions with which Crown Attorney R. N. Ball and various newspapermen have bombarded him ever since the sensational escape. "Had Garfield ever spoken to you of his intended escape?" he was asked.

"Yes, several weeks ago," replied Mr. Gaetz. "He made the remark that if he had a little help he could walk out of the place. I told him immediately never to mention such a thing to me again," the minister said.

Ball told the police that he shouted for help after Garfield had downed him but he was helpless and was then locked in the cell. Ball states Garfield did not hurt him when he jabbed him in the ribs. Ball claims Garfield's attack came so suddenly he could do nothing.

Joseph Rae, the cook, a trusty, states that he was standing in the kitchen just off the corridor, when he heard Mr. Gaetz call Ball to come down stairs and let him out, but Garfield appeared and Mr. Gaetz did not try to prevent him going out. Rae states that Mr. Gaetz was not near the door and was at least twenty feet away.

Treated Like a King.

Garfield's sensational getaway has Woodstock talking day and night, and there is much criticism and joking going about the streets regarding the jail. Your representative yesterday afternoon had a chat with one prisoner who was outside the jail assisting in cleaning the County Buildings.

"Our star prisoner is gone," he said, "and we are not going to have a hanging. I guess I will not have to be a grave digger, although I would not mind the job."

The treatment showered on Garfield recalls the time Burchall was in jail. He was treated like a king. Burchall's cell was furnished like a the floor and cigars, and it is said the oor and cigars, and it is said when the day of his hanging came there was plenty of booze for everybody.

Free and Easy.

The free and easy atmosphere that your representative encountered among the prisoners who were working outside was striking and more startling. In fact, the back gate of the jail yard was wide open. It was open when your representative came to the jail shortly after six in the morning, and was open all day.

Garfield had two cells—one he slept in at night, and in the day time he was put in another one. The window of one cell looked out into the corner where the scaffold was to be erected, the spot where Burchall was hanged, and who was the only person ever executed in the jail. His bed is beneath the window.

Preparations had been completed for Garfield's execution. The lumber for the scaffold had been received, and carpenters were hired to erect the scaffold on Monday.

It was reported Hangman Ellis was here to-day conferring with the authorities.

The finding of Elmer Hosack's car near Dundas shows that Garfield did some fast driving, and knew the country roads well. He has the reputation of being an expert automobile driver, and can drive any make of machine. The car was found at 7.30 on Wednesday evening, two hours after he left the jail. Garfield had travelled at least sixty miles.

CELL GUARD DISOBEYED

HOW DID GARFIELD KNOW THAT BALL HAD KEY TO OUTSIDE DOOR?

WOODSTOCK, Ont., May 27.— Norman Garfield, stage coach bandit, train robber, jail breaker, convicted murdered and gunman, who dashed out of the County jail here Wednesday afternoon to freedom, owes his much sought presence to his death watch, Bob Ball. It was Ball's failure to comply with the strict prison regulations in the handling of murderers and disobedience or orders of Chief Turkey Robley, Ball's father-in-law, which gave Garfield his chance for life and freedom.

Ball carried the key of the front iron gate, which Garfield opened, in his pocket. This was one regulation Ball shattered. The key should have been left in the office and not carried about. Ball had the key in his pocket—and it is this key that Garfield snatched out of Ball's pocket after he knocked him over. Had Ball left the key in the office after letting Rev. Mr. Gaetz into the jail Garfield could never have escaped.

Ball also disobeyed Turnkey Robley's orders when he permitted Rev. Mr. Gaetz to enter the death cell with only one guard present, himself. Turnkey Robley had given strict instructions that no person was to go into the death cell with Garfield unless two guards were present, one inside the cell, but Ball was all alone. There were no other guards on duty in the jail and, besides Garfield, there were eight other prisoners. Turnkey Robley was at his tea and Jailer Clarke was also out of the jail.

Who told Garfield that Ball had the key of the front door in his pocket? This is the question that the police are trying to solve. No person could have given that information to Garfield as no one was near him except Ball and Mr. Gaetz.

Did he see the key in Ball's back pocket, or was Garfield tipped off? There are some questions that the police are seeking to have answered.

Ball may have forgotten to leave the key in the office after Mr. Gaetz sent him back to Garfield's cell to get his hat in the cell—the first time he ever left it behind him. He discovered that he had not his hat when he came down stairs. He then asked Ball to go back and get it. Ball went into Garfield's cell, and then Garfield attacked him, throwing him down, taking the key out of his pocket, and slamming the cell door which locked automatically, leaving the cell key in the lock outside, and ran downstairs.

Here Mr. Gaetz was waiting for Ball to come with his hat but Garfield came instead. It is significant that with Mr. Gaetz in the lower corridor near the door was Harry Cole a one armed man of Ingersoll, Ont. a brother in law of Ball's, who was sitting in the jailer's office Cole was in the office when Garfield raced down the stairs. Why he was in the office the police have yet to learn. Ball told the police that Cole came to see him but thought he had gone before Mr. Gaetz came downstairs

Why did not Gaetz Call Cole?

While Mr. Gaetz was in Garfield's cell the condemned man could hear voices in the jailer's office. He asked Mr. Gaetz who it was, so it was evident he was figuring on his escape at the time. Garfield may have planned to enter the jailer's office on the way out and seize a revolver, as revolvers are kept there, and when he heard a voice he gave up the idea.

The police are puzzled why Mr. Gaetz did not call on Cole for assistance, when Garfield came to the door. If Mr. Gaetz had shouted for help, the police state that Garfield's chances for getting away would have been slim, but Mr. Gaetz said it all happened in less than a minute, and he was dazed at the sight of Garfield beside him.

LAKEFIELD WANTS A WAR MEMORIAL

LAKEFIELD NEWS OF INTEREST—PERSONAL MENTION.

LAKEFIELD, May 27.—Some of the citizens of this village and vicinity went to Keene on Tuesday, and witnessed the beautiful, impressive ceremony which accompanied the unveiling of the splendid monument to Otonabee's soldiers who stayed "over there" in "Canada in Flanders."

It is hoped that before many more national holidays have passed Lakefield, too, will have a suitable memorial standing, where all who pass can read that our brave boys have not been forgotten. The list is not very large, as Lakefield lost a comparatively small proportion of her boys, but, none the less, every name is entitled to all honour.

As a community Lakefield is ready and willing, as our rural districts are, to erect a monument which shall stand for ever as a sign to those who come after that "their names live for ever and their sacrifice was not in vain."

DROWNING ACCIDENT ON OTONABEE RIVER

Young Man Lost His Life at Foot of Dublin Street.

The Otonabee river claimed its second victim this year at 7.45 p.m. yesterday, when Joseph Fallon, 26 years old, an employee of the Lock factory, was drowned at "the Jacks," the common name for the swimming hole on the river at the foot of Dublin street, while in swimming. It is believed his heart, said to be weak, was affected by the cold water, or he was seized with a cramp.

FRIDAY, MAY 27TH, 1921.

A JUST VERDICT.

The manager of a Detroit manufacturing company has been sentenced to prison for a term not less than five and not more than fifteen years, after being convicted of manslaughter as the result of an automobile accident. The evidence showed that he was intoxicated, and while driving his car at the rate of thirty-five miles an hour he smashed into three workmen, killing one of them. The sentence may seem drastic to some people, but the majority will applaud the Judge who imposed it. They realize that this prisoner was not any more guilty than hundreds of other motorists who take similiar risks with their own lives and the lives of others, and they are hopeful that the prison sentence inflicted upon this offender may serve as a sharp warning to other reckless drivers. A drunken man at the wheel of a powerful car is as grave a menace to the public safety as a maniac armed with a revolver. If prison sentence is the only way that they can be brought to their senses then the action of the Detroit Judge should be copied by others.

OLEOMARGARINE.

Why the dairy interests should worry about the admission of oleomargarine into Canada is something that the average man has difficulty in understanding. No other country in the world attempts to bar this substitute for butter from coming in, and the dairying industry has nowhere been injured. Its entrance into a country does not lessen the demand for butter, for it has been proven that it is largely used by people who cannot afford to buy butter when the latter is up in price. On the other hand, when butter is cheap there is comparatively no sale of oleomargarine, so that in either case trading in butter is no way interfered with. It is in the interests of a large section of the people that the butter substitute should be available in order that when the dairy product advances in price beyond the purchasing power of the poor man's purse there may be something to take the place of butter. To oppose the importation of oleo is a selfish and almost senseless policy that reflects little credit upon those who object.

A SEASONABLE WARNING.

With the opening of the boating season, it is well to remind some of our new citizens, especially those who come from overseas, that the Peterborough canoe, while comparatively harmless in the hands of an expert paddler, is an extremely tricky and unstaple craft for those who do not understand its pranks. People who have not learned to swim are making a risky experiment when they climb into a canoe, and with no knowledge of the art of paddling set out upon a voyage on the Otonabee. The man who "rocks the boat," or who wants to change places with somebody else in the canoe, or who riding alone in the frail craft sits in the stern with the bow of his canoe swinging clear of the water and invites an upset from the swell of a passing launch or steamer, is taking more chances than he perhaps imagines. Novices in paddling do all these things down the Otonabee, many of them in ignorance of the risk they are running. In expert hands the canoe is a graceful and comfortable craft, but it offers dangers to the beginner that should not be overlooked. "Safety first" is as good a motto on the river as it is anywhere else, and adherence to it may avert a fatality.

THE IMMIGRATION QUESTION.

The Dominion and Provincial authorities continue to "pass the buck" to each other in regard to the immigration question. The case of the Ontario Government was presented in The Examiner yesterday in the form of a statement to Mr. Tooms, M.P.P., from Hon. Manning Doherty, who declares that so far as the Provincial Department of Agriculture is concerned only genuine farm labourers have been sought, and that although the Province advertised in several English publications last year the advertising campaign complained of was discontinued months ago. He points out that the regulations in regard to the admission of immigrants into Canada are administered by the Federal authorities, the inference being that if men who have no intention of adopting farming as a profession are being admitted only to add to the unemployment in the cities the fault lies with the Dominion Government. Canadians are not so much concerned with locating the responsibility for the existing conditions as they are with seeing that the evil is remedied before it is too late. The situation is serious enough to warrant a conference among the various Provincial Governments and the Federal Government in order that the best possible policy may be adopted. Mr. Tooms deserves credit for calling the attention of the Ontario Minister to the need for ex-

DR. SYMONDS.

The many friends in Peterborough of the late Dr. Symonds, formerly pastor of St. Luke's Church in this city, whose death in Montreal caused grief among all who knew him, will echo the tribute paid to him by The Montreal Star, which in an editorial refers to Dr. Symonds as follows:

"The Christianity for which Dr. Symonds stood was broad enough to include all true believers no matter what their denominational affiliations. He was not of those who claimed that salvation was denied those who did not worship in a stereotyped form. He longed for the time 'that they all might be one,' and his ministry was devoted to breaking down the barriers that separate the various official bodies of Christians. Setting aside all precedent a few years ago, the Vicar of Christ Church Cathedral, accepted the invitation of Dr. Barclay to deliver a Sabbath morning message from the pulpit of St. Paul's Presbyterian Church, and it was a great grief to him that he could not obtain the consent of his Bishop to invite Dr. Barclay in return to occupy the Cathedral pulpit. But since then Dr. Symonds has preached from several Presbyterian pulpits, notably St. Paul's, and St. Andrew's, Westmount, the the minister of which, Dr. Clark, is the acknowledged leader of the Union movement among the Presbyterians.

"As a citizen as well as a clergyman, Dr. Symonds has left a splendid record. He served devotedly for several years as Chairman of the Protestant Board of School Commissioners, and the sacred cause of education always found in him a fervent advocate. In national and civic questions he took the warmest interest and his eloquent tongue condemned hypocrisy and cant in any form. He embodied as few men do the qualities that are best in the cleric and in the citizen. Montreal is richer for the fact that Herbert Symonds was for years one of her well-beloved citizens."

THE FARMERS' VIEW.

It is at such a time as the present that the agricultural industry reveals one of its greatest advantages. There is bread enough and to spare on the farms.

The three essential elements in income are amount, security and the prize opportunity. In times of business expansion, when profits on trading are large, prices are rising, and speculation is rife, life on the farm looks tedious and dull. Then human nature longs and pants for the jostling city, where money is made without efforts and spent with reckless generosity. It is the period when men dream of making fortunes and of moving onto easy street to-morrow. Such chances are concentrated in the cities.

It is undeniable that farming profits were larger several years ago than they are to-day. The city critic, agape at the sums deposited in the country banks, which thus became the financial basis of city expansion and speculation, blamed the farmer for lack of exultation in his prosperity. He forgot, of course, that the farmer's ambitions were thwarted for lack of supply of labor. And he forgot, as well, that the farmer's gains were trifling beside those of the merchant and manufacturer. They were but the scraps which fell from the rich man's table. In the economic comparison between city and country, two years ago, the superiority was all with the city, as was attested by the steady stream of population flowing city-wards.

But nowadays a blight has fallen upon the harvest of 'plums." The prevailing ambition of men in business is not to make a fortune but to make a living. Factories are idle, retail stocks are unsold, the demand for luxuries has abated, and knots of idle and suffering men gather on the corners of the streets. The joy has fled from life in the cities. Every citizen is conscious that the great mass of the people are hard hit. The small home and the boarding-house are staggering under the blows of financial reaction. Thousands must beg or starve.

There is no such misery on the farms. Prices of farm products have been the first to fall and have fallen farthest. Yet the grim spectre of penury and starvation is kept at bay. It takes the hides of six steers to buy a pair of shoes, yet the farmer's family are shod. Not in daintiness and splendor, but in comfort and strength—and it is beginning to dawn upon all our minds that comfort is better than splendor, and that security is better than "plums."

The house which is built upon the rock endures the storm. Plain living, self-control, steady industry, the saving habit—these are the basic things. If these days of hardship and distress serve to recall the people of Canada from their love of idleness, extravagance and self-indulgence to a rational acceptance of the facts of life, they will not have been altogether valueless.—The Farmers' Sun.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

There was criminal laxity on somebody's part in the escape of Norman Garfield from the Woodstock jail. And those responsible should be made to recognize the serious nature of their offence.

The former Kaiser is said to be going into the real estate business. His early training should not be a detainment to him in his business operations.

Ottawa members who talk one way and vote another may be a source of strength to their party, but they are a little value to the country.

The Oleomargarine Bill should have been greasy enough to slip through easily.

A two-year sentence is proposed for a German Corporal who ill-treated British prisoners-of-war. You can get that here for violating the Ontario Temperance Act.

Women in business is not entirely new. Wasn't Cleopatra the head of the Egyptian Home Wrecking Corporation?

"How many languages does your wife speak?"

"Three. English, French, and the one she speaks to the baby."

Vacuum bottle salesmen now study a prospective customer carefully before advancing the old argument that the bottle will keep liquid hot or cold for 72 hours, since they have been told so frequently that anyone who had anything worth drinking wouldn't want to keep it for 72 hours.

The young man who had been calling so frequently on Marjory went at last to see Marjory's father. Finally the suitor made this announcement:

"I know it's a mere formality, sir, this asking for your daughter's hand, but we thought that it would be pleasing to you if it were observed."

The father stiffened.

"And may I inquire," he asked, "who suggested that asking my consent would be a mere formality?"

"Yes, sir," replied the young man, "it was Marjory's mother."

INSTINCT—MY GUIDE.

Chapter 59.

So Darwood's death would only mean added difficulties and a lengthening of legal procedures. My mind grasped quickly at the facts as they now stood. Mrs. Darwood had been suddenly blocked in her claims for her husband's fortune. The law believes that a wife who is suing her husband for separation, is not entitled after his death to a full inheritance.

And Mrs. Darwood was wild. She had been frustrated in her plans. I could make a mental picture of her, angry, petulant, and irritated. She would pout and use every suberfuge to wheedle sympathy and assistance out of Leonard.

As her lawyer, he would have to continue to take charge of things even with this sudden turn of affairs. Would he begin to see a little bit into the real depths of her character and motives? I could not be sure. When one is foiled in money matters, one is apt to reveal one's true character. At least, there was no immediate danger of her leaving the country and taking Leonard with her. If she intended making claim to her dead husband's fortune, she would be obliged to remain on the field of action. If I found any relief, it was in this fact.

No, I could not be sure of anything. Yet there is such a tenacity about life.

I did not intend to give up. Not until I was a lot nearer to being beaten. I was going to play hard, and I was going to be game.

"I should think Mrs. Darwood would only be too glad to have all her troubles with her husband so thoroughly ended," I ventured to remark to Leonard at breakfast. He appeared to be very busy with the cantaloupe which he was eating. I could not resist. I plunged in a little further. "The estate gives her something—doesn't it? I asked.

Leonard glanced up at me from under lowering brows. I dodged his gaze and in turn applied a spoon vigorously to my melon. I could not stand the pressure of his eyes—they were too keen and would surely see through my motives.

"Yes. She's get something," he said in a tone that implied he was not anxious to continue the subject. Also his tone implied that that "something" was not at all satisfactory to Mrs. Darwood.

I had not been able to resist the chance of a gentle thrust. Sometimes a hint has great power. I had long since recognized the folly of voicing any doubts against Mrs. Darwood. I might feel them, but it would only do harm to force them upon Leonard.

I felt that I was not unjust in branding Mrs. Darwood as a blackmailer and an adventuress. She was a Vampire. If Leonard could discover this himself, he would be saved—but to try to make him see it, would only plunge him headlong into her defense.

I could not believe that Leonard really loved Mrs. Darwood—loved her with the best that was in his soul. If I thought that I would try to give him up. If it was for his happiness, I would set him free.

If it was a question of his loving her more than anyone else, then I wouldn't feel I had any claim to him—no right to keep him. Even that solution would hold a little happiness for me. I loved my husband with an unselfish devotion and I could find comfort in the knowledge that he was apparently happy. I placed his happiness higher than anything else in the world. I would try to leave myself out of it.

But instinct told me that the best in Leonard did not love Mrs. Darwood. It is just the grossness that is mixed up a little in all of us — the dregs that sometimes rise to the surface in a man. I would hang on to the best that was in his soul, and we would see who wond win.

To-morrow—Leonard Compliments Me.

The Safety of Mutual Insurance

THERE is no safer investment than life insurance.

If the Mutual Life of Canada were to stop selling life insurance and just continued in force the policies now on the books, the resources of the Company would not only pay all claims as they occurred, but there would remain a splendid surplus to be distributed in the form of dividends.

As a proof of the safety of Mutual Life Insurance, let us see how the immense assets of the Company are invested.

Government Bonds	$7,721,631.55
City Debentures	3,504,151.94
Town Debentures	1,293,465.72
Village Debentures	154,631.35
Township and Rural Municipalities	649,283.58
County Debentures	151,783.61
School	1,676,248.68
Rural Telephone	1,422,201.80
Railway Bonds	1,617,713.68
Miscellaneous Bonds & Debentures	1,203,459.12
Mortgages	14,934,368.52
Policy Loans	5,335,268.01
Real Estate	1,059,987.73
Sundries	2,123,081.96
	$42,847,277.25

Among all these millions, there are no speculative securities. Safety First, Last and All The Time is the motto of the Mutual Life of Canada.

As an additional precaution, the investments are widely distributed in every province in Canada and in a variety of sound, safe securities.

Working on this careful system has resulted in the unusual and highly desirable combination of well-secured principal with a high interest-earning rate.

The prudent, conservative business man will find in the Mutual's system of investing its funds a very strong reason for the purchase of Mutual Life Insurance.

Have you a Mutual Life Policy among your assets?

HOLIDAY SPORTS SCOTT'S CORNERS

CAVAN AND NORTH MONAGHAN TOWNSHIPS CLASH IN TUG-OF-WAR.

Victoria Day was celebrated in royal fashion by the Scotts' Corners' Athletic Club, a recently organized but live athletic association formed in Cavan and North Monaghan townships to promote sports, in the grounds of Walter Bowles, one-quarter mile west of Scotts Corners and about six and one-half miles from the city. The celebration took the form of a picnic, and in every way it was a huge success, over 200 people attending the picnic. A baseball match was held between two chosen teams, Courtland Miller of Peterborough, refereeing, and a girls' basketball game was a feature of the sports. Miss Pasman, of Peterborough, was arbiter.

In a strenuous tug-of-war, Cavan defeated North Monaghan two out of three. Relay races and other sporting events were run off. Prizes were awarded to the successful contestants and in closing the afternoon's programme before the well-filled hampers were opened, Rev. G. L. Craw, of Springville, addressed the gathering on the significance of Victoria Day.

It is probable that Victoria Day will annually be celebrated in some such way at Scotts' Corners each year. The Athletic Club has made good progress as it well deserved, and has met with splendid support in the country. It was organized to support athletics for both boys and girls and succeeded admirably well in dividing the programme on Tuesday between both sexes. Percy Seymour is president and Donald Sanderson secretary.

J. R. McGee Made Sales Manager

W. G. Bell has resigned as President of the Cleveland Tractor Co. of Canada to become Director of Sales of Gray-Dort Motors, Limited, of Chatham. Mr. Bell brings to his new duties a particularly extensive automotive experience.

He is a Canadian, born in London, Ontario. Eighteen years ago he entered the motor car business with Woods Motor Vehicle Co. of Chicago. In 1906 the Reo Motor Car Co. secured Bell for their United States Sales Department, five years later sending him to Canada as Sales Manager. In 1913 he joined the Studebaker Corporation, Walkerville. After filling the position of Assistant Sales Manager, he had been appointed Sales Manager when, in 1918, he became President and Managing Director of the Cleveland Tractor Co. of Canada.

Gray-Dort Motors also announce the appointment of Johnson R. McGee as Sales Manager. Mr. McGee has been with the Gray organization for thirty years and has earned this promotion by his unfailing loyalty and energy. His work in the Sales Department has made him well known in the motor car business throughout Canada.

THE VICAR'S BODY WILL LIE IN STATE

FUNERAL SERVICE WILL BE SIMPLE ACCORDING TO REQUEST.

MONTREAL, May 26. — The body of the late Rev. Dr. Herbert Symonds will lie in state at the Cathedral to-day from 4 p.m. till 9 p.m. and on Friday from 9 a.m. till 12 noon. Admission will be by the main entrance

The burial service will begin at 2.30 on Friday afternoon. The general public will be admitted at 2 p.m. by the main entrance. Members of the cathedral congregation may enter at 1.30 p.m. by the University street entrance.

Following Dr. Symond's own request, the funeral ceremony will be conducted in the simplest possible way.

The funeral will take from Christ Church Cathedral on Friday afternoon at 2.30. The officiating clergy will be the Bishop of Montreal Rev. Canon Shatford, Rev. Canon Plumptre and Rev. R. J. Moore of Toronto.

Vicar of Cathedral

The Rev. Hebert Symonds, D.D., L.L.D., had been Vicar of Christ Church Cathedral since 1903, and was held in high esteem by all classes and creeds on the ground of his extensive ministerial usefulness, his services to education, and his valued connection with the public life of Montreal. He was born in the parish of Rickinghall Inferior, Suffolk, England, December 28, 1860, the son of George Symonds and his wife Hannah Wright. He received his education at Albert Memorial College, Framingham, England, and coming to Canada in 1881, at Trinity College University, Toronto, where he took the degrees of Bachelor of Arts in 1886 and Master of Arts in 1887, graduating as prizeman for English essay and prizeman for sermon.

Took Orders in 1885

He was ordained deacon in Toronto in 1885 and priest in 1887. From 1887 to 1899 he was a Fellow and Lecturer at Trinity College University, and from 1890 to 1892 Professor of Divinity in the same institution.

In 1892 he became rector of St. Luke's Church, Peterborough, Ont., and served in that capacity until 1901. Upon his leaving Peterborough the citizens made a public presentation to him of a silver candleabrum, in recognition of his interest in the general welfare of the town. In 1901 he became head master of Trinity College Schoo, Port Hope, Ont., an appointment which he held with great advantage to that institution until 1903.

Labors at Cathedral

It was in 1903 that Dr. Symonds was appointed Vicar of Christ Church Cathedral in succession to the late Rev. F. J. Steen. He entered upon his duties in the month of July of that year; and eighteen years of fruitful activity followed in that important charge.

Dr. Symonds was a pulpit orator of much ability, markedly broad and independent in his views, with a disinclination to be bound down by ecclesiastical customs, routine or convention. He was a strong believer in, and an ardent advocate of all movements looking towards Christian unity. His earnest and cultured style of preaching drew many outside of his own communion to the services of the Cathedral.

The improvement of the Cathedral building itself always interested him, and the recent restoration work in Caen stone was largely the result of his appeals.

Social Work.

Dr. Symonds was intensely interested in the cause of social and moral reform and held office as president of the Committee of Sixteen organized to work in the "red light" district. He participated in many interdenominational activities, and was a past president of the Protestant Ministerial Association of Montreal, having held office in 1905. He worked for the union of the theological college, carried out on broad line, a few years ago as regards a lrge part of their curriculum, and was always ready to appear on the platform of denominations other than his own.

Work on School Board

Dr. Symonds served for ten years as a member of the Protestant Board of School Commissioners, from 1907 to 1917, the last few years of that term as its chairman. He believed that every child had a right to a sound education, and always advocated the introduction of a compulsory system.

He wielded ready pen and was a frequent contributor to the University Magazine, the Modern Churchman, the Constructive Quarterly and other publications.

From 1866 to 1907, he was Chaplain of the 3rd Prince of Wales Canadian Dragoons.

He was vice-president of the Churchmen's Union an English society devoted to the propagation of broad views of Christianity and of the unity of the Church. He took an active part in the work of the Province of Quebec Sunday School Union; the Prisoners' Aid Association, the Children's Aid Society, the Canadian Society of Christian Unity; and was a delegate to the World's Missionary Congress in Edinburgh, Scotland, in 1910, and the Anglican Church Congress at Halifax, N.S., in the same year. He had also held office in the Montreal Auxiliary Bible Society.

Academic Honors.

He received the honorary degree of Doctor of Divinity from Queen's University, Kingston, Ont., in 1901 and that of Doctor of Laws from McGill University in 1910.

Dr. Symonds was a member of the Masonic Order and a Past Grand Chaplain of the Grand Lodge of Quebec. He took a great interest in the affairs of St. James Literary Society and served as its president for 1906-1907. He was a past president of the Westmount branch of the Dicken's Fellowship and a great authority on all Dickens' works. He was aso a member of the Sons of England; the Rotary Club; the Montreal Amateur Athletic Association; the University Club; the Navy League; and other important organizations.

His Private Life.

Dr. Symonds in 1884 married Emma Blackhall, fourth daughter of the late Mossom Boyd, of Bobcaygeon, Ont.; Mrs. Symonds survives. Of this union three sons and four daughters were born. H. Boyd Symonds, who enlisted as a private in 14th Battalion at the opening of the European war, rose to the rank of lieutenant, and was mentioned in official despatches from the front for his bravery and devotion to duty. He was killed at Vimy Ridge, April 9, 1917. Spencer R. Symonds enlisted as a private in the first University Company of McGill, in 1915. Later he was transferred to the Princess Patricia's Canadian Light Infantry. On June 2, 1916, he was captured at Sanctuary Wood and sent to a prison camp in Germany. V. Kingsley Symonds enlisted as a gunner in No. 6 (later No. 7) Siege Battery of McGill University, and served overseas. There are three married daughters, Mrs. H. P. Thornhill, Westmount; Mrs. C. P. Whitton, of Hamilton, Ont.; Mrs. F. R. Adelhelm, of Philadelphia, Pa.; and one unmarried daughter, Miss Isabel Symonds.

Tramways derive their name from Mr. Tram, an American, who, in 1860, introduced street cars drawn by horses in England.

THE OMEMEE CELEBRATION

A BIG LIST OF SPORTS—THE PRIZEWINNERS.

OMEMEE, May 26.—The 2nd annual event of the Omemee Athletic Association held on Victoria Day, was all that could be desired. The weather man was in a happy frame of mind; the rain of Sunday having banished the dust and heat, to be followed by a beautiful, balmy day, acceptable to a holiday crowd of over 1500.

The procession of decorated cars fancy driving horses and Calathumpian units, headed by the Great War Veterans' Band of Peterborough, reached the grounds at 1.30, and shortly after, the sports of the day were in full swing.

The mammoth booth (50 x 20), stocked to full capacity, was at once a hive of history, and remained — until the last event on the list of sports had been completed. The success of this branch of the programme is due in no small measure to the united, unstinted and indispensable help of the ladies, who, one and all, joined in with the members to make the day a bumper one for the Association. Thus homemade cooking loaded the counters and they were all present to give a hand in the work of disposing of the same.

The Association takes this opportunity to extend hearty thanks and appreciation to them, being fully assured that the only way to success is in an "all together" pull, and when the flag flies over a free athletic field in Omemee, we will all know it's because the ladies were back of the movement.

Basball Games.

There was something doing all the time. Three baseball games were played, Mount Pleasant vs. Reaboro, the score being 11-8 in favor of Reaboro; Downeyville v. Omemee, 19-9 in favor of Downeyville. Then Downeyville and Reaboro played off, the latter winning by about 3 runs.

There was a dancing platform under the shade of a large elm tree, but it did not cause much attraction until early evening, when the lads and lassies thronged on it to trip the light fantastic, until the concert commenced in Coronation Hall. The list of sporting events, etc., follows:

The Young Mother

Youth, with its vitality, makes for the young mother's health and happiness. But later, maternal experiences bring a different result. The care of a family, multiplied household duties, and very often the weakness caused by womanly disease, tend to prolong the suffering and to make convalescence a slow and weary process. Many women—perhaps your own neighbors—have had beneficial experience with Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription, which prepares the prospective mother. Send 10 cents to Doctor Pierce's Invalids' Hotel in Buffalo, N. Y., for a trial package of tablets.

HE COULDN'T WAIT FOREVER

A young fellow who was the crack runner of his town—somewhere in the south—was unfortunate enough to have a very dilatory laundress. One evening when out for a practice run in his rather airy and abreviated track costume, he chanced to dash past the dusky lady, who at the time was a couple of weeks in arrears with his washing. He had scarcely reached home again when the bell rang furiously and an excited voice was wafted in from the porch:

"Foh de Lawd's sake, won't you all tell Marse Bob please not to go out no moh till I kin git his cloes round to him?"

The Home Circle Column

THE CHILD ETERNAL.

"I heard their prayers and kissed their sleepy eyes,
And tucked them all warm from foot to head,
To wake again with morning's glad sunrise—
Then came where he lay dead.

On cold still mouth I laid my lips. Asleep
He lay to wake the other side God's door.
But this one mine no more.

Those other children long to men have grown—
Strange, hurried men who give me passing thought,
Then go their ways. No longer now my own,
Without me they have wrought.

So when night comes, and seeking mother's knee,
Tired childish feet turn home at eventide,
I fold him close—the child that's left to me,
My little lad who died."

Don't look on the bright side of anything. Don't permit yourself to see good in anyone. Don't have any charity for your erring brother or sister. If you have any of the milk of human kindness in your heart curdle it in some way. Believe that all men and women, too, are liars and the truth is not in them. Find fault with your fellow man. Say mean things about your neighbor; envy her; hate her; seek your own; scrap if you don't get it; think evil; rejoice in iniquity; endure nothing; believe nothing, and if you are not completely miserable and unhappy it is because you have not yet quenched the last vital spark of love in your being.

So much is said about the duties of children that their rights are overlooked. Their duties are often strictly enforced upon them, but their rights frequently ignored. This is partly on account of ignorance, but chiefly because of a lack of thought. Most parents desire the highest good of their children, and are willing to make any reasonable sacrifice for them, but pay little attention to their rights, if they recognize them as their rights at all. No one would deny to children their right to such support and education as their parents are able to give them. But beyond this very general admission not many recognize any definite obligation.

God, who can make no mistake, made man and woman for a specific work and to move in particular spheres—man to be regnant in his realm; woman to be dominated in hers. The boundary line between Italy and Switzerland, between England and Scotland, is not marked more thoroughly than this distinction between the empire masculine and the empire feminine. So entirely dissimilar are the fields to which God called them, that you can no more compare them, than you can oxygen and hydrogen, water and grass, trees and stars. All this talk about the superiority of one sex to the other is an everlasting waste of ink and speech.

It is well to be charitable in all our conclusions, mindful that we often need the cloak of charity ourselves. Fill life with sunshine and strew flowers where others throw stones. Make life a bright spot in this world and where you see flowers cast smiles, and whether it be morn, dusk or night, let the sunny side of nature always be at full meridian.

Advertising our afflictions only increases their circulation.

One of our popular young ladies who is contemplating matrimony, with the advantages which Leap Year gives her, was handed a testament by her father, with the leaf turned down at the following passage: "He who giveth in marriage doeth well; but he who giveth not in marriage doeth better." She immediately returned it with the following reply written underneath: "Dear father, I am content to do well; let those do better who can."

Professor Budlong Puts Tanlac To Test

PROF. C. J. BUDLON G, Manchester, N. H.

"It's an actual fact, I'm in good health for the first time in thirty years and I owe my present splendid condition to Tanlac and nothing else," was the emphatic statement of Prof. C. J. Budlong, well-known and highly respected citizen of Manchester, N.H., residing at 42 School street.

"Practically all my life I had had rheumatism, and when I say rheumatism I mean every word of it. It was all over my body and especially bad in my feet and legs and there were times when I couldn't get from my bed to my chair without help. And from the time I was a boy I couldn't sit down and eat a good meal without being in misery afterwards and I would have terrible pains around my heart and frequent attacks of palpitation and dizziness.

"I had a stubborn case of constipation, was troubled awfully with blinding headaches and hardly knew what sleep was. My suffering had almost made a complete nervous wreck of me and I was so weak I wasn't worth a nickel as far as work was concerned. I thought my troubles had a life-long grip on me and was about as discouraged as a man ever gets.

"Well, before I had finished my first bottle of Tanlac I realized it was different from anything I ever tried. It suited my case exactly. And now for almost the first time since I can remember I can eat anything I want and digest it. I haven't an ache or pain and have gained fifteen pounds in weight. I just feel good all over and am full of life and energy these days. Everywhere I go I talk Tanlac. It hasn't an equal."

School Lunches For The Children

By Dorothy Blake.

Don't you ever get simply sick and tired of the same things to eat packed in your lunch box? I know I would, and there really isn't any need of it either. There are dozens of different things that you can learn to make that will give you all the change you want. Some of these good foods are so simple to fix that even the second and third graders could make them and some of them are just about difficult enough for the big sister of the family. So if there is a little girl and a big girl in your family you could manage together and pack your own school lunches without bothering any of the grown people. If there is only one of you and you are little, why you can learn to get part of your lunch ready anyway and that will help you to learn to make the more difficult things as you get older.

Now let's see what kinds of food you will need in that lunch box. In cold weather, you need foods that will help you to keep warm, and, in the summer, foods that will help you keep cool.

Winter Lunches and Summer Lunches.

Sandwiches with ground meat, peanut butter, figs, dates, raisins mixed with chopped nuts, or cream cheese with nuts are fillings better for cold weather than for warm. If you use them in warm weather, spread them thinner. In cold weather, spread a good thick layer.

Warm weather sandwiches are better filled with lettuce, chopped celery, sliced radishes, vegetable mixtures, jelly, jam, cream cheese without nuts, baked beans mashed.

Cakes and cookies can have plenty of frosting on them in cold weather, for the sugar in the frosting helps to keep your body warm. Add chopped nuts or raisins or dates to the plain cup cake recipe (which I will give you) when you are making them for a school lunch in the winter. Chopped shredded cocoanut makes them good, too, and more satsisfying. Store crackers and plain cookies can be put together in pairs with the frosting between.

Juicy fruit of some kind should always be a part of your lunch in both cold and warm weather. Bananas are too rich and dry to take except once in a very long while. If you can't get fresh fruit, fill a half pint fruit jar—this holds one cup—with some stewed fruit, like prunes or baked apple pulp or apple sauce. Be sure to put a rubber ring on the jar and fasten the top tight.

Dessert for most days can be supplied with fruit and cookies or little cakes. When you want a special treat, you can bake little Brown Bettys or cup custards, which I will tell you how to make. Pie isn't a good dessert for the younger children, and even for the older ones it is best not to have it often.

Pickles and green olives make pale cheeks instead of rosy ones. Crisp celery or radishes taste just as good and help you to grow strong and healthy.

Sandwiches.

Chop or mash all sandwich fillings until smooth and fine. Make them moist enough to spread easily but not so moist that they will run or soak into the bread. Soften butter by letting it stand in a warm room, or mashing it. Use brown bread, rye, or whole wheat bread or graham or white crackers, for a change from white bread sandwiches. Cut bread one-fourth inch thick. Spread all your sandwiches with butter, then, with the filling before you close any of them; then you can get the filling and butter more evenly divided. Wrap sandwiches in wax paper or a clean napkin.

Fillings (For Six Slices of Bread).

One and one-half tablespoons of peanut butter, mixed with the same amount of fresh butter.

One egg boiled fifteen minutes, shelled, chopped fine and mixed with an equal amount of chopped nuts, or celery, or boiled ham, and moistened with salad dressing.

One-half cake cream cheese, or one-half cup of grated or finely chopped American cheese. Moisten with salad dressing or cream. Mix one tablespoon of chopped nuts with either of these for a change.

One-half cup chopped cold meat, ham or several kinds of meat together. Add salad dressing to moisten. Chopped celery is good mixed with the meat. Three figs, six dates, a tablespoon of nut meats ground together, then mixed with cream or honey or syrup. You can use all dates, or all figs, or all raisins if you wish.

Cooked peas, or baked beans, one-half cup of either, mashed and added to a tablespoon of chopped nuts, and enough salad dressing to moisten.

Cup Cakes. (Six-mumn size).

Mix together, until smooth, one-half cup of sugar and one-fourth cup of butter or butterine. Beat one egg, add to sugar and butter. Then add one-half cup of milk, one cup of flour, one teaspoon of baking powder, one-half teaspoon flavoring. Beat hard until smooth. Fill greased muffin pans half full. Bake fifteen minutes in an oven that is hot enough to turn a piece of white paper to a light brown in five minutes.

For variety, add any of these things—one-half cup chopped nuts, one teaspoon ground mixed spices, a tablespoon of dry cocoa, one-half cup chopped raisins or dates.

For frosting these cakes, or store cookies, or crackers—mix one-half cup of pulverized (finer than powdered) sugar until smooth, with two teaspoons of water, milk, cream, or fruit juice. Chopped nuts make a good change. Spread on cup cakes after they have cooled. Spread between two cookies or crackers.

Desserts.

Cup custard (four cups or six ramekins). Heat two cups of milk until it bubbles around the edges. Pour slowly onto two eggs, beaten a very little with three tablespoons of sugar. Mix well and add one-half teaspoon of flavoring. Pour into buttered cups, set in a pan of hot water. Bake one hour in a fairly cool oven so that the water in the pan will not boil. If it starts to boil, turn down the gas or open the oven door a little. A sprinkle of chopped nuts or cocoanut, a little nutmeg or cinnamon, a few squares of buttered bread over the top of each custard before baking give change and added food.

Brown Betty—Butter custard cups. Cover the bottom one-fourth inch deep with bread crumbs. Sprinkle with one-half teaspoon of brown sugar and one-fourth teaspoon cinnamon. Cover with sliced apples, peaches, or any fresh or cooked fruit. Then another layer of crumbs and sugar and cinnamon and then fruit. Fill the cup nearly to the top this way. Have crumbs for the top layer and put one-half teaspoon of butter in tiny pieces over it. Bake one-half hour in an oven as hot as you used for the cup cakes. These are just as good cold as hot, and make a fine cold weather dessert for your lunch box.

"It will not pay here!" said friend husband. "You will never be able to get everything that way."

"Why not, William?"

"Because nothing would ever make you touch a button. Look at my shirt."—London Opinion.

BEGIN CONSTRUCTION OF AERIAL TRAMLINE

STEWART, B. C., May 27.—(Canadian Press).—Work has started on the construction of the new aerial tramline connecting the Premier Mine with tide-water between Stewart and Syder. Two hundred men are employed and at least six month swill elapse before the work is completed. SEA IS REAL CRADLE OF ANIMAL LIFE OF EARTH

His Serene Highness, Albert I., Prince of Monaco, who received the Agassiz gold medal from the National Academy of Sciences at Washington on April 25 for his researches in oceanography, explained the reason why he had devoted fifty years to a study of the sea, in his latest public address in Paris:

A daily contact with the innumerable throng of marine beings brings the oceanographer to profound reflections concerning the origin of that dense and supple life which swarms in all the ocean levels where so many species are confined and so many individuals commingle or scatter in the medium from which they derive their means of existence. He feels that the power of life in the sea is greater than upon the land, for it prevails through all the thickness of the waters from the surface to the depths while on the surface of the earth it occupies only a single plane. This is a little thing, a thin covering, compared with the thousand of metres, which constitute the habitable mass of the ocean upon three-fifths of the globe.

The sea was the cradle of life upon our earth, for water became lowered to a supportable temperature long before the incandescent mineral masses which constitute today the earth's crust. What food could the first germs disbursed about the world which we now people have found upon these solidified minerals? But the water which kept in solution or suspension matter in all its forms is the best medium where organisms may grow and transform themselves. In fact, the most ancient fossil organism known today is the fresh water alga.

As for that which survived between the epoch when this extremely simple alga appeared, the only living thing upon our globe, and the later times which saw the forms of life multiply, our mind has still to be limited to conjecture. But certain connections of which a series of centuries infinitely long have allowed us the trace, and certain phenomena concerning the develoeeent of the embryonic life of being have opened in this field views that are gradually confirmed. The cooling process of the glove permitted at the beginning and in the most suitable elements the appearance of an organized being. Later the progress of vital forces towards the apogee of their power gave birth to the branch of superior animals. In the midst of this general movement of nature, where may we find the origin of the form which became man and where can we follow it until it became truly human? Such a problem is too high for us to expect to solve with the means that we today possess. And is it not already a great thing to have placed our species in the first rank of the organized world? To have constituted through the effort of centuries a brain not only capable of carrying us through the struggles for life, but of conceiving the thoughts which have made our civilization and which have enabled us to discover in the most distant part of our earth events so insignificant as the birth of an alga?

GERMANS RETRACT CHARGES AGAINST SENEGALESE TROOPS

Are Finding That Stories of License on Part of Blacks Keep Away Tourists

PARIS, May 27.—By a stroke of poetic justice the Germans of the Rheinland again suffer the effects of the campaign of lies they have conducted against the French colored troops. Wails of distress are rising from the Summer resorts and beauty spots on the Rhine, whose yearly host of visitors has been scared away by "the Black Terror". Once more German propaganda has overshot its mark, and the prosperous citizens of Munich have been so impressed by the wholly fictitious films depicting the savagery of the Senegalese troops that they prefer to take their Summer holiday on the lakes of the Austrian Tyrol or on the coast of Holland.

In an attempt to combat the previling opinion Dr. Reuter, Councilor of Health of Baden, confesses the truth, all too late, in the columns of the tourist edition of the Berlin Tageblatt.

"Fear of improper behavior on the prt of the French colored troops," he writes, "is devoid of ll foundation as I can guarantee by personal experience. No one has been in any way molested, and all stories of soldiers annoying bathers or boating parties are utterly false."

HOW ARE YOU?

(Boston Transcript.)

A New York man declares that the ordinary reply to the question, "How are you?" is either trite, ungrammatical or mendacious. Frequently, too, it is elaborate and tiresome. It would be better, would it not, if more people regarded the rhymed rule in the matter, which runs:

Don't tell your friends about your indigestion,
"How are you?" is a greeting, not a question.

"So you want to be my son-in-law, do you?" asked the man, with as much fierceness as he could assume.

"Well," said the young man, "I don't particularly want to, but I suppose I shall have to be if I marry your daughter."

ADVICE TO GIRLS

Dear Annie Laurie:

I am a married woman, 28 years old. I have a girl of 13. I married when I was 14 years old. My husband is ten years older than I am, and is jealous of me until my life is miserable. Everywhere I go I make friends, but he does not, and doesn't want me to have any. Wherever I go, if he does not go with me, he will follow and watch me. He will ask me every few minutes what I am thinking of. If I do not tell him he will say it is some man. He has always been like that, and it worries me so that I can't love him.

He makes me think about things that I would not if he trusted me. What shall I do?

I hate to leave him on account of the child, but she doesn't care for him at all, he is so cross. If I speak up to him and tell him I would like to have some pleasure, he would put my trunk out and not let me have my child, and she is so devoted to me. What can I do?

FRANKIE MAE.

Frankie Mae,—For the sake of your child, my dear, you should try to put up with your situation. Having endured it so long, I think you can go on to the end. Do what you can to bring about harmony by ignoring his outbursts as much as you can. It is a bad atmosphere in which to bring up your little girl, and you must do your part to save her as much distress as possible.

Dear Annie Laurie:

I am a girl of 19, and a certain married man asked me for my photo. Should I give it to him? He has boarded with us for a year, and I intend to give the photo to his wife, as she now lives in the same town. I am going to see her some day soon and get accquainted with her.

MINNIE.

Minnie,—Give the photo to the wife if she seems to be interested in you, but I should advise waiting until your friendship ripens.

Dear Annie Laurie:

Will you please answer these questions:

What is true love?

What does a love letter consist of?

Who should write the first love letter—the girl or the boy?

What does it mean to be in love?

AL-EL.

Al-El,—I believe I have already said that greater minds than mine have failed to define love, my dear. Your last question embodies the first.

A love letter is one in which the sentiments of love are expressed, according to the capacity of the writer. The man should write the first letter, expressing his love, but usually among sensible persons the declaration is made in person.

Don't write "love letters" just to write them and receive them, dear. Wait until you are far older than your letter indicates, and then wait until the one true love of your life has been proved to your complete satisfaction.

A new organization called "Canada's Sons", had its initial meeting in Ottawa recently, when plans were formulated for a brisk membership drive to work throughout the whole of Canada. One of its objects is to develop a thoroughly patriotic Canadian spirit, and the general trend of the organization may be summed up as follows:

1. To bring all Canadian-born men together for mutual benefit and support.
2. To develop a thoroughly Canadian spirit.
3. To unite for the general advancement of good government, municipal, provincial and federal.
4. To assist the government to settle immigrants on the farms, or where best suited.
5. To encourage the cultivation of lands, to develop the natural resources and to open industries.
6. To protect the forests, mines and other resources, and to teach immigrants the art of clearing land and the prevention of fire.
7. To encourage and help young Canadians, and to stem the tide of emigration to the United States and other countries.

Time may be money, but most people prefer the long green.

GENERAL ROSS IMPRESSED BY INDIVIDUAL HEROISM

Regrets It Is Not Emphasized on Monument Being Erected.

KINGSTON, May 27.—In an address before the Kiwanis Club, Brig.-Gen. A. E. Ross, M.P.P., said it was to be regretted that in the erection of monuments throughout the country individual heroism and sacrifice in the late war were not emphasized as these qualities should be, when so many of Canada's soldiers afforded glowing examples of patriotism, endurance, discipline and heroism. Gen. Ross instanced the case of a soldier named Ramsay of the 1st Canadian Division, who after being twice wounded, returned to the fight and met death. Gen. Ross said that we must perpetuate the spirit of patriotism and religion in our army, for it was largely the religious quality in the soldier that enabled him to do gallant deeds.

TORPID LIVER
For Over 4 Months

The duty of the liver is to prepare and secrete bile and serve as a filter to the blood, cleansing it of all impurities and poisons.

When the liver becomes laxy, slow or torpid it is not working properly and does not supply sufficient bile to thoroughly act on the bowels and carry off the waste products of the system, hence the bowels become clogged up, the bile gets into the blood, constipation sets in and liver troubles follow.

Milburn's Laxa-Liver Pills quickly remove the secretions, clear away the waste and effete matter by acting directly on the liver, and making the bile pass through the bowels instead of allowing it to get into the blood, and cause so many troubles.

Mrs. Alice Mehill, Napanee, Ont., writes:—'I was very badly run down, and had a torpid liver for four months. I tried several remedies, but got no relief. One day my husband brought me home a vial of Milburn's Laxa-Liver Pills, and before I had used half of it I was much better. I only used two vials, and I am a different person to-day. I can safely recommend Laxa-Liver Pills to any one troubled wtih liver trouble."

Milburn's Laxa-Liver Pills are 25c. a vial at all dealers or mailed direct on receipt of price by The T. Milburn Co., Limited Toronto, Ont.

FAMILIAR SAYINGS AND THEIR ORIGIN.

"Shoemaker, stick to your last."—Apelles, a celebrated painter, was in the habit of exhibiting his pictures to the passers-by, while he heard their comments without being seen. One day a shoemaker criticised the shoes in a certain picture, and found next day that they had been repainted. Proud of his success as a critic, he began to find fault with the thigh of the picture, when Apelles cried out from behind the canvas, "Shoemaker, stick to your last."

"To cook your goose for you"—King Eric of Norway, coming to a town with a small force, the inhabitants, to express their contempt for him, hung out a goose upon the wall for him to shoot at; but before night the soldiers had entered the city and set it on fire—"To cook your goose for you," said the king.

"None of you know where the shoe pinches."—Plutarch relates how Paulus divorced his wife, and when his friends remonstrated and asked him if she were not beautiful and witty and accomplished, he held out a shoe, and said, 'Is it not handsome? Is it not new? And yet none of you knows where it pinches, but he who wears it."

"Multum in Parvo."—That's Latin. Much in little is what it means in plain, everyday English, and much in little is what an industrial policy is. It isn't a very large document, and it costs very little money. But it goes a long way and does untold good. In truth, industrial policies to tens of thousands of families have made all the difference between starvation and support—between comfort and misery—between hope and despair—between life and death.

U.S. TOURIST TRADE LIKELY WILL BE GOOD

LOCAL CHAMBER OF COMMERCE DELUGED WITH INQUIRIES FROM THE UNITED STATES.

SHOW MUCH INTEREST

Letters of inquiry about the Trent waterways, addressed to the Peterborough Chamber of Commerce, continue to pour into Secretary L. Frazer's office in this city, and it is evident that there will be an unusually large number of Americans cruise in the Trent waterways this summer. The inquiries come from all parts of the United States, and answering the letters is no easy task. Practically every letter asks about the length of the navigable stretch of the canal, the depth of water, su' ' facilities, and so forth. A New Yorker has written a letter with enough questions in it to take a half morning to answer. He asked if the country was of a primitive nature and if there were any summer resorts. Evidently he suspected nature would be as undisturbed as on Champlain's cruise some centuries ago. Further enquiries in the letter were about the price of "gas" and supplies. "Are mosquitoes bad?" he also asked.

Daily the letters filled with interest in the splendid water route accumulate, and in view of such display of interest the Secretary feels sure there will be more American motor boats in the Trent waters this summer than has heretofore been the case. Canadian and American newspapers have given unbounded support in the greater development of the waterways and many papers have secured information for articles recently from the Secretary. The Montreal Gazette a short time ago carried a story on the waterways, and The Detroit Times and Toronto Sunday World are preparing articles along the same line. Much interest is promised from the meeting of the Trent Waterways Development Association in Orillia, the end of next month.

HAUNTED TRAINS

There are more ghosts in trains and railway stations than is generally supposed.

For many years a rumor was afloat that the Severn tunnel was haunted. The story was to the effect that some time after the opening of the tunnel a man was traveling through it in a first-class compartment of a London express when he heard a tapping on the window pane, and, on looking around, perceived a white, haggard face peering in at him. Meanwhile the thing outside was making frantic endeavors to open the door and was apparently succeeding, when the train suddenly emerged from the tunnel and the ghostly face vanished.

Greatly terrified, the man changed carriages at the fir t stop, and was subsequently informed that always at that particular night in the year some person or other, whilst the train was in the tunnel, heard the tappings and saw the face at the window. It was supposed to be the ghost of a man who was killed during the construction of the tunnel.

A good many years ago a train, on emerging from a tunnel near Bristol, was found to be minus its fireman, and the engine-driver's version was that the man, on leaning out, had lost his hold and fallen. As the men were believed to have been good friends, suspicion was aroused, but there was no evidence.

About a month after the affair, however, a signalman in a box near the tunnel happened to glance at this particular train as it passed by and was surprised to see three men on the engine instead of two. One of the men was struggling with the driver. He made inquiries, but was told he must have been mistaken, as there waere certainly only two men on the engine and no fracas of any kind had taken place between them. When the same thing happened the next night he became alarmed, and succeeded in getting a transfer.

His s ccessor, however, had the same experience. People associated what the signalman had seen with the recent tragedy of the fireman. In the end the engine-driver broke down in health and left the railway company's service. Shortly after his departure the hauntings ceased.

Most people will remember the mystery surrounding the death of Miss Money, whose body was found lying by the rails in the Mers ham tunnel.

For some time after the event all kinds of reports were in circulation as to her ghost being seen.

One person traveling alone was horrified on reaching the tunnel to see a young woman with a very pale face sitting opposite him. She appeared to be suddenly seized by invisible hands, and after a desperate struggle was thrown out into the impenetrable darkness through which they were rushing. The terrified passenger was too overcome with horror to say or do anything.

The same stories of ghostly doings were current after the execution of Percy Lefroy Mapleton for a railway murder in the early eighties.

Few crimes have taken a more morbid hold on the public mind than did that callous and sordid act of butchery, and at least one person traveling at night along the line where it occurred witnessed a ghostly re-enaction of the deed.

A man who traveled by "Lefroy's train" the night after the murderer's execution observed the carriage door open and a figure exactly like the hanged felon creep stealthily into the compartment. The apparition approached the passenger and proceeded to do to him what its living counterpart had done to the murdered man.

It was a terrifying experience and the horror-stricken passenger mercifully lost cons iousness.

When his senses returned the train had pulled up at a station and the ghost had vanished.—London Tit-Bits.

THE SUPREME ART.

(From the English Magazine.)

As colors ar' to the painter, so are words to the writer. But they are more than this; they are craft and technique as well as color; they are music—they are types and symbols as well as realit es. The right word in the right place—that is the entire secret of good writing. Not simply the best word, but, if possible, the right word; we have sometimes to be content with the best, while still conscious that it does not say what we desire. When we consider, we have to acknowledge that the creation of words is really the most stupendous feat of man's intellect; the genesis of words has always been creation rather than mere discovery. But the ide' came before the word, just as we must imagine that the thought of the Creator preceded its embodiment in this universe of worlds and suns. In the beginning the word—yes, but before that the thought, the spirit.

RODDED BUILDINGS IMMUNE TO LIGHTNING

Fire Losses Almost Negligible in Buildings Protected by Lightning Rods.

"We have not had a rodded build'ng burned for years, and the damage to them is very small . . We make a difference in rates in favour of rodded buildings, and over half are rodded."—Manager, Mutual Fire Insurance Co.

In 1919, Ontario alone had 1,104 fires caused by lightning, in all classes of buildings, the greater portion of which were farm barns and residences. The monetary loss on farm buildings and contents amounted to $401,711, that on buildings being $248,390 and on contents $153,321. Insurance provided for $223,144, while the farmers in whose property the fires occurred had to stand the loss of $178,567.

It has been clearly established that installation of lightning rods constitutes an efficient protection against lightning fires. The Canadian Underwriters' Association and farmers' mutual fire insurance companies have had the advantages of lightning rods so impressed upon them by actual results that most of them grant a preference in rates to rodded risks.

Unfortunately for the lightning rod industry, some thirty or more years ago many farmers were swindled by unscrupulous agents, and the experience is still remembered in many farm homes, to the disadvantage of representatives of the companies now in the field. It would seem the part of wisdom for an educational campaign to be initiated by the farmers themselves, to impress upon the rural population, in an unbiased manner, the almost absolute protection to their lives and property which can be secured through the installation of an efficient and thoroughly inspected system of lightning rods. The Ontario Fire Marshal has recently published in pamphlet form an address by Mr. George F. Lewis, on Lightning: its Origin and Control, which will be sent upon request.

Drinking a Glass of Hot Water is a Splendid Habit

Cleanse and sweeten the system each morning and wash away poisonous, stagnant matter.

Those of us who are accustomed to feel dull and heavy when we arise—splitting headache, stuffy from a cold, foul tongue, nasty breath, acid stomach, lame back, can instead both look and feel as fresh as a daisy always by washing the poisons and toxins from the body with phosphated hot water each morning.

We should drink before breakfast, a glass of hot water with a teaspoonful of limestone phosphate in it to flush from the stomach, liver, kidneys and bowels the previous day's indigestible waste, sour bile and poisonous toxins; thus cleansing, sweetening and purifying the entire alimentary tract before eating more food.

The action of limestone phosphate and hot water on an empty stomach is wonderfully invigorating. It cleans out all the sour fermentations, gases, waste and acidity, and gives one a fine appetite for breakfast. A quarter of a pound of limestone phosphate costs very little at the drug store, but is enough to make anyone who is bothered with biliousness, constipation, stomach trouble or rheumatism an enthusiast on internal sanitation.

SAGE TEA BEAUTIFIES AND DARKENS HAIR

Don't Stay Gray! It Darkens So Naturally That Nobody Can Tell.

You can turn gray, faded hair beautifully dark and lustrous almost over night if you'll get a bottle of "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound" at any drug store. Millions of bottles of this old famous Sage Tea Recipe, improved by the addition of other ingredients, are sold annually, says a well-known druggist here, because it darkens the hair so naturally and evenly that no one can tell it has been applied.

Those whose hair is turning gray or becoming faded have a surprise awaiting them, because after one or two applications the gray hair vanishes and your locks become luxuriantly dark and beautiful.

This is the age of youth. Gray-haired, unattractive folks aren't wanted around, so get busy with Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound to-night and you'll be delighted with your dark, handsome hair and your youthful appearance within a few days.

Hun-Austrian Fusion Seems Now in Favor

REFERENDUMS TO BE TAKEN ON SUNDAY EXPECTED TO APPROVE THE MOVEMENT.

VIENNA, May 27.—(Associated Press).—Three more Provinces will imitate the Tyrol and hold sentimental referendums on the question of the fusion of Austria with Germany. Salzburg, Styria and Upper Austria have set May 29 as the tentative date for the ballot, and it is believed that Carinthia also will fall into line. Voralberg, the westernmost of the States, last summer voted practically unanimously to join Switzerland.

The almost unanimous vote for fusion in the Tyrol on April 24 was a surprise even to the most ardent of fusionists. They had estimated an 80 to 90 per cent. favorable ballot, and it is conceded that the excess represented an element of those hard-headed mountaineers who voted simply because of the Entente prohibition against the referendum.

The movement toward a union with Germany, born almost immediately after the creation of the republic, has grown steadily, and these sporadic and independent referendums are the outgrowth of the failure of the effort to force the central Government to defy the Entente and order a nation-wide vote.

According to foreign observers who have kept a watchful eye on the agitation, there is no doubt that the total vote will show a heavy majority for the union. They do not share the belief professed by the opponents of the movement, that if the vote actually mean action instead of a sentimental expression of opinion it would not carry. On the contrary, they express the belief that it is a genuine and earnest thought and desire on the part of the mass of the people and say they are motivated by three controlling things.

First is the firmly rooted conviction that Austria cannot survive politically or economically as an independent State. The economic arguments have been set before the world officially and unofficially for the past two years, but the political phase of the matter was brought to a focus by the former Emperor Charles' recent attempt to regain the throne in Hungary.

The threat of Jugoslavia, Czechoslovakia and Rumania to occupy Hungary if a Hapsburg is restored spells an inevitable occupation of Austria along with it. They realize the utter impotence of the little unarmed republic against its powerful Slav neighbors, and the present political situation in Central Europe does not calm their apprehensions.

As part of the stronger German State, they feel that they would be secure against any aggression and at the same time obtain advantages of a commercial nature, which they cannot hope to gain independently. The belief of Austria in the rehabilitation of Germany is abiding and they wish to share it.

Behind this motive is said to lie the natural racial and language tie, coupled with the dread that Slav institutions will supplant their Germanic traditions and culture.

Another important factor is the well organized and effective German propaganda. Directed by north Germans and financed by them, it evidenced its efficiency in the Tyrol vote. The Vienna opposition press openly charged that 4,000,000 marks were spent on that referendum alone and that as much more as may be needed will be forthcoming to keep the moving going.

Coupled with this charge is the name of Hugo Stinnes, the great German capitalist, whose recent business invasion of Austria, ranging from purchases of newspapers in Vienna and every Provincial capital through many enterprises to control of the great Alpine-Montagne corporation, one of the largest in Europe, has had first page newspaper place for months.

VIGOROUS OPPOSITION TO THE EMERGENCY TARRIF

Kentucky Senator Fears Bill Will Cripple U. S. Canadian Trade

WASHINGTON, May 27.— (By Canadian Press).—Vigorous opposition to the emergency tariff bill was voiced in the Senate recently by Senator Stanley of Kentucky, one of the democratic leaders on the ground that the ultimate effect of such legislation would be to cripple trade with Canada.

Senator Stanley warned the Senate that the passage of the emergency tariff bill would be the beginning of a war of embargoes. He put into the record tables showing the enormous totals of the commerce exchanged between the U. S. and Canada in recent years and he held it unwise statemanship now to procede to a policy which would hamper that public commerce. The senator said that the fear of the slumping of Canadian wheat upon the U. S. market was the only reason yet assigned in Congress for "this embargo upon Canadian commerce."

"Canada never has and she never an dump any material portion of her grain upon the U.S. market", he said "and if she did it could not appreciably affect the price in this country. The price of wheat in Canada, as in the United States, is necessarily determined by the price of the surplus from each country; this surplus being sold in the same market and under practically identical circumstances, it is a matter of small importance whether it is shipped from Montreal or Chicago. In each broadly speaking, it must necessarily bring the Liverpool price, less the cost of transportation.

"From 1910 to 1920 inclusive, Canada exported to the United States 58,468,248 bushels of wheat. During the same period she imported from us 50,406748 bushels of wheat leaving a net excess for the ten year period of 8,061,503 bushels. In other words during that period Canada "dumped" on the average, annually into the United States a net excess of about 800,000 bushels. Just how 800,00 or 8,000,000 bushels, could disturb the general level of prices on six or seven hundred million bushels of American wheat is inconceivable."

Dwelling on the magnitude of the trade between the two countries and expressing surprise that the scope of trade was not more fully analyzed by the heads of great enterprises, Senator Stanley said:

"I maintain without the fear of successful contradiction that at this time we are in infinitely greater need of Canadian raw materials than of her markets; that we receive a greater benefit from the things we buy than from those we sell; that of the two, the loss of her imports involves a greater injury to American consumers than even the destruction of our vast export trade to Canada —approximately at this time, one billion annually."

Mr. Stanley read statistics showing that unfinished products sold by Canada to the United States during the year ending June 30, 1920 reached a total vlue of $253,989,155.

"It is a source of some surprise that the great manufacturing and industrial enterprises have not more earnestly and seriously analyzed the commerce between these great countries.

"Manufactured exports from Canada consisting principally of iron and steel products, machinery and agricultural implements, amounted in 1920 to $34, 112,228.

"On the other hand we exported to Canada in iron and steel manufactures, rolling mill products, machinery, vehicles, engines and agricultural implements a total of $140,-272,568.

"The total of American imports for 1920, according to U. S. Department of Commerce figure, totalled $464,029,014 and our exports for the same period reached a grand tottal of $800,632,849.

"It is claimed that in the face of a sudden emergency the farmer must have instant relief from an inundation of agricultural products from Canada and that the American consumer is to be impoverished by an excess of cheap foodstuffs from the Dominion. Those who make this claim are ignorant of the nature of this commerce or forget that our exports of agricultural products to Canada vastly exceed our imports

"In 1920 we shipped to Canada 1,211,831 boxes of oranges valued at $6,066,962; 13,902,863 pounds of prunes vauued at $1,097,914; and 26,-831,775 pounds of rasins valued at $4,890,294. Other fruits, fresh and dried shipped into Canada in 1920 amounted to $21,065,619.

"For the same period we shipped 10,454,031 pounds of cotton and manufactures thereof, valued at $34,-636,310; oil cake and oil-cake meal valued at $6,606,854; our exports of tobacco were valued at $9,310,986; our tobacco imports for the same period amounted to $65,878. We imported onions to the value of $465,-826, our imports for the same period being $7,389.

"Our total exports of the articles enumerated above amounted to $85,-114,545 and our imports to $73,267, giving the U. S. Agriculturist a balance of $84,967,488."

Senator Stanley produced a complete summary of the inter-change of agricultural products between Can ada and the United States from 1910 to 1920. For the year 1920 this summary showed an excess of U.S. exports over imports of $62,967,488.

"And now", he said, in conclusion "this half-baked and so-called emergency bill proposes to relieve the farmers and gardeners of the United States by the instant and utter demolition of tihs splendid balance in their favor.' '

TRY MAGNESIA FOR STOMACH TROUBLE

It Neutralizes Stomach Acidity, Prevents Food Fermentation, Sour Gassy Stomach and Acid Indigestion.

Doubtless, if you are a sufferer from indigestion, you have already tried pepsin, pancreatin, charcoal, drugs and various digestive aids and you know these things will not cure your trouble—in some cases do not even give relief.

But before giving up hope and deciding you are a chronic dyspeptic just try the effect of a little Bisurated Magnesia—not the ordinary commercial carbonate, citrate, or milk, but the pure Bisurated Magnesia which you can obtain from practically any druggist in either powdered or tablet form.

Take a teaspoonful of the powder or two compressed tablets with a little water after your next meal, and see what a difference this makes. It will instantly neutralize the dangerous, harmful acid in the stomach which now causes your food to ferment and sour, making gas, wind, flatulence, heartburn and the bloated or heavy, lumpy feeling that seems to follow most everything you eat.

You will find that provided you take a little Bisurated Magnesia immediately after a meal, you can get almost anything and enjoy it without any danger of pain or discomfort to follow, and moreover, the continued use of the bisurated magnesia cannot injure the stomach in any way so long as there are any symptoms of acid indigestion.

MAKES TILDEN ONLY HOPE OF AMERICA

French Opinion Concedes His Victory in Singles—May Win With Mrs. Mallory.

PARIS, May 27.— French tennis experts seem convinced that the hopes of the United States for victory in the world's hard court tennis championships to begin at Saint Cluod on Saturday are confined to William T. Tilden 2d., of Philadelphia, the world's grass court champion, in the singles, and to Tilden and Mrs. Molla Bjursedt Mallory, women's singles champion of the United States, in the mixed doubles. Many Americans, however, are backing Mrs. Mallory to defeat Suzanne Lengien, the French women's singles champion, for the women's singles title. ilden and Annold Jones are not thought, even by the optimistic, to have much chauce for the men's doubles title.

FIGHT FOR CHATEAU AFTERMATH OF THE WAR.

PARIS, May 26. (Canadian Press.) Efforts by two princes of the House of Bourbon-Parma to recover possession of the celebrated Chateau de Chamboard, which was sequestered by the French government during the war is one of the most interesting aftermaths of the great conflict?

The Chateau is more than 400 years old and is one of the most striking and interesting of the famous feudal establishments of ancient France. It was once one of the most magnificent of these great estates and lies in the valley of the Loire close to the town of Blois, and has about 15,000 acres, part of which is enclosed by walls extending for 20 miles. The building is about 200 feet square with a famous circular tower at each corner and a double spiral staircase leading to the double lantern, which dominates the centre tower.

It was built about 1526 and for two centuries was a royal residence. Louis XV gave it to Marshal Saxe and Napoleon presented it to Marshal Berthier. Eventually it fell into the possession of of the Duke of Parma.

At the beginning of the war it was owned by Prince Elias of Bourbon-Parma ,and was sequestered because he was serving in the Austrian army as an attache of the Austrian General Staff. Prince Elias is a brother of Zita, the wife of the former Emperor Charles of Austria-Hungary, who lately attempted to regain his throne as king of Hungary.

After the war Prince Elias attempted to recover possession of the estate, but the French courts have just disallowed his claim. This however does not settle the question of its ownership for Prince Sixtus, also of Bourbon-Parma, brother of Prince Elias, has put in a claim to the ownership of the Chateau.

Prince Sixtus does not suffer the disability of Prince Elias, as Sixtus and his brother Xavier both offered their services to the French government in the war and being refused on the ground that descendants of the old royal houses could not be permitted to fight for France, they both enlisted in the Belgian army where they served as stretcher-bearers under fire. Their bravery in this sevice was afterward recognized in a French citation.

WAR CRIMINAL IS GIVEN TEN MONTHS' TERM

"SHAME!" CRY BRITISH M.P.'S WHEN THEY LEARN OF IT.

LONDON, May 27 (Canadian Press).—When the Attorney-General announced in the House of Commons yesterday that the first war criminal tried at Leipzic had been sentenced to ten months' imprisonment, there were cries of "Shame," and general cheering followed Sir Frederick Banbury's question, "Will the House be given an opportunity of discussing this extremely inadequate sentence?".

AUTOMOBILE TIRES IN SELECT GROUP.

Automobile tires are now in that exclusive and select group of commodities which are lower in price than during pre-war times. The announcement made by the B. F. Goodrich Company, of Canada, Ltd., reduced their tire prices 20 per cent. This is the second Goodrich price reduction in six months time, making the prices lower by about 35 per cent. than prevailed during the motoring season of 1920.

The announcement pointed out that a new price level has been put into effect at the opening of the season, at a time when motorists are replacing their old tires with new ones.

The new prices, it is said, are to continue throughout the season, and are not merely a "bargain" or temporary reduction. This radical action, according to the announcement, was taken to benefit the motorist, who had planned to defer his tire buying until July or August in anticipation of lower tire prices. With the prices now lower there is little excuse for car owners to be inconvenienced by riding on patched or makeshift tires .

In making the announcement the Goodrich Company said: "In most parts of the country the active tire buying season opens with the first of aMy, hence it is the proper time to make a serious effort to establish a new schedule of tire prices.

"While a reduction of prices during the 1921 season might not have been expected by the motoring public, it is safe to say that it came much sooner and was a greater reduction than had been anticipated.

"The only question is whether or not it is too low. We feel that our readjustment of prices is radical, and at one move it puts tire prices at rock bottom.

"Conditions in the automobile industry are much better and the outlook much brighter and of course this is reflected in the tire industry. Fair wages, honest products, right prices, and a square deal all around, are what will give producer, distributor and public real confidence. Recognizing this, we put out prices at the point we have announced."

The action of the Goodrich Company is accepted as an indication that the geat manufacturing concerns of the country, are preparing to take the lead in bringing down the cost of things.

Behind the Scenes

Commerce is often like a play. One sees only the entire result or effect—the movement of people, the blending of colours, the actual merchandise, and the selling or buying of them.

But behind the scenes there is drama, romance, and adventure, all weaving the fabric, cutting the marble, painting the picture, or shaping the hat that you buy.

Ships and trains, ambitions and dreams, inspiration and thought, men and women and machinery — all writing in various materials and forms, the story of commerce.

This Store is part of the Great Drama of Distribution, gathering from the four corners of industry the things to set upon the stage for your inspection and approval, at a price that is just and reasonable.

Everything is so handy, right at your finger tips. This Cabinet will actually hold 300 cooking articles, and by keeping them all in one place, your kitchen is kept orderly, systemized and therefore lessens your work.

Extra Special Features

Two of the most important features of the "Sellers" Kitchen Cabinet are: First, the Automatic Lowering Flour Bin. It lowers on two strong steel arms to the level of the work table, thus eliminating the lifting of the flour bag. To put it back into place, you merely bear down on it, releasing the latches, then two heavy coil springs gradually lifts it back into place again. The second feature is the automatic base shelf extender by means of an arrangement on the bottom of the lower door, the base or floor of the shelf pulls out to a distance that does away with stooping and reaching, so tiresome and injurious.

Women Rouge Their Knees

LATEST FAD IN NEW YORK, SAYS BEAUTY PARLOR HEAD.

NEW YORK, May 27.—The latest style secret—

Women are rouging their knees.

But, according to Sidney Brooks, who made this revelation to-day, it won't be a secret very long if the girls continue to wear 'em shorter and roll 'em lower.

Brooks, a former hair dresser in the Czar's Palace and now manager of the beauty parlor in the Waldorf Astoria, said that recently some of his feminine assistants had been called upon to initiate clients in the art of beautifying their knees.

"Some time ago, as the public is fairly well aware now, women began to roll their stockings below their knees," Brooks said.

"As skirts continued to grow shorter it became apparent that, what with disclosures that might result while sitting in the present conventional posture or crossing a windy street or boarding a taxi, as much attention should be paid to the knees as the face—by the women themselves, I mean.

"Rouged knees are the result. The idea is to get just the faintest pink effect—a coat of rice powder, the slightest touch of rouge on the knee cap and a film of powder over that. I am informed the effect is quite charming."

Brooks also had an explanation for the sudden army of girlish looking women with snow white hair.

"A new kind of bleach," he said. "Many young women are finding men of mature age more attractive than youths. They believe that whitened hair not only makes them more magnetic to these men but lends an air of romance to their appearance—a sort of 'secret sorrow,' you know.

"Some girls are not just sure how their plan is going to work out, so they compromise by simply powdering their hair. In that way they can resume their natural appearance at will."

According to Brooks, this whitened hair fashion is developing a tendency toward the freakish big coiffures of the Louis XVI. period.

"The ladies!" he sighed. "What next?"

PETERBOROUGH BOY CYCLED 120 MILES TO KINGSTON

An unusual feat was performed on Saturday last by Uzal Waterman, aged nineteen, son of E. J. Waterman, 33 Upper Main street, Kingston, when he "biked" it from Peterborough to Kingston, a distance of 120 miles. He left Peterborough at 3.55 a.m., reached Cambellford at 6.50; left at 8.55 and arrived in Belleville at 11.45 a.m.; left Belleville at 3 p.m. and reached Napanee at 5.15 p.m.; left Napanee at 5.35 and had a break down at Odessa. After repairing his machine he left Kingston at 8.30. He averaged 12 3-4 miles an hour on the trip and was not fatigued. He left Kingston on the return trip at 11 a.m. Sunday. —Kingston Whig.

FLYERS SEE UNMAPPED LAKES, RIVERS, MOUNTAINS

CALGARY, Alta., May 27.—(Canadian Press).—Lakes, mountains and ranges of hills hitherto unmapper, and, so far as known, probably never visited by the foot of white men, were noted by the flyers of the Imperial Oil Company on their recent farthest north flight to Fort Simpson, which brought them within 300 miles of Fort Norman.

W. H. Waddell, D.L.S., who is in charge of the survey work for the company, took a number of snapshots with an ordinary kodak and the developed films revealed many details not on Government maps of the huge area. According to remarks made by several of the members of the flying crews, the thing that impressed itself most strongly upon them is the immense advantage of the new transportation method offers for the prospecting of unknown or little explored territory for all kinds of minerals, as well as for oil. With proper photographic apparatus, a detailed record of the entire geological surface indications of the northern territory could be taken for the benefit of prospectors.

Twelve Prisoners Worked on Famous Holzminden Tunnel

The famous Holzminden prison escape is admitted by all prisoners of war in Germany to be the greatest and most successful coup ever brought off in an enemy country. It remains a mystery even today to many of the 600 officers who were in the camp, how the laborious and dangerous work was kept concealed, not only from the German staff, but from the huge majority of the camp itself.

The work on the tunnel began on November, 1917, and was not brought to a conclusion until the end of July, 1918. Work was done almost every day. The tunnel was about 70 yards long and about 20 feet below the ground. It ran for a distance underneath the barracks building, under a stone fence, and led out into a wheat field, outside the cordon of guards, and the stone ed through on the night when the fin word was given, and over 100 were lined up awaiting their turn when the consternating word came back from the face of the tunnel, that it had caved in.

Of the 29 who got through before the catastrophe happened, 10 crossed the border safely into Holland. The other 19 were recaptured one by one or in pairs and brought back. Even the Germans, who are not free to commend the exploits of their enemies, had to admire the achievement in spite of their humiliation in being bested.

Passed on Idea.

The scheme was started by one or two officers who were transferred to Holland before their plan matured, but the idea and command was passed on from time to time. The working crew was limited to twelve, and this coterie formed a sort of secret society, no one side else in the camp being taken into their confidence. A second limited list had a close attachment to the inner circle, the members of this list succeeded to the original twelve as one of the latter number would be transferred to Holland or went to hospital, or be ame incapacitated through other means.

But not even this second circle was initiated into the secret until the moment when it became necessary for them to participate in the actual work. Thus at no time did more than twelve men out of the 600 know how the work was being carried on, or even where the entrance to the tunnel was. Of course, the camp in general knew something was going on, but so secret were the proceedings kept that not even the identity of the workers was known over that long period, although those men were all the time within the same, four, small walls. Too many escape schemes had failed through Hun ears catching a careless remark for any such chances being taken. There were doubtful persons in the camp about, whose military careers little was known, and it was common knowledge that the Germans often introduced fake prisoners into large camps who spoke English perfectly, and were there just to detect such plots as this one.

Watched and Worked.

Out of the twelve, three were on du each day digging. It was the task of the other nine, at the time the digg went to and from their work, to form an inconspicuous line of look outs and signal any untoward vigilance on the part of the German guards. Here it must be explained that the building from which the tunnel started, a four-storey stone barracks, was divided into two parts, one, the larger, housing about 350 officers, the other forming the quarters reserved for the English orderlies, about fifty in number. The doors entering the two parts opened into the courtyard and were situated at the two extremes of the front of the building.

Officers were not allowed to enter the orderlies' quarters, though the latter could pass freely into the officers' quarters to carry out their duties. Both these doors were locked and guarded from 6 p.m. to 7 a.m. in the winter, and from 10 p.m. to 6.30 a.m. in the summer. Both officers and orderlies quarters were frequently searched without warning in the hope of finding maps, compass, civilian clothes, knapsacks, or other escape paraphernalia.

Had Hidden Stores.

These searches were most r gorousl carri d out, and yet when the time came, more than 100 officers had the most of this equipment ready to aid them over the frontier. The floors and walls of the building were honeycombed with hiding places where these objects were ingeniously stored away against the day when they would be used. It was a constant war of wits and inventiveness between prisoners and captors, but the Germans could not spare enough men from the Western front to prevent the prisoners baffling them.

If Holzminden barracks were to be examined today, the searchers could find places where one can walk almost around the walls between the thick outer wall and the plaster, all the joists and woodwork inside having been torn out, unknown to the Huns, for firewood during the cold nights when no fuel was supplied. The old-fashioned wide window seats give an excellent and untraceable entrance into the walls.—The Telegram.

MAY USE BRITISH FOR POLICE DUTY IN UPPER SILESIA

FURTHER SERIOUS CLASHES BETWEEN GERMANS AND POLES.

BERLIN, May 27. — Canadian Press. — The British forces which are on the way to Silesia will, it is believed here, proceed to points in the industrial sections of the district and will be used for police duty in cities and towns.

A special despatch from Oppeln states that the German authorities have been requested to supply rolling stock for sixteen hundred British soldiers.

Reports of serious clashes between German volunteer organizations and the Poles continue to arrive here. Polish insurgents are reported to have lost over one hundred men in skirmishes near Grosstein and Neiderullguth, while the German casualties are said to be averaging twenty or more daily.

SPINNEY BILL IS REPORTED BY COMMITTEE

SUGGESTS NEW PROMOTION METHODS IN CIVIL SERVICE AND WOUTD PERMIT EXEMPTING FROM COMPETITION

MINISTERS RECOMMEND

OTTAWA, May 27.— (Canadian Press.)—The report of the special Parliamentary Committee appointed to consider the Spinney Bill amending the Civil Service Act, gives the Commission authority to make promotions on the recommendation of Deputy Ministers and without examinations. Where the Civil Service Act originally gave Commissions to make promotions by examinations. Amendments of the Act, suggested by the committee, will give the Commission the authority to make promotions by reports, tests, ratings and recommendations as the Commission may by regulation prescribe. Another suggested amendment provides for giving the Commission power to exempt any position from regular competitive class as it may consider to be in the public interest. The Spinney Bill proposed to take certain clasess out of the hands of the Commission.

After long discussion in the House yesterday, the Bill embodying numerous amendments to the Criminal Code went through committee, was reported and given a third reading. Offences covered in the bill varied between the docking of a dog's tail and the theft of automobiles. Several clauses gave rise to considerable opposition. One making it a criminal offence for an unmarried couple to regisetr at a hotel as man and wife, was struck from the bill. Another imposing a penalty of one year's imprisonment without option of fine, for stealing an automobile, carried; although some criticism of it came from both sides of the House. The bill providing for the "spanking" of youths guilty of theft was withdrawn. "We might as well have stocks again in public places," indignantly exclaimed Hon. Jacques Bureau.

Final reading was given to the bill bringing into effect the tariff changes proposed in the budget. Committee discussion centred round the clause which provides that where possible, all goods imported into Canada shall be marked with the country of origin. Two amendments to the clause were defeated and the clause finally carried. The impression gained after meetings of the Liberal and Conservative supporters was that prorogation would not be affected until Thursday next.

Sir Sam's Valedictory.

While it is not deemed desirable to make it public, a pathetic letter, in the nature of a valedictory to the House, was read from Sir Sam Hughes at the last caucus of ministerial supporters. The caucus recently conveyed to him, through its chairman, J. E. Armstrong, a message of sympathy and it was in reply to this that he wrote. Sir Sam's condition has improved of late, but in the last few days he is not so well. He is shortly to be removed to his home in Lindsay, if his condition permits.

WEAK, THIN FOLKS NEED PHOSPHATE SAYS DR. KOLLE

Dr. Frederic S. Kolle, the New York author of medical text books, whose opinions are greatly valued, writes:

"When the nerve tissue begins to lose its vitality, woman begins to lose her youth and vivaciousness. She becomes irritable, moody and despondent. It would be a godsend if more weak ,thin, nervous men and women were aware of the efficacy of Bitro-Phosphate."

Thousands of thin, run-down peopeople whose nervous energy is nearly exhausted are turning to Bitro-Phosphate as dispensed by McDermid & Jury and other leading druggists, because it helps to re-vitalize the nerves, increase bodily weight and bring back energy and mental keenness.

CAUTION: Although Bitro-Phosphate is an excellent aid in relieving weak, nervous conditions, its use is not advised unless increased weight is desired.

KEEPS RAM AT BAY.

Woman Defeats Herself With Her Sliper.

CHICAGO, May 27.—Enraged at the click of a camera among his flock, a 300-pound ram charged Mrs. T. I. Stahl, of Waukegan, a suburb with such fury that it broke her right leg. Then ensued a desperate battle between Mrs. Stahl, armed only with a high-heeled slipper, and the circling ram, while a party of children, with her, ran screaming for help. When neighbors came she had beaten the animal away with blows of the shoe, but was in a semi-conscious condition.

Mrs. Stahl, wife of a wealthy real estate broker, and a friend, Mrs. O. L. Moore, went to the sheep pasture to take pictures of a group of little girls with the sheep. The ram, the head of the flock, had been considered an especial pet.

At the click of the camera, however, the ram lowered his head and raced at Mrs. Stahl in a fury, striking her savagely.

OTTAWA MERCHANTS ON ALERT.

(From "Druggists' Weekly.")

From Ottawa comes news to the effect that the merchants of that city are taking a determined stand against the growing practice in the larger municipalities of forbidding the parking of automobiles in the main thoroughfares. his has been a trouble with which Toronto merchants have had to contend, too, at times. At a meeting in the capital emphatic protest was lodged aaginst the recent order of the commissioners prohibiting the parking of cars on Sparks street. The claim is put forward that such an order injures trade. Nor is it hard to see how this might be the case. If the owners of cars are not allowed to leave their cars within convenient distance, it stands to reason that their shopping activities will be curtailed. Protests like that now being made by the Ottawa merchants will at least have the effect of letting civic authorities see that the retailer who pays heavily for any privileges he may have is entitled to a fair chance to make a living.

MINISTER IN CHARGE OF PRISONS DEMANDS OFFICIAL INVESTIGATION

HON. H. C NIXON SAYS ESCAPE OF GARFIELD IS A CASE OF "ABSO LUTE NEGLIGENCE AND DISREGARD OF PRECAUTIONS."

TORONTO, May 27.—(Canadian Press.)—'I am strongly in favor of having an official investigation under oath?" said Hon. H. C. Nixon, Provincial Secretary and Minister in charge of the inspectorate of prisons and charities, to-day in reference to the escape of Norman Garfield from Woodstock jail.

"Without a doubt it is a case of absolute negligence and carelessness and utter disregard of the proper precautions," said Mr. Nixon. "I shall certaintly make strong representations to the Attorney General when I see him this afternoon."

BELIEVING GARFIELD IS HIDING IN TORONTO

HAMILTON SUSPECT ESCAPES

(From a Special Correspondent.)

HAMILTON, May 27.—The police are scouring the city for a man supposed to be Norman Garfield, said to have slept in the city quarry on the mountain last night. J. D. Armstrong, the watchman at the quarry, saw a man slinking from one of the shacks early this morning. When he called to him the unknown man turned and ran down the mountain side with the watchman giving chase. The watchman states that in a general way he answers the description of Norman Garfield, but could not be certain that it was he. Motor cycle police searched all roads leading from the city for the man described by the watchman, but without success. At noon to-day the Hamilton police received word from Georgetown that a man was arrested there who is thought to be Garfield.

TURNKEY SUSPENDED.

(From a Special Correspondent.)

TORONTO, May 27—Chief Turnkey John Robley, of Woodstock County Jail, from which Norman Garfield escaped, has been suspended by Sheriff William McGhee, it was announced this afternoon by the Sheriff.

Four O'clock Despatch. — Chief Melville explained that Garfield was walking along the railway track coming from the direction of Hamilton, when he was noticed by Appleby.

Garfield then attempted to bolt, and Appleby, who is a strapping farm laborer, sprang on him and pinned him to the ground.

Township Clerk Tracey then came to Appleby's assistance, and the prisoner was soon lodged in the Georgetown Jail.

When Dr. Ovidiu was called to Williams' bed this afternoon, the man drew a revolver, concealed in the leg, and shot the surgeon through the temple.

FINANCIAL AND MARKETS

WALL STREET.

NEW YORK, May 27. Canadian Press.) Dealings were dull with irregular price changes at the opening of to-day's stock market. The attendance of members on the floor of the exchange was unusually light, in anticipation of the impending protracted recess. Rails and oils were firm features, especially Chicago & Northwestern, St. Paul Preferred, Mexican and Pan-American Petroleums, General Asphalt and American Linseed, Motor, Tobacco, Sugar and Leather issues were lower by fractions to a point. Preliminary exchange quotations on London indicated a further reaction. Brokers looked for a continuance of yesterday's high money rate.

The market became more listless during the morning, but the usual leaders held their ground until shortly before noon when Rails and Steels began to decline one to two points. Marked heaviness also was shown by Studebaker, General Electric, Harvester, Sumatra Tobacco, Virginia-Carolina Chemical and Utah Copper, which showed losses of one to three points. Judge Gary's address before the American Iron and Steel Institute, in which he prophesied future prosperity while emphasizing existing labor conditions, excited considerable discussion. The violent decline in British exchange, amounting to six cents in pound was attributed to heavy selling in London. Call money opened at seven per cent.

The declaration of the regular Baldwin Locomotive dividend was followed by a one point rally in that stock. Otherwise, however, the incident exerted little or no influence. Oils, Motor, Tobacco, Food and Chemical shares extended early losses by 1 to 2 1-2 points.

Lower quotations were established in the final hour, the 7½ per cent. call money rate precipitating further selling of Rails, Steels, Oils and popular specialties. The closing

FOREIGN EXCHANGE.

NEW YORK, May 27.—(Canadian Press.) — Sterling exchange weak, demand 3.87 1-2; Canadian Dollars, 11 per cent. discount.

CHICAGO, May 27.— (Canadian Press.)—Although as a result of general rains, the wheat market to-day underwent a moderate decline, prices later scored a quick advance. Aggresisve buying on the part of houses with eastern connections had much to do with the sudden reversal. Besides, the strength shown by the corn market acted as a handicap on wheat bears. Opening prices, which ranged from 3-4 to 2c. lower were followed by a rise to well above yesterday's finish.

Decreased offerings from the country had a bullish effect on Corn. In addition, rains promised to delay arrivals. After opening unchanged to 5-8 higher, the market scored decided gains all around.

Oats hardened with other cereals, starting unchanged to 3/8c. lower, July 40 1/2 to 40 3/4 and then making a material upturn.

Lower quotations on hogs weakened provisions.

— Add Chicago Grain

Wheat prices closed nervous at the same as yesterday's finish to ¼c lower. May 1.66 3-4 to 1.67, and July 1.27¼ to 1.27 3-4.

Big shipping sales of late were the factor in preventing any sharp reaction in corn. The close was steady with July 64 5-8 to 64 3-4.

TORONTO, May 27—(Canadian Press.)—In listless trading prices on the Toronto Stock Exchange this morning, with one exception, registered only fractional fluctuations and transactions were extremely light.

Spanish River moved up one point from yesterday to 72 1-2 but at this figure the stock showed only a partial recovery of the loss sustained in recent trading. Riordon gained 1-2 at 19, Dominion Steel Corporation 1-4 at 31 1-4, while Brazilian and Canadian General Electric were down 1-8 and 1-4 respectively.

Is Austen Chamberlain as Great as His Impressive Looks

The Question of the Moment in Britain—New Unionist House Leader So Coldly Magnificent He Has Everybody Guessing —He Will Not Stoop to Competition With Anybody.

DULY re-elected to parliament the other day by the city of Birmingham, which has remained so faithful to his father's memory, Austen Chamberlain now assumes the leadership of the Unionist party in the British House of Commons. It was all managed with that quietness which is the characteristic expression of this man's temperament. Exactly as Talleyrand urged "No zeal!" upon his supporters, the motto of Austen Chamberlain is referred to by his critics in the London News as "No brilliance!"

It is no less characteristic of him that although his mastery of French is complete, he prefers the shield of an interpreter in diplomatic negotiation. His acquaintance with ancient and modern philosophy is worthy of a Bergson, but he never exploits it in Arthur Balfour's style. Few living politicians are more inveterate readers of the poets in various tongues, yet he scorns a quotation in the Asquithian manner. At Rugby and at Trinity College when he went up to Cambridge he distinguished himself in Latin and Greek and, like Lord Cromer, he has kept up his classical studies but he refrains from Mr. Balfour's enthusiasm for the Greek tragedians. It is generally agreed that Austen Chamberlain is perhaps the best educated man in the Commons, but he dreads nothing so much as the tag of "intellectual." He talks well because as a youth he took pains with his elocution, but under no circumstances can he be seduced into phrase-making or emotion. In his cool, scornful way, Austen Chamberlain prefers to abandon eloquence, wit, fine gesture and all that sort of thing to the Lloyd Georges and the Laborites. He would be shocked, it transpires from interpretations of his soul in English dailies, if he caught himself excelling anybody in anything.

Austen Chamberlain.

This frigidity of his is the man's armor and with it he drives Lloyd George, his official chief, to distraction and rouses all Celts to fury. Even those Americans who, according to the London Herald, are more English than the English, could not be as English as Austen Chamberlain is. The Celtic romanticism of British politics, the Celtic passion it has assumed, its floods of Celtic eloquence and its subjection to the spell of Celtic personality are responsible. Austen Chamberlain feels, for inefficiency everywhere, for extravagance, for confusion. There is too much Celtic brilliance in British public life and it is time for a return to Anglo-Saxon dulness. British politics is in need of a cold douche and a dry light after an orgy of language and color.

More Polished Than Father.

NOBODY paid much attention to this theory of the impending crisis when Mr. Chamberlain, in the capacity of "papa's boy"—his father having been the great Joseph Chamberlain of Birmingham—first emerged conspicuously as postmaster-general or even when he was first made chancellor of the exchequer. He was overshadowed in those days by the fame of his father, who was never seen in the Commons without his orchid and his monocle. The son adopted the monocle and it was assumed that he had taken over the father's radicalism with it. It was assumed that he would be rhetorical, like his father, and display eloquence and impatience and genius. In succeeding to his father's beautiful estate in Warwickshire, to his house in London and his position in society, Austen Chamberlain, despite that monocle, turned his back deliberately on the paternal traits of temperament although he reproduces in an amazing manner the parental physiognomy. The Manchester Guardian fears he has repudiated everything that was his father's except the fortune and the good looks.

That smooth, white face of Austen Chamberlain wears the curious resemblance to portraits of Pitt which was often remarked of Joseph himself but the son has an eye that glitters coldly instead of flashing with the father's fire. The father had a readiness in retort which, to the London Mail, seems lacking in the son. The father grew heavy with the years, but the son is light on his feet even in these late fifties, which he has attained without showing many lines in the face or losing much hair. Father and son are alike in placidity of facial expression and unruffled ease of bearing amid storms of invective, but Austen is obviously a much better bred man in the conventional sense than his more distinguished father. Joseph Chamberlain was a "provincial." He was thrice mayor of Birmingham, which he reformed and cleaned and lit until it was modern and he never escaped the parochialism of such a career. Austen Chamberlain is imperial, an international figure, European in a cosmoed, and altogether above the heads of those masses of whom his father made so much. Joseph Chamberlain sprang from the great middle class which bloomed in the Victorian period, but Austen Chamberlain married into an aristocracy after receiving the education of an aristocrat, and his intimacies are among the members of the most select circle in the world. His father was never happier than when among his people in Birmingham, but the son delights in smart luncheon parties at Chesterfield Gardens with the Duchess of Rutland and Lady Cunard and Lord Blackwood and Lady Curzon—all enthusiatic admirers of this very English gentleman, who is destined, they firmly believe, to be prime minister after the grand English tradition.

As a political leader he is aloof. He avoids intimacies with individuals. He shuns personal forms of allegiance. In manner genial, there is a failure on his part to advance towards familiarity. Nobody ever gets well acquainted with him. He listens with patience but never with expansion. His courtesy is exquisitely impeccable, but it stops short of confidential cordiality. There is no warmth, no self surrender. Hence he can be neither liked nor disliked, because the personality is too neutral, too inaccessible. The correctness of his conversation in accent and rhetoric has been likened to that of an unusually fine phonograph record.

Monacled and Immaculate

IT might be inferred from all this that Austen Chamberlain lacks popularity, that he must be distant and remote from his party in the style of the great Parnell. Such an inference would be wholly misleading. Austen Chamberlain renders himself adorable to his growing party in a style as new as it is characteristic. He is the one political leader who wants his followers to do all the shining, to enjoy all the applause, to make the great speeches, to revel in the loud applause and even to fill the public eye. He makes it his business to "spot" the clever man languishing unrecognized and to bring him forward—as a Tory Unionist, of course.

The Chamberlain temperament discloses itself most coldly to the London journals when this monocled and immaculate figure rises to speak in the Commons. Unlike Lloyd George Austen Chamberlain talks impersonally in a carrying voice that has no soaring Celtic notes, that never shows signs of weariness and that conveys even arithmetical totals and such words as Mesopotamia with a distinctness of utterance as piercing as it is pleasing. His ideas are composedly set forth in words that clarify his meaning instead of obscuring it and his speech unfolds itself in a strong and severe manner with the precision of a roll of paper in a mechanical piano, but never fatiguing the audience and never confusing a listener. Obviously he has got his facts well into his head. It is no less apparent that he is holding himself back, giving an impression of restrained power. He will neither let himself go nor rant, for he is too well bred, too correct, too English.

If it be true of Lloyd George that he improvises second-rate conceptions and hackneyed themes into tremendous emotional effects — a usual charge—Austen Chamberlain exemplifies the opposite capacity to reduce romantic political situations to prosaic reality. Nothing approaches the art with which he regularly dismisses a massacre in India with a quiet reference to adequate hospital facilities fortunately available through British efficiency for the relief of bleeding Hindus. "Fires in Ireland?" he will repeat coldly at question time. "Fires in Ireland?" A pause, "Yes—a few." How cool the tone! What detachment! This method in parliamentary debate has been summed up as an inevitable and necessary effort to prove that nothing of any importance has really happened at all—and, in effect, as the Manchester daily admits, nothing does seem to matter if Austen Chamberlain begins to talk about it. His monocle, his pointed collar and his unimpeachable tie and coat are part of the effect and when he has talked three hours amid uproar, it may be, or with much interruption, he is quite cool and not in the least concerned at the Celts he has infuriated and the Liberals he has angered.

The principal recreation of Austen Chamberlain, we learn from the London dailies, is social life and even in the best society he will not stoop to competition by trying to outshine anybody, to out-talk anybody or outdo anybody. "Is he greater than he looks or are his looks greater than he is?" Asking that question, a British military expert with a brilliant social position indicated the new leader of the Unionist party. There stood the magnificent Austen Chamberlain in what the French call frock and decorations as the great ones of the earth circled around him at a royal garden party. He was in aspect the most distiguished figure in all that gathering—clothes impeccable, hat and gloves in hand, monocle glistening in the sun. That question about him was put at a psychological moment and it made a tremendous hit because nobody knew the answer. It has become a conundrum popular in London society and there are guesses in disgruntled Liberal organs that Austen Chamberlain is but a smile on a mask, that his impressive head is hollow, that his self-effacement is born of dread of his own limitations, a realization that he lacks his father's force, his father's genius, his one claim to the consideration of mankind being the accident that he is papa's boy. All this will be found out at last, predicts the London News, from which we extract these impressions, but by the time it is all found out, Austen Chamberlain will be Prime Minister.

The Policeman's Cough

AT a recent dinner-party, Mr. F. G. Kellaway, M.P., the new British postmaster-general, told a story regarding an all-night sitting in the house of commons.

"I got home with the milk," he said, "somewhere about 7.15 on Thursday morning, after serving my country for a whole day and night. The policeman who is now on guard on my house eyed me suspiciously as I approached in a wearied way and said, 'Late this morning, sir.'

"'Yes,' I replied, 'rather late.'

"All that policeman did then was to give a significant kind of cough."

Mililonaire Tobacco King

WHEN Jas. B. Duke, tobacco king, was earning $50,000 a year and rapidly becoming known as the leader in the industry, he lived in a hall bedroom and ate his three meals a day from the counter of a dreary Bowery restaurant. When questioned as to why he did this he declared it was in part so that he could save every dollar and put it back into the business and partly because the grinding poverty of his youth had not been forgotten. When he was a boy, his father, who had lost everything in the civil war, was forced to take a job as a farmhand on a farm 30 miles from Durham, N.C. James and his three small brothers lived with their father in a shanty that permitted storm and cold to enter from all sides, and the four had to sleep on a single husk tick to keep warm. Their food often consisted of little more than a handful of parched corn. It was years after the war that the first ray of sunshine came. Some of the farmers that owed young Duke's father money from before the war began to pay him in tobacco. This was the start of the company that became in time one of the greatest corporations the world has ever known.

A LOWTHER STORY

MR. J. W. LOWTHER, retiring speaker of the British House of Commons, who is coming out to Canada to make the presentation of a speaker's chair to the house in Ottawa, will go down to history as the first speaker to call upon a woman M.P. to address the house. He has won golden opinions from all parties and has adorned his office from start to finish. His persuasive manner has prevented many a storm in the house, though it failed to mollify an obstinate old farmer many years ago.

Mr. Lowther was out canvassing during an election and asked the farmer for his vote. "Vote for you!" said the farmer, who had already promised his support in the rival camp. "Vote for you! I would sooner vote for the devil." "But supposing your friend doesn't stand," said the candidate, "will you give me your vote in that event?"

FIRST BUSINESS MAN AS SPEAKER

Chairman of British Commons Has Always Been Lawyer or Country Squire Till Now.

WHITLEY IN COTTON

He Is Also the First Nonconformist Speaker and First to Wear Glasses.

THE new speaker of the British House of Commons, John Henry Whitley, is a cotton spinner in business at Halifax, England. His appointment makes a break in an ancient tradition—the long line of country squires and lawyers who have invariably been elected to the chair—and for the first time the House of Commons of the greatest of commercial nations has as its speaker a man associated with trade.

Mr. Whitley will be not only the first manufacturer but the first Nonconformist to be elected speaker, says the Manchester Guardian.

Mr. Whitley is also a total abstainer and a non-smoker, says the Glasgow Herald.

Mr. Whitley is a familiar figure in the chair of the House of Commons. He has been seen there almost daily as deputy speaker during the past ten years.

He will look becoming in his robes. That is a very important point. Not the least of the qualifications of a successful speaker is comely personal appearance. Mr. Whitley has that cast of clear-cut features to which the wig lends additional impressiveness, and also that kind of voice which is so excellent a thing in one who presides over a great popular assembly—decisive, with an undertone of persuasiveness.

Mr. Whitley wears glasses, and a spectacled speaker has hitherto been unknown. But this should prove no bar to members in the game of "catching the speaker's eye." As chairman, Mr. Whitley was able to "spot" a member even in the shadows under the gallery.

It is a rare thing for Mr. Whitley to be stirred out of his placidity. His voice is always at the same even but penetrating pitch, and his manner always quietly resolute.

The speaker-elect made a notable little speech when he submitted himself to the Commons. He said among other things: "I care for the House of Commons, for its traditions and its history, for its record as the living instrument by which our fathers gained for us the liberties that we now enjoy. I care for it and believe in it as the instrument by which we and our children will build up a still fairer commonwealth. I will do my uttermost to maintain its traditions, its privileges, and its independence."

DOING nothing is equivalent to doing wrong.

Sir Gordon Howant

BECAUSE of his value to the British government in the House of Commons, Sir Gordon Hewart, reputed the most able attorney-general who ever held that post in England, was not able to take the post of Lord Chief Justice of England, vacated recently by the Earl of Reading. To Sir Gordon, as a matter of unwritten law and tradition, belonged the succession to the Lord Chief Justiceship.

LIPTON MISTAKEN FOR SHIP STEWARD

Does What He's Told and Takes Shilling Tip.

AT a recent dinner Sir Thomas Lipton in London told two stories of the difficulties of an international yachtsman who insists on wearing a yachting cap on all occasions.

"When coming away from America last year," he said, "I was preparing to sit down on a deck chair when a parson said: 'Look here, steward, I want a deck chair put in that corner, there.'

"I got a chair and placed it for him, when he said: 'Here's a bob (25 cents) for you. Bring Scotch.' I took the money."

Another time, at a French port, Sir Thomas sold a copy of a London newspaper for twopence. He told the story to his friend, Lord Dewar, boasting that he had made 100 per cent. on the transaction, but Dewar reminded him that in France English papers cost threepence, and that he had really lost a penny.

A Sister's Love

ANGELINA: "No, Edwin, I cannot marry you—you are too poor. But I love you with a sister's love. That is holier, purer, nobler!" (To little Jack, who enters unexpectedly): "Get out of this, you wretched little brat—always sticking your nose where you are not wanted or I'll tell ma, and get you a good whipping—yes, I will!"

CABINET IN RAGE NEARLY FIRE HAIG

Lloyd George and Curzon Flaming About an Interview He Gave.

UNWRITTEN HISTORY

It Was All Right in French, But Translated, Sounded Vainglorious.

THE British cabinet was once during the war in a very bad temper with General Haig and it was touch-and-go for a time whether the British commander-in-chief would be "fired." Major Neville Lytton tells about it in his illuminating book, on The Press and The General Staff.

"Mr. Lytton saw something of real fighting and the real fighting men before he accepted the post which ultimately widened into the control of all the press units attached to the British armies in France," says the Times. "He had served as a regimental officer, organized snipers, done intelligence work, and been wounded.

"The author had not long taken up his press work when an unfortunate episode occurred, which might (he thinks) have ruined not only him but a much greater man. He had secured an interview with Lord Haig for the French correspondents, but though the reports of it read well in the French papers the translations in England (as will be remembered) gave an unhappy impression of vaunting language. Mr. Lytton had to come to London and offer explanations to a very angry war cabinet. Things looked ugly, and on reviewing the whole business to-day Mr. Lytton asks: 'What would have happened if Lord Northcliffe had not upheld Haig? In my opinion Haig would have gone.'

"Major Lytton, who appears to have arranged the interview between Haig and a number of French correspondents, says that while the accounts given in the French papers were what was wanted, the English translators were too literal, and it appeared as though Haig had been boasting and vainglorious.

Premier in a Passion

"MINISTERS were so excited that Haig sent Major Lytton to London forthwith to explain to the cabinet what had happened.

"He found Mr. Lloyd George, he writes, in a towering passion. The interview must have been lively, for the author says:

"'Without delay he asked me to explain what had occurred, and I related to him what had happened. I mentioned to him also that the articles were destined for the French press, and that they had been censored no doubt accordingly, and that the translations which had appeared in the British press were ridiculous, as is often the case when French is translated too literally into English. The prime minister seemed unwilling to believe a word of what I said, and I, in turn getting very angry, very nearly left the room.'

'Major Lytton says he was shocked that anyone could so misinterpret the character of Haig.

"Lord Curzon now took it upon himself to become the 'advocatus diaboli'; he persistently called me 'Mr. Lytton,' ostentatiously emphasising the 'Mr.' He asked me why I had not censored the articles myself, and I said that I had received an order not to censor them; this reason I could see he thought was entirely inadequate.

"Luckily Mr. Arthur Balfour came to my rescue; he emphasized the points that I had made in more suave and parliamentary language, and his wisdom turned the opinion of the cabinet in the right direction.

"Sir William Robertson, it seems, said nothing during the meeting, but before dismissing Major Lytton he said: 'You see what I have to put up with every day.'"

England's Chief Justice

A RECENT portrait of Sir Alfred Tristram Lawrence, who was recently appointed Lord Chief Justice of Great Britain. Sir Alfred succeeded Earl Reading who resigned to accept the vice-royalty of India. Since 1904 held the post of judge of the high court of justice.

ONE PER CENT.

BORN in a cottage, and starting his career as a shop boy, Mr. Gordon Selfridge, the head of the great London department store, is now going to live in one of the most famous of London's great houses—Lansdowne House, which he has taken furnished.

The announcement brings to mind a story he told not long ago. A Scottish shopkeeper asked the head of a London store what profit they made.

"Oh, it varies a good deal," was the reply. "On some articles we'll make only five per cent., on others ten per cent., and on some up to twenty per cent."

"Twenty per cent.!" gasped the Scotsman, in amazement. "Mon, it's awful!"

"But don't you?" asked the Londoner.

"Nae sic luck!" exclaimed Sandy. "I can only mak' one per cent. I just buy a thing for one shillin' and I sell it for twa."

THE CONFESSIONAL: Uncensored Talks With Big Men About Themselves

No. 36—SIR JOSEPH FLAVELLE

By EMIL LONGUE BEAU

WHEN you talk with the baronet of Queen's Park, Oakville, the National Trust and the Grand Trunk, a phrase expressive of worshipful ambition recurs—"Resigned, submissive, meek."

This is said in no flippant style; for, as is frequently said by a man who worked under, and now sits on boards with him, Sir Joseph Flavelle is a Great Citizen—and he always says it with capitals in his voice. Sir Joseph is the mildest talking great citizen you ever hearkened to. His seriousness is becoming to one whose mother used to take him aside and pray over his moral character. He supplied the Canadian Club with this clue to his eminence when he came back from seeing the war over four years ago. His brother John D. has more bonhomie. He's serious, too; but in a more rotund sort of way. He has been a curler whom even age can scarcely cure. And any curler or any tamer man who has seen and heard the game, knows that curling does not conduce to excessive primness in articulation.

Sir Joseph may have curled; but if so, he has brought a most thoughtful penetration to the crises of the sport. He golfs occasionally; but doesn't keep his friends awake o' nights talking about his score. A malignant some years ago depicted him as snuggling up to culture. He may have had that jibe in mind when he began a conversation in his conservatory.

"Yes," he said, in answer to a suggestion that he is on the high road to make a new record as a director of the Grand Trunk, with a deputy minister of justice to help hold even the scales of staff executions, and to see that there are not too many reprieves on he road to Canadian National co-ordination. "Yes; though it's a job I never expected, and very much wished to refuse. But duty has a knack of playing policeman. You say 'Don't send me,' but you have to go. I was intending to write a book on 'The Art of Being Misunderstood' when I got Meighen's wire. Of course, I have had to put the literary project aside, and may have to wait till after my first run as one of King George's conductors. Perhaps I might summarize the Book That Won't by the remark, that Being Misunderstood is one of the Natural Arts, if you are an honest man, anxious only to render civic services that are their own reward.

"Judging by my wartime vicissitudes I must be an unrivalled genius in this uncoveted art. During an experience that brings one the white beard of a blameless life, one absorbs a certain amount of philosophy; so that it is not excruciating to find that you are not given unlimited credit for cleanliness of motive. But during the war I really think I got more than my share of that sort of thing. I don't complain about it, though I should be less than human if I didn't sometimes mention it. Probably no man has been more traduced in Canada in our time than I was in the midst of a war for which I was gratuitously working as hard as I ever worked to improve my family fortunes. Having been a newspaper proprietor I hope I can see the immediate cause of that cruelty in a kindly perspective; but it is true, all the same, that I was the victim of a newspaper man's blunder. You know how it was?"

"You mean the misunderstanding about the difference between gross and net profits?"

"Exactly. The Minister of Labor was issuing a report on the packing industry and the war. A gallery pet of his had an exclusive perusal of it. It set forth that the difference between what we paid for animals and what we received for bacon and dressed meats was so many millions. The reporter who got to the wires first represented the millions gross as if it were millions net. And as I had incautiously broken away from my habitual restraint in phraseology, when in talking with munitioneers in Toronto, and, in comparing the necessities of the war with the chances of making profits, had said 'To hell with profits'—well, the hue and cry that was raised was something to be remembered. Our company had offered to fill contracts for the War Office on a net margin of one sixteenth of a cent per pound. Kitchener wouldn't accept it, and we did business as other firms did."

"Why didn't you give the Red Cross the difference between the one sixteenth of a cent and the five-sixteenths you actually made?"

Sir Joseph looked at me through his spectacles and a regretful smile played around his moustache.

"You may not think so," he said, "but it was never thought of. And as far as I am concerned, I did nothing in the business after I went to the Imperial Munitions Board in 1915. And, of course, it would be futile to try to explain to the general public all the complexities of the packing business."

"No doubt," I said; "but since you have been so good as to talk thus much will you answer me a question that is puzzling a family that still lists good Wiltshire among the forbidden fruits?"

"If I can, with pleasure," was the reply; "though I'm not interested in the bacon business any more. What are you curious about?"

"Well," I said, "I'm afraid if I put what is in my mind into a question it will be like some of the inquiries McKay and Hellmuth ask the witnesses at the radial inquiry. But here—how is the spread between what the farmer gets for his hog, and what the housewife pays for bacon to be explained?"

"Costs of curing and—" said the ready baronet.

"Hold on a minute," I interrupted. "I haven't put my mental difficulty. 15 years ago, when we started housekeeping, my wife bought back bacon for eighteen cents a pound. Hams were about the same. Live hogs were, I think, anywhere between seven and ten dollars a hundredweight. At seven dollars the packer and retailer, between them, received eleven cents a pound for their services, out of which they paid expenses and made profits. Now, I see hogs, fed and watered, are quoted at ten dollars and a quarter per hundredweight. The spread of a maximum of eleven cents between farmer and fryer has become a spread of anything up to fifty cents. I would be thankful to know if the packer's and retailer's costs have gone up several hundred per cent. per cured pound. Satisfy me on that point, and I may make a heroic lady resigned, submissive, meek to the breakfast table fate she has endured for several years."

"You had better see Fox about that," Sir Joseph replied; and I apologized for having so much to say. We didn't return at once to our bacon. For a chance remark of mine about his brother put him on another tack.

"My brother, J. D.," he said, "who is getting out of liquor control just as I am going to face the moral responsibility of carrying smuggled liquor in the king's name, is the head of our family. In his genial way, he stands on that dignity. His home is in Lindsay; and he spends part of his time correcting the impression of many people that I came from Lindsay—that, you see, is one of the small things in which one is liable to be misunderstood.

"We were raised on father's farm near Peterboro, and I started in the provender business there. I came to Toronto thirty-four years ago, and have had something to do with putting the Canadian packing profession on a stabler basis than it was before that time. For a long time we had to work on very small margins. For bacon alone, we used to figure that if during the year we made ten cents net on every exported side of bacon we were doing reasonably well. Danish competition was very keen. Some of our home competitors have said it was only our superior organization that enabled us to flourish where they almost starved."

"Starved on their own bacon?"

"If you care to put it that way. If farmers and their Sons, who fifteen years ago were assailing us had realized that we took a hog from them and killed, cured and marketed the product three or four thousand miles away for a tiny little um, they would have seen that we rendered a service to them at an extraordinarily low cost. But I'm getting back to a subject I thought we had finished with. I told you I came to Toronto in 1887. It wasn't all plain sailing from the start. G. A. Cox was a good friend to every Peterboro man who went to him. I don't mind telling it now; but there was a time when my anticipations of discharging a bank credit were not realized; and I was in danger of a squeeze. I would have got Grizzly the hug but for Cox. 'No,' he said, 'don't shut down on him, I know this man's character, and we had better extend his credit.' It was done, and here I am, glad to say a word for a man who also was imperfectly understood. People who suppose making a fortune is as easy as falling off a log don't know the heartaches, disappointments, obstacles, and close shaves that come with it. Ability to accumulate wealth is all very well, but you must have something more than mere ability to compute interest, if you want to build a business.

"What would you call the primary moral virtue in making a fortune?"

"I don't know; there are so many. Ask me something simpler, please."

"To be very crude, then, will you estimate what you could have made, in terms of cash, if the labor you have put into public service like the General Hospital and the Munitions Board, had been devoted to money-making?"

"Why, old man, that's like your excellent suggestion about our giving four-fifths of our war-time bacon profits to the Red Cross—I've never thought of it; I dare say lots of people who seldom lift a finger for anything they are not paid for, imagine that a man like me does nothing for nothing. Believe me, I have tried to render service to my generation without ostentation, and without reward; including campaign funds."

"Oh! campaign funds?"

"Certainly. I'm a Conservative; but I subscribed—never mind how much—to the Liberal campaign fund at the Ontario election in 1914."

"Prohibition?"

"Precisely. And it surely isn't much of a secret that I have always backed my political convictions with more than prayers. You are too old a man not to know that political campaign fund audits and vouchers are like death—they are swallowed up in victory, and they have no sting in defeat. But, though I have done what I have believed to be my duty I have never sought to influence governments on that account. There was a malicious rumor that after I returned from the front in December, 1917, on the same ship as Sir Thomas White, I was intriguing with him for a national government of which Sir Robert Borden would not be a member. It was a piece of impure imagination. White and I never discussed the subject. I believed earnestly in the necessity for a national government; and seriously considered whether, the munitions work being in pretty good shape, I ought not to go forth to develop public opinion that way. But, having seen so much of the art of being misunderstood, and having faith in the Providence that was over-ruling our domestic events, I refrained. Anything more?"

"What do you anticipate as the result of your Grand Trunk directorate?"

"Misunderstanding."

"And when that is dissipated?"

"Another dose of the same medicine?"

"And then?"

"Recognition that duty was done, of which my family may hear. By that time I shall probably be dead to the world."

He is on the high road to make a new record as a director of the Grand Trunk.

The reader will not take too literally the observations of leading men about themselves recorded by Mr. Longue Beau, but will understand that they are what the speakers would be likely to say confessionally.

Northcliffe Learns

AN amusing anecdote concerning Lord Northcliffe is told by Mrs. Stuart Menzies in "Modern Men of Mark."

Some time ago a child was run over and killed by a motor car the driver of which disappeared.

Lord Northcliffe offered a reward of £100 for the arrest of the inhuman chauffeur, only to discover that it was his own brother's car.

Soon after this (says Mrs. Menzies) a girl was murdered by an unknown assassin.

A friend of Lord Northcliffe asked if he were going to offer a reward again.

"Well," he replied, his eyes twinkling, "I think I'll wait and find out first whether any of my relatives were out on that particular day."

ONLY ONE MISSING OF 19 STOLEN CARS

OTTAWA, May 16.—Nineteen automobiles, all told, have been stolen in Ottawa since January 1 and all but one of these cars has been recovered by the Ottawa police. It is a peculiar fact that the one missing car, a Cadillac, was stolen early in the morning of January 1, and has not been traced yet.

The police records show that four automobiles were stolen in January, one in February, three in March, ten in April, and one in May to date. All of these cars, with the one exception, have been recovered within a short time after the theft occurred.

The Ottawa police officials have worked out a special plan for the apprehension of automobile thieves and the plan has proved highly effective. In fact, an automobile stolen in Ottawa last year was recently recovered in Montreal so that only four out of about 45 autos taken in Ottawa during 1920 remain lost.

The local department appreciates the co-operation of the newspapers in reporting the loss of automobiles because the press reports frequently lead to the discovery of a stolen car which has been left stranded on the wayside. The officials desire publicity with regard to car thefts because the newspaper accounts complete the "system" which has been worked out for the capture of the thieves and the recovery of cars.

It is pointed out that the Ottawa plan works out 24 hours faster than the system used by the Toronto Police Department. The local plan is comparatively costly but its effectiveness more than offsets the departmental expense. Within an hour or two after the reporting of a car theft, every police department from Montreal to Niagara Falls and Windsor is notified of the loss, together with identification details. Most of the cars, however, are found quite close to the city, and the police frequently discover some remarkable clues which lead to their recovery.

MAN HAS SPOKEN AND GIRLS ARE NOW LETTING OUT HEMS OF THEIR SKIRTS

Chicago.—The reason girls dress in narrow knee length skirts was revealed recently.

The dressless sex—curious man—sits hidden behind the lingerie counter and pulls the string that regulates the length of milady's skirt.

Visits to Chicago's greatest style-setting stores today showed that men design the styles, even to the most minute detail and that girls have very little to say as to what they wear.

For instance, Lucille, one of the firms that has much to do in originating styles, was visited.

"May we interview Lucille?" the girl behind the hairpin counter was asked.

Lucille was introduced. Lucille wore a salt and pepper suit. Lucille smoked a cigar. Lucille was a man.

T. J. Dugan, alias Lucille, has much to do in setting the styles that shock the nation.

These are the styles, according to the man who helped create them.

"The ridiculously narrow and atrociously short skirt is gone where the woodbine twineth and I sincerely hope it will not be revived until dear old Gabriel blows his trumpet.

"The sleeveless and extremely decollete evening gown is unfortunately but unquestionably, popular and one might venture to say that as evening gowns, they are wonderful bathing suits. Nevertheless, there are some women who remain within the bounds of the dignified and still wear beautiful, yet conser-atively designed evening gowns. New evening gowns are eight inches from the floor.

"Walking or street skirts are ten inches from the sidewalk.

"The trend is downward. All new styles have longer skirts."

Girls, man has spoken; let the hems out of your skirts.

GOD'S MESSENGERS.

From the presence of God, in His kingdom of light,
Obediently winging, their swift earthward flight,
On missions of mercy, help, comfort and cheer
They come, when no other assistance is near,
When by sorrows cast down, or by troubles dismayed,
Those Heaven-sent messengers, lend us sure aid.
In doubt, in perplexity, theirs to direct,
From peril, impending, to shield and protect.

Where the sly tempter, clad in angelic array,
With false, wily words, flatters, but to betray,
In unguarded moment, the weak soul to win,
From virtue's fair height, down to deep depths of sin,
Although viewless as air, superb hosts of the sky
On tireless duty, are patrolling nigh,
To ward off the assaults, of our fell, ghostly foe
While nought of dire danger, we mortals may know.

Yet not only from unseen, Celestial Spheres,
For our help and defence, timely succor, appears,
The Father Almighty, in wisdom, may will,
His purpose, by frail earthly means to fulfill,
And betimes, to our rescue, instead deign to send (Albeit unconsciously) neighbor or friend;
By their presence alone, to foil, some ambuscade
Around us, by the enemy's artifice, laid.

One comes, with kind word, or bright sunshiny smile,
A sore, tried, tempted soul, from despair to beguile,
Or a warm hand clasp's magical power to impart
Hope, courage, and faith, to a despondent heart,
And one, with cheery greeting, he little might think
Save a brother, care driven, from ruin's black brink;
So if spirits immortal, at God's high behest,
Are sent to the aid of His children distrest.

Why should not we likewise, be sent forth unaware
By kind Heaven commissioned, their blest task to share,
For beyond peradventure, the Omniscient Lord,
To His own, sure deliverance knoweth how to afford,
And, what far reaching issues, undreamt may ensue,
From the simplest, most trifling acts which we do
The clear light of eternity, only will show,
And how much to e'en mortal ministrations, we owe.

ANOTHER SCREEN STAR IN OFFING.

Mrs. Anne Stillman Has $100,000 to Go Into Movies.

NEW YORK, May 27. — Mrs. Anne Urquhart Stillman, defendant in the Stillman divorce action, has eceived an offer of $100,000 a year to appear in a series of motion pictures, and is considering the offer, it became known to-day.

The offer was made within the past few days by a person representing one of the large film corporations, and calls for a stipulated number of productions.

Mrs. Stillman is said to have had some success as an amateur actress, and the offer is said to have appealed to her for several reasons, both from an inclination to follow the example of other women in society and become a screen star, and from a desire to obtain a large sum of money from another source than her husband.

It was also admitted frankly by the correspondent's informant that Mrs. Stillman realised that she had in this offer another weapon against Mr. Stillman, to whose desire to avoid further publicity has been attributed his recent offer to settle the suit. If Mrs. Stillman would accept the offer, it was said, the company employing her would undoubtedly plaster the country from one end to the other with billboard advertising, perhaps using the name of Mrs. James A. Stillman as that of their new star.

It was recalled in this connection that this identical course was followed by Mrs. Stillman's mother, Mrs. Cora Urquhart Patter, after her separation and divorce from her husband. Mrs. Potter, who won applause as an amateur actress and for her recital of a poem called "Ostler Joe," went on the stage under the management of the late Harry Miney, and was advertised everywhere as Mrs. aJmes Brown Potter, considerably to the discomfiture of Mr. Potter's relatives.

SHORTER SKIRTS ENDANGER MEN.

Cannot Watch Traffic and Silk Hosiery.

CHICAGO, May 27.—Short skirts may lessen the number of accidents to women, but they increase injuries to men.

This was the reply made by Chicago reformers to the claim of Frederick Rex, city statistician, that short skirts had reduced the number of accidents to women.

Men are so interested in watching women wearing short skirts that they fail to keep an eye out for their own safety, the reformers contended. Figures showing there were more accidents to men in the last year than the average indicated their contention was correct, they said.

In 1916, when skirts were long, 467 women were injured alighting from street cars, but in 1920 only 302 were hurt.

In boarding street cars 432 were injured in 1916, compared with 203 in 1920.

An increase in the total number of men injured was reported in 1920 over 1916, which was blamed by reformers as due partly to short skirts worn by women.

"Watch the men going along the street to-day," said Arthur B. Farwell, "and you will see that half of them have their eye on some woman with a short skirt. They cannot protect themselves from street accidents."

GOLF BAG HAS BITTEN 1,777,400 SPORTSMEN IN EIGHTY COUNTRIES

How many golf players are there in the world? This is not one of the questions belonging to the Edison group nor has it rationship to the How-Old-Is-Anne interrogation. It is a question that John G. Anderson, writing in the current issue of The American Golfer, propounds and answers. His reply, based upon several years' investigation is that there are approximately 1,577,400 golfers, in the world who belong to clubs. He estimates that, in addition, there are some 200,000 more "casuals", he calls them, players who follows the ball around over public courses, making a grand total of 1,777,400 men, women, boys and girls who play the game.

Golf has its followers in eighty countries of the word and the total number of golf courses is approximately 2,258. The United States leads in clubs and memberships with 2,750 rocognizd organizations and 825,000 members.

SPORT COMMENT

Jockeys told a story at the Jamaica track of how a fellow found a new system to beat the races at a recent meeting at which they rode. He didn't use a pad and pencil to worry his brain over the number of strides a thoroughbred took while running a mile, neither did he bribe any jockey or trainer. His system was much easier and much more effective and remunerativ, and didn't cost any money or worry. He simply filled his pockets with stones, went to the three-eights pole, hid in the deep grass until a race was on, then slid over to the rail and pelted all the horses and jockeys who were in front or near the horse he played.

For three days this system worked well for him and badly for the jockeys. After every race one or more jockeys complained to the stewards that they had been struck with a stone. The first few complaints brought only a perfunctory investigation because the officials believed the lads were struck by stones hurled in the air by the flying horse. But when the complaints continued, a thorough investigation was ordered. The first day Pinkertons, stationed around the track, reported that only a few negro hostlers stood near the three-eighths pole, and they did no throwing. But still the jockeys continued to complain. More detectives were put on the job, and on the third day they found "their man." They watched him for three races, and saw him hurl the stones. They caught him and brought him to the jockeys' room for identification.

The jockeys recognized him, but his friends probably didn't five minutes later. As he was brought into the room, Richcreek, who had been struck in the stomach that day, yelled "That's him!" and immediately a score of riders and their valets were "working" on him with the butt ends of their whips. Despite the efforts of the detectives to save him, he received a thorough thrashing. When brought before the officials, he said he was a Greek, that he lived in Windsor, and, after losing half a dozen bets, decided he could win back his money if he could knock several jockeys out of their saddles in each race. He said his system was working splendidly, and that if the jockeys weren't a bunch of squealers he would have had all of his losses back in another day.

Among the jockeys struck and painfully injured were Richcreek, Butwell, Warrington and Hinphy.

TO-MORROW'S GAME WILL BE HARD FOUGHT BATTLE

CAN PETES BEAT OSHAWA'S NEW PITCHING ACE? IS THE QUESTION FANS ARE ASKING THEMSELVES—SOME BASEBALL GOSSIP.

Fans from all over the district will be here to-morrow for the Oshawa-Peterborough Central Ontario League game at Riverside Park for the battle is regarded as one of the tit-bits of the season.

The Oshawa crew are very cocky over their prospects and are counting on wiping out the sting of the defeat handed them on their own grounds by the Petes last year, by trimming Jake Solomon's athletes here to-morrow. They are confident that their new pitching phenom, Dainty, who won the decision over Freddy Goyer on Tuesday, can turn the trick against last year's champs. "The bigger they are the harder they fall," expresses the Petes' view of the situation and the home brigade, while they realize they have a battle on their hands, are not dismayed by the Oshawa propaganda. They beat Freddy Goyer twice and Miller, the Hamilton twirler once, last year, and they figure that if this Dainty person has anything on that pair of birds he is wasting his time in an amateur circuit.

To-morrow's game is called for 3 o'clock sharp and little time will be wasted in the opening ceremonies. Umpire Rosevear, of Port Hope, will be in charge of the battle, and most of the Central Ontario League officials will be here.

The Oshawa line-up to-morrow will be about as follows: Dainty, p., Belding c., Wilson 1b., Rowden 2b., Gifford s.s., Fair 3b., Dobson, Patton, Legge, outfield.

The Peterborough squad will be: McElroy, L. Rose, Harrison, Swanston, Ross, R. Rose, Holyman, Cherrett, Murray, Lowe, McCarney, Pinnette, Guerin and Manager Solomon.

R. Fair, last year with Oshawa, is playing the outfield for Port Hope. The latter have also Moyce, the Newcastle boy who played short for them two years ago. He is a snappy infielder.

Herb. Workman, of Lindsay, is giving Dick Turpin a battle for the honor of being the oldest player in the Central Ontario circuit. But at that Workman is a youngster compared with Turpin, who was playing senior ball before most of the Peterborough team were born.

Tyson, the Cobourg catcher, hails from Rochester, and about all he seems to have brought with him on the ferry was a pair of shin guards and a swelled head. He still had the shin guards after Tuesday's game.

Roy Cherrett is the Everett Scott of the Peterborough team. He is the only member of the squad who has been in every game the Peterborough gang has played in the Central League, starting with May 24th, two years ago.

Cobourg should endeavor to secure more police protection at ball games and keep the crowd off the playing field. There was hardly any of right field clear in Tuesday's game.

In answer to "Fan," "Hap" Harrison did not make a home run in the Central League last season. The only homers made in the League by Peterborough batters were contributed by Ray Rose in the Cobourg game here, and by Micky Murray in Oshawa.

NOTICE

Do you realize that you are caught in a net, flung out for you by Destiny, and that no matter what you do, or where you turn, there is no way of escape? You are rolled about like a cork in a storm at sea—just as helpless to save yourself.

That statement is made on the authority of O. Henry, one of the wisest, humanest, oddest of American writers, and forms the theme of his famous story, 'Roads of Destiny Channing Pollock, who made a stage adaption of the story which has now been screened, maintains the same theory.

You may dispute O. Henry, refusing to believe that you are a puppet with no power to shape your life, or you may entirely agree with him. In either case you will be entirely entertained and enthralled by the screen version of "Roads of Destiny" which comes to the Allen theatre on Monday. It will arouse your emotions and keep you on the edge of your seats through its four episodes in each of which the star Pauline Frederick, is seen in a different role, in a different part of the world—yet in each case being the same character.

SOMETHING HE LIKED HAD TO BE USED FOR "RUM HOUND."

One of the funniest portions of "Going Through the Rye," the latest of the two-reel comedies featuring Boby Vernon and called the "cleverest farce since Prohibition," at the Allen Theatre to-day and Saturday, is supplied by a real "rum hound." The plot centres around the fact that a rival presents Vernon with a disguised bottle of liquor on his wedding day, and when the bottle is accidetnally broken the groom-to-be's clothes are impregnated with the odour. Then the Prohibition agents get on his trail, using a dog to "smell out" the offender.

Audiences will wonder at the cleverness of the dog in following the trail, merely by getting an occasional whiff of the now forbidden beverage, for the dog is constantly on Vernon's heels. But they will be surprised that it was not liquor at all that leads the canine on the chase. All the time Vernon carried a package of savoury liver in the tails of his coat to induce the necessary pursuit.

The picture is said to include the most unique ceremony in motion pictures. It occurs after Vernon has handcuffed himself to the bride to prevent losing her, and the knot is finally tied by the police sergeant.

Romance with a capital R is holding the screen at the Allen Theatre this week, with Tom Moore injecting the romance with all the finished art he commands. "Made in Heaven" is the title of the Goldwyn picture, in which Mr. Moore is presented as a city fireman, with an invention up his sleeve and wild dreams surging in his brain. One of his dreams centres about a much-sought-after young lady whose main object in life seems to be to escape the attentions of a rich idler. In this quandary she encounters the fireman and romantically tells him her troubles and asks his advice. Like the gentleman he is, the fireman suggests that she marry him; and being an extremely romantic young lady, she does. With her, it is a way out of a dilemma, not a grande passion—at first. The lady's efforts are then divided between keeping hr husband and taming him. Tom Moore, as the husband, and Helene Cradwick as the wife, provide rich comedy in the screen version of this William Hurlbut story. Molly Malone is also a member of an excellent supporting cast.

AT THE CAPITOL.

The canaries that live in the pretty blue wicker cages in the Capitol balcony corridor are going to have rather a hard time of it for the next few days. One of them must be possessed of a somewhat jealous disposition. After Mr. Thornburg had finished his imitations of the thrush and the jay and the robin, and the sweet, high trills that sounded like a canary in a sun-filled morning cage, the little bird in the balcony started in, and his piping notes sounded like a bird obligate through the gay little song by the two performers that followed. A saxaphone duet and a lovely harp solo, accompanying a pretty, clear voice from a lady in a scintillating costume of rose and gold completed the Musical Thornburg act, which brought forth repeated encores from an appreciative audience.

The Pathe Review was as interesting as ever, the serial just as exciting and thrilly, and the Mack Sennett comedy, "Fresh From the City" was very funny. Anna Sewell's story of "Black Beauty", the good-tempered horse, has been rounded out and finished off by the addition of the "indoor" element in a very attractive tale of love and intrigue, which ends up with an exciting race between the rivals for the girl, and "Black Beauty" wins, of course. This is a tale of the days of curls and pantalettes, and the shy, sweet madens who "trembled with fear at his frown", somewhat o a relief after our orgy of "vamp" stuff, and through it all is the tale of the horse immortalized in the old tale. Sweet and interesting and exciting in spots the story of the black horse with the white-splashed forehead has been most attractively filmed.

SCOTS SOCCER TEAM DEFEATS HAMILTON 6-0

VISITORS MORE THAN LIVED UP TO THEIR REPUTATION.

HAMILTON, May 27 (Canadian Press).—Giving an exhibition of soccer that thrilled nearly 8,000 spectators, the touring Scots defeated Hamilton's all-star team by the score of 6 to 0 last night.

The visitors more than lived up to their reputation of being the greatest aggregation of players that ever cross the ocean.

FRENCH OBJECT TO GERMANS AT NEXT OLYMPIAD

NEW YORK, May 27.—International politics may put the Olympic games in the scrap heap when the committees get together in Lausanne early next month to select the site for 1924 games.

Germany looms up as the stumbling block that may split the nations, according to word reaching here from the other side.

France, which seems to be the favorite now in the race for the next world games, has come out with the unqualified assertion that she will not permit Germany to compete and will not allow her athetes to enter the games if the Germans are put back in the good graces of the committee.

England is also opposed to the reinstatements of the Germans.

It is understood that the Germans, who were to have had the games in Berlin in 1914, are preparing to have their case pleaded by some of the neutral nations during the war and that they already have enough votes lined up to carry their objective of the American committee remains out of the controversy.

Belgium also has decided anti-German leanings, but many of the smaller nations, who were not in the big conflict and who have equal votes with the big Allied powers are not opposed to meeting the Germans in track and field competition.

COMRADES LOST TO THE G.W.V.A.

In a soccer fixture, that in contrast with the sparkling Gordon Cup tie game on Victoria Day was a tame affair, the G.W.V.A. defeated the Comrades 4 to 1.

LACROSSE NOTES

The juniors are requested to turn out in uniform on Tuesday evening. Johnnie Sutherland reports a good practice last night at Central Park. Lebar, Ranger, Collins, Cowan, Brown, Johnston and a string of others are all promising material. Some of the junior O.H.A. team are taking up lacrosse and will find that it is the summer counterpart of their winter game.

The intermediates and juniors will work out together at Central Park some evening next week. It has not been decided how the two teams will be arranged, but the intention behind this practice is to give the youngsters as much experience as possible.

This probably should appear in the baseball column, but it carries a certain interest anywhere. "Billy" Rudkins, contrasting the transportation facilities for the ball teams as compared with the difficulties in his youth, recalled one trip to Campbellford on the 24th of May. It was before the Belleville branch of the G.T.R. was built. The old Pine Grove team that played where the Armouries and Collegiate now stand had to make the journey over the highways. Most of the ball team were at a moulders' dance until 4 o'clock in the morning of the 24th when they set out with a team of horses for Campbellford. Their conveyance broke down at Westwood and they had to trudge the rest of the way through Hastings, anywhere from 15 to 20 miles, arriving in Campbellford after two o'clock. Without any rest or refreshment the Pine Groves went into the game and won it. Their return trip was made with a relay of horses. The team arrived home late that night, and Mr. Rudkins' recollection is that they were none the worse for an experience that would scarcely be acceptable to a ball team of today.

CHAMPION OARSMAN AND CHAMPION BAILIFF—John J. Ryan, of Toronto, one of the greatest athletes Canada ever produced, as he looked when he reached the pinnacle of fame as champion oarsman of America. Inset is a photo of Mr. Ryan as he is to-day, the world's champion bailiff, with a record of prisoners handled and mileage travelled greater than any other man of similar calling.

HUSTLERS WON LAST GAME OF THE SERIES

FORTUNE HAD TWO BAD INNINGS AND GAVE WAY TO BOEHLING IN SEVENTH.

TORONTO, May 27.—It is not on record just what Captain Eddie Onslow said to Gary Fortune as he glared across at him in the dressing-room about 5.15 yesterday afternoon, but it likely ran something like this: "You are a great pitcher sometimes, Gary, but how you do blow at times. When you do, you generally blow yourself right out of a ball game. This was one of the days when you were good and bad all in the same afternoon."

Fortune hurled for the Leafs in the final game with Rochester yesterday, and the tilt ended 10 to 3 for the Hustlers. Fortune was in the box six and two-third innings, and during five sessions of that time he didn't allow a man to reach first base, or come near it.

But what good was all that fine heaving when Stallings' crew scored enough runs in the rest of the time to win the old ball game. They counted three in the fourth, and three more while Gary was in there in the seventh. With two out in this frame, Onslow sent him to the showers and called "Lefty" Joe Boehling in from the bull pen. Joe retired the side, got past the eighth with just a triple being nicked off his delivery, and that man being left stranded on third, but in the ninth the Hustlers went on the rampage again and scored four more runs, just ten for the day, against the Leafs' three.

LAKEVIEWS AND BANKERS AT SIX

Lakeviews with a chance to mix things up in the Juvenile series' standing, will endeavour to stop the Bankers at Riverside Park this evening. Shaughnessy gave a fine performance aginst St. Peter's on the holiday, and he should be in good form to work against the financiers Parrington or Turner will heave for the Bankers.

The standing in the series is:—

	Won	Lost	To Play
Generals	2	1	3
Bankers	2	1	3
Lakeviews	1	2	3
St. Peter's	1	2	3

TEAM SELECTED FOR CANADIAN WOOLLENS

The Canadian Woollens will put the following team in the field against the C.G.E., football team at the Oval to-morrow afternoon, McFadden, goal, Cridland and Chambers, backs, Frost, McMillan and Roberts, half backs Beard, H. Jones M. Shaw, J. Shaw and E. Jones.

JUNIOR FOOTBALL

Last night the Junior Comrades defeated the South End Juniors in a practice game by 4—0. The Junior Comrades challenge any junior team of 16 years or under in Peterboro to a friendly game to be played at the Exhibition grounds.

BARRIE'S FAIL TO SHAKE JINX

WESTCLOX WINNERS IN MERCANTILE LEAGUE BY 9 TO 3.

Barrie's, with a much strengthened line-up, failed to break into the win column in their game with Westclox at Riverside Park last evening. The Jinx still pursues the fur-trimmers. Westclox won handily by the score of 9 to 3 by clouting the ball, and taking advantage of the misplays that Barrie's threw into the game at critical stages.

Al. Doughty was touched up for a dozen scattered hits, only four of them earning runs. Barrie's got five safeties off Clare Wolff, who went through the contest with a lame arm.

The brand of ball was a big improvement over former Mercantile League engagements. Thirnbeck pulled off a nice running catch on and there were two double plays.

The box score:

GEORGE STREET TENNIS CLUB

At the annual meeting of the tennis club of the George street Methodist Church, the following officers were elected for the ensuing year:

Hon. Pres., Rev. Mr. Young.
Pres., Clarence McKee.
1st Vice-Pres., Chas. Elliott.
2nd Vice-Pres., Miss Eva Outram.
Sec.-Treas., Miss Eva Fusee.
Management Committee — Mrs. Smalley, Misses Elliott, Higgins, Saxby, Messrs. C. S. Thompson, J. E. Smith, T. Miller, T. Shields.

The yearly report was encouraging. Much interest was taken in the popular tennis sport last year, as was shown by their well used courts at the Nicholls Oval. The club is looking forward to a successful season of sport this summer.

The courts are now ready for use. The date for the opening tea, to be held in the near future, will be announced later.

LACROSSE NOTES

The Junior lacrosse has some promising material to make a team from, Ranger, Foley, Miller and O'Connel of the junior O.H.A.

Brown, star half-back for the P.C.I. Rugby team and Johnston, the junior school champion and winner of junior road race. Cole, the winner of Senior Road Race and star half-miler, while LeBarr in goal looks fit for the Intermediates.

At a meeting held in the Y.M.C.A. last night at 8 o'clock. It was decided that as there were only three teams in the junior section it would be better to play a double schedule if the team's finance were satisfactory and that as Thursday afternoon and evening seemed to be clear it would be best to have the games then. Green seems to be the only color possible for sweaters as all other conspicuous colors were held by other teams. Harry Tudhope, with a few members of the local club, will motor to Hastings on Saturday to attend the meeting to draw up the schedule.

It is hoped that the P.A.A. will take charge of the local Junior team.

BASEBALL

The Centrals won last night from the South Centrals by a score of 11-4. Thornton pitching for Centrals and Gandy catching. Johnson did well a first base. Umpire Alex. Hay.

GEORGE M'FARLANE'S COLORS FIRST IN FEATURE EVENT AT WOODBINE.

TORONTO, May 27.—The running of the Connaught Cup under handicap conditions fashioned for three-year-olds and upwards at a mile and a sixteenth was offered as the stellar attraction at the Woodbine yesterday afternoon.

George MacFarlane's six-year-old son of Jim Gaffney-Viola B, Lucky B, was returned the winner after a drive over J. K. L. Ross' Milkmaid, with her stable companion, King Thrush, in the third position.

The race was for the bona-fide property of Canadian owners resident in Canada, and was enhanced by a challenge cup presented by Their Royal Highnesses the Duke and Duchess of Connaught.

Cooke, Pres.; F. Sutcliffe, Secy.

ALL IS READY FOR ANNUAL ASSEMBLY

CHURCH UNION BIG QUESTION BEFORE PRESBYTERIANS AGAIN.

TORONTO, May 27.—(Canadian Press.)—Arrangements have practically all been completed for the forthcoming general assembly of the Presbyterian church of Canada to be held at Toronto commencing Wednesday, June 1. The main sessions will be held at St. James Square Presbyterian church, but owing to lack of space in the church, committee meetings will be held in the School of Pharmacy, just adjoining the church.

Church union, it is expected, will be the subject of extended discussion after having been put on the shelf since prior to the outbreak of war. The first of the delegates are expected to arrive in the city on Monday next and the Assembly itself will extend over the week at least.

The committee renewed the annual membership of the city in the Hydro-Electric Railway Association last night, and moved that the fee of $60 be paid.

The Utilities Commission were asked to make as much progress as possible with a plan for lighting Central and Victoria Parks with lamps on reinforced concrete standards. A request was made to the Hydro-Electric Power Commission that children under 10 years of age in the street cars on Sunday for half fare. The committee agreed to the suggestion of the Commission that the Sunday street car service be operated till the end of September.

Simplicity makes the best photoplay if "Black Beauty" is to be taken as a sample. The story is one that may be enjoyed by old and young alike. It presents a phase of life familiar to all and is the type of story that is long remembered. The book lived for over forty years and today occupies a place among the best sellers. The picture will live longer than the book.

ANGLICAN LAYMAN'S ASSOCIATION.
A most enthusiastic and representative meeting of laymen from the outlying parishes and from the city churches was held last night in St. John's Vestry for the purpose of forming a Layman's Association. The aims and objects of such an association were outlined, which were for the furtherance of church and and social work and assistance to weaker parishes. Many views were expressed by the different speakers, all in accord with the desirability for such an association. A committee was chosen to draft a constitution and bylaws and to report at an early date.

NEGOTIATIONS IN STRIKE OF MINERS OPEN

NOT ONLY MUST THE PRESENT STRIKE BE SETTLED BUT AVOIDANCE OF PERIODICAL CRISES ENSURED, SAYS PREMIER.

SUGGESTIONS IN HAND

LONDON, May 28.—(Canadian Press).—Suggestions from the British Mine Owners and Miners Federation of Great Britain, by which a real settlement of the miners strike may be achieved, were in the hands of Prime Minister Lloyd George to-day. He held Separate conferences with the principals in the strike yesterday afternoon and it was understood he received from them the details of the positions they had taken. Lloyd George made it clear yesterday that an agreement merely to end the present strike, which began April 1, was not the primary object he had in view, declaring the mining industry must be free from periodical crises.

Members of the crew of the freight train notified divisional headquarters of the Union Pacific railroad here, when the train reached Greeley, Colo., that a gang of men had takenpossession fo several cars and refused to leave. Denver policemen weresent to meet the train and took the men into custody.

ASHY WHITE, LOOKING LIKE A BEATEN MAN, GARFIELD TAKEN BACK TO AWAIT THE GALLOWS

ARRIVED IN WOODSTOCK AT 2.52 THIS MORNING AND WAS AT THE JAIL GATE AT 2.57—BACK IN HIS DEATH CELL, GARBED IN PRISON CLOTHES, HE WAS SOON ASLEEP AND HAD NOT AWAKENED AT 9.

GENERAL SHAKE-UP IN JAIL STAFF

(From a Special Correspondent).

WOODSTOCK, Ont., May 28. — Only a handful of people were at the C.P.R. Station to meet the train that brought Norman Garfield back to the place where he will spend his last few days on earth. Through the inky blackness of the night and a mid-drizzly rain the powerful searchlight of the locomotive swept down the tracks and the train rumbled into the station. Several citizens, newspapermen, a constable and a freight train crew were present when Garfield, handcuffed to his guards, stepped out of the coach. He was an ashy white, and looked a beaten man. In a few seconds he was hustled along the platform, surrounded by a cordon of Sheriff's officers and police, and put in a closed motor, which wheeled away to the jail, followed by another car loaded with officers.

The train arrived at 2.52, and at 2.57 Garfield was at the jail gate. The glare of the auto lights flashed against the jail doors, and in a second sounds of guards inside could be heard clanking the keys in the locks. The outer door swung open, and inside stood Jailer Jim Clarke and Night Guard Charlie Tyler.

Garfield, when he dashed away Wednesday, showed speed in getting across the stoned steps. He hurried to freedom. This morning his entry back into the jail was not so swift. He crossed the doorway reluctantly. In fact, he hesitated, as if he suddenly realized he was once again within the prison walls. His guards had to give him a jerk at his wrists. Garfield looked at Jailer Clarke on his left, merely stopping, and looked as if he was going to speak to him. Then his eyes shot across to Guard Tyler on his right, who had the heavy iron door in his hand, the door Garfield opened with the key he took from Ball. But he never spoke to Tyler, who had been his night watch for two months.

He walked with a deliberate step across the stone flagging, and then the doors swung closed, the key rattled in the lock, and Garfield was again safely in jail, after sixty hours and a half of freedom.

In Prison Garb.

Inside the jail, Garfield was stripped and put into prison clothes, yellow and dark blue striped garments. Before he left he wore a blue suit in his cell. Upstairs to the second floor he was led fourteen winding steps, and taken down the corridor and put in his cell, and a double watch stationed beside the door. Garfield did not speak a word. What his thoughts were might have been startling.

As he came toward the jail the lights of his corridor on the west wing flashed on, and the beams of light through the closed iron windows checkered the gloom. No spectators were at the jail gate to witness his return. The crowds that gathered early in the afternoon and till midnight waiting his return grew weary and melted away. Few knew how Garfield was travelling. Many thought he was being rushed back in a motor. The plans of Sheriff William McGhee worked perfectly. He was anxious to avoid the public and he succeeded. The Sheriff only remained for a few minutes in the jail and then went to his home, tired and weary over the strain he has gone through, but relieved that Garfield has been captured.

Ellis Concealed Identity.

Through the crowd which gathered at the station early in the evening expecting to witness Garfield's return moved Hangman Ellis, who is to execute Garfield. Rumor had it he was in town, but no one knew him. He registered at a hotel under an assumed name, but the Examiner man recognized him. Ellis denied his identity at first, and then asked the Examiner not to "tip him off." Ellis strolled about and chatted with many people. He even walked up to ex-Mayor Gaghan and asked Garfield's weight and height.

Norman Garfield will not be hanged in the courtyard of the jail within sight of his death cell, the Examiner was informed. It will be an inside hanging. The execution will take place on Thursday morning at eight o'clock inside the jail building, a custom now in vogue in every jail where there is room to permit a scaffold being erected. The decision to erect the scaffold in the jail was decided upon to-day by Sheriff McGhee after a conference with Hangman Ellis.

Woodstock people who were planning to stand outside the jail or climb to the tops of telephone poles and trees are going to be disappointed. There are several trees outside the jail, close to the wall, which people could climb and see over the wall and view the hanging. When Birchall was executed hundreds viewed the hanging from buildings and trees nearby.

The scaffold will be erected in the rear of the jail, in a large room on the ground floor. It will be eight feet square, and there will be thirteen feet of space between the flooring and the trap for the drop. Ellis started to erect the scaffold to-day.

The lumber has been here for some time. Two carpenters came from Toronto to-day to build the scaffold, as Ellis did not want local men. He will supervise the construction himself.

GENERAL SHAKE-UP AT JAIL.

WOODSTOCK, May 28.—(Canadian Press).—Once inside the jail this morning, there were no further formalities for Garfield to be carried out. He was soon asleep, and at 9 this morning he had not awakened.

At the jail there appears to have been a general shake-up. Robert Ball, day guard, is not there. His place has been taken by George Tottey, returned soldier. John Robley, turnkey, is also absent.

Charles Tyler, veteran of many wars, will continue his night duties. No one has been appointed to take Robley's place, and it is probable the Sheriff will personally supervise affairs at the jail until after Thursday morning next.

ALLIES FAVOR THE SILESIAN NEUTRAL ZONE

COUNCIL OF AMBASSADORS VIRTUALLY APPROVED THE PROPOSITION TO-DAY BUT DEFERRED ACTION.

AWAIT INFORMATION

PARIS, May 28. — Canadian Press. — The allied council of ambassadors has virtually approved the plan to establish a neutral zone between the German and the Polish forces in upper Silesia.

It was decided at its meeting this morning, however, to obtain further information desired before taking an ydefinite action.

The neutral zone, which was suggested a few days ago in British official circles would give to Germany and Poland the communes which voted in favour of them in the recent Silesian plebiscite, but place the entire territory under the control of a special commission for 30 years, at the end of which the people would again have the opportunity of choosing between Germany and Poland.

German debt to the United States for the maintenance of American troops in Germany territory under the Versailles Treaty, now aggegates $228,000,000.

PRICES FALL BUT CROP OUTTOOK IS PLEASING FARMERS

PRICES ON LOCAL MARKET THIS MORNING FOLLOWED THE DOWNWARD TREND.

Farmers on to-day's market were smiling but not over the prices, they were getting. Far from it; they were rejoicing because of the reviving rain this morning and they stated that the crops were looking better now than earlier in the season. The rain was a pleasant surprise to the vegetable and fruit growers too and the effect of the soaking will be to continue the fast growth of the last few days.

"I do not think there will be a very large strawberry crop," Bruce Johnston of North Monaghan told the Examiner. Frosts had killed out many plants he said and a prolific yield could not be expected he said.

Garden stuff is coming on the market now. Today there was some nice tender-looking spinach selling at 40 cents a peck or $1.25 a basket hamper. Green onions and rhubarb were 5 cents a bunch to-day. Next week it is stated there will be plenty of lettuce and radishes on the market.

There was an abundance of tomato, cabbage, cauliflower and aster plants for sale this morning. The prices ranged from 15 to 25 a box depending on the size. One veteran gardener, 83 years old, had a splendid array of plants but wanted extortionate prices. For one tomato plant, (it must be admitted it was a fine specimen, in flower, too), in a tin can, he asked 20 cents. The Examiner remarked it seemed a little high.

Potatoes of which there were some in practically every waggon sold the same as last week 50 cents a bag. Mention of the tumble since last year was to touch a raw spot in the farmer's mind. Young pigs sold from $10 a pair up. There was the usual large number on the market. Little chirping balls of feather, in other words tiny Plymouth Rock chicks wereselling at 20 cents each. They were apparently enjoying themselves very much.

Butter and eggs were the same price to-day, 30 cents. There was plenty of both and as the price opened lower than last week, both prices may have gone down to 25 cents before noon. Most of the butter was wrapped in rhubarb leaves or packed in ice and despite the sultry atmosphere was cool and firm. Chickens sold generally at 35 cents a pound and as is usual the finer birds were not long on the tables before being snatched up.

Waiting for His Capto Him to Death Cell, Nor. Garfield Tells His Story Without Restraint

GARFIELD HANGING INSIDE THE JAIL

WOODSTOCK, May 28. — (Canadian Press.) — The people of Woodstock will not be able to see Norman Garfield executed. He will not be hanged in the court yard of the jail as expected. It will be an inside hanging. The execution, which will take place Thurday morning, will be in the jail building, a custom now in vogue in every jail where there is sufficient space to permit of the scaffold being built. Sherif McGhee decided to erect the scaffold in the jail after consulting Hangman Ellis yesterday afternoon.

BY-ELECTIONS IN 2 RIDINGS

POLLING EXPECTED TO BE HEAVY IN YAMASKA, QUEBEC, AND YORK-SUNBURY, N.B.

BULLETINS ON RESULT

MONTREAL, May 28.—(Canadian Press.—Polling is taking place in Yamaska, Que., to-day, to fill the vacancy in the House of Commons caused by the death of Oscar Gladu, Liberal member for that seat. Three candidates have been nominated, A A. Mondou, Conservative, M. A. Boucher, notary, Liberal, and Joseph Lambert, Farmer. Mr. Mondou has taken his stand on a protectionist policy, while the Liberal, when touching on the tariff, has announced himself in favour of moderate protection. Mr. Lambert has attacked both Liberals and Conservatives. A lare vote is expected, as tre weather is fine.

A by-election is also being held in York-Sunbury, New Brunswick, today, with Government and Farmer candidates in the field.

The Examiner will bulletin the results of the by-elections this evening.

BIG SHORTAGE IN FUEL BOOKS

RENFREW COMMISSION IS MORE THAN $5,000 OUT, AS ACCOUNTANT FINDS.

RENFREW, May 28.— Chartered Accountant Bates, of Ottawa, who has been investigating the books of the Civic Fuel Commission here, has filed a report with the Town Council showing a shortage of more than $5,000. The town went into the fuel business during the war to keep down the price of wood, at that time selling at $8, but the price immediately advanced to $10, despite civic competition. A woodlot was purchased at a cost of $1,500, and from this 700 cords were cut.

But 200 cords have disappeared entirely. Four carloads of coal are also unaccounted for. The books show that that at least $200 collected by the different commissioners was never turned over to the Town Treasurer. Further investigation may show that other sums collected were never entered. There are more than a hundred accounts on the books, and the present deficit will be increased if any of these are uncollectable. Sending bills to these parties may show that at least some of the amounts have been paid and not entered on the books of the commission. Accountant Bates attributes the loss to mismanagement.

One remarkable feature of the affair is the fact that two bills for fuel were paid twice by the School Board, and the town now owes that body $244 for overpaid account.

RELATES HOW HE FLED FROM WOODSTOCK JAIL IN STOLEN CAR, BECAME LOST, AND AFTER RUNNING OUT OF "GAS" NEAR DUNDAS TOOK TO THE WOODS, AFTER UNSUCCESSFULLY TRYING TO STEAL ANOTHER CAR.

THOUGHTS ARE ABOUT WIFE AND EXPECTED BABY

Few more interesting stories have ever been presented to the readers of The Examiner than the following exclusive interview with Norman Garfield, secured last night in the Georgetown Jail by a special representative.

The reporter who reported the Garfield trial at Woodstock, reached Georgetown shortly after Garfield's arrest yesterday afternoon, and was the first person to identify the escaped murderer. Police officials from Woodstock arrived later on to confirm his identification.

He was the only newspaper man to reach Georgetown, and after identifying and interviewing the prisoner, he accompanied him by motor to the Milton railroad station, reaching there at 12.05 a.m., and thence by train to Woodstock.

(Special to The Examiner—Copyright in Canada by The Toronto Star.)

Shortly after 7 o'clock last evening, Norman Garfield gave your reporter an exclusive interview.

ExChief Killing, whose kindly treatment as Sheriff's officer during the trial had been appreciated by Norman, had just wakened him to hand him some chocolates and cigarettes.

"I have some cigarettes, thanks, but I would like the chocolates," he said drowsily, getting up slowly from the pallette on the floor, and coming to the door. The little half pound bag was handed him through the small space between the top of the bars of the door and the top frame. His hand cuffs rattled as he caught the bag with difficulty.

Standing in the full glare of the electric light from the hall, he looked very tired. There were dark rings around his eyes. He yawned ocasionally and leaned against the iron bars of the door, but he talked jauntily and calmly, laughing as he brushed some dirt from the shoulders and the back of his blue serge coat.

The talk began with some questions from him about Bob Ball, his guard, and Rev. W. F. Gaetz, his spiritual adviser, whom he understood from Mr. Killing, were in difficulties over his escape. The talk went on. Garfield seemed even pleased to have some one with whom to talk. No attempt was made to check his conversation, which was somewhat rambling in its sequence, often jumping from a subject and returning after an interval. Especially after speaking of his wife and her expected baby, was this particularly so. The talk just rambled on, question following question as he gave the lead.

"Can you tell me what route you took?"

"To tell you the truth, I don't know that myself," he said quite calmly. "I got lost."

"Did you really run into the bank near Dundas, and leave your car there, as the reports said?"

"No; the car was going up a big grade and would not go any farther. I was just half way up when the gas ran out, and the car would not run up the hill because it was so steep. I just ran it up to the side, and left it."

"You made pretty good time, didn't you?" he smiled, in his peculiar, tired and almost benevolent way, a winning smile. The truth of the matter is that it is almost impossible to describe. There was no hesitation or strangeness, starkly unembarrassed, as if he had not talked to anybody for months, and was enjoying the strange exhilaration of it all.

"You had about five gallons of gas?"

"No, there must have been more than that, for I stopped soon after I got out of the city and measured it."

"You thought you were going north, didn't you, but you were really going east?"

"If I had known I was going east, I would have changed. I didn't know the roads at all. I looked back and back, wasting time."

"But you intended going north?"

"Yes, I hit north, but then I hit Paris and Brantford."

Here he hesitated and went back to the dash north from Woodstock.

"I wanted to get some gas. I stopped at that little place—"

"In Hickson?"

"I guess so—at that little gas place in Hickson, but there were too many people in the place."

"You must have turned at Hickson, for if you had gone straight on, you would have come to Tavistock and Stratford."

"I went straight up that good road. I must have turned then, for I remember going through Paris and Brantford."

"You tore right on east to Dundas?"

"Yes, nearly to Dundas."

"Where did you go after you left the car?"

"I didn't know the way at all. It was soon dark, and I hit up seven or eight farmers, went into their barns (places indicated by a gesture), an assortment of places, to find another car," and with his peculiar low, throaty laugh, he said, "but I couldn't get a single one. They were all locked. The farmers were all asleep, you know. The strange thing was that all their garages were open, but the cars were locked. There was just one old Ford that I could turn, but it was no good. My fingers got blistered trying to turn the key."

Garfield then sprung a surprise.

"I took to the road and followed the tracks till I came to a section house. I pried the lock. The thing, the jigger, or whatever they call it, had the wheels chained and locked, so I couldn't get it either."

He then struc kthe radial line leading into Hamilton.

"I walked into Dundas and took the interurban car to Hamilton. It was just 8.15 by the big clock when I took the car."

"Right into the city?"

"No, the outskirts."

Questioned about his failure to get the newspapers to see where the chase for him was hot, he said that he had not seen one, only two bulletins. The first one was here, in the outskirts of Hamilton, but that told him very little.

"From there I walked to Bronte along the highway. A funny thing happened. An automobile coming from Toronto with a crowd waved and someone called out, 'You aren't the man from Woodstock, are you?' They all laughed as they went on."

"Didn't you sleep at all?"

"Oh, yes, there I slept in the woods." The exact position of the woods he could not tell. "I don't know the woods," he laughed, amused. "I'm no Indian. I'd make a poor woodsman. I'd get lost."

Here his mind jumped disconnectedly back to the escape. Most of all it was plain he was thinking of Bobbie Ball, his guard, of Mr. Gaetz, his spiritual adviser, of his mother a little, but infinitely most of all of his wife. Through his story, as an undercurrent that often broke into words, ran this intense thought of his "little girl and the baby that was coming."

"No, Ball and Gaetz did not have anything to do with it," he laughed rather scornfully. "I want you to put it good and strong about Robert Ball. He is an awfully good fellow. He treated me very decent. I used to play cards with him. He was so surprised when I slammed the door on him."

Garfield stopped and smiled in recollection of the scene.

"Then he yelled."

"Yelled?"

"He yelled at the people downstairs. But sometimes guards yell when they are concerned in an escape, don't they?"

"He wasn't concerned in it. You could tell by the way he yelled."

"What did he say?"

"Oh, 'Stop him, stop him,' I think.

BED BUG POISON

There are dozens of preparations recommended to destroy bed bugs. But the preparation that gives the best results is POST'S BED BUG POISON.

A few applications of this poison will soon wipe out the pest. It is composed of corrosive sublimate methyl-hydrate and carbolic acid, and as it is very poisonous it should be kept out of the reach of children.

PAYS "DEBT OF HONOUR" WRITTEN OFF THE BOOKS.

WINNIPEG, Man., May 28 (Canadian Press).—A "debt of honour" with an old Hudson's Bay post, which had long since been written off the company's books and forgotten, was recently paid by an unknown debtor, according to an article published in The Beaver, the Hudson's Bay Company's magazine.

The debt was paid in two instalments. The first was received on 15th March, 1920, and the second on 14th April, 1921. The total amount was for $541.50.

A letter, which accompanied this year's payment, read in part::

"To avoid publicity, I have taken this method of reimbursement, and knowing you have no record of the transaction, at the same time I am relieving myself by justifying myself that my word was always good."

The letter was signed "A Sacred

WINDSOR WON'T STAND FOR FURTHER DELAY

WINDSOR, May 28. — Tired of "empty promises" by ofifcials of the Ontario Power Commission that immediate improvements and extensions will be made to the street railway system, Windsor will serve an ultimatum on the commission, requesting an announcement of the commission's policy with regard to improvement of the street railway service. The commision will be notified that the city will not tolerate further delays and that new pavements will be laid at once on some streets, which engineers of the commission announced some months ago would be double tracked.

REMOVE SLIGHT CURVES FROM LAKEFIELD ROAD

The suburban road commission intend to strainghten two curves in the Lakefield road just east of the junction with the 2nd line, and to that end have asked the Utilities Commission for a short strip of property. It is understood that this has been arranged and that a piece about ten feet wide in the required length has been given to the Road Commission.

It has also been suggested that in view of the belief that refuse from a house above the intake to the waterworks might contaminate the water, an effort be made to secure possession of the property. It is said that this house is built on the road allowance which is still public property.

CAPTURED MAN IDENTIFIED AS CARFIELD

MAN APPREHENDED NEAR GEORGETOWN DEFINITELY IDENTIFIED AS SLAYER OF BEN JOHNSON AND UNDER HEAVY GUARD

SHERIFF'S OFFICER MOORE, OF WOODSTOCK, IDENTIFIES SUSPECT TAKEN INTO CUSTODY YESTERDAY AFTERNOON AND HE WILL BE TAKEN BACK TO HIS DEATH CELL IN WOODSTOCK SOMETIME TO-DAY.

GARFIELD IS EXHAUSTED AFTER 44-HOUR FLIGHT

GEORGETOWN, May 28 (Canadian Press).—Norman Garfield, murderer of Ben Johnston, the Woodstock storekeeper, who escaped from jail at Woodstock late on Wednesday afternoon, was lodged in the lock-up here last night under the close watch of armed guards.

His capture was effected about 12.30 yesterday at Stewarttown, a village 2½ miles west of Georgetown, after a struggle with three men, one of whom, John Tracey, clerk of the township, handcuffed the fugitive. They drove into Georgetown, and late yesterday the identity of Garfield was positively established by Sheriff's Officer Moore, of Oxford County, who had hurried to Georgetown from Woodstock in response to a wire from Chief of Police Melville.

Garfield, when arrested, was attired in a dark blue suit, in which he escaped from the jail, but he was wearing a green fedora hat and black boots.

A slightly stooped man, wearing a blue suit, brown boots, and peak cap, it became known yesterday, went into S. R. Bews' gent.'s furnishing store in Milton about 8 o'clock on Thursday night and bought a green fedora hat and two collars. The man, evidently Garfield, left town in a hurry, taking the Grand Trunk train and heading toward Georgetown.

Chief of Police Chapman at Milton yesterday wired the Chief of Police at Woodstock that a suspicious stranger had visited the town.

When Garfield made his dash for liberty he was bareheaded, and was wearing tan boots. Chief of Police Melville said that Garfield carried no weapon of any kind. He had $23.00 in bills and some coppers, matches, and tobacco. He evidently was supplied with funds when he left Woodstock Jail.

The prisoner, Chief Melville said, showed signs of great exhaustion, lack of food and sleep having evidently worn him out during his spell of freedom of about forty-two hours.

He has ostensibly refused to admit he is Garfield, and beyond saying that his name is Thomas Robertson, and that he came from Hamilton, he has declined to talk. Although evidently greatly depressed in spirits, he ate with relish the food set before him.

He will be taken back to Woodstock to-day under heavy escort.

Securely handcuffed, locked in a cell of one of the most modern town jails in the Province, and under the constant scrutiny of armed constables, who are relieved at regular intervals, there is no prospect that Garfield will be able to make a second dash for liberty and cheat the gallows on 2nd June.

and abandoned it at Skunk's Misery Swamp, near Dundas, it is possible that he could have taken the Cadillac.

Is He the Milton Man?

But car thefts are not uncommon, and the theft of the Nesbitt machine is regarded as just one of the points that are to be kept in view in the general plan to recapture the bandit. The officers are convinced that if Garfield is the man who bought a hat and collars at Milton, his escape was the product of a conspiracy in which several were involved.

He had not been searchel at the County Jail for some time, but at the trial he had nothing in his pockets and he should not have received anything since.

Has He Funds?

His mother, wife, and Rev. Mr. Gaetz of Central Methodist Church, his spiritual adviser, were the only visitors allowed to enter the corridor in which Garfield was. Since he left the jail no one has reported a robbery, and the prisoner has certainly had no opportunity to work for any funds. The source of his money supply as a result commends attention.

"Trixie" Harkness.

"Trixie" Harkness, the wife of Denton Garfield, who is alleged to have inuenced her husband to confess the crime and testify against his brother, is still in Sarnia, and it is said that she has been cautioned to beware of teh murderer's revenge.

The police, who know the circumstances under which London detectives secured the confession from Denton, are not worried about any part "Trixie" might hav had in the escape. So far as they are concerned she need not have bothered about the denial. They are satisfied that Trixie is in terror of the elder bandit, and that she is probably enjoying but little contentment while Garfield is at liberty.

Pastor Says No More.

Rev. Mr. Gaetz was out walking last night with Mrs. Garleld. He was asked if any word had been received from Garfield.

"Nothing at all. I do not expect any. I have nothing to tell further than the statements I made to the press to-day," said Garfield's spiritual adviser.

Will Question Gaetz.

Detective Greer left Woodstock at noon to-day. He spent the early morning in a conference with Sheriff McGhee. But the nature of the conference was not obtainable from either source. Although the Toronto official has questioned the jail officials, he has as yet not met Rev. Mr. Gaetz. This he will do when he returns later on.

Help Was Near.

If Rev. Mr. Gaetz, it is said, knew that seated in the jail office ten feet from where he stood when Garfield came down stairs was a man named Cole, a relative of the turnkey, why did he not call this man to his aid when Garfield was going through the door? is a question to be answered. Cole sat in the office all oblivious apparently of what was going on.

Detective Keeps Mum.

Detective Greer, it is said, is not at all pleased with the privileges extended to Garfield. Following an interview with some of the officials, including Guard Ball and his wife, "the latter a daughter of Turnkey Robley," Mr. Greer refused to give out a statement to the press.

From the few remarks thrown out by the Toronto officer, it is evident that he was not at all satisfied with the manner in which Norman Garfield was guarded.

SAW SPEEDING CAR, BUT THAT'S NOT UNUSUAL.

LONDON, Ont., May 27.—A London phonograph salesman, while at a farm north-east of Woodstock on Wednesday evening between six and seven o'clock claims to have seen a man answering Garfield's description driving in a Ford car at a furious speed. He claims that the driver was taking out from the machine all that was in it, and that he remarked it the time: "That fellow doesn't own that car or he would never do that to it."

Bounded Over Bridge.

He claims that the speed of the car was not slackened when a small bridge was reached, and when it crossed all four wheels were off the ground with the violence of the impact. Some interest is attached by the police to-day to the reported theft from Burlington Golf Links of a Cadollac Eight touring car owned by Miss N. Nesbitt, of Woodstock. If Garfield is the man who stole the Ford from Light Street near the jail

HOG PRICES AT CHICAGO TUMBLE TO THE LOWEST LEVEL FOR MORE THAN FIVE YEARS, $7.90 A CWT.

CHICAGO, May 28. — (Canadian Press). — Prices for hogs tumbled yesterday to the lowest figures in more than five years. The slackened demand for meat, especially pork, had a good deal to do with the weakness of values. In addition, about 100,000 more hogs have been received here this week than for a corfesponding period a week ago, an increase said to be largely due to the completion of corn planting. The top price for the best swine to-day was $7.90 a hundredweight, a drop of exactly $1 in a week.

'Wired Wireless' To Be Put Into Use in Alberta

ALLOWS NUMBER OF CONVERSATIONS OVER SAME TELEPHONE WIRE AT ONCE.

EDMONTON, Alta., May 28. — (Canadian Press). — The Alberta Government Telephones has made arrangements for the installation of a carrier current system of multiplex telephony sometimes colloquially referred to as "wired wireless," to operate between Edmonton and Calgary. This system will be the first commercial installation of its kind in this country.

The combined currents for a number of conversations are transmitted over the same wire, but at the distant end they are separated so that each conversation goes to the proper person. The application of carrier systems to toll lines will not interfere with the ordinary use of the wires for telephone and telegraph purposes, but will provide additional toll circuits which will accommodate telephone traffic in the same way as ordinary circuits.

THE MINERS' POOL AND PROFFERED WAGE SCHEDULE

A tabulated statement showing the reduced wages offered by the British mineowners to their employees appears in a pamphlet published by the British Labour Party.

According to this information the highest weekly wage is held out to the colliers in the Nottnghiam district, who are offered £4 6s 8d, a reduction of 10.7 per cent., and the real value of that sum based on 1914 prices is computed at £1 16s. The Cumberland mines offer the lowest wage at £2 10s a week, and this is a reduction of 49 per cent. from the former wage.

It is explained that in the richest districts, that is where the coal is mined with least difficulty and the heaviest production, the wages are highest because the mineowners obtain the largest financial returns, but in the poorer districts where the mines yield a comparatively small output for the labour expended, the wages are correspondingly low.

The miners, therefore, proposed the formation of a pool in order that the wages throughout the country could be equalised. Their plan was that the miners and owners in the richer districts should help the poorer districts by sharing with them their more abundant revenues.

Under this scheme the miners proposed to contribute at least three-quarters of the total, the owners to furnish the rest. Without presenting the entire table of wages offered by all the mineowners, an idea of the contentions of the miners may be gained from the assertion that on the basis of the new schedule the highest paid miner in England would receive 19.00 a week and the lowest $8.96, and labourers as low as $3.12 a week.

GIVE UNIONISTS 32 TO THE SINN FEIN-NATIONALISTS' 20

RESIGNATION OF JOSEPH DEVLIS FROM ONE OF HIS SEATS IN EXPECTED TO INCREASE THE UNIONIST LEAD

WHICH MAY REACH 41

BELFAST, May 28.—(Canadian Press).—The unofficial count of the votes cast in Tuesday's elections in the six northern counties of Antrim, Armagh, Down, Fermanagh, Londonderry and Tyrone shows that the Unionists received 341,289 votes, Sinn Feiners 103516, Nationalists 762 and the Independent Laborites, 4,000. There is to be added to the Unionist vote 4,000 university voters whose ballots will be counted on Saturday.

These figures would indicate that the Nationalist-Sinn Fein combination should, in view of the proportion of their supporters, have about 20 members in the new Parliament to the Unionists' 32, although it is considered probable that the Unionist representation may reach 41. The fact that Joseph Devlin, Nationalist leader, must either resign his seat for West Belfast or Antrim, possibly will add to the Unionist count, as it is believed certain that the Unionist will be chosen for which ever seat he resigns.

Two surprises of the voting were the big poll of Arthur Griffith, founder of the Sinn Fein organization in Tyrone and Fermanagh, where he received more than 10,000 votes above the first Unionist, and the Majority of more than 12,000 votes which Sir Joseph Craig had over Eamonn de Valera.

CAMPBELLFORD TEACHERS ARE SEEKING RAISE

BOARD ASKED TEACHERS TO WITHDRAW THEIR NAMES.

CAMPBELLFORD, May 28.—The assistant teachers of the Campbellford Public School, on May 20th, sent a request to the Board of Education, asking for an increase of $200. The present schedule is $700 minimum, with an annual increase of $50 until $900 is reached. With the increase, the schedule would be $900 minimum and $1,100 maximum.

The request was not approved by the Board. As a result, the following letter was received by the teachers:

May 21st, 1921.

To the Assistant Public School Teachers.

At a special meeting of the Board of Education, held last evening, the following resolution was passed:

"That the teachers who signed the request for an increase be given an opportunity to withdraw their names before Thursday evening, May 26th, otherwise the Board will consider their refusal as a resignation and advertise for teachers to fill the vacancies."

And in accordance with your request, I transmit this for your information.

Yours truly,

Wesley Stephens,

Secty-Treas.

The majority of the teachers on the staff found it impossible to withdraw their names, so resigned.

At the regular meeting on May 26th, the resignations were accepted by the Board, who decided to advertise for ten teachers to fill the vacancies. At the same meeting the minimum of the High School assistants was raised from $1,500 to $1,800.

Would not be Without Zutoo Tablets At Any Cost

Mr. A. O. Norton, the millionaire Jack Manufacturer, of Boston, who recently died, was a great "booster" for Zutoo Tablets.

He suffered from headaches from childhood and when he found Zutoo Tablets stopped these headaches in a few minutes and left no bad effect, he began recommending them to his family and friends. In an unsolicited letter, Mr. Norton says in closing:

"My family use them when ever needed with equally good results. I have frequently given them to friends who were suffering from Headache and they never failed to give quick relief. I always carry Zutoo Tablets in my grip on the road and WOULD NOT BE WITHOUT THEM AT ANY COST."

"NOT MY PLACE."

Rev. M. Gaetz, the minister who was in the corridor at the Woodstock jail when Norman Garfield made his escape, and who apparently did very little to prevent the condemned murderer from obtaining his freedom, takes a rather peculiar view of the situation. "I was not Norman's guard. It was not my place to follow him out on the street and give the alarm," he is reported to have said. A good many people will fail to agree with the reverend gentleman. They will think that it was the duty of any citizen in a position to do so to prevent the escape of this dangerous criminal, who is a menace to the safety of the public as long as he is at large. Garfield is no novice in crime; his record is of such a nature that organized society is safer when he is behind the bars. Rev. Mr. Gaetz takes a rather dangerous view of his responsibility as a citizen when he declares that because he was not a guard it was not place to give the alarm. The general public will be inclined to believe that to give the alarm was his duty and that he has been derelict in the course he adopted. If everybody shared Mr. Gaetz's views the world would be a much more dangerous place than it is.

NO FURTHER GRATUITIES.

The Special Parliamentary committee on pensions, insurance and civil re-establishment, after hearing fifty-five witnesses and holding forty-two sessions, has made its report to Parliament. No striking changes have been recommended by the committee, the most important feature of the report being the suggestion that the fifty per cent. bonus on pensions shall be continued for another year. As was to be expected this committee, like its predecessors, decided flatly against any further cash bonus or gratuity scheme for ex-service men. This decision should definitely dispose of the campaign to secure further gratuities, an effort that has disrupted unity among the veterans, divided them into four or five bodies, instead of into one harmonious organization, prevented them from accomplishing many reforms that, with co-operative effort, they could have made possible, and in fact has done infinite harm to the cause of returned soldiers generally. Had the veterans' associations, instead of wasting their time and energy in endeavouring to secure cash gratuities, united in a campaign to solve the housing problem, providing employment and making it possible for returned men to secure homes, they would have been doing a great deal for themselves as well as their fellow citizens. The G.W.V.A. it is true, was early in the field to secure relief from the housing problem and deserve credit for its efforts, but other veteran bodies devoted their main attention to the gratuity question.

A RETROGRADE STEP.

Sam Hunter, in one of his inimitable cartoons in the Globe, depicts the Senate as burying the Commission of Conservation, while Miss Canada, watching the proceedings, declares, "Senile irresponsibility digging the grave of vigorous usefulness. It isn't fair." The cartoon echoes the opinion of many Canadians, who will regret the passing of the commission. There was a great opportunity ahead of the body that is being abolished, a chance to work outplans for the development of Canada's resources, to lead the way to better things as regards the wealth that bountiful nature has given this country. The commission has not been fairly dealt with; it was beyond the control of parliament, and the fact that political advantage could be ignored by its members did not endear it to the government. Nor is there any reason to believe that it was popular with certain "big interests," for it was endeavoring to function on behalf of the Canadian people and sometimes ran foul of private enterprises. The axe has been swung and the commission's head drops into the basket. There is no reason or rejoicing at the execution rather should the passing of the commission be regarded as a retrograde step.

INSURANCE FOR SOLDIERS.

The suggestion made by the Special Parliamentary committee that a corps of returned soldiers should be organized to explain the provisions of the returned soldiers' insurance act to their fellow veterans, is one that deserves serious consideration. It is common knowledge that but a comparative handful of ex-service men have availed themselves of the insurance act passed for their benefit, and asked for by the G.W.V.A. The claim was made that many veterans, by reason of their war disabilities, were unable to secure insurance from the regular companies and a system of state insurance was suggested as a means of making it possible for these men to protect their families. The Insurance Act was designed for this purpose, but for some reason or other, either because they do not understand the workings of the Act, or because they do not appreciate its benefits, the returned men have paid little attention to the matter. The appointment of a squad of agents, themselves veterans, to sell state insurance to those eligible for its benefits, might do much to popularize the system otherwise the Act must be considered a failure.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

The first German war criminal to be convicted got a 10 months' sentence. Such punishment is making a farce of the proceedings.

Admiral Sims, of the United States' navy, says that the American navy has been over-praised for its part in the war, by the British people. The Admiral naturally did not say anything about Josephus Daniels.

Rev. Mr. Gaetz, of Woodstock, evidently does not believe that he is his brother's keeper.

On Ottawa man complains to the Supreme Court that his wife makes him sleep in the cellar. The reports do not state whether it is the wetness or dryness of the cellar that he is kicking about.

Getting out of some jails in this province seems about as easy as getting into them.

"WOE AND WOE AND LAMENTATION."

Charlie Chaplin's pants are burned. How this ultimate tragedy occurred is not quite clear. The one reassuring thing about the sombre incident is that Charlie was not in them at the time of the conflagration. Where the fire started or how far it spread, and whether or not the loss was covered by insurance are all details for which a waiting world is eager, but which, after all, are of infinitesimal interest compared with the one outstanding, crushing fact — Charlie's pants are no more.

Beside the smouldering ruin the world stands with bared head. Charlie Chaplin is an Englishman, but Charlie Chaplin's immortal—though incinerated — pants were not the proud possession of any one people or of any single era. They were international garments, not of an age, but for all time. Around their baggy folds, entangled in the fringe that frisked below each ankle clung a mighty tradition. Beside these dear, dead delights of other days, what worth are the memories that cluster about the chiefest treasures of great museums? What does the world care for Wolfe's newly-exhibited cloak in London Tower, what even for that little grey overcoat with the tails and the rolled collar, made apparently for a little, paunchy man—the overcoat that hangs near to a cocked hat and a cheap iron camp bed in the reverent hush of the Invalides? Wolfe won a new world for Britain. Napoleon nearly won an old one for himself. Charlie Chaplin, dressed in the pants that no whave passed, rocked worlds, both old and new, but rocked them with laughter, bathed them in tears like to other mighty conquerors, but in tears of sheer delight, not grief.

But through the pall of smoky gloom that hangs above the ashes there breaks one gleam of light. Charlie's pants may be no more, but, glory be, his boots remain. Perhaps the catastrophe may turn out for the best. With a kilt in place of the lost trousers (no, they were not trousers, they were pants, with all the distinction implies) — anyway, with kilts in their place and the ineffable boots on duty Charlie may yet create a chef d'oeuvre that will in some measure compensate us for what to-day seems to be an irreparable loss.—Montreal Star.

WISE AND OTHERWISE

Judging by the frocks they wear, "coming out" parties were appropriately christened.

The funny thing about Garfield's escape is how he managed to be in so many places at once.

And the same people who sympathize with Garfield would throw a shoe at a cat howling on the back fence at 2 a.m.

Hubby—No man is a hero—
Wifey — To anyone who knows him.

The pursuit of the almighty dollar seems to hold more favor among the reapers of taxes than the keeping of it.

Speaking of intoxicants, as many do these days, two eyes have long odds on "Three Stars" where males are concerned.

"Lengthen your skirts or shorten your legs," is the advice of Overseer Voliva to the women of Zion. The overseer must wish to economize on street sweeping.

These distressed people who complain of the shocking things the newspapers publish are barking up the wrong tree, trying to influence the newspapers instead of the trend of events which the papers mirror.

"This is a wonderful age, Harry," remarked his wife. "Why, people can talk for 2,000 miles by wireless. I wonder if you'd hear me all that way off?"

"I wonder," said Harry, wistfully.

Mr. Business was exasperated with the telphone. Ten times that morning he had tried to get a number. At last he got it.

"Hello," he said, "is Mr. X there?"

"Yes," replied a voice, "do you want to speak to him?"

That was the last straw. Back came the reply in icy tones:

"Oh, no; I merely called up to offer him a cigarette."

The boy on the Parliament Buildings was lonesome. So he waved that torch, or whatever it is he supports in his right hand, to attract the attention of the lovely lady in the moon.

"I've thought of a conundrum," he shouted.

"Say it," beamed the orbed maiden cently inhabiting the chamber be-

"What is the difference between me and certain of the legislators below?"

"You have me to make you bright, is that it?"

"Of course, of course," he applauded. 'Not bad, that for a woman! But the real answer is, I am for show and they were for blow."

HOG PRICES ON THE TOBOGGAN

REVIEW OF THE LOCAL PRODUCE MARKET—POTATOES CHEAP.

Prices on the local market show few changes during the last week. Potatoes are the weakest commodity and sell at 50 and 60 cents a bag in the stores. In the country one can get them for taking them away so it is said. Theer is absolutely no market for potatoes. Everyone from the house holder up seems to have plenty and the housekeeper smiles sardonically when she recalls paying $5 for potatoes a year ago. Potatoes are cheaper now than in 1913. On May 23, 1913, they sold at 85 cents a bag in Peterborough. However, if potatoes cost more eggs and butter were cheaper then than now, even if there has been a great slump in these prices. Eggs eight years ago were 19 and 20 cents and butter was 30 cents. Eggs are selling at 30 cents in the stores to-day and are being offered to the trade, the Examiner was informed, at 26 cents.

Hogs Down.

Live hogs have dropped to $8.50 a hundred from the $9.50 level which prevailed till now, the same price as in 1913. Pork prices as a result of the decline in live hogs have been readjusted slightly in the city, but every flurry in the prices of hogs and beef causes a furor amongst helpless householders and butchers are besieged with questions as to why meat is not cheaper. Some of the questions have been extremely hard to answer.

The interest in meat prices is no greater than that in bread prices and to the general public there seems no explanation why bread is not lower in price with its ingredients reduced in price. It is stated that Peterborough bread is selling in Omemee at 22 cents a loaf and yet the Peterborough housewife is asked 24 cents for the same loaf.

The following is a translation of police instructions issued to motorists in Japan: "When a passenger of foot hove in sight, tootle the horn trumpet to him melodiously at first. If he still obstacles your passage, tootle hint with vigor, and express by word of mouth the warning 'Hi! Hi!' Do not explode the exhaust box at a wandering horse. Go smoothingly by, or stop by the roadside till he pass away."

PLAYING THE GAME

Chapter 61.

I was trying hard to play the game. God alone knows how hard I was striving and how difficult it was becoming. Always there was the undeniable certainty of Mrs. Darwood in my thoughts, like a malevolent force still trying to separate my husband and me.

It was terrible. The thought was always tormenting me. It was with me night and day. I would forget for a moment when I was alseep and would wake up fresh to it every morning. I would lie for a moment wondering what it was that was hanging over me, and then it would all come back with a rush.

Perhaps I would forget again when I was talking to someone or when I was working around, but back it would always come with a stab, in the midst of whatever I was doing.

I couldn't tell anyone. I did not want anyone to know. I had to hide my feelings no matter how tormenting. I even wondered at times if the end would be worth all the torture. I might lose and these months of anguish could not but fail to place their stamp of suffering upon me. Then I would lose everything. I would be broken—an old woman.

Would it not be better, even nobler, to leave Leonard? Was my love and determination to win, a weakness? No one admires the kind of individual that deliberately prefers to be stepped on.

So I reasoned and argued back and forth with myself. There was just one thing that held me. I could not bring myself to believe that Leonard really loved Mrs. Darwood. It was just a wild, unspiritual fascination. My heart fed on this one supposition.

There were two other compelling forces which held to my purpose. One was my love for my husband. This love was big, deep, and as vital to me as the day I had married him. The other force was the insistent determination to win—that compelling desire for supremacy, like a wild beast that battles for its very existence. Mrs. Darwood had flung the glove of challenge into my face and I would not refuse to accept it. I would meet it with keenest battle.

But in spite of the state my thoughts and nerves were in, I had to go on living and acting as if everything was all right. I had to think up all the right sort of things to do, things that Leonard would like and perhaps appreciate. Sometimes it proved a thankless task.

The bathroom rug was an oblong rag rug of old-fashioned design with a dark blue border and light blue and tans through the center. It had become quite soiled and I hated to ask Leonard if I could buy a new one. Ordinarily I would not have hesitated, but I could never be quite sure these days how he might react. I felt it would be unwise to give him a chance to get upset over it. I did not want anything at home bother him.

Of course I should have sent it out to the laundry. I never thought of that in my over-anxiety to do the right thing.

I hated to ask Emma to wash the rug. It would be hard to do, and then I could not be sure she would do it thoroughly. I felt I would be more particular about it myself.

I spent nearly all one morning leaning over the tubs rubbing and rinsing. My back was nearly broken, but the rug came out looking like new. I hung it out in the sun, taking the risk of its fading a little in order to have it dry and in the bathroom again before Leonard reached home. I felt pleased with the job, and anxious for a word of praise and commendation from him. But he never even noticed.

"What's the matter with you?" Leonard threw at me as I unconsciously pressed my hand against the pain in my back.

"Oh, nothing," I answered, trying to keep the tears back.

And I might just as well have left the rug dirty for he never spoke of it, or saw the difference.

Report Adopted

The report was adopted on motion of Mr. Jull.

Mrs. McMillan sang a solo in excellent voice, "A Song of Heaven and Homeland", and was followed by Rev. R. B. Firres, who gave an inspiring address on work with boys of teen age, viz 13-19 years. The speaker, who is manifestly an expert in this work, marked off these years of a boy's life with four periods. Activity, Responsibility, Enlightenment and achievement, pointed out how one period or element leads to and merges into the other. He stated that it is said there are fifty-seven varities of boys and it is impossible to classify them because no two are exactly alike, and urged that it is dangerous to suppress activity when boys are developing physically. Authority from without give way to authority from within. The boy is trying to find out what to do and why and if the responsibility is placed upon him, he will measure up to it.

Boys like to get together to discuss their problems and thus each enlightenment. This is the easiest age to acquire knowledge—the age of achievement, when boys are trying to be manly and to do manly things.

The Speaker showed a chart of The Canadian Standard Efficiency Training—A four-fold program of Religious Education for boys from 15 years of age called "Tuxis Boys" "Tuxis" is a newly coined word in which T stands for training, S for Service, X for Christ, and U and I for you and I literally and means training in service for Christ for you and I.

The mottos are "Jesus increased in wisdom and stature and in favour with God and man", and "I am among you as he that serveth".

The program is divided into four parts, in heads, as follows—Intellectual, Phyical, Devotional and Social and under each "head" there are the following subdivisions. Intellectual program. 1 school and supplementary training, 2 Wood or animal craft. 3 Arts, crafts and hobbies, 4 Public speaking and current events; 5 Home reading and trips and lectures; 6 Education.

Physical Program—1 Health education, 2 Camp craft, 3 Team games, 4 group games, 5 Aquatics, 6 Athletics.

Devotional Program—1 Church worship 2 Church school, 3 Church relationship, 4 Midweek Bible Discussion, 5 Morning Watch, 6 Nature Music Art and Poetry.

Social Programme

Social programme 1 Home relationship, 2 Community responsibility 3 choosing life work, 4 special training, 5 makers of Canada, 6 World Service. The speaker briefly described the possibilities of these programmes and the development of the best in a boy's character of the best in a boy's character through their influence and indicated from actual results the worth while nature of this phase of work among boys, which corresponds to the much talked of 'Canadian girls in Training" now organized and well launched.

One could earnestly wish that every citizen of Lakefield had heard Mr. Firres put his plea for boys in his own forceful and soul stirring words and it is hoped he will visit us again.

At this juncture an offertory was taken and the choir followed with an anthem, after which Rev. P. L. Jull gave an address to fill in a vacant number on the program, but the audience suffered nothing by the substitution as Mr. Jull's words were, as usual well chosen, to the point and convincing. His subject was the Sunday School Teacher, who, in his opinion, should have three special qualifications, viz:— Knowledge of the Bible and human nature, especially child-nature; to be a student and to have personal interest in the work also to be a church member. In the child God hands to us a bundle of possibilities for the development of which He holds us responsible therefore it is eminently necessary that the teacher be well-qualified to cope with the charge undertaken and conscientious in dealing with the child nature. The speaker emphasized in a most illuminating manner the privilege of being "called by His name" a Christian. God said "Ye are the salt of the earth" that means sweetening, seasoning, preserving, purifying. A great vocation, and one involving much responsibility. Mrs. Joe Mann and Mrs. Young of Smith sang a duet most acceptably and Rev. B. M. Frasier in felicitous terms moved a vote of thanks to everyone who helped with the Convention and made it such an enjoyable event. Mr. Northey added a special word of thanks to the Presbyterian Choir which gave willing and appreciated assistance. Mr. Oliver seconded Mr. Frasier's motion.

The Convention was closed with a hymn and the benediction.

THIS "HOMING" SQUIRREL IS IN A CLASS OF ITS OWN

All Attempts to Lose it Proved Fruitless Thus Far.

NEW WESTMINSTER, B. C., May 28. — (Canadian Press). — A "homing" squirrel of more than ordinary sagacity and cunning is the subject of a great deal of interest here. It took up its home in the rafters of the home of George H. Small some months ago with the evident intention of spending the remaining years of life there. Various attempts to lose the squirrel proved fruitless. On one occasion it was taken to Vancouver and liberated in Stanley Park, but thirty-nine days later it was back in its New Westminster home.

"There is no doubt of the identity of the animal," said Mr. Small, "as he always comes to the same window for his food on his return, and then repairs to the same hole in the roof which is the entrance of his home."

The squirrel has now been taken to West Vancouver, and will either have to swim the inlet or come over on the ferry if he elects to return home.

EDGAR M. BROWN PLEADS GUILTY TO $21,710 THEFT

FORMER TELLER OF BANK OF MONTREAL REMANDED TILL MONDAY FOR SENTENCE.

TORONTO, May 28. — Edgar Morton Brown, former teller of the Bank of Montreal, pleaded guilty yesterday to having stolen $21,710 on February 24 from the Toronto office of the bank at Yonge and Front Streets, where he was employed as foreign exchange receiving teller. Judge Coatsworth deferred sentence until Monday morning. Brown was not called into the witness stand.

Both Brown's young wife and his elderly father were in court during the trial. The prisoner himself is a frail young fellow, with anemic but alert features, blue eyes and yellow colored hair. He is only twenty-nine years old, and seemed greatly worried over all the trouble in which he has got himself and his family. Before the trial, he was out on bail raised by his father, but after pleading guilty, he was led out in custody, his wife, however, being allowed to see him before he was taken to the cells.

The Crown had come prepared to press the case, having called a formidable array of witnesses in anticipation of a "not guilty" plea.

The court room was crowded with jurors and an interested crowd.

Falsified His Books.

In reviewing the details of the case, Crown Counsel Eric N. Armour said that Brown had joined the staff of the Bank of Montreal in September, 1916, and that he had been falsifying his books for a period of nearly three years, covering up the shortages in his cash by a system of vouchers.

On the morning of February 24 he was $6,000 short in his accounts, and on that day he stole $15,710 to cover up his defalcations, making his total theft $21,710.

In restitution, the bank had received from Brown's wife $1,000 in cash and from Brown himself 16,600 shares in Davidson Consolidated Gold Mines, Limited, and 1,000 shares in Sovereign mining stock.

Upon interrogation, J. P. Cannon, president of the Standard Exchange, 56 King Street West, stated that Davidson Consolidated had a nominal value of $1 a share, and that it was being quoted at 24 cents, although its value was problematical. He had never heard of there being a market for Sovereign, but thought it possibly might command 10 or 15 cents a share.

Mr. Corley interjected that the Davidson people were making sales in England from which they hoped they might realize $1.15 a share on their gold mine stock.

Crown counsel then continued that of the money stolen, Brown had stated that he had destroyed a $5,000 non-negotiable legal and that the Dominion Government had informed the bank that they would not make any refund on this note.

Corley Tells of Poor Pay.

J. Seymour Corley, K.C., who, with Fletcher Kerr, represented the defendant, pointed out that his client had received $1,000 as salary and living allowance for the year 1918, during which time he was doing the work of two men as a temporary clerk in the teller's box where he handled an average of $225,000 a day.

Crown counsel interrupted to state that the prisoner was paid $2,060 last year.

Mr. Corley continued by noting that on one occasion Brown had found he was short $150 in his accounts and somewhat later he lost another $100. Instead of reporting this, he had "cooked" his accounts. Finally, he received a glowing prospectus from the Davidson Consolidated Gold Mines, telling of the fortunes to be made from investment in their securities. Brown noticed that one of the directors of the Bank of Montreal was also a director of this syndicate and accordingly he felt it safe to attempt to recoup his losses and to make some money to supplement his small salary by taking a "flyer" in the stock.

Mr. Corley pointed out that, following the theft, he had placed a thousand dollar bill in an envelope and had a customer mail it to his wife. As soon as she had learned what had happened, however, she restored the money to the bank.

"Brown never would have deceived his employers," continued Mr. Corley, "if the Bank of Montreal had had a system of inspection in force which would have protected its employees, in accordance with the regulations laid down by the government. Perhaps it was the Bank of Montreal who was responsible for the transgression of this underpaid and overworked man."

Judge Coatsworth, in addressing counsel, pointed out that cases of this nature cropped up with considerable frequency and that severe measures were necessary to prevent their becoming more frequent. He deferred sentence, however, until Monday morning.

Rub Backache Away

Back hurt you? Can't straighten up without feeling sudden pains, sharp aches and twinges? Now listen! That's lumbago, sciatica or maybe from a strain, and you'll get blessed relief the moment you rub your back with soothing, penetrating "St. Jacobs Oil." Nothing else takes out soreness, lameless and stiffness so quickly. You simply rub it on and out comes the pain. It is perfectly harmless and doesn't burn or discolor the skin.

Limber up! Don't suffer! Get a small trial bottle from any drug store, and after using it just once, you'll forget that you ever had backache, lumbago or sciatica, because your back will never hurt or cause any more misery. It never disappoints and has been recommended for 60 years.

differs from ordinary reproducing pianos in that it enables you to give a really natural tone-shading to any composition. It is the only Player having the Floating Rail and Transposing Scale, by means of which you can give true expression to music by the mere act of pedalling. It is this feature which causes the most accomplished musicians to prefer Williams-made Players above all others.

A Williams Player gives you the music you love, without natural skill or training.

(By QUINTUS)

A trip abroad is the idea in the mind of most people. However, most people prefer to do their own country first, which is, unquestionably, the proper thing. From Halifax to Victoria gives one a most expanded impression of the extent, variety and beauty of Canada. Then, there is the great hinterland to the North, which to the majority will always have the charm of the mystery of the unexplored. A journey through or throughout Canada does more than simply to inform Canadians of the geography of their own country. It gives them an enlarged view of life ,and instead of being narrow and homestruck, the traveller becomes cosmopolitan. People who feel it necessary to brag of their own country and possessions, are also likely to describe the wonderful qualities of their relatives and otherwise indulge in that harmless, but rather childish pastime of "blowing." Travel does away with all that, and makes people too big to think them to be. And that is a are in their own estimation, the larger other people are likely to ness and the possibilities of the lesson that the young should be taught early in life. There is absolutely no virtue in brag. Everybody knows how hollow and shallow ness and the possibilities of the ment, if not contempt. Your travelled Canadian is a bigger and better Canadian for knowing the vastnes sand the possibilities of the country which it has been his good fortune to live in. In a word, it helps us to cultivate the virtue of humility, which is one of the most attractive of all the virtues. America, as the U. S. is now named universally, has become so rich, powerful and unified that Americans are getting to be critical of themselves, a most excellent thing in humanity. Those who study history (and who do not?) long to see the lands from which the race has sprung.

It gives "a local habitation and a name" to much that has filled our minds as a sort of fairy tale or fog. Travel makes "the world" very concrete and practical, or matter-of-fact to us, and tends to the cultivation of the artistic as well. All things well done are artistic. Art is the doing of things perfectly. It is true that "the starry heavens" us are vastly more magnificent than us are vastiy more magnificen than merely working that we may eat, sleep and be merry with the proceeds. They bring us in touch with the Creator of it all.

A "Saturday to Monday" or week-end tour, is hardly worth taking. Of course expense is a serious matter to most people and we must cut our breeks according to our cloth. But "a tour" is not half so expensive as it sounds if we content ourselves with the less expensive means of travel. One can go to England, for example, and put up at one of the home-like little inns in the country, or at a lodging house in the country, and then take the rural trams day after day, or the multidinous railway trains, and see the sights with great enjoyment and profit. One can stay in rural Kent for a dollar and a half a day for board and lodging, and walk about the roads and lanes of the "garden of England," for a month. To stay in London would cost four times that amount, and yet one could run up to London (everything is "up to London,' 'in England) day after day and see the sights, and travel back home again at night.

In other parts it is the same. Pick out a cheap and pleasant country stopping-place, and work from it as a base. And in this way, and in this way only, will you get to know England and th English at home. To do it otherwise is merely a flash in the pan. In a word, the true plan in any country is to place yourself as if you were an ordinary citizen of that country, and go about as such. City life is much the same everywhere. If you stop at a little town in France, you will have the same cheap and excellent opportunities, but if you decide to work from Paris as a base—good-night. It will take a fortune. Nor can it be said that going about in a motor is a better way. It is very expensive and is altogether too hurried. If one should go up into the Highlands of Scotland and work from Edinburgh as a base, the expense will be considerable, but to stay at a lovely little Highland inn or at a Scottish private lodging-house in the Highlands is comparatively inexpensive, and gives you an idea of the Highlands and of its people that it is impossible for a traveller to get in any other way. If you have a companion then walk. That may call up visions of fatigue, but why walk until you are fatigued. Take it easy. There is plenty of time. Nothing done in a hurry is worth doing except getting out of the way of a motor car or a mad bull. A trip abroad is food for thought and conversation when one returns. The farmer will talk of the way they do things on British farms. The merchant will note the methods of the merchant. The wife will note how the house is kept and how the table is set, etc., and possibly what is in the shop windows. The one thing that will strike one most is perhaps that with a small and scattered population people could have built such great cathedrals and stupendous castles. It would almost seem as if the bulk of the people must have been rich. There can be no doubt that the progress of common, ordinary prosperity has vulgarised the lives of all the people and yet the idea that the mass lives better now than then is a mistake. Until a nation or a people sets up housekeeping for all the people, no great improvement is possible. Warring interests will wreck the lives of nations as of individuals. If you want harmony, you must plan to produce it. You ask, 'Why do we not get it, then?" Because unsettled conditions and a lack of harmony furnish the opportunity to get rich at other people's expense. All that can be done easily enough, or at anyrate a vast improvement can be made in every nation's home conditions, but perfection need not be looked for. Humanity cannot furnish the material for a perfect state. Freedom is the charm of life. Mutual help in times of need is the blessing that blesses twice. Slavery was abolished once, and let it stay there. People are not machines or merchandise, and unless treated accordingly, will in the long run go back to barbarism. The best statesman is he who best enables people to help themselves. The worst is he who guides and drives them with laws and penalties. Public opinion is the great human corrective and the great remedy, and in it lives and moves the hope of man, at least for all those who are trying to be true, self-controlled, God-fearing (not law-fearing) men and women.

SHARK INDUSTRY NOW FLOURISHES ON COAST

ENTERPRISE, NEW TO THIS COUNTRY, ESTABLISHED AT PARKER ISLAND.

VICTORIA, B. C., May 28.—(Canadian Press).—With the supply of raw material unlimited, an industry new to this country is flourishing at Parker Island, between Galiano and Mayne Islands on the Gulf of Georgia. It is the business of catching sharks, and a week's catch at the beginning of May ran to eighty, with an average weight of over a ton each. The work is being carried on by the Anglo-British Canadian Company. Mr. Nelson Maldonald of this city, who operated the first shark-catching machinery on the island, declares there will never be a shortage as there are millions in the waters surrounding the island. "In fact, the further north you go the more sharks you will find and from here to Alaska are their feeding grounds," Mr. Macdonald said. "Taking them from the bottom of the sea is automatic. Norway has a hundred of such industries. The only real hook for catching them, which works on a swivel, comes from there, and the so-called cod-liver oil which invades the markets of the world is really shark-liver oil, manufactured in Norway."

Nothing is wasted in a shark plant. There is no finer fish meat than that made from the bodies of the sharks. As a fertilizer, it is superior to dog fish. The head of the shark is full of glue of a highly valuable quality and the fins are a much-prized Chinese food delicacy, Orientals here paying as much as $3 a pound for it. The liver content runs from 60 to 70 per cent. of finest oil, of which about 10 per cent. is glycerine. Shark's teeth are in demand in many parts of the world and fetch a high price for the manufacture of ornaments. What bones there are, and there are few, go into the fertilizer part of the industry.

The greatest interest in this new industry is being manifested in the manufacture of hides. Several American companies have been formed and much excellent research work is being done at present. A Seattle company is making very rapid progress, although they have not yet arrived at a commercial paying basis. The shark hides run from an inch in thickness to the consistency of paper in the baby shark. Samples recently exhibited here to a number of local business men included soles for boots and leather for the finest "suede" shoes for women's wear. There was also a black "pigmented" product which would make a club bag that would last a lifetime. In Seattle they are manufacturing hip-boots from shark hides and they are declared to be completely waterproof. It takes fifteen days of specialized process to turn out these leathers and some six months' treatment to prepare sole leather for the market.

Mr. Macdonald predicts that the time will come when British Columbia will have as many shark-catching and manufacturing plants as Norway now has. "There are millions in it," he asserted, "and it is right at our back door."

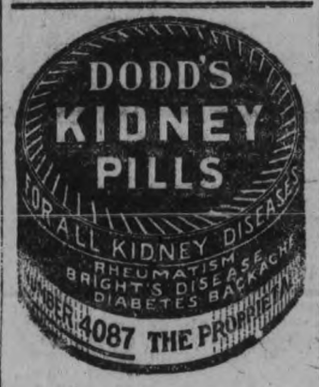
Men's Dress

One of the ways in which humanity has overturned the natural order of things is in the mistaken idea of the feminine portion of the population regarding the necessity of embellishment and adornment in the matter of dress, jewelery and make-up. It isn't so in the natural order. In the bird kingdom, from the tiny feathered iridescent humming bird to the lordly eagle and back again to the barn-yard where the red-combed master struts up and down; in the animal world, in the weird creatures that dwell in the depths of the sea, the male of the species is the one endowed by nature with the most brilliant plumage, the silkiest coat and the most graceful lines, and his mate, in soberer garb, minds the house in peace and quietness. In the human order, things are in a bad way. Books reek with suggestions on how to pursue and captivate an unwary man, articles without number appear in the magazines and the daily press on ways and means of 'how to get him" and advertisements shriek from every side about creams and powders and lotions and washes as a means to the ever-present necessity of capturing, by hook or crook, a partner in life. This isn't right. Why all the fuss and flurry on the feminine side, anyway? One never reads an article on "How to Keep a Woman's Love." If men ever doubt their ability in this respect they don't advertise it, anyway, and if they wonder which is the best type of hair cut or shoe shine calculated to capture the fancy of some romantic maiden, they don't talk about it in the public press. In the olden days, when a great deal of masculine attention was given over to the consideration of shoe buckles, lace ruffles and powdered perukes, there were no such things as transparent blouses and knee-high skirts, because the ladies knew that the men were too much occupied with the vagaries of their own fashions to be considering their feminine companions every minute of the time.



"The Lie"

Deep in the well where blushing hides
The shrinking and naked truth
I dived deep down and dared to fetch
This fragment of tested sooth.
And one of the purblind race of men
Peered with a curious eye
Over the curb as I brought it forth
And besought me to drop that lie.

STERN REMINDERS OF RHEUMATISM

THE TROUBLE MUST BE TREATED THROUGH THE BLOOD.

Every rheumatic sufferer should realize that rheumatism is rooted in the blood and that to get rid it must be treated through the blood. The old belief that rheumatism was caused by cold, damp weather, is now exploded. Such weather conditions may start the pains, but it is not the cause. Liniments and outward applications may give temporary relief, but that is all they can do because they do not reach its sources in the blood. The sufferer from rheumatism who experiments with outward applications is only wasting time and money in depending upon such treatment; the trouble still remains, and it is all the time becoming more firmly rooted. Treat this disease through the blood and you will soon find relief. Dr. Williams' Pink Pills act directly on impure, weak blood; they purify and strengthen it, and so act on the cause of rheumatism. Mr. P. J. MacPherson, R.R. No. 5, Cardigan, P.E.I., says: "About three years ago I was attacked with rheumatism. I began taking Dr. Williams' Pink Pills and soon the trouble disappeared and I am in better health than before. I also know of an old lady acquaintance who was badly crippled with rheumatism in her arms and legs, and who suffered very much. She, too, took Dr. Wiliams' Pink Pills and is now able to do her housework. I tell you this in the hope it may be of benefit to some other sufferer."

You can procure Dr. Wiliams' Pink Pills through any dealer in medicine or they will be sent you by mail at 50 cents a box or six boxes for $2.50 by writing direct to The Dr. Wiliams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

THE WEATHER

There was another brisk shower last night, and rain came down to a depth of nearly one-third of an inch, (.30.) There were some vivid flashes of lightning, with accompanying crashes of heaven's artillery. The rainfall this May is much ahead of the corresponding month last year, when only a very small amount fell, the total for the whole month being less than what fell last night. Copious rains came in June, however, and the situation was saved, the country being blessed with abundant crops.—W.P.

TAKING THE CENSUS---"THE LARGEST SINGLE ACT OF ADMINISTRATION OF THE GOVERNMENT"---NEXT WEEK

NOT ONLY IS IT NOTABLE IN ITS PHYSICAL EXTENT, THE COMPLEXITY OF THE ELABORATE MACHINERY NECESSARY, BUT IN ITS EFFECT UPON THE MACHINERY OF GOVERNMENT.

OTTAWA, May 28.—On June 1, 1921, the census of the Dominion will be taken. The census has been called "the largest single act of administration of the Government," in reference partly to its physical extent—the census organization covering every section of the country for a complex and many-sided task—and also to the great importance of census results in the general machinery of government.

The success of the census depends largely upon the co-operation of the people. Without general appreciation of the ends in view, and without the cordial assistance of individual citizens towards those ends, a good census will be impossible. A brief description of the scope, methods and purpose of the census and of its place in statistical and general administration will therefore be of interest and utility at the present moment.

Historical.

Census-taking dates from the dawn of civilization. Moses numbered the Children of Israel in the fifteenth century, B.C., (Exodus XXX., 12-15, numbers I, 2-4 and 47-49; III., 14-16; IV., 34-49). But statistical investigations were known many centuries earlier—in Babylonia (4,000, B.C.), in China (3,000, B.C.), in Egypt (2,500, B.C.). A census taken by King David in 1017, B.C., achieved evil notority in history from the divine wrath which it provoked (II. Samuel XXIV., 1-25; I. Chronicles XXI., 1-27) and which was cited for many generations against the spirit of inquiry. The census was one of the institutions founded by the great law-giver, Solon, at Athens in the sixth century, B.C. The Romans were assiduous census-takers, both under the Republic and the Empire; Julius Caesar reformed the census among other things. The Breviary of Charlemagne (A.D., 808) and the Domesday Book of William the Conqueror (A.D., 1086) are celebrated mediaeval censuses. Later, the census disappeared from Europe.

It may not be generally known that the credit of taking the first census of modern times belongs to Canada. The year was 1666; the census was one of the Colony of New France. There had been earlier records of settlement at Port Royal (1605) and Quebec (1608), but the census of 1666 was a systematic "nominal" enumeration of the people, i.e., a record of each individual by name, taken for a fixed date, showing the age, sex, place of residence, occupation and conjugal condition of each person. The results are to be seen in a document of 154 pages in the Archives of Paris, of which a transcript is in Ottawa. Altogether this census recorded 3,215 souls. When it is recalled that in Europe the first modern census dated only from the eighteenth century (those of France and England dating from the first year of the nineteenth), whilst in the United States no census was taken before 1790, the achievement of the primitive St. Lawrence colony in instituting what is to-day one of the principal instruments of government in every civilized community may call for more than passing appreciation.

Was Repeated.

This initial Canadian census was repeated several times during the French regime, after which a series of less elaborate investigations by successive Colonial Governors took its place. The first legislation on the subject was an Act of the United Provinces, dated 1847. Under it a census of Upper and Lower Canada was taken in 1851 and again in 1861. Censuses of Nova Scotia and New Brunswick were taken in the same years. An account of these and of preceding investigations may be found in Volume IV. of the Report of the Census of 1871, a volume designed to start the new Dominion on its career with a review of all previous statistics relating to its domain.

At Confederation the British North America Act specifically mentioned "the census and statistics" as falling within Dominion as distinguished from Provincial jurisdiction (Section 91). The first Dominion Census Act was passed in 1870, and the first census was taken thereunder in 1871. Similar comprehensive censuses have followed every tenth year, namely, 1881, 1891, 1901 and 1911. In 1886 a special census of Manitoba and the Northwest Territories was taken mid-way between the other censuses. This so-called "Quinquennial" census was repeated for Manitoba in 1896, whilst in 1906 and 1916 it also embraced Saskatchewan and Alberta, created into Provinces in 1905, the reason being the rapidly changing conditions in these newer sections of the Dominion.

The census of June 1, 1921, is therefore the sixth comprehensive decennial census to be taken since Confederation. The administration of the census was originally vested in the Minister of Agriculture; in 1912, however, in a re-organization and centralization of the statistical work of the Government it was transferred to the Minister of Trade and Commerce, who will accordingly promulgate the schedules and regulations of the present census.

Objects and Uses of the Census.

With the census of ancient times we would to-day have little sympathy. Originally the census was no more than a means of mustering men for foreign wars and of enabling kings and oligarchies to tax their subjects. So far are we removed from this conception that it is now expressly forbidden to use census data for any such purposes.

In Canada the fundamental legal raison d'etre of the census is to determine the representation in our Federal Parliament. As is well known, the British North America Act gave the Province of Quebec a fixed number of seats (sixty five) in the Dominion House of Commons. The number assigned to the other Provinces was pro rata, with an arrangement that the first re-adjustment should take place on the completion of the census of 1871, and that a similar re-adjustment should follow every subsequent decennial census. The census is thus taken primarily to enable a re-distribution bill to be passed by Parliament.

Wider Uses.

But the census has far wider uses than to fix electoral representation. It constitutes, in fact, under the modern system, nothing less than a great periodical stock-taking of the Canadian people, designed to show from the widest angle the point that has been reached in the general progress of the nation. It is difficult within brief compass to explain how this function is fulfilled. Fundamentally, the importance of the census hinges upon its analysis of the human element or man power of the country. The people themselves, after all are the basic asset of every State. Their numbers, sex, age, occupation, racial origin, language, education, etc., etc., are facts in themselves of the greatest moment. They constitute, moreover, the background against which almost all other facts must be projected if the latter are to have real significance. The well being of the State—physical, moral, economic, including such varied phases as birth and death rates, education, transportation facilities, financial conditions, etc., with its converse in any form—can be apprehended and interpreted only through the medium of population statistics. Even if the census went no farther it would be the basis of all study of our social and economic conditions. Linked with other official data, however, it rounds out the scheme of information by which as by a chart the Government directs the national affairs. Without the census it is literal truth to say that legislation and administration would be carried on in the dark, and that there would be no means of knowing whether the country was on the road to success or disaster. So cogently is this felt that censuses at five-year intervals, instead of ten, are universally advocated, the only drawback being the heavy cost.

Practice of Nations.

As the practice of nations in regard to census-taking tends more and more to uniformity, the census affords the inestimable benefits of comparison with other countries and enables our rational problems to be studied in their general setting. Especially is this true of the countries which constitute the British Empire. The censuses of the various Dominions India and the Crown Colonies are now taken in the same year and within a few weeks of each other, so that when the results are completed we shall have a large and harmonious body of data at command for the study, not only of the relations of the Dominions inter se, but also of the place of the Empire as a whole among the nations of the world.

Scope of the Canadian Census.

As already remarked, the primary task of the census is the enumeration and description of every man, woman and child in Canada. Good business dictates that when so large an organization as this requires has once been created, it should be put to every available purpose. In other words, the "overhead" must earn its maximum. The census, therefore, should deal not only with the people themselves, but directly with the people's institutions and affairs, insofar as the latter can be properly brought within its scope.

As this point arises a problem involving considerable discrimination—to enumerate the people demands a large organization from the physical aspect, but it does not require any special technical training on the part of those who collect the information, the questions being such that any person of fair education can explain. This, however, is not the case when the inquiry is shifted to certain other fields. Industrial production, for example, is so many-sided and complicated in its processes that no body of men appointed and instructed as are the census enumerators can hope to deal with it successfully. Then, again, it has always to be remembered that the census is essentially a stock-taking. Just as in business, certain transactions must be recorded continuously as they occur, as in day-books and ledgers, so in the affairs of the nation many phenomena must be observed as and when they arise, and not through the medium merely of a periodical stock sheet like the census, whose record is that of a given fixed amount. The re-organization of the statistical work of the Government and its centralization under the Dominion Bureau of Statistics, mentioned above in passing, has enabled this problem to be dealt with more satisfactorily for the present census than previously, because it has provided the means of securing certain information from day to day which formerly was obtained only through the census, unsatisfactory as the latter admittedly was for the purpose. This is too large a subject to describe in detail here. Reference has been made above to industrial statistics (mines, factories, etc.); these are now collected annually by correspondence on a large number of different forms adapted to each particular industry and in co-operation with the different administrative departments, Dominion and Provincial, that are interested in particular sections of the field. Thus an annual census of dairy factories is taken in collaboration with the Provincial Dairy Commissioners, in fisheries the Bureau works with the Dominion and Provincial Fisheries Departments, and so on. Similarly, the Bureau now collects the statistics of births, deaths and marriages in co-operation with the Registrar Generals of the several Provinces, and the old mortuary schedule of the census has been dropped. Also, statistics of education have been largely eliminated from the census and dependence will in future be placed on concerted action through Provincial Education Departments under a uniform scheme centreing in the Bureau of Statistics. This principle in short has been applied throughout the census.

On one case, however, a partial exception to this rule is made, namely, the important industry of agriculture. Approximately fifty per cent. of the population of Canada is dependent upon agriculture, and the most expensive part of the census organization is that of the rural districts. For agriculture, moreover, the ordinary population enumerator proves a satisfactory field agent, most of the processes of agriculture being familiar ones and such as an enumerator who lives in an agricultural district can well cover. Hence the decennial census of the Canadian people is a census of population and agriculture—that is, a comprehensive survey of the Canadian people themselves and of their primary industry.

The Census Schedules.

The schedules used in the census are five in number dealing respectively with (1) population, (2) agriculture, (3) livestock, fruit-growing, etc., in towns, (4) industrial and trading concerns and (5) blindness and deaf-mutism. Merely to state the questions asked on these would be impossible here. The population schedule carries some thirty-five columns, recording for each person the name, family, kind of dwelling, age, sex, conjugal condition, birthplace, citizenship, racial origin, language, religion, education, occupation, etc., etc., in all necessary detail. The shedule relating to agriculture was drawn up in consultation with Dominion and Provincial Agricultural Departments and other authorities, and will elicit a wealth of information on such features as farm acreages, land values, buildings, implements, crops, fertilizers, farm labour, orchards, small fruits, farm gardens, livestock, poultry animal products, forest products, land tenure, irrigation, drainage, co-operative marketing, etc., etc. The schedules on animals, etc., in towns is supplementary to the agricultural schedule; there are, of course, a considerable number of horses, cattle, poultry, bees, etc., within urban limits, and their products and those of market gardens, town orchards, etc., are in the aggregate important. The schedule on industrial and business concerns collects only the name, address and class of each; this is for the use of the detailed annual inquiry conducted through correspondence by the Bureau as previously described. The record of the blind and of deaf-mutes is to facilitate the work of educational and other institutions for these classes.

In connection with these somewhat elaborate and searching series of inquiries the following points should be clearly understood: (1) That no question has been inserted merely for the gratification of curiosity or because the information would be interesting, but only because it has a bearing on basic social or economic conditions; and (2) that the answers given by the individual are absolutely confidential, every employee of the census being under oath and penalty against prevailing any individual item, and the Bureau of Statistics itself being forbidden to issue any statement that would lay bare any personal matter. Though the name of each person is taken down this is not for the purpose of associating the individual with any of the facts that are recorded, but merely as a check on the accuracy of the enumeration. The census is first and last for statistical purposes and cannot be made the basis of any direct administrative action. Let it also be noted that census enumerators are required to use courtesy and tact in collecting the information, though refusal to answer a census question is penalized by statute.

Methods of Collection and Compilation.

The organization by which this far-flung investigation is carried out and its results reduced to comprehensible and usable form is a large one. Its nucleus exists in a small permanent staff constituting one of the branches of the Bureau of Statistics. This branch maintains connection between census and census, so that experience is continuous and cumulative. When a census impends all plans are originated by it and the necessary expansion of personnel arranged for. The latter falls under two main headings—the field work or collection of the facts and the compilation and tabulation of the latter into census reports. Every detail of importance down to the final stages of the work must be foreseen and provided for from its inception.

In planning the field work the country is first divided into "census districts," each of which is placed in charge of a "census commissoner." The districts are then divided into "sub-districts," varying in population from 600 to 800 in rural localities and from 1,200 to 1,800 in urban. The sub-district is the territory allotted to a 'census enumerator," who conducts the house-to-house and farm-to-farm canvass and who is the only census official with whom the public comes directly in contact. One object of the census being to determine Parliamentary representation, the Act directs that census districts shall correspond as nearly as possible to the Federal constituencies for the time being, whilst the sub-districts are to be roughly the same as the polling subdivisions. Some of the constituencies, however, are too large for one commissioner and are accordingly divided; departure is also necessary in a good many cases from the polling units. Altogether, the census

Out of the Present into the Past

IT is interesting to note the excellent preservation of some old family residences. So well do they "fit into the picture" that except for their architecture one might almost imagine them the product of the present age, yet in reality they stand as silent tributes to the wise precaution against decay and deterioration on the part of a former generation.

Any house that is worth building should also be worthy of preservation by means of paint. The maximum of protection is found in

BABY BEGLEY.

"It was the Virol saved her Life."

40, Java Street, Ottawa, 21/9/20.
Dear Sirs,

I want to tell about my baby Doris Mabel. She weighed 5½ lbs. when born and appeared healthy then, but began to waste away, and was so poorly that she had to be carried about on a pillow and no food would agree with her.

At the age of two months the nurse advised VIROL added to the feeding; she then weighed 5 lbs. and after a few days she began to improve. The VIROL was continued and she steadily gained until at nine months she weighed 17 lbs. The nurse at the Health Station said she had very little hope of the baby living, and we are sure it was the VIROL saved her life. I am enclosing her photo taken at the age of one year and eight months, weighing 22 lbs., and you can use it if you wish as I am so grateful to your VIROL.

Yours truly,
(Sgd.) (Mrs.) W. J. BEGLEY.

Virol is used in large quantities in more than 2,500 Hospitals and Infant Clinics. It is invaluable for the expectant and nursing mother herself, whilst for children it supplies those vital principles that are destroyed in the sterilizing of milk; it is also a bone and tissue building food of immense value. Virol babies have firm flesh, strong bones and good colour.

TAKING THE CENSUS

of 1921 will employ 247 commissioners and probably 13,000 enumerators. The commissioners are appointed by the Minister and instructed by an officer of the Bureau; the enumerators are appointed and instructed by the commissioners, who must also check and vouch for all the enumerators' returns before the latter are forwarded to Ottawa. All field officers are paid for the most part on a "piece" basis, i.e., according to the population, farms, etc., enumerated. All are required to pass a practical test in the work before appointment.

Covers Half a Continent.

For a census that covers half a Continent, embracing the most varied conditions of nature and settlement, uniformity of plan is clearly impossible. For the remote and seldom penetrated regions of Ungava, Northern Ontario and the West, the organization of the fur-trading companies and of the various church missions have been engaged. In other similar regions the Royal Canadian Mounted Police will take the census, whilst the agents of the Indian Department will perform a like service for the Indian population on reserves and elsewhere. An officer of the Department of the Interior will descend the Mackenzie River for purposes of the census. Even in districts that are closer there remain a large number of cases where pack trains must be organized, steamers chartered and similar special means employed to ensure that no section of the country escapes enumeration.

For the compilation of the census an extra staff of 350 to 400 clerks will be engaged at Ottawa. Census compilation and tabulation is an elaborate and detailed process which would take much space to describe. An interesting feature is the use of machinery in compiling and analyzing the returns. The method is very briefly as follows: The thirty-five facts obtained for each individual are punched on a specially designed card, the perforations showing by their location the exact information obtained at the census. The cards are then sorted and otherwise manipulated by machines which count and record various combinations of data as required, according to the perforations on the cards. For example, should it be desired to know the number of, say civil engineers, of Canadian citizenship between the ages of 21 and 50, in the Province of Ontario, the machines will pick out and count the cards in a few operations. The invention of these machines, of which the Bureau of Statistics has a large battery, has greatly increased the scope and accuracy of the information derivable from the census, at the same time that timber yards in the neighborhood of it has halved the cost. A record exists of over a million and a half classifications by one machine in a single day.

It is expected that from two to five weeks from June 1st will suffice in normal localities for the completion of the field work. After the third or fourth month it should be possible to give out the first results for many cities, towns, counties, etc. As to when the final count by Provinces for the entire Dominion will be available, so many unforeseeable contingencies are possible that prophecy is dangerous, but it is expected that five or six months should enable a close approximation to be made. In the recent U. S. census the population count was announced in nine months and seven days.

Altogether, as already noted, the census will cost about two million dollars. The amount set aside this year is about one million and three-quarters, but there was a vote of 50,000 last year for equipment and preparatory work, and another quarter of a million will probably be required in 1922 and 1923 to finish.

Conclusion.

The foregoing will have an outline of what the census is and of how it is carried out. It remains only to say that the whole has been planned with the utmost care, over a period of years, with the experience of other countries and of five previous censuses in Canada in view, and with special reference to the requirements of the present hour, and also to the necessity of not burdening the community with any inquiry that is not fully justified. Perfection of organization is not claimed, for census-taking in Canada, as in other countries, is still in process of development. Nevertheless, the census merits the support of each and every citizen as a patriotic duty, notwithstanding features that may be irksome. The census is taken for the benefit of the community as a whole and, therefore, directly or indirectly of every member of the community. Never before has there been the like need for census information. Since the last census the war has left scarcely a branch of the national life untouched. It has violently upset many of our most stable measurements, at the same time that it has set up new strains and stresses and generally created conditions of the utmost consequence to our national future. Within the decade, also, Canada has celebrated the jubilee of her birth as a nation, when an appraisement of her status is particularly necessary. An appeal to the people is, therefore, made to assist in this great national undertaking by furnishing the information asked fully and accurately and thus helping to render the census worthy of the Dominion and of the serious purposes which it has in view.

VOICE OF THE PEOPLE

Editor of the Examiner,

Dear Sir,—There would be more converts to the Armour Hill site for a Soldiers Monument if it were possible to purchase one acre instead of thirty—and more still if the trustees of the estate could see their way to donate one acre on the top of the hill with roadway from Hunter street.

Yours truly
JAMES ROLLINS.

P. S.—A massive monument on the top of the hill would make the rest of the property more valuable and the donation of the site would be a good business investment for the trustees of the estate.

CHURCH UNION REVIVED WITH PRESBYTERIANS

WILL BE ONE OF PRINCIPAL SUBJECTS OF DISCUSSION ON AGENDA OF ANNUAL ASSEMBLY.

MISSION EXTENSION UP

TORONTO, May 28.—(Canadian Press)— Reviyal of the much discussed question of Church Union, extensions of home and foreign mission work and various important financial projects will be among the matters to be thoroughly debated with a view to action, at the annual General Assembly of the Presbyterian Church in Canada, which will meet in St. James Square Presbyterian Church, Toronto, Wednesday, June 1, and will likely continue in session for at least a week. Rev. Professor James Ballantyne of Toronto, is the present moderator.

This Presbyterian Parliament meets annually and is a very important and impressive gathering, which only arrives at decisions after thorough debate and full consideration. It partakes of the nature and character of the Presbyterian type; indeed it is a revelation of this ecclesiastical body that is the leader among the Protestant denominations of the Dominion.

According to the census of 1911, the proportion of Presbyterians to the total population was 15.48, with Methodist 14.98 and Anglicans 14.47 The Presbyterian population in Canada is estimated at 1,200,000. Its communicants now total 350,000, in 192,000 families 2,000 ministers serve the 4,000 congregations, or an average two to each. There are also nearly 12000 elders who compose the sessions of the congregtions. When six hundred representatives of the million-and-a-quarter Presbyterians meet in annual assembly, it is as has been said, a significant event and one fraught with many decisions of moment to the members of that Church.

The six hundred will moreover, represent the Dominion geographically, for there will be Commissioners present from Newfoundand and Cape Breton on the East to Prince Rupert and the Yukon on the far North-west, a matter of 5000 miles or more dividing them, and yet they come together united in the sense that they represent a historic Church, to deal with a striking and extensive programme of service not only in Canada but in several lands on the other side of the globe.

This "Parliament of the Six Hundred" also constitutes a real Parliament and a real democracy. Freedom of speech and the best expression of opinions, even of criti- prerogatives of the delegates. Nor are the debates always characterized by soft words and pleasant nothings. It is a time and place when strong men give voice to strong opinions, and when there is sometimes a clash of wits and some thrilling exhibitions of oratorical and argumentative skill. "The Fathers and Brethren" who make up the General Assembly can give pointers to even a Federal Parliament in keen debate, logical reasoning and far-reaching decisions.

The coming Assembly promises to be an epocal one, chiefly because the long-discussed Church Union question will again come up after a truce that dates back to the outbreak of the War. The last vote taken on the question, in Winnipeg in 1916, was in favor of the proposed plan of organic union with the Methodists and Congregationalists. Every time the big question has been up for discussion it has aroused not only deep interest but even deper feeling, both pro and con. It would be not only difficult but futile to predict the result of the approaching discussion Many questions naturally arise such as "If union is again decided upon, will the minority maintain the historic Presbyterian Church, and if so, what will be the relationship of bequests and properties thereto?" Or "will there be a further postponement, with another vote, in view of the five years that have elapsed since the last one?" The question is also raised by some— why not face a wider union based upon the Lambeth Resolutions?" but no one is venturing on a forecast.

The regular programme of an Assembly is a big one, quite apart from a special question such as Church Union. The review of the Church, at home and abroad, comes as a revelation of the many sided nature of its work and of its wide geographical connections.

Take the one department of Home Missions and Social Service, with its thousand Home Mission Fields and Augmented Charges. This one fact alone illustrates the ramifications of a great church, with its religious and national implications. There are among them no less than fifty Missions to non-Anglo-Saxons. Thirty-three educational centres represent another phase of modern church work, as do the fourteen Hospital Centres, seven Redemptive Homes, seven Community Houses and a score or more of School Homes, mostly in Quebec and the west Even with this extensive programme and similar work carried on by sister Protestant denominations, there are hundreds of communities in the new parts of the country without church or missionary and thousands of New Canadians without the Gospel. Some of the Commissioners to the Assembly will be from the far-flung boundaries of this great Canadian Mission Field.

There is, too, the Foreign Mission work. It is time the old caricature of the foreign missionary as being a poor specimen of humanity, preaching to naked savages under palm trees, be called in. It never was true and is even less so now. The modern missionary must be as he chiefly is ,a high-grade representative who is not only, a preacher but an educationalist, a business manager and an agriculturist but big enough to serve in quasi-diplomatic way with governments and high officials.

The Presbyterian Church has over three hundred Canadians serving in China, Korea, India, Formosa, Trinidad, and British Guiana and the stories the missionaries on furlough have to tell the Assembly are moving and thrilling. All the Canadian missionaries in China are rendering a great life-saving service in the famine areas of the Yellow Kingdom.

The Sunday School part of the Church will also have an important place in this Presbyteran programme for it represents nearly 350,000 of a Sabbath School army, which is rightly regarded asf the chief asset of the church as well as to the nation.

Then there is the dollars and cents item on the agenda. The givings of a church are a barometer of its earnestness. Measured by this standard, Presbyterians will show their best year of givings, with total receipts, during 1920 ,of nearly four and a half million dollars. Of this record sum, $1,165,526 represents Budget givings of congregations towards the Schemes of the Church, as they are called. $2,619,076 has been paid in on account of the five million dollars Forward Movement Thank-Offering. As a result of the latter gift, 62 churches and 65 manses have been helped into existence by loans or grants, beside School Homes, Settlements, Hospitals, etc.

Yet another Branch of the Church that will be reported upon is called the Department of the Stranger which helps to welcome and place the immigrant under a system of Port Chaplains, pastors and members of the Women's Missionary Societies. Nearly twenty thousand were thus helped during 1920.

The above are only a few of the big subjects on the programme of the coming Assembly. In addition, there will be, lively discussions on many subjects; of which there is always a goodly crop, such as the appointment of officials—a job the Assembly dearly loves to have a hand in, the election of the Moderator, co-operative relationships with other Churches, the opening up of new fields of work, as well as debates on many phases of national life such as the temperance question, divorce, race-track gambling, relation between capital and labor and Sabbath observence.

The foregoing outline, therefore, of the possible programme of the forthcoming General Assembly will prove the initial statement that this Presbyterian Parliament has an importnce of its own and far beyond its denominational borders.

Candidates already nominated for moderator for the coming year include the folowing:

Rev. Dr. E. D. McLaren of Vancouver.

Rev. Dr. Ephraim Scott of Montreal.

Rev. Dr. A. T. Love of Quebec.

Rev. Dr. W L Clay of Victoria, B. C.

Rev. Principal Clarence McKinnon, D.D. of Halifax.

Rev. Dr. Andrew Henderson of Vandura, Sask.

Rev. Dr. C. W. Gordon (Ralph Connor) of Winnipeg.

HEADACHES

Make Life Miserable

Headaches are one of the most aggravating troubles one can have, and it is hard to struggle along with a head that aches and pains all the time.

Headaches seem to be habitual with many people; some are seldom if ever free from them, suffering continually from the dull throbbings, the intense pains; sometimes in one part and sometimes in another, and then again over the whole head.

There is only one way to get relief from these persistent headaches, and that is by going direct to the seat of the trouble, for unless the cause is removed the headaches will still continue to exist.

The fact that Burdock Blood Bitters keeps the stomach, liver and bowels toned up is proof enough to show that it will eliminate the cause of the headaches.

Mrs. Harold Lanain, Owen Sound, Ont., writes "My system was out of order. I suffered a great deal from severe pains in my head which made me feel very miserable. After having tried other remedies I purchased a bottle of Burdock Blood Bitters and was very glad to notice a decided improvement in my health. I took another and am glad to say that it has done me an enormous amount of good. I have recommended it to my friends who were in a similar condition, and they all say it is a wonderful remedy.

GIRLS SEEK DEATH TO ESCAPE SCHOOL

DREAD OF FINAL EXAMINATION DRIVES NEWARK GIRL TO SHOOT HERSELF.

NEW YORK, May 28. — The approach of final examinations made two high school girls so unhappy yesterday that one shot herself in the head with a rifle, dying later, and another, the police reported, drank iodine, but failed to kill herself.

In the mind of Flora Morina, 14, student, in the Barrington High School, Newark, who fired a shot into her right temple just before school time, the police believe there lurked the suicidal motive which on Feb. 1 inspired Flora's chum, Stella Trana, 14, of 375 Summer avenue, Newark, to end her life. Stella reached a crisis in life when she failed to pass the mid-term examinations in the Summer avenue school, and found the tragedy too great for her. Flora had tried to comfort her chum, but had failed, and Stella went home and took her father's revolver, and ended it all.

Stella's death remained vividly in Flora's mind and when she met with reverses in the classroom she would run home crying and remain despondent for days. The illness of her sister, Rose, who had been out of school most of the time, may have added to her distress. Last Thursday Flora "skipped" school, and yesterday morning, just as her father Antonio, who is a motion picture man in Manhattan, was leaving home for his office, he received a note from the teacher .The teacher wanted to know why Rose and Flora remained away from school. Morina reproved both girls, and Rose, whose health recently has improved, prepared dutifully for the school.

Flora, however, waited until her father had left the house and then ran upstairs to his room. A moment later Rose heard a shot and hurrying to the room found Flora lying with the gun beside her and the wound in her head.

"I could not bear going back," Rose said Flora told her. An ambulance took her to the hospital. She did not recover consciousness.

Helen Greenwald, 13, of 286 West 13th street, a student at Junior High School, Lenox avenue and 111th street, drank iodine, while in her bedroom, teling her sister Bessie she was afraid that she wouldn't pass." At Harlem hospital it was found she had not swallowed much of the poison. She is now out of danger. Her father is a manufacturer of scientific instruments.

Fruit Salad.

Take a small glass dish. Dip edge in white of egg and then dip in parsley. This makes a pretty garnish. Fill dish heaping full of orange, grape, fruit and banana, marinated with sweet dressing. Serve grated cheese sandwiches with this, or cheese wafers, or nut sandwiches.

ONTARIO KNIGHTS OF COLUMBUS IN CONVENTION HERE NEXT WEEK

DELEGATES FROM ALL PARTS OF THE PROVINCE WILL BE IN PETERBORO FOR TWO DAYS—STATE DEPUTY L. V. O'CONNOR OF LINDSAY WILL PRESIDE.

BISHOP FALLON COMING

The eighteenth annual convention of the Ontario State Council of the Knights of Columbus will be held here next Tuesday and Wednesday. Most of the delegates will arrive here on Monday evening, and an impromptu reception will be held for them at the K. of C. club rooms on Simcoe street. On Tuesday morning the officers and members of the State Council will march in a body from the K. of C. Club to St. Peter's Cathedral, where a solemn high mass will be celebrated beginning at 9 o'clock. The sermon will be preached by Bishopu Fallon of London, the State Chaplain, and at 10.45 a.m. a civic welcome will be extended to the visitors by Mayor McIntyre and Mr. J. J. Duffus, president of the Board of Commerce. The sessions of the convention will be held in the K. of C. club rooms on Simcoe street.

As a variant to the general business of the convention the local reception committee has arranged a series of entertainments including a social evening at the K. of C. club on Tuesday evening, a boat trip down the river for the wives and daughters of the delegates commencing at 1.30 o'clock on Wednesday afternoon. They will be joined at four o'clock by the delegates, and the entire party will make the trip over the lift lock. The convention will be concluded with a banquet at the Empress hotel at 7.45 o'clock, and for the ladies a bridge party will be given at the K. of C. club by the Catholic Women's League.

This is the first time the provincial convention of the Knights of Columbus has come to Peterborough, and the local Knights have laid out their preparations and arrangements with the determination of making this convention the most successful and enjoyable in the history of Columbianism in Ontario. W. S. Merrell, Grand Knight of Peterborough, Council, has personally devoted a great deal of his time to the preliminary work and has been aided by an industrious and capable committee.

L. V. O'Connor Will Preside.

L. V. O'Connor, the presiding officer of the State Council, is a prominent member of Lindsay Council and is also generally well known in Peterborough. A personal reference to him in the May issue of "The Recorder" will interest many of Mr. O'Connor's local friends. As a bit of biography it runs as follows:

"A good many years ago— just how many years does not matter—two then young and aspiring exponents of the law opened an office in Peterborough. For some unknown reason clients did not immediately flock to this young and enterprising firm, and after using up a great deal of fuel in order to keep warm and some more patience in waiting for the business that was apparently so slow in coming, these two gifted legal lights mutually disolved partnership there and then.

One of them stayed on and subsequently became a leader in the profession in this city, and is now a prominent barrister of Toronto—Daniel O'Connell.

The other gentleman is the subject of this sketch—our much respected and worthy State Deputy L. V. O'Connor.

When young O'Connor decided to leave Peterborough and seek other fields, he was just at a loss to determine where that particular place might be, and his choice lay between Kingston and Lindsay. So in order to definitely settle this momentous question he flipped a coin, and the talisman pointed to Lindsay.

So what the Limestone City lost was all gain to the Scugog town, and L. V. O'Connor has since become a leading citizen in the place of his adoption, a leader at the bar, and now occupies the first position in the gift of the Knights of Columbus of Ontario."

Treasurer Eight Years.

Mr. O'Connor was elected State Treasurer at the convention held in Sault Ste. Marie in 1911 and retained that position for eight years ,including the period of the war during which the Ontario nights of Columbus raised $77,000 for the Catholic chaplains, this sum being subscribed by the Catholic people of the province; and the further sum of $483,562.39 for the Catholic Army Huts Fund, which amounted to $1,165,490.58 from the whole of Canada. This splendid sum was secured by general subscriptions throughout the Dominion, and its final total was made possible by the co-operation which the Knights of Columbus and the Catholic people of Canada received from their fellow citizens of other denominations. They will be interested no doubt to know that the directors of the fund decided to distribute the sum that remained when the war ended in the social, recreational and religious needs of all soldiers "who are or who have been on active service, and to continue that work among the members of the militia or permanent forces and naval service of Canada so long as there is urgent need for such assistance and the possibility of obtaining funds to carry on this work." Audited statements have been published from time to time showing the progress of this enterprise, and on the present occasion the success of that war service reflects honour upon State Deputy O'Connor who was the State Treasurer during those years of drives and patriotic campaigns. It is understood that Mr. O'Connor will not be a candidate for re-election to the position of State Deputy.

The Knights in Peterborough.

The Knights of Columbus was founded at New Haven in 1882 as a social and fraternal association. It is not an oath-bound order, and no oath is taken in any of its four degrees. It has an impressive and elaborate system of initiation and ceremonial, but nothing stands between this and the public except a gentleman's promise not to reveal unless the interests of the State or the Church demand it.

Peterborough Council No. 798 was instituted on May 25, 1903. Its present membership is about 500. The first Grand Knight was Daniel O'Connell and his successors have been: Judge L. M. Hayes, T. P. O'Connor, John Corkery, Harry Phelan, Dr. F. P. McNulty, G. H. Popham, V. J. McElderry, Rev. A. B. Cote, F. F. Garden, J. T O'Connel, J R. Corkery, J. E. Sullivan, J. J. Duffus and W. S. Merrell.

NEW SCHEME TO TAP THE NORTHERN MINERAL LANDS.

EDMONTON, Alta., May 28.—(Canadian Press).—A new scheme for the tapping of the northern mineral country has been evolved by an American syndicate known as the Mackenzie Basin Exploration and Exploitation Company, of Boise, Idaho.

A representative of the company here has arranged for the sending of independent prospectors into districts with which they are familiar. In this way the new company expect to get first-hand information regarding the hidden wealth of the north country.

The organisers of the concern are old-time prospectors. The prospectors will not indulge in any "fancy frills," and will not be burdened with a quantity of useless gear. They will travel alone, with canoes or packs, and are outfitted with just what is necessary to carry them through.

The general idea, in so far as the present year is concerned, is to explore and obtain data, but development work is expected to commence next year, if some of the prospects "pan out" as they are expected to do.

GROWING DEAF WITH HEAD NOISES? TRY THIS

If you are growing hard of hearing and fear Catarrhal Deafness, or if you have roaring, rumbling, hissing noises in your ears, go to your druggist, and get 1 ounce of Parmint (double strength), and add to it ½ pint of hot water and a little granulated sugar Take 1 tablespoonful four times a day.

This will often bring quick relief from the distressing head noises. Clogged nostrils should open, breathing become easy, and the mucus stop dropping into the throat It is easy to prepare, costs little, and is pleasant to take. Anyone who is threatened with Catarrhal Deafness, or who has head noises, should give this prescription a trial.

OTTAWA AWAITS TO-DAY'S RETURNS

BYE-ELECTIONS IN YAMASKA AND YORK HOLD ATTENTION OF M.P.'S.

OTTAWA, May 28.—From present indications the parliamentary session will not end before next Thursday, especially if, as was indicated, supplementary supply is not brought till Monday.

All Interest in Elections.

Dominating interest at Ottawa are the by-elections to-day in York-Sunbury and Yamaska. The results in 1917 are no guide. In that election the New Brunswick constituency was Unionist by four thousand, and Yamaska was Liberal by twenty-eight hundred. Traditionally, York is strongly Conservative, while Yamaska has been close and has alternated between political camps. If it were a fight on old party lines in the former riding, the Government party would entertain no doubt at all. As it is, they fully expect to win, but by a majority below normal. The uncertain element arises from the candidacy of the United Farmers, something entirely new to Federal politics in this particular division.

Liberals Cocksure.

Liberals claim they will carry Yamaska, but some contrary reports come in Medicine Hat, St. Antoine, likely that the by-elections will have any great effect upon the session now that it is so near over, but their influence on the general situation and upon the contests yet to come to the Government. It is not Leeds and Brockville and West York, is regarded as very considerable.

While the regular business of the fading session is being discussed in the House, the only theme in the lobbies and corridors is these significant contests and around the Parliament buildings to-night promises to be one of much excitement.

MANITOBA MAKES RECORD IN AUTO LICENSES, ALSO CREAMERY PRODUCTION

WINNIPEG, May 28.—(Canadian Press).—A record number of automobile licenses, estimated at about 40,000, will be taken out in Manitoba this year, an increase of 3,000, according to W. McKnight, head of the Provincial Automobile Department. The additional fee which the Legislature decided to impose will bring in about $125,000, Mr. McKnight estimates. The additional revenue raised from this extra fee will be used for road improvement and for reduction of interest on the bonds raised by the Province for all road purposes.

WINNIPEG, May 28.—Manitoba produced 8,000,000 pounds of creamery butter during the past year, L. A. Gibson, Provincial Dairy Commissioner, announces. Three million pounds was exported to New Zealand, Denmark and Holland. A booklet dealing with butter-making and the manner to produce the best grades of cream for the market, has been issued by Mr. Gibson. Twenty-two thousand copies have been prepared for distribution.

LARIMIE HOLDS THE RANGE

By Frank H. SPEARMAN.

The front door opened, in fact, while she was speaking; Kate stood with her back to it, and though by turning around she could have peeped through the curtained archway, she would not have looked for a million dollars. If Belle wanted her revenge she had it at that moment. Kate could not sink through the floor to escape, but now she wanted to! She did step quickly aside, hoping she had not been seen, and retired to the farthest corner of the kitchen. Belle's mouth before the stove set grimly and with her left hand she gave her wig the vigorous punch she used when wrought up. Kate motioned to her frantically. Belle regarded her coldly, but did come closer, and Kate caught at her sleeve. "For heavens sake," she begged in a whisper, "don't let him know I'm here."

Basting forks in hand, Belle returned to the fire. Kate eyed her anxiously, but Belle's face was hard, and quick, firm steps were coming from the front door.

"Hello, Belle!" was the greeting. Had they been Kate's death message the words could not have frightened her more. She knew, too well, the voice.

"You didn't get my message," were the next words flung through the archway.

"I got it," answered Belle, going forward and providentially stopping Laramie before he reached the curtains.
